FOREWORD

Louis Menand

The New Yale Book of Quotations is a fun book to browse, and there are not many reference books we can say that about. Maybe the old print version of the Oxford English Dictionary (OED), the pages of which W. H. Auden is supposed to have worn out in his copy.

Like the OED, the Yale Book is fun in a scholarly way (if that is not oxymoronic). It does what scholarship is supposed to do, which is to set the record straight and throw light into dark corners. There is a distinct pleasure just in knowing that Winston Churchill did not invent the term “iron curtain,” and that Marie Antoinette never said “Let them eat cake.” It feels good to be a person who knows that “The buck stops here” originated not with Harry Truman but on a card above an army lieutenant’s desk in 1929, and that “You’re either part of the solution or you’re part of the problem,” ascribed to Eldridge Cleaver, derives from a prayer by a Congressional chaplain, Peter Marshall, that appears in the Congressional Record for January 1947. And it’s cool to find out that phrases that seem to have come out of nowhere—“Shit happens,” “Get a life”—actually came from somewhere.

But the pleasure in knowing that a lot of conventional quotation wisdom, of the Bartlett’s Familiar variety, is often mistaken is not only academic, or fun in the Trivial Pursuit sense. This knowledge is also demystifying. In the quotation universe, as in our mundane material world, the rich get richer, and not always because they earned it. The bigger the name, the more likely the misattribution. Churchill gets the credit for “iron curtain” because he is already the owner of a major reputation for colorful phrases. Meanwhile, the lowly wordsmiths, language’s burger flippers, labor in obscurity.

The Yale Book’s recovery of these names is a valuable service in the cause of social justice. For it somehow does not shock us to have it revealed, especially in this revised edition, that the distribution of credit for famous sayings maps onto the structure of social relations. Women, it turns out, have often come up with memorable words and phrases standardly attached to men. There is a sociology of quotation.

So “I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it,” everybody’s favorite Voltaire quotation, was actually written by his biographer Evelyn Beatrice Hall, as the sort of thing Voltaire might have said. And “The only difference between the rich and other people is that the rich have more money” was a remark made to Hemingway by the critic Mary Colum. Hemingway liked it so much he borrowed it for his (probably fictional) conversation with F. Scott Fitzgerald.

The OED shows us that words have histories, that their meanings have evolved (or, really, shifted in the wind of circumstance) over time. And the Yale Book shows us that quotations evolve, as well. They are embellished (“Play it, Sam” morphs into “Play it again, Sam”), punched up (“If you build it, they will come”), and bumper-stickered (“What would Jesus do?”). And, to a greater or lesser degree of significance, quotations are always—it is the very nature of the genre—taken out of context. “We the people of the United States,” “It is a truth universally acknowledged,” “April is the cruelest month,” “It was the best of times,” “Mistah Kurtz—he dead”: they are the pith of much larger texts, convenient handles on the enormous trunk of speech. Their permanence—for, unlike memes, which are shooting stars, quotations are like the planets, quasi-immortal—gives the comforting illusion of comprehensibility to the limitless expanse of recorded utterance. We will never read, let alone grasp, all of the work of Martin Heidegger, but knowing the phrase “Language is the house of being” allows us to pretend we have. That’s our handle on Heidegger.

As with the OED, browsing the Yale Book is also fun in the fun-house sense. A trip through these pages can induce a sensation of vertigo. What is not, potentially, a quotation? If “Where’s the beef?” and “He’s dead, Jim” can achieve immortality, so might any phrase, given enough circulation. “You can get a happy quotation anywhere if you have the eye,” as Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr. (a veritable quotation mint) put it.

Boiled way down, a quotation is just a string of words that latches on. Every family has its own stock, found verbal objects that get picked up, mimicked, transformed by repetition into mottos or refrains. So does every person. Song lyrics, lines of poetry, bits remembered from children’s books. It’s strange how precious these are. They are amulets, charms against chaos, secret mantras for dark times. The Yale Book tells us where these little bits of ourselves came from.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The editor has been extremely fortunate to receive outstanding support from staff at Yale University Press. Excellent editorial support and sound judgment came from Sarah Miller, former editor for literature and the performing arts; Ash Lago, language manager; and Adina Berk, senior editor for history. Others at the Press who provided important help included John Donatich, director; Jessie Dolch, copy editor; Nancy Ovedovitz, former design manager; Jeffrey Schier, senior manuscript editor; Sonia Shannon, senior designer; Eva Skewes, editorial assistant; Karen Stickler, assistant designer; and Jenya Weinreb, director of publishing operations.

This book benefited greatly from the help of readers and researchers from throughout the world. An enormous debt is owed to Garson O'Toole, who was inspired by the first edition of The Yale Book of Quotations to create the magnificent website quoteinvestigator.com. His contributions are described in the Introduction to this volume. Another person who furnished superb research about quotations was Barry Popik, whose website barrypopik.com contains an enormous amount of material about quotations and phrases. Charles Clay Doyle was the principal editor of The Dictionary of Modern Proverbs (the other editors were Wolfgang Mieder and Fred R. Shapiro), a landmark achievement that furnished much information for The New Yale Book of Quotations.

The first edition of The Yale Book of Quotations noted other reference works that were indispensable, namely the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations, Bartlett's Familiar Quotations, the Oxford Dictionary of Proverbs, The Oxford Dictionary of Nursery Rhymes, The Columbia Granger Dictionary of Poetry Quotations, and the outstanding books of Ralph Keyes, Nigel Rees, Suzy Platt, and Robert Andrews. The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations provides marvelously precise citations for quotations, and many of its pre-1800 citations were silently accepted for this book. (This is comparable to the practice of The Oxford English Dictionary in silently accepting citations from other scholarly lexical dictionaries.) Post-1800 quotations here have generally been verified from the original publications or standard editions. Other very helpful quotation compilations published since the first edition of The Yale Book of Quotations came out in 2006 included the following:

Bartlett's Familiar Black Quotations, edited by Retha Powers

Brewer's Famous Quotations, edited by Nigel Rees

The New Penguin Dictionary of Quotations, edited by Robert Andrews

The Oxford Dictionary of American Quotations, edited by Hugh Rawson and Margaret Miner

The Quote Verifier, edited by Ralph Keyes

Perhaps the most gratifying consequence of the publication of the original Yale Book of Quotations was the response it inspired from individuals—scholars, journalists, and people who just love quotations—in the United States and indeed around the globe. Suggestions about quotations that should be added and improved information about quotation origins have continually poured in to the editor, and The New Yale Book of Quotations is much the better as a result. The foremost contributors were Murray Biggs, Edward K. Conklin, Jordan Jefferson, Gary Saul Morson, and Benjamin Zimmer. Others who were significantly helpful included Garry Apgar, John M. Baker, Joel S. Berson, Sam Clements, S. M. Colowick, Tom Dalzell, Bob Dies, Jay Dillon, William FitzGerald, William Flesch, Thomas Fuller, Bryan Garner, Jane Garry, Aaron Gertler, Dan Goncharoff, Stephen Goranson, Jonathon Green, Donna Halper, Katherine Harper, Peter Harvey, John R. Henderson, Ken Hirsch, Laurence Horn, Eric M. Jones, Rik Kabel, Sue Kamm, David Klumpp, Richard Langworth, Jeffrey Larson, Dennis Lien, Jonathan E. Lighter, Michael J. “Orange Mike” Lowrey, Rosalie Maggio, Wolfgang Mieder, Sylvia Milne, Denise L. Montgomery, Peter Morris, Bill Mullins, Erick Ramalho, Willis Regier, Peter Reitan, D. G. Rogers, Andrew Shapiro, James Shapiro, Jesse Sheidlower, Max Siegel, Andrew Steinberg, Victor Steinbok, Paul Tankard, Bonnie Taylor-Blake, Suzanne Watkins, Kerry Webb, Peter Weisman, Mary Whisner, Douglas C. Wilson, and Kevin W. Woodruff.

The editor’s colleagues at the Yale Law Library have been unfailingly patient with his obsession with quotations. Teresa Miguel-

Stearns, the director of the library, and her predecessor, Blair Kauffman, have been extraordinary in their encouragement and support. Alison Burke obtained many books and articles through interlibrary loan for the project. Other Yale Law librarians who suggested quotations or answered a wide variety of questions included Julian Aiken, Bonnie Collier, Jason Eiseman, Lisa Goodman, Ryan Harrington, Shana Jackson, Jordan Jefferson, Craig Kirkland, Julie Krishnaswami, Scott Matheson, John Nann, Lucie Olejnikova, Dawn Smith, Camilla Tubbs, Daniel Wade, Michael Widener, and Cesar Zapata. The editor’s wife, Jane Garry, and children, Andrew Shapiro and James Shapiro, were even more patient in dealing with a husband and father once again “caught in the web of quotations.”

Generous financial support for the first edition of The Yale Book of Quotations was provided by grants from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. Harriet Zuckerman, former senior vice president of the foundation, was the sponsor of the grants, which focused on exploring the usefulness of the JSTOR database for research into quotations and word origins. Ms. Zuckerman’s sponsorship reflected her own interest in the sociology of knowledge and also the strong interest of her late husband, the great sociologist Robert K. Merton, in quotations. Merton coedited Social Science Quotations and wrote a classic book devoted to a single quotation, On the Shoulders of Giants: A Shandean Postscript. The spirit of these two books, at the intersection of literature, history, and sociological issues of innovation and diffusion, has been a major inspiration for both the Yale and the New Yale books of quotations.

INTRODUCTION

The Yale Book of Quotations was published in 2006, with two principal ambitions: to capture the most famous quotations more comprehensively than other compilations, and to use pioneering research methods to trace quotations to their true origins. The response by reviewers and readers was overwhelmingly positive—for example, an article in the Wall Street Journal named the Yale Book of Quotations as the second most essential of all reference books. Yet in hindsight the first edition may be seen as a pathbreaking starting point. Subsequently, with much help from many talented researchers from around the world who were inspired by that edition, the editor has been able to fully revolutionize our knowledge of the history of famous quotations. In addition, his investigations have revealed the striking fact that many familiar sayings were authored by women whose role has been forgotten, and who have often had their verbal inventions credited to prominent men.

The extensive quotation discoveries and improvements that have been made since 2006 are now presented in The New Yale Book of Quotations. At a time when the values of accuracy and truth are increasingly under siege, this volume presents documented true sources for the words of insight, wit, eloquence, and history that are beloved or remembered by so many of us. Also unveiled here are the most notable quotations from the culture and politics of recent years, the products of a frenetic and turbulent era.

The Art and Science of the Quotation Dictionary

Quotations are a fundamental mechanism for the transmission of art and thought. Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote, “By necessity, by proclivity, and by delight, we all quote.” The delight is our natural response to the monuments of creativity and wisdom kept alive by quotations, a communal bond uniting us with past culture and with other lovers of words and ideas in our own time. A dictionary of quotations supports the communal bond.

The Yale Book of Quotations was the first major quotation book geared to the needs of the contemporary reader. This new edition continues to provide ample coverage of modern and American materials, encompassing such areas as popular culture, children’s literature, sports, computers, politics, law, and the social sciences, as well as presenting the best-known quotations from older literary and historical sources and from worldwide cultures. Many hundreds of very famous and popular quotations omitted from other quotation dictionaries will be found in these pages.

The Yale Book was also the first quotation book to be compiled using state-of-the-art research methods to seek out quotations and to trace quotation sources to their authentic origins or earliest discoverable occurrences. Essentially, the approach used was the same as that of historical dictionaries, such as The Oxford English Dictionary, that try to trace words back to their oldest findable uses. The New Yale Book of Quotations, like its predecessor, may be viewed as a historical dictionary of quotations.

Both art and science come into play in compiling a quotation dictionary. The art requires the dictionary compiler to be sufficiently attuned to the intensity and impact of words so that he (or she) “knows” a great quotation “when he sees it,” to paraphrase Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart on pornography. Like Emily Dickinson recognizing poetry, the quotation anthologist responds to the verbal quarry with the sense that “it makes my whole body so cold no fire ever can warm me. . . . I feel physically as if the top of my head were taken off.”

The ideal quotation for inclusion should sparkle, like Anatole France’s comment on the “majestic equality of the law, which forbids the rich as well as the poor to sleep under bridges, to beg in the streets, and to steal bread.” In that respect it might resemble the people who, according to Jack Kerouac, “never yawn or say a commonplace thing, but burn, burn, burn like fabulous yellow roman candles exploding like spiders across the stars.” Or it should be famous enough that it is part of the conversation of arts and ideas in a culture, like Lord Acton’s observation, “Power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely.”

The science of compiling a quotation dictionary consists in exhaustively identifying the most famous quotations, tracing them to their original sources as far as possible, and recording those sources precisely and accurately. For this book, novel techniques were used in pursuit of those standards, highlighted by extensive computer-aided research. An enormous number of historical texts are now available in electronic form. By searching online databases one can often find earlier or more exact information about famous quotations. The very well-known maxim “Justice delayed is justice denied” was until recently listed in the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations as a “late 20th century saying.” When British newspaper databases are searched, however, it becomes abundantly clear that the great prime minister William Gladstone used “justice delayed is justice denied” in an important speech about Ireland on March 16, 1868. Other searching for The New Yale Book of Quotations unearthed usage of these words in the Weekly Mississippian (Jackson, Miss.), November 23, 1838. Moreover, Edward K. Conklin of Honolulu emailed the New Yale Book’s editor with the results of his own online sleuthing: the formulation “Justice delayed is little better than justice denied” was used in an 1815 book, and in 1646 a pamphlet was published with the title Another Word to the Wise, Shewing that the Delay of Justice, Is Great Injustice.

Like the “justice delayed” example, many famous and interesting quotations have no definite original source. Other quotation dictionaries may give vague citations such as “Remark” for these; The New Yale Book of Quotations, however, attempts to give the earliest findable occurrence. Usually the citation takes the form “Quoted in,” followed by the oldest known book or article or other publication in which the words in question appear:

Is that a gun in your pocket, or are you just glad to see me?

Quoted in The Wit and Wisdom of Mae West, ed. Joseph Weintraub (1967) [listed in this book under Mae West]

If there is substantial reason to doubt the validity of the attribution by the oldest source, the form “Attributed in” is used:

640K [of computer memory] ought to be enough for anyone.

Attributed in InfoWorld, 1 Jan. 1990 [listed in this book under Bill Gates]

Powerful online and other research methods make it possible to trace quotations to the most accurate sources. Some notable quotations misattributed by earlier quotation dictionaries include the following: “The opera ain’t over until the fat lady sings” (actually by Ralph Carpenter, not Dan Cook); “Put all your eggs in one basket, and then watch that basket” (Andrew Carnegie, not Mark Twain); “Go West, young man” (Horace Greeley, not John Soule); “War is hell” (Napoleon, not William Tecumseh Sherman); “There ain’t no such thing as free lunch” (Walter Morrow, not Milton Friedman); “Winning isn’t everything—it’s the only thing” (Red Sanders, not Vince Lombardi); “If you can’t stand the heat, get out of the kitchen” (Buck Purcell, not Harry Truman).

The following were some of the most helpful of the electronic tools, presenting images and searchable text of billions of pages of publications that were searched regularly to help determine quotation sources, wording, and frequency:

- ProQuest (newspapers, periodicals, and other materials from the eighteenth century to the present)
- Newspapers.com (newspapers from the eighteenth century to the present)
- NewspaperArchive.com (newspapers from the seventeenth century to the present)
- America’s Historical Newspapers (U.S. newspapers from the seventeenth to twentieth centuries)
- Nineteenth Century U.S. Newspapers (U.S. newspapers from the nineteenth century)
- LexisNexis (newspapers and periodicals from the twentieth and twenty-first centuries)
- JSTOR (scholarly journals in the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences, 1665 to the present)
- Early English Books Online (primarily British books, 1473–1700)
- Eighteenth Century Collections Online (primarily British and U.S. books from the eighteenth century)
- America’s Historical Imprints (U.S. books, 1639–1820)
- Google Books (tens of millions of books scanned from large libraries)
- HathiTrust (millions of books scanned from large libraries)

The publication of The Yale Book of Quotations triggered a remarkable “crowd-sourcing” response by quotation lovers and researchers spanning the globe. Employing printed books, online searching, and their own memories, many readers emailed, or communicated by other avenues, outstanding contributions of quotations for inclusion or of improvements in information about quotes in the Yale Book. The names of the more active such contributors are given in the Acknowledgments, but special credit needs to be elaborated here for Garson O’Toole.

In 2007 O’Toole became curious about the genesis of the supposed Chinese curse “May you live in interesting times,” which Wikipedia had traced back to 1950. He then was able to find the curse in a 1944 book and posted his discovery on a blog. This posting was noticed by the Yale Book of Quotations editor, who added a comment pointing out that the Yale Book had a 1939 citation. O'Toole later wrote that he "purchased a copy of The Yale Book of Quotations and began purposefully scanning its entries." The rest is history, as he was inspired by the Yale volume to create, three years later, a website he titled Quote Investigator (quoteinvestigator.com). Quote Investigator has grown to include well over a million words of authoritative quotation-sleuthing. O'Toole's brilliant researches have greatly aided The New Yale Book of Quotations, which has many dozens of entries reflecting Quote Investigator findings.

The compilation of the present book has also benefited from extensive use of the electronic mailing list of the American Dialect Society and the Project Wombat network of reference librarians and researchers, both of which bring together very skilled people dedicated to answering sophisticated questions. Specific contributors are listed in the Acknowledgments. Finally, traditional methods of library research, utilizing the resources of the Yale University Library and Yale Law Library as well as interlibrary borrowing from other institutions, were pursued to verify quotations and to find their origins.

The research efforts outlined above were devoted not only to tracing and verifying quotation origins, but also to ensuring that all of the most famous quotations were included in this book. As a result, many important quotations not found in prior quotation dictionaries appear here, such as Willard Motley's 1947 suggestion to "Live fast, die young, and have a good-looking corpse!"; the famous sentence from Lou Gehrig's farewell speech at Yankee Stadium in 1939: "Today I consider myself the luckiest man on the face of the earth"; and Friedrich Nietzsche's 1888 epigram, "Whatever does not kill me makes me stronger." More than a thousand previous quotation collections and other types of anthologies were canvassed; many Internet resources were perused; and experts on specific authors and types of literature were consulted.

As a result of the unique approaches and methods employed, The New Yale Book of Quotations has a Janus-like duality. As noted above, the New Yale Book serves a very traditional function of gathering the monuments of literary expression and other forms of enduring culture. It also, however, captures the most celebrated items of contemporary discourse and public life. Thus William Shakespeare and Donald Trump coexist in these pages. One of them is far less eloquent than the other, but, for better or worse, both are now part of our verbal heritage, with Mr. Trump's most remarkable utterances and tweets carefully recorded here. Other recent individuals whose quotes have been introduced or supplemented in this edition include, among many others, Warren Buffett, Hillary Clinton, Pope Francis, Jonathan Franzen, Alan Greenspan, Steven Jobs, Cormac McCarthy, Lin-Manuel Miranda, Toni Morrison, Barack Obama, Sarah Palin, David Foster Wallace, and Warren Zevon.

"Anonymous Was a Woman" and the Serenity Prayer

Virginia Woolf, in A Room of One's Own, wrote, "I would venture to guess that Anon, who wrote so many poems without signing them, was often a woman." She was referring to literary creation as a whole, not the special subset called “quotations,” but the editor of The New Yale Book of Quotations has discovered, time and again, that in the realm of famous lines Anonymous was often a woman. Many of the great quotesmiths have been women who are now forgotten or whose wit and wisdom are erroneously credited to more-famous men.

The researches that went into The New Yale Book of Quotations and its predecessor edition supply the proof of the unrecognized role of women in creating iconic sayings. Here is a list of some of the most glaring female-to-male misattributions:

I will not follow where the path may lead, but I will go where there is no path, and I will leave a trail.

Muriel Strode, but usually attributed to Ralph Waldo Emerson

He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often, and loved much.

Bessie A. Stanley, but usually attributed to Ralph Waldo Emerson

I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it.

Evelyn Beatrice Hall, but usually attributed to Voltaire

Truth is the first casualty in war.

Ethel Snowden, but usually attributed to Hiram Johnson

Iron Curtain.

Ethel Snowden, but usually attributed to Winston Churchill

Live a fast life, die young, and be a beautiful corpse.

Irene L. Luce, but usually attributed to Willard Motley

The only difference between the rich and other people is that the rich have more money.
Mary Colum, but usually attributed to Ernest Hemingway

Now I know why nobody ever comes here; it's too crowded.

Suzanne Ridgeway, but usually attributed to Yogi Berra

We will overcome.

Lucille Simmons, but usually attributed to Pete Seeger

Just say the lines and don't trip over the furniture.

Lynn Fontanne, but usually attributed to Noël Coward

If you make it here, you make it anywhere.

Julie Newmar, but usually attributed to Fred Ebb

We are a nation of communities . . . like a thousand points of light.

Peggy Noonan, but usually attributed to George H. W. Bush

Read my lips: no new taxes.

Peggy Noonan, but usually attributed to George H. W. Bush

Twenty years from now you will be more disappointed by the things you didn't do than by the ones you did do. So throw off the bowlines. Sail away from the safe harbor. Catch the trade winds in your sails.

Sarah Frances Brown, but usually attributed to Mark Twain

Our deepest fear is not that we are inadequate. Our deepest fear is that we are powerful beyond measure. It is our light, not our darkness, that most frightens us.

Marianne Williamson, but usually attributed to Nelson Mandela

Ladies and gentlemen of the class of '97: Wear sunscreen.

Mary Schmich, but usually attributed to Kurt Vonnegut

There are other renowned quotations that are not necessarily misattributed to men but have had their origination by a woman forgotten:

No time like the present.

Originated by Mary de la Rivière Manley

No man is a hero to his valet.

Originated by Anne-Marie Bigot de Cornuel

Twinkle, twinkle, little star,
How I wonder what you are!

Women, long denied full participation in cultural and public spheres, have nonetheless contributed a wealth of eloquence and insight in their writings, songs, and political discourse. The New Yale Book of Quotations has striven to give them substantial representation. The same holds true for African Americans and other historically marginalized groups. Among nationalities, the New Yale Book continues to have the largest number of quotations from U.S. authors, but it has an increased number of quotes from countries on every continent.

One very famous quotation that appears to be the invention of a woman but is not listed above has a special story that can be related for the first time here. This is the "Serenity Prayer," the most renowned and beloved prayer of modern times. The most common version is "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can, and wisdom to know the difference." There has been considerable misinformation about this prayer's origins, whose attribution has usually been assigned to the great theologian and political philosopher

Reinhold Niebuhr and dated 1943. The Yale Book of Quotations listed Niebuhr as the author. In 2008, the New York Times reported in a front-page story that the Yale Book editor had made discoveries casting doubt on Niebuhr's origination, launching a controversy that included a second front-page story in the Times citing the editor's partial retraction of those doubts. Research for the New Yale Book then continued to generate new evidence bearing on the authorship question.

The ultimate New Yale Book of Quotations findings tracing the "Serenity Prayer" back in time proved that this prayer was used in 1933. An official with the Young Women's Christian Association named Winnifred Crane Wygal was the author of the earliest known occurrence. Wygal was an associate of Niebuhr's, and it is possible that she took the prayer in some unpublished form from him. However, Professor William FitzGerald of Rutgers University, in an upcoming book, puts forth a new interpretation, that Winnifred Wygal was the coiner who combined some pieces apparently drawn from Niebuhr with important other pieces of her own devising to create a most memorable prayer. The findings and interpretation are explained further in the entry in this book under Wygal's name.

What This Book Includes

This book takes a broad view of what constitutes a quotation, from passages of writing or speech that range in length from a sentence to a paragraph or longer; to lines or stanzas of poetry; to short phrases, slogans, and proverbs.

Most of the quotations were selected because they are "famous," that is, they are often quoted or anthologized. Online search engines and databases such as Google and LexisNexis were regularly utilized to determine frequency of use. In some instances, fame was defined in terms of a specialized area; for example, scientific quotations that are not familiar to the general public were included because of their familiarity to scientists.

Familiarity or fame was not the sole criterion for inclusion, however. Some items were included because of their wit, eloquence, or insight, others because of their historical importance. F. Scott Fitzgerald, for example, wrote eloquently, in Tender Is the Night, of "scars healed, a loose parallel to the pathology of the skin, but there is no such thing in the life of an individual. There are open wounds, shrunk sometimes to the size of a pin-prick but wounds still. The marks of suffering are more comparable to the loss of a finger, or of the sight of an eye. We may not miss them, either, for one minute in a year, but if we should there is nothing to be done about it." And Abraham Lincoln added his words to history in the Emancipation Proclamation of 1863: "I do order and declare that all persons held as slaves within said designated States, and part of States, are, and henceforward shall be free."

Special attention has been paid to certain modern giants of quotability. In this book, Mark Twain, Ambrose Bierce, Oscar Wilde, George Bernard Shaw, Winston Churchill, F. Scott Fitzgerald, George Orwell, and Dorothy Parker loom as large as names like John Milton, Alfred Lord Tennyson, Lord Byron, Alexander Pope, and John Keats do in traditional quotation compilations. Readers will find other, more recent authors here who do not appear at all in previous collections.

Quotations are drawn from poetry, drama, essays, and fiction; from philosophical, historical, and social-scientific writings, as well as the literature of mathematics and the natural sciences; from commentaries on music, the visual arts, the business world, and military affairs. Quotations from the Bible, which provides more entries than any other source after Shakespeare, are supplemented by Christian sources such as the Book of Common Prayer and non-Christian scriptures and religious texts such as the Koran, the Talmud, and the Bhagavadgita.

Many well-known or historically important lines from politicians' speeches and other remarks are found in this book, especially emphasizing U.S. politics and history, from Thomas Jefferson and John Adams to Barack Obama and Donald Trump. The U.S. political heritage is also represented by important legal quotations, from landmark judicial opinions, the U.S. Constitution, and various commentaries on the law.

This book also gathers an abundance of memorable lines from song lyrics and motion pictures. Famous "film lines" are listed in a special section under that name; however, true to this book's emphasis on presenting the earliest sources, those lines that can be traced to earlier books or plays are listed under the author of the book or play. Thus, for instance, readers will find "There is no place like home" under L. Frank Baum because this line appeared first in his 1900 book The Wonderful Wizard of Oz rather than in the 1939 movie.

manner." In most cases proverbs have no known originator, and no amount of research is likely to uncover one. Reference works deal with this anonymity in several ways. Proverbs may be listed under the name of the earliest known user, or they may be listed with information about the century of origin. They also may be listed with detailed citation to the earliest known use. The research behind those first uses, however, has been limited, based on haphazard reading programs. Now, however, online searching of vast collections of historical texts makes it possible to research proverb origins systematically. Such research was pioneered to some extent in The Yale Book of Quotations and further developed in The Dictionary of Modern Proverbs, edited by Charles Clay Doyle, Wolfgang Mieder, and Fred R. Shapiro and published in 2012. Employing the same methods, The New Yale Book of Quotations presents evidence that may be close to the true first appearance in print for many proverbs, resulting in a much more accurate picture of their histories.

The transformations wrought by the state-of-the-art research techniques applied to proverbs can be quite stunning. The celebrated saying "If anything can go wrong it will," known as "Murphy's Law," is attributed by standard reference books to U.S. Air Force engineer Edward A. Murphy, Jr., in 1949. However, diligent online searching by Stephen Goranson, Bill Mullins, and the editor of this volume has demonstrated that "Murphy's Law," with that name, was discussed in print as a humorous maxim of science and technology before the supposed 1949 Air Force incident, which must be deemed apocryphal. Incidences of the proverb itself have now been retrieved from as far back as 1908 in magicians' literature.

Before The Yale Book of Quotations and The Dictionary of Modern Proverbs, proverb dictionaries included very few proverbs that originated after 1900, leaving the user to conclude that proverbs were purely antiquarian sayings that were no longer coined in modern times. But nothing could be further from the truth. Modern proverbs proliferate constantly and are among our most colorful and popular expressions. In The New Yale Book of Quotations, a special section of “Modern Proverbs” includes such familiar items as “Different strokes for different folks,” “Never criticize anybody until you have walked a mile in his shoes,” “The customer is always right,” and “Shit happens.”

How to Use This Book

Arrangement of Quotations

Quotations are ordered alphabetically by author (or speaker) name. Where the author is best known by a pseudonym, such as Mark Twain, he or she is listed under the pseudonymous name, with the birth name in parentheses. A few collective works, such as the Bible, the Koran, and the Constitution of the United States, are listed alphabetically among the author entries. In addition, several special sections that highlight specific categories of quotations are also placed in alphabetical order among the author entries:

Advertising Slogans

Anonymous (quotations that have known origins but unknown or corporate authors and that do not fit into other well-defined categories)

Anonymous (Latin)

Ballads

Film Lines

Folk and Anonymous Songs

Modern Proverbs

Nursery Rhymes

Political Slogans

Proverbs

Radio Catchphrases

Sayings (expressions that have origins probably impossible to trace and that are not strictly proverbs)

Television Catchphrases

Within each author section, quotations are arranged chronologically, and alphabetically by source title within the same year. Quotations with a source beginning “Quoted in,” “Reported in,” or “Attributed in” are listed at the end, in that order. “Attributed in” is used where there is substantial reason to doubt that the putative author actually wrote or said the item in question.

Quotations within the special sections, which share the characteristics of having anonymous or collective authorship or presenting difficulties in tracing authorship, are listed by first keyword, title, product name, television or radio program name, or other description, rather than by author.

Authors

Author names are followed by the author’s nationality, occupation, and birth and death years. If exact years are not known, the abbreviation “ca.” (circa) indicates approximate years; “fl.” (floruit) is included if all that is known is the year or years in which an author worked (or “flourished”). In some instances, an author annotation explains additional information about the author’s identity or works, the assignment of quotations to that author, or cross-references to related author entries. A few author entries are joint entries, such as Mick Jagger and Keith Richards; where the pairing is less established, quotations with multiple authors are listed under the more prominent author, with a note crediting coauthors.

Quotations from song lyrics are listed under the lyricist's name. Lines from motion pictures are listed in the section "Film Lines" under the name of the movie, with additional identification of the character uttering the line, the actor playing the character, and the screenwriter or screenwriters. (Exceptions are made for Woody Allen, Mel Brooks, W. C. Fields, George Lucas, Groucho Marx, Monty Python's Flying Circus, Mario Puzo, and Mae West, whose film lines are collected under their own names as authors rather than in the Film Lines section.) Quotations from politicians' speeches are credited to the politician rather than to speechwriters, whose identity is often impossible to verify. Similarly, no attempt has been made to trace television and radio catchphrases to individual writers.

Text of Quotations

The texts of the quotations have been taken verbatim from the original sources or, for many of the older items, from standard editions. For items that are "Quoted in," "Reported in," or "Attributed in," unless otherwise noted, the text given is exactly that found in the secondary source referred to. Quotations are capitalized at the beginning and end with a period even if they begin or end in the middle of a sentence. Omissions in the middle of a quotation are indicated by an ellipsis. Spellings and capitalization of older quotations have been modernized, with some exceptions, such as Geoffrey Chaucer, where custom retains the original form. A few British spelling conventions, such as words ending in "-our," have been Americanized. Complex indentation of poetry has generally been simplified to a left-justified format.

Quotations from foreign languages have been translated into English. Where the quotation is somewhat familiar to English speakers in the original language (usually from Latin or French sources), the original is included in italics before the translation.

Sources of Quotations

Even the most scholarly prior quotation dictionaries include many vague source references, such as "Remark" or "Last words." The New Yale Book of Quotations, however, provides precise sources; even those quotations whose exact provenance is untraceable are identified as "Quoted in," "Attributed in," or "Reported in" followed by a precise secondary source.

The usual source citations take the following forms:

Books: Title, chapter number, year of publication.

Plays: Title, act/scene number, year of publication or first performance.

Poems: Title, beginning line number or (for longer poems) stanza number, year of publication in book form.

Short Stories, Essays, Articles: Title, year of publication. For literary authors, usually only the title of the story or essay is given; for other authors, the book or periodical in which the publication was included may be given if helpful.

Speeches: Description of speech, place of delivery, date of delivery (place of delivery is not indicated for broadcast speeches).

Annotations and Cross-References

In many instances, annotations after the quotation source help clarify the meaning, context, significance, or history of the quotation. They range in length from a few words to mini-essays on key quotations such as “There ain’t no such thing as free lunch” or “Lies, damned lies, and statistics.” The annotations are the product of intensive research and are perhaps the most distinctive feature of this book. In addition, in some entries clarifying information is provided in brackets before the text of the quotation.

Often a quotation was inspired by or refers to an earlier one, and sometimes the same thought is expressed by two or more authors, each of whose versions is memorable and merits inclusion. These connections are brought to the reader’s attention through cross-references that identify author name and quotation number. For example, Yogi Berra’s comment “It ain’t over ’til it’s over” is linked to Ralph Carpenter’s analogous “The opera ain’t over until the fat lady sings.” Interested readers will find that some of the cross-references constitute important discoveries about the precursors of famous quotations.

Keyword Index

The Keyword Index is an important means of access to partially remembered quotations or quotations about a particular topic and serves as a form of subject index. Significant words from a quotation are listed in the index. A reader wanting to find quotations about money, for instance, will be able to do so by looking up “money” in the Keyword Index. Keywords and context excerpts (in which the keyword is abbreviated, such as “m.” for “money”) are listed alphabetically. Plural nouns are treated as separate keywords from the corresponding singular nouns; for example, “computer” and “computers” are listed separately. As with cross-references, the Keyword Index points the reader to the indexed quotation by identifying the author name and quotation number within that author section.

Abigail Adams

U.S. First Lady, 1744–1818

1 In the new Code of Laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make I desire you would Remember the Ladies, and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors. Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the Husbands. Remember all Men would be tyrants if they could. If particular care and attention is not paid to the Ladies we are determined to foment a Rebellion, and will not hold ourselves bound by any Laws in which we have no voice, or Representation.

Letter to John Adams, 31 Mar. 1776

See Defoe 2

2 I can not say that I think you are very generous to the Ladies, for whilst you are proclaiming peace and good will to Men, Emancipating all Nations, you insist upon retaining an absolute power over Wives. But you must remember that Arbitrary power is like most other things which are very hard, very liable to be broken—and notwithstanding all your wise Laws and Maxims we have it in our power not only to free ourselves but to subdue our Masters, and without violence throw both your natural and legal authority at our feet—“Charm by accepting, by submitting sway Yet have our Humor most when we obey.”

Letter to John Adams, 7 May 1776

3 It is really mortifying, sir, when a woman possessed of a common share of understanding considers the difference of education between the male and female sex, even in those families where education is attended to. . . . Nay why should your sex wish for such a disparity in those whom they one day intend for companions and associates. Pardon me, sir, if I cannot help sometimes suspecting that this neglect arises in some measure from an ungenerous jealousy of rivals near the throne.

Letter to John Thaxter, 15 Feb. 1778

4 These are times in which a genius would wish to live. It is not in the still calm of life, or the repose of a pacific station, that great characters are formed. . . . Great necessities call out great virtues.

Letter to John Quincy Adams, 19 Jan. 1780

5 Patriotism in the female sex is the most disinterested of all virtues. Excluded from honors and from offices, we cannot attach ourselves to the State or Government from having held a place of eminence. . . . Yet all history and every age exhibit instances of patriotic virtue in the female sex; which considering our situation equals the most heroic of yours.

U.S. president, 1735–1826

- 1 A Pen is certainly an excellent Instrument, to fix a Mans Attention and to inflame his Ambition.
Diary and Autobiography, 14 Nov. 1760
- 2 The jaws of power are always opened to devour, and her arm is always stretched out, if possible, to destroy the freedom of thinking, speaking, and writing.
A Dissertation on the Canon and the Feudal Law (1765)
- 3 The law, in all vicissitudes of government, fluctuations of the passions, or flights of enthusiasm, will preserve a steady undeviating course; it will not bend to the uncertain wishes, imaginations, and wanton tempers of men. . . . On the one hand it is inexorable to the cries and lamentations of the prisoners; on the other it is deaf, deaf as an adder to the clamors of the populace.
Argument in defense of the British soldiers in the Boston Massacre Trials, 4 Dec. 1770
See Bible 114; Algernon Sidney 1
- 4 A government of laws, and not of men.
"Novanglus Papers" no. 7 (1774). Almost certainly derived from James Harrington, but Adams's use of the phrase gave it wide circulation in the United States. He also used "government of laws, and not of men" in the Declaration of Rights drafted for the Massachusetts Constitution in 1780.

- 5 The judicial power ought to be distinct from both the legislative and executive, and independent upon both, that so it may be a check upon both, as both should be checks upon that.
"Thoughts on Government" (1776)
- 6 I agree with you, that in Politicks the Middle Way is none at all.
Letter to Horatio Gates, 23 Mar. 1776

- 7 The Second Day of July 1776, will be the most memorable Epocha, in the History of America.—I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated, by succeeding Generations, as the great anniversary Festival. It ought to be commemorated, as the Day of Deliverance by solemn Acts of Devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with Pomp and Parade, with Shews, Games, Sports, Guns, Bells, Bonfires, and Illuminations from one End of this Continent to the other from this Time forward forever more.
Letter to Abigail Adams, 3 July 1776
- 8 I am but an ordinary Man. The Times alone have destined me to Fame—and even these have not been able to give me, much. . . . Yet some great Events, some cutting Expressions, some mean Hypocrisies, have at Times, thrown this Assemblage of Sloth, Sleep, and littleness into Rage a little like a Lion.
Diary and Autobiography, 26 Apr. 1779
- 9 I must study Politicks and War that my sons may have liberty to study Mathematicks and Philosophy. My sons ought to study Mathematicks and Philosophy, Geography, natural History, Naval Architecture, navigation, Commerce and Agriculture, in order to give their Children a right to study Painting, Poetry, Musick, Architecture, Statuary, Tapestry, and Porcelaine.
Letter to Abigail Adams, 12 May 1780
- 10 Amidst your Ardor for Greek and Latin I hope you will not forget your mother Tongue. Read Somewhat in the English Poets every day. . . . You will never be alone, with a Poet in your Pocket. You will never have an idle Hour.
Letter to John Quincy Adams, 14 May 1781
- 11 You are afraid of the one—I, of the few. We agree perfectly that the many should have a full fair and perfect Representation.—You are Apprehensive of Monarchy; I, of Aristocracy. I would therefore have given more Power to the President and less to the Senate.
Letter to Thomas Jefferson, 6 Dec. 1787
- 12 But my Country has in its Wisdom contrived for me the most insignificant Office [the vice-presidency] that ever the invention of Man contrived or his Imagination conceived: and as I can do neither good nor Evil, I must be borne away by Others and meet the common Fate.
Letter to Abigail Adams, 19 Dec. 1793
- 13 [Upon moving into the new White House:] I pray Heaven to bestow the best of Blessings on this House and all that shall hereafter inhabit it. May none but honest and wise Men ever rule under this roof.
Letter to Abigail Adams, 2 Nov. 1800
- 14 You and I ought not to die, before We have explained ourselves to each other.
Letter to Thomas Jefferson, 15 July 1813
- 15 Remember, democracy never lasts long. It soon wastes, exhausts, and murders itself. There never was a democracy yet that did not commit suicide.
Letter to John Taylor, 15 Apr. 1814
- 16 When People talk of the Freedom of Writing, Speaking or thinking, I cannot choose but laugh. No such thing ever existed. No such thing now exists: but I hope it will exist. But it must be hundreds of years after you and I shall write and speak no more.
Letter to Thomas Jefferson, 15 July 1817
- 17 The Revolution was effected before the war commenced. The Revolution was in the minds and hearts of the people.
Letter to Hezekiah Niles, 13 Feb. 1818
- 18 No man who ever held the office of President would congratulate a friend on obtaining it. He will make one man ungrateful, and a hundred men his enemies, for every office he can bestow.
Letter to Josiah Quincy, 14 Feb. 1825
- 19 A boy of fifteen who is not a democrat is good for nothing, and he is no better who is a democrat at twenty.
Quoted in Thomas Jefferson, Journal, Jan. 1799
See Batbie 1; Clemenceau 5; George Bernard Shaw 48
- 20 [Statement made to Jonathan Sewall, 1774:] Sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish with my country.
Quoted in Preface to Novanglus and Massachusetts (1819). “Live or die, sink or swim” appears in George Peele, Edward I (ca. 1584).

- 21 [“Last words”:] Thomas Jefferson survives. Quoted in Susan Boylston Adams Clark, Letter to Abigail Louisa Smith Adams Johnson, 9 July 1826. In fact, Jefferson had died a few hours earlier on this, the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. Eliza Quincy, in her 1861 memoirs, wrote that the last words Adams spoke distinctly were “Thomas Jefferson”; the rest of the sentence, she noted, was inarticulate.

John Quincy Adams

U.S. President, 1767–1848

- 1 America . . . well knows that by once enlisting under other banners than her own, were they even the banners of foreign independence, she would involve herself beyond the power of extraction, in all the wars of interest and intrigue, of individual avarice, envy, and ambition, which assume the colors and usurp the standard of freedom. The fundamental maxims of her policy would insensibly change from liberty to force. . . . She might become dictatress of the world. She would be no longer the ruler of her own spirit.
Address, Washington, D.C., 4 July 1821
- 2 In charity to all mankind, bearing no malice or ill will to any human being, and even compassionating those who hold in bondage their fellow men, not knowing what they do.
Letter to Bronson Alcott, 30 July 1838
See Lincoln 51

- 3 [Upon collapsing in U.S. Senate, 21 Feb. 1848, two days before his death:] This is the last of earth. I am content.
Quoted in William H. Seward, Eulogy of John Quincy Adams Before Legislature of New York (1848)

Samuel Adams

U.S. revolutionary leader, 1722–1803

- 1 Men who content themselves with the semblance of Truth and a display of Words, talk much of our Obligations to Great Britain for Protection: Had she a single Eye to our Advantage? A Nation of shop keepers are very seldom so disinterested.
An Oration Delivered at the State-House, in Philadelphia (1776)
See Napoleon 5; Adam Smith 7; Josiah Tucker 1
- 2 [Upon hearing gunfire at Lexington, Mass., 19 Apr. 1775:] What a glorious morning is this!

Quoted in William Gordon, This History of the Rise, Progress, and Establishment of the Independence of the United States of America (1788)

Sarah Flower Adams

English hymnwriter, 1805–1848

- 1 Nearer, My God, to Thee.
Title of hymn (1841)

Scott Adams

U.S. cartoonist, 1957–

- 1 The basic concept of the Dilbert Principle is that the most ineffective workers are systematically moved to the place where they can do the least damage: management.
Wall Street Journal, 22 May 1995
See Peter 1

Harold Adamson

U.S. songwriter, 1906–1980

- 1 Comin’ in on a Wing and a Pray’r.
Title of song (1943). Based on an alleged remark by a real pilot landing a crippled plane.

Jane Addams

U.S. social worker, 1860–1935

- 1 The cure for the ills of Democracy is more Democracy.
Democracy and Social Ethics introduction (1902)

Joseph Addison

English man of letters, 1672–1719

- 1 Sir Roger . . . told them, with the air of a man who would not give his judgement rashly, that much might be said on both sides.
The Spectator no. 122, 20 July 1711
- 2 Our disputants put me in mind of the cuttlefish, that when he is unable to extricate himself, blackens all the water about him till he becomes invisible.
The Spectator no. 476, 5 Sept. 1712
- 3 What pity is it
That we can die but once to serve our country!
Cato act 4, sc. 4 (1713)
See Nathan Hale 1
- 4 “We are always doing,” says he, “something for Posterity, but I would fain see Posterity do something for us.”
The Spectator no. 583, 20 Aug. 1714

5 ["Last words":] See in what peace a Christian can die.

Quoted in Thomas Foxton, Serino (ca. 1721)

6 [On the superiority of his writing to his conversation:] I have but ninepence in ready money, but I can draw for a thousand pounds.

Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 7 May 1773)

George Ade

U.S. humorist and playwright, 1866–1944

1 "Whom are you?" he asked, for he had attended business college.

Chicago Record, 16 Mar. 1898

2 Anybody can win, unless there happens to be a second entry.

Fables in Slang, "The Fable of the Brash Drummer and the Peach Who Learned That There Were Others" (1899)

Konrad Adenauer

German chancellor, 1876–1967

1 History is the sum total of all the things that could have been avoided.

Quoted in Washington Times, 2 May 1998

Alfred Adler

Austrian psychiatrist, 1870–1937

1 All our institutions, our traditional attitudes, our laws, our morals, our customs, give evidence of the fact that they are determined and maintained by privileged males for the glory of male domination. These institutions reach out into the very nurseries and have a great influence upon the child's soul.

Understanding Human Nature (1927)

2 Every neurotic is partly in the right.

Problems of Neurosis (1930)

Polly Adler

Russian-born U.S. madam and writer, 1900–1962

1 A House Is Not a Home.

Title of book (1953)

2 The women who take husbands not out of love but out of greed, to get their bills paid, to get a fine house and clothes and jewels . . . these are whores in everything but name. The only difference between them and my girls is that my girls gave a man his money's worth.

A House Is Not a Home ch. 10 (1953)

Theodor Adorno

German philosopher, sociologist, and musicologist, 1903–1969

1 To write poetry after Auschwitz is barbaric.

"Kulturkritik und Gesellschaft" (1951)

Aeschylus

Greek playwright, ca. 525 B.C.–ca. 456 B.C.

- 1 In our sleep, pain which cannot forget falls drop by drop upon the heart until, in our own despair, against our will, comes wisdom through the awful grace of God.
Agamemnon l. 176

Aesop

Greek fabulist, Sixth cent. B.C.

- 1 Then one day there really was a wolf, but when the boy shouted they didn't believe him.
"The Boy Who Cried Wolf"
- 2 Oh, you aren't even ripe yet! I don't need any sour grapes.
"The Fox and the Bunch of Grapes"
- 3 The Wolf in Sheep's Clothing.
Title of story

Jean Louis Rodolphe Agassiz

Swiss-born U.S. naturalist, 1807–1873

- 1 The eye of the trilobite tells us that the sun shone on the old beach where he lived; for there is nothing in nature without a purpose, and when so complicated an organ was made to receive the light, there must have been light to enter it.
Geological Sketches ch. 2 (1866)
- 2 The world has arisen in some way or another.
How it originated is the great question, and Darwin's theory, like all other attempts to explain the origin of life, is thus far merely conjectural. I believe he has not even made the best conjecture possible in the present state of our knowledge.

"Evolution and Permanence of Type" (1874)

James Agee

U.S. writer and critic, 1909–1955

- 1 We are talking now of summer evenings in Knoxville, Tennessee, in the time that I lived there so successfully disguised to myself as a child.
"Knoxville: Summer of 1915" (1947)
- 2 Sleep, soft smiling, draws me unto her: and those receive me, who quietly treat me, as one familiar and well-beloved in that home: but will not, oh, will not, not now, not ever, but will not ever tell me who I am.
"Knoxville: Summer of 1915" (1947)
- 3 But he did not ask, and his uncle did not speak except to say, after a few minutes, "It's time to go home," and all the way home they walked in silence.
A Death in the Family ch. 20 (1957)

Spiro T. Agnew

U.S. politician, 1918–1996

- 1 I've been in many of them [ghetto areas] and to some extent I would have to say this: If you've seen one city slum you've seen them all.
Campaign speech, Detroit, Mich., 18 Oct. 1968
See Robert Burton 4
- 2 A spirit of national masochism prevails, encouraged by an effete corps of impudent snobs who characterize themselves as intellectuals.
Speech at Republican fund-raising dinner, New Orleans, La., 19 Oct. 1969
- 3 Ultraliberalism today translates into a whimpering isolationism in foreign policy, a mulish obstructionism in domestic policy, and a pusillanimous pussyfooting on the critical issue of law and order.
Speech at Illinois Republican meeting, Springfield, Ill., 10 Sept. 1970
- 4 In the United States today, we have more than our share of the nattering nabobs of negativism.

Address to California Republican state convention,
San Diego, Calif., 11 Sept. 1970

George Aiken

U.S. politician, 1892–1984

- 1 The United States could well declare unilaterally that this stage of the Vietnam War is over—that we have “won” in the sense that our Armed Forces are in control of most of the field and no potential enemy is in a position to establish its authority over South Vietnam.
Speech in U.S. Senate, 19 Oct. 1966. Often paraphrased as “claim victory and retreat” or “declare victory and retreat.”

Howard H. Aiken

U.S. computer scientist, 1900–1973

- 1 At the present time there exist problems beyond our ability to solve, not because of theoretical difficulties, but because of insufficient means of mechanical computation. “Proposed Automatic Calculating Machine” (1937)

Catherine Aird (Kinn Hamilton McIntosh)

English detective fiction writer, 1930–

- 1 If you can’t be a good example, then you’ll just have to be a horrible warning.
Quoted in St. Louis Post-Dispatch, 1 Nov. 1989

Anna Akhmatova

Russian poet, 1889–1966

- 1 In those years only the dead smiled, glad to be at rest.
Requiem “Prologue” (1935–1940) (translation by D. M. Thomas)
- 2 In the fearful years of the Yezhov terror I spent seventeen months in prison queues in Leningrad. One day somebody “identified” me . . . and whispered in my ear . . . “Can you describe this?” And I said: “Yes, I can.”
Requiem preface (written 1957) (translation by D. M. Thomas)

Todd Akin

U.S. politician, 1947–

- 1 If it’s a legitimate rape, the female body has ways to try to shut that whole thing down.
KTVI-TV interview, 19 Aug. 2012

Zoë Akins

U.S. playwright, 1886–1958

- 1 The Greeks Had a Word for It.
Title of play (1930)

Ryūnosuke Akutagawa

Japanese writer, 1892–1927

- 1 When I kill a man, I do it with my sword, but people like you don’t use swords. You gentlemen kill with your power, with your money, and sometimes just with your words: you tell people you’re doing them a favor. True, no blood flows, the man is still alive, but you’ve killed him all the same. I don’t know whose sin is greater—yours or mine.
“In a Bamboo Grove” (1922) (translation by Jay Rubin)

Alain (Émile-Auguste Chartier)

French poet and philosopher, 1868–1951

- 1 Nothing is more dangerous than an idea, when you have only one idea.
Propos sur le Religion no. 74 (1938)

Edward Albee

U.S. playwright, 1928–2016

- 1 When you’re a kid you use the [pornographic playing] cards as a substitute for a real experience, and when you’re older you use real experience as a substitute for the fantasy.
The Zoo Story (1959)
- 2 Who’s afraid of Virginia Woolf.
Who’s Afraid of Virginia Woolf? act 1 (1962). Found by Albee as graffiti on a restroom wall.
See Frank Churchill 1
- 3 I swear . . . if you existed I’d divorce you.
Who’s Afraid of Virginia Woolf? act 1 (1962)

Alcaeus

Greek poet, ca. 625 B.C.–ca. 575 B.C.

- 1 Wine, dear boy, and truth.
Fragment 366

Amos Bronson Alcott

U.S. educator, 1799–1888

- 1 To be ignorant of one’s ignorance is the malady of the ignorant.
Table Talk “Conversation” (1877)

Louisa May Alcott

U.S. novelist, 1832–1888

- 1 “Christmas won’t be Christmas without any presents,” grumbled Jo, lying on the rug.
Little Women ch. 1 (1868–1869)
- 2 I am angry nearly every day of my life, Jo, but I have learned not to show it; and I still hope to learn not to feel it, though it may take me another forty years to do so.
Little Women ch. 8 (1868–1869)
- 3 Housekeeping ain’t no joke.
Little Women ch. 11 (1868–1869)
- 4 I’m not afraid of storms, for I’m learning how to sail my ship.
Little Women ch. 44 (1868–1869)
- 5 What do girls do who haven’t any mothers to help them through their troubles?
Little Women ch. 46 (1868–1869)
- 6 Women have been called queens a long time, but the kingdom given them isn’t worth ruling.
An Old-Fashioned Girl ch. 13 (1870)

Alcuin

English scholar and theologian, ca. 735–804

- 1 Vox populi, vox Dei.
The voice of the people is the voice of God.
Letter 164

Priscilla Mullins Alden

English-born colonial settler, ca. 1602–ca. 1684

- 1 [To John Alden, who was importuning her on behalf of Miles Standish:] Prithee, John, why do you not speak for yourself?
Attributed in Timothy Alden, A Collection of American Epitaphs and Inscriptions, with Occasional Notes (1814). Henry Wadsworth Longfellow popularized Alden’s question when he used it in his poem “The Courtship of Miles Standish” (1858): “Why don’t you speak for yourself, John?”

Edwin E. “Buzz” Aldrin

U.S. astronaut, 1930–

- 1 [Remark during first moon walk, 20 July 1969:]
Magnificent desolation.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 21 July 1969

Alexander the Great

Macedonian king, 356 B.C.–323 B.C.

- 1 If I were not Alexander, I would be Diogenes.
Quoted in Plutarch, Parallel Lives

Alexander II

Russian tsar, 1818–1881

- 1 Better to abolish serfdom from above than to wait till it begins to abolish itself from below.
Speech, Moscow, 30 Mar. 1856

Cecil Frances Alexander

Irish poet and hymnwriter, 1818–1895

- 1 All things bright and beautiful,
All creatures great and small,
All things wise and wonderful,
The Lord God made them all.
“All Things Bright and Beautiful” (hymn) (1848)
- 2 The rich man in his castle,
The poor man at his gate,
God made them, high or lowly,
And order’d their estate.
“All Things Bright and Beautiful” (hymn) (1848)

Elizabeth Alexander

U.S. writer, 1962–

- 1 In today’s sharp sparkle, this winter air, any thing can be made, any sentence begun.
On the brink, on the brim, on the cusp,
praise song for walking forward in that light.
“Praise Song for the Day” l. 40 (2009)

Michelle Alexander

U.S. lawyer and author, 1967–

- 1 Rather than rely on race, we use our criminal justice system to label people of color “criminals” and then engage in all the practices we supposedly left behind. . . . We have not ended racial caste in America; we have merely redesigned it.
The New Jim Crow introduction (2010)

Alexandra

German-born Russian tsarina, 1872–1918

- 1 Be Peter the Great, Ivan the Terrible, Emperor Paul—crush them all under you . . . be the Master, & all will bow down to you.
Letter to Tsar Nicholas II, 14 Dec. 1916

Alfonso the Wise

Castilian king, 1221–1284

- I Had I been present at the Creation, I would have given some useful hints for the better ordering of the universe.

Attributed in Thomas Carlyle, History of Frederick the Great (1858–1865). According to Diego Catalán, La Estoria de España de Alfonso X: creación y evolución (1992), the earliest known version of this legendary remark occurs in a fourteenth-century Portuguese manuscript by Count Pedro de Barcelos, Crónica Geral de Espanha de 1344.

- 2 Never play cards with a man called Doc. Never eat at a place called Mom's. Never sleep with a woman whose troubles are greater than your own.

A Walk on the Wild Side pt. 3 (1956). Ralph Keyes, in his book The Quote Verifier, presents strong evidence that Algren took these rules from Algren's friend Dave Peltz.

Choudhry Rahmat Ali

Pakistani nationalist, 1895–1951

- I At this solemn hour in the history of India, when British and Indian statesmen are laying the foundations of a Federal Constitution for that land, we address this appeal to you, in the name of our common heritage, on behalf of our thirty million Muslim brethren who live in PAKSTAN—by which we mean the five Northern units of India, Viz: Punjab, North-West Frontier Province (Afghan Province), Kashmir, Sindh and Baluchistan.

Now or Never: Are We to Live or Perish Forever (1933). The acronym was later slightly modified from "Pakstan" to "Pakistan."

Muhammad Ali (Cassius Clay)

U.S. boxer, 1942–2016

- I I am the greatest.

Quoted in Wash. Post, 14 Oct. 1962. Ali was preceded by wrestler "Gorgeous" George Wagner in using this phrase. In Ali's autobiography he says that he first used it before a Las Vegas bout in June 1961.

- 2 Not only do I knock 'em out, I pick the round.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 9 Dec. 1962

- 3 [Description of his boxing strategy:] Float like a butterfly, sting like a bee.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 19 Feb. 1964. Probably coined by Ali's adviser, Drew "Bundini" Brown, who says these words in the New York Times article of 19 Feb. 1964.

- 4 [Responding to having his draft status reclassified:] I ain't got no quarrel with them Viet Cong.

Press conference, Miami, Fla., 17 Feb. 1966

- 5 It's hard to be humble when you are as great as I am.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 30 Nov. 1974

- 6 My new style on the ropes is called the "Rope-A-Dope."

Quoted in Chicago Tribune, 16 May 1975

- 7 [Description of upcoming fight against Joe Frazier in the Philippines, at a press conference announcing the fight, New York:] A thriller in Manila.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 18 July 1975

- 8 It's just a job. Grass grows, birds fly, waves pound the sand. I beat people up.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 6 Apr. 1977

- 9 No Viet Cong ever called me "nigger."

Attributed in Russel B. Nye, Crises on Campus (1971). According to Ralph Keyes, "Nice Guys Finish Seventh" (1992), "Ali never made this comment. . . . Despite extensive searching by himself and others, [Ali biographer Thomas] Hauser has never found the source of 'No Viet Cong ever called me nigger.' He concluded that it was just one of those sayings that got picked up and passed around in the sixties." The earliest known recorded version appeared in the New York Times, 24 Feb. 1966: "One Negro demonstrator carried a sign that said 'The Viet Cong Never Called Me Nigger.'"

Saul Alinsky

U.S. political activist, 1909–1972

- I [Describing the founding of Harvard College:]
After God had carried us safe to New-England, and wee had builded our houses, provided necessaries for our livelihood, rear’d convenient places for Gods worship, and settled the Civill Government: One of the next things we longed for, and looked after was to advance Learning and perpetuate it to Posterity; dreading to leave an illiterate Ministry to the Churches, when our present Ministers shall lie in the Dust.

1872.
- 4 [Supposed British newspaper headline announcing storm in the English Channel holding up shipping:] Continent isolated.
Quoted in Yorkshire Post, 31 Dec. 1930. This was alluded to as a headline from the Times (London), but a search of the Times Digital Archive does not turn up any such headline. Presumably the story is an apocryphal chestnut.

Unnamed U.S. Army major quoted in N.Y. Times, 8 Feb. 1968. The major was referring to the decision to bomb and shell the town of Bentre, Vietnam.
Accusations have arisen in recent years that Associated Press reporter Peter Arnett fabricated the quotation.

1722).
- 15 Lies, damned lies, and statistics.
Leeds Mercury, 29 June 1892. The earliest known occurrence of the precise phrase “lies, damned lies, and statistics” was in a speech by future British prime minister Arthur Balfour, quoted in the Leeds newspaper in 1892. Earlier, a letter published in the National Observer, 13 June 1891 (discovered by Stephen Goranson), stated: “It has been wittily remarked that there are three kinds of falsehood: the first is a ‘fib,’ the second is a downright lie, and the third and most aggravated is statistics.” Goranson believes that English politician Charles Dilke (1843– 1911) was the most likely originator of the quip about statistics. He also, however, has found a precursor nonstatistical saying: “A well-known lawyer, now a judge, once grouped witnesses into three classes:
simple liars, damned liars, and experts” (Nature, 26 Nov. 1885).

- 26 [Alleged entreaty by young baseball fan to “Shoeless Joe” Jackson after his arrest in the “Black Sox” bribery scandal, 28 Sept. 1920:] Say it ain’t so, Joe.
Quoted in Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, 7 Apr. 1921. This appears to be a later paraphrase of “Tell us, Joe, that it ain’t so,” reported by the Los Angeles Times, 30 Sept.
1920, as being said by a youngster to Jackson as the latter stepped out of the court building. Jackson later denied that any such encounter had taken place.
James T. Farrell, in My Baseball Diary (1957), recalled fans calling out “It ain’t true, Joe” to Jackson after the game of 27 Sept. 1920.

- 29 Speak Truth to Power.
Title of pamphlet by American Friends Service Committee (1955). Bayard Rustin, one of the pamphlet’s authors, had written in a 15 Aug. 1942 letter: “The primary function of a religious society is to ‘speak the truth to power.’” The phrase “speaking truth to power” has been found by Barry Popik as early as 1748, in the pamphlet A Free Briton’s Advice to the Free Citizens of Dublin. Popik also has found that the English painter and writer Benjamin Robert Haydon frequently wrote of “telling truth to power” beginning in 1846.

- 35 We, the peoples of the United Nations Determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and

To reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal right of men and women and of nations large and small, and . . . for these ends

To practice tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbors, and

To unite our strength to maintain international peace and security . . .

Have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims.

- 3 That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind.
Message upon first stepping on surface of moon, 20 July 1969. The original transmission was heard as "one small step for man," and this erroneous or misspoken version was initially reported widely.

Robert Armstrong

English government official, 1927–

- 1 [A misleading impression] is perhaps being economical with the truth.
Testimony in Spycatcher trial, Sydney, Australia, 18 Nov. 1986
See Edmund Burke 25; Twain 86

Arnauld-Amaury

French clergyman, fl. 1200

- 1 [Response when asked how true Catholics could be distinguished from heretics at massacre of Béziers, 1209:] Kill them all. God will recognize his own.
Quoted in Caesarius of Heisterbach, Dialogus Miraculorum (ca. 1233) (translation by Jonathon Sumpton). Usually quoted as "Kill them all, and let God sort them out."

Ernst Moritz Arndt

German poet and political writer, 1789–1860

- 1 This is the German's fatherland,
Where wrath pursues the foreign band,—
Where every Frank is held a foe,
And Germans all as brothers glow,—
That is the land,—
All Germany's thy fatherland.
"What Is the German's Fatherland" (1813)

Peter Arno (Curtis Arnoux Peters)

U.S. cartoonist, 1904–1968

- 1 I consider your conduct unethical and lousy.
Cartoon caption, Peter Arno's Parade (1929)
- 2 [Spoken by a man with a rolled-up engineering plan under his arm walking away from a crashed airplane:] Well, back to the old drawing board.

Matthew Arnold

English poet and essayist, 1822–1888

- 1 Who ordered, that their longing's fire
Should be, as soon as kindled, cooled?
Who renders vain their deep desire?
A God, a God their severance ruled!
And bade betwixt their shores to be
The unplumbed, salt, estranging sea.
"Switzerland: To Marguerite—Continued" l. 19 (1852)

- 2 Wandering between two worlds, one dead,
The other powerless to be born.
“Stanzas from the Grande Chartreuse” l. 85 (1855)
- 3 Nations are not truly great solely because the individuals composing them are numerous, free, and active; but they are great when these numbers, this freedom, and this activity are employed in the service of an ideal higher than that of an ordinary man, taken by himself.
“Democracy” (1861)
- 4 It is a very great thing to be able to think as you like; but, after all, an important question remains: what you think.
“Democracy” (1861)
- 5 Of these two literatures [French and German], as of the intellect of Europe in general, the main effort, for now many years, has been a critical effort; the endeavor, in all branches of knowledge—theology, philosophy, history, art, science—to see the object as in itself it really is.
On Translating Homer Lecture 2 (1861)
- 6 He [the translator] will find one English book and one only, where, as in the Iliad itself, perfect plainness of speech is allied with perfect nobleness; and that book is the Bible.
On Translating Homer Lecture 3 (1861)
- 7 The grand style arises in poetry, when a noble nature, poetically gifted, treats with simplicity or with severity a serious subject.
On Translating Homer: Last Words (1862)
- 8 [Of Oxford:] Whispering from her towers the last enchantments of the Middle Age. . . .
Home of lost causes, and forsaken beliefs, and unpopular names, and impossible loyalties!
Essays in Criticism First Series, preface (1865)
- 9 For the creation of a master-work of literature two powers must concur, the power of the man and the power of the moment, and the man is not enough without the moment.
Essays in Criticism First Series, “The Function of Criticism at the Present Time” (1865)
- 10 [Edmund] Burke is so great because, almost alone in England, he brings thought to bear upon politics, he saturates politics with thought.
Essays in Criticism First Series, “The Function of Criticism at the Present Time” (1865)
- 11 The notion of the free play of the mind upon all subjects being a pleasure in itself, being an object of desire, being an essential provider of elements without which a nation's spirit, whatever compensations it may have for them, must, in the long run, die of inanition, hardly enters into an Englishman's thoughts.
Essays in Criticism First Series, “The Function of Criticism at the Present Time” (1865)
- 12 I am bound by my own definition of criticism: a disinterested endeavor to learn and propagate the best that is known and thought in the world.
Essays in Criticism First Series, “The Function of Criticism at the Present Time” (1865)
- 13 Philistinism!—We have not the expression in English. Perhaps we have not the word because we have so much of the thing.
Essays in Criticism First Series, “Heinrich Heine” (1865)
- 14 Philistine must have originally meant, in the mind of those who invented the nickname, a strong, dogged, unenlightened opponent of the chosen people, of the children of the light.
Essays in Criticism First Series, “Heinrich Heine” (1865)
- 15 [Of Oxford:] That sweet City with her dreaming spires.
“Thyrsis” l. 19 (1866)
- 16 Listen! you hear the grating roar
Of pebbles which the waves draw back, and fling,
At their return, up the high strand,
Begin, and cease, and then again begin,
With tremulous cadence slow, and bring
The eternal note of sadness in.
Sophocles long ago
Heard it on the Aegean.
“Dover Beach” l. 9 (1867)
- 17 The Sea of Faith
Was once, too, at the full, and round earth's shore
Lay like the folds of a bright girdle furl'd.
But now I only hear
Its melancholy, long, withdrawing roar,
Retreating, to the breath
Of the night-wind, down the vast edges drear
And naked shingles of the world.
“Dover Beach” l. 21 (1867)

- 18 Ah, love, let us be true
To one another! for the world, which seems
To lie before us like a land of dreams,
So various, so beautiful, so new,
Hath really neither joy, nor love, nor light,
Nor certitude, nor peace, nor help for pain.
"Dover Beach" l. 29 (1867)
- 19 And we are here as on a darkling plain Swept with confused alarms of struggle and flight,
Where ignorant armies clash by night.
"Dover Beach" l. 35 (1867)
- 20 This something is style, and the Celts certainly have it in a wonderful measure.
On the Study of Celtic Literature sec. 6 (1867)
- 21 The power of the Latin classic is in character, that of the Greek is in beauty. Now character is capable of being taught, learnt, and assimilated:
beauty hardly.
Schools and Universities on the Continent (1868)
- 22 The whole scope of the essay is to recommend culture as the great help out of our present difficulties; culture being a pursuit of our total perfection by means of getting to know, on all the matters which most concern us, the best which has been thought and said in the world.
Culture and Anarchy preface (1869)
- 23 Our society distributes itself into Barbarians, Philistines, and Populace; and America is just ourselves, with the Barbarians quite left out, and the Populace nearly.
Culture and Anarchy preface (1869)
- 24 I am a Liberal, yet I am a Liberal tempered by experience, reflection, and renouncement, and
I am, above all, a believer in culture.
Culture and Anarchy introduction (1869)
- 25 Culture is then properly described not as having its origin in curiosity, but as having its origin in the love of perfection; it is a study of perfection.
Culture and Anarchy ch. 1 (1869)
- 26 Not a having and a resting, but a growing and a becoming is the character of perfection as culture conceives it.
Culture and Anarchy ch. 1 (1869)
- 27 The pursuit of perfection, then, is the pursuit of sweetness and light. . . . He who works for sweetness and light united, works to make reason and the will of God prevail.
Culture and Anarchy ch. 1 (1869)
See Jonathan Swift 1
- 28 I often, therefore, when I want to distinguish clearly the aristocratic class from the Philistines proper, or middle class, name the former, in my own mind, the Barbarians.
Culture and Anarchy ch. 3 (1869)
- 29 The freethinking of one age is the common sense of the next.
God and the Bible: A Review of Objections to Literature and Dogma (1875)
- 30 [Of Percy Shelley:] Beautiful and ineffectual angel, beating in the void his luminous wings in vain.
Poetry of Byron preface (1881)
- 31 That which in England we call the middle class is in America virtually the nation.
A Word About America (1882)
- 32 The best poetry will be found to have a power of forming, sustaining, and delighting us, as nothing else can.
Essays in Criticism Second Series, "The Study of Poetry" (1888)
- 33 The difference between genuine poetry and the poetry of Dryden, Pope, and all their school, is briefly this: their poetry is conceived and composed in their wits, genuine poetry is conceived and composed in the soul.
Essays in Criticism Second Series, "Thomas Gray" (1888)
- 34 Poetry is at bottom a criticism of life.
Essays in Criticism Second Series, "Wordsworth" (1888)
- 35 Have something to say, and say it as clearly as you can. That is the only secret of style.
Quoted in G. W. E. Russell, Collections and Recollections (1898)

George Asaf (George Henry Powell)

English songwriter, 1880–1951

- 1 Pack up your troubles in your old kit-bag,
And smile, smile, smile.
"Pack Up Your Troubles" (song) (1915)

Roger Ascham

English scholar and courtier, 1515–1568

- 1 Mark all mathematical heads, which be only and wholly bent to those sciences, how solitary

they be themselves, how unfit to live with others, and how unapt to serve in the world.

The Schoolmaster bk. 1 (1570)

John Ashbery

U.S. poet, 1927–2017

- 1 As I sit looking out of a window of the building
I wish I did not have to write the instructional manual on the uses of a new metal.
I look down into the street and see people, each walking with an inner peace,
And envy them—they are so far away from me!
Not one of them has to worry about getting out this manual on schedule.

“The Instruction Manual” l. 1 (1956)

- 2 There is the rich quarter, with its houses of pink and white, and its crumbling, leafy terraces.
There is the poorer quarter, its homes a deep blue.
There is the market, where men are selling hats and swatting flies.

“The Instruction Manual” l. 60 (1956)

- 3 I turn my gaze
Back to the instruction manual which has made me dream of Guadalajara.

“The Instruction Manual” l. 73 (1956)

Howard Ashman

U.S. songwriter, 1951–1991

- 1 Tale as old as time
True as it can be Barely even friends
Then somebody bends Unexpectedly.

“Beauty and the Beast” (song) (1991)

- 2 Tale as old as time
Song as old as rhyme
Beauty and the Beast.

“Beauty and the Beast” (song) (1991)

Isaac Asimov

Russian-born U.S. science fiction writer, 1920–1992

- 1 The fundamental law impressed upon the positronic brains of all robots. . . . On no conditions is a human being to be injured in any way, even when such injury is directly ordered by another human.

“Liar!” (1941). The first explicit statement of the First Law of Robotics.

See John Campbell 1

- 2 The three fundamental Rules of Robotics. . . . One, a robot may not injure a human being under any conditions—and, as a corollary, must not permit a human being to be injured because of inaction on his part. . . .
Two . . . a robot must follow all orders given by qualified human beings as long as they do not conflict with Rule 1. . . . Three: a robot must protect its own existence as long as that does not conflict with Rules 1 and 2.

“Runaround” (1942). In later reprints of this story, such as the one in I, Robot (1950), Asimov used the following wording: “One, a robot must not injure a human being, or, through inaction, allow a human being to come to harm. . . . Two . . . a robot must obey the orders given it by human beings except where such orders would conflict with the First Law.
And three, a robot must protect its own existence as long as such protection does not conflict with the First or Second Laws.” The rules were first suggested to Asimov by editor John W. Campbell, Jr.

See John Campbell 1

- 3 [“Zeroth Law of Robotics”:] No Machine may harm Humanity; nor, through inaction, may he allow Humanity to come to harm.

- 4 There is a cult of ignorance in the United States, and there has always been. The strain of anti-intellectualism has been a constant thread winding its way through our political and cultural life, nurtured by the false notion that democracy means that “my ignorance is just as good as your knowledge.”

Herbert Asquith

British prime minister, 1852–1928

- 1 [Of the possibility that the House of Lords would be flooded with new Liberal peers to guarantee passage of the Finance Bill:] We shall wait and see.

Quoted in Times (London), 21 Jan. 1910

Margot Asquith (Emma Alice Margaret Tennant)

British society figure, 1864–1945

- 1 If not a great soldier, he [Lord Kitchener] is at least a great poster.

More Memories ch. 6 (1933)

- 2 [Of David Lloyd George:] He can't see a belt without hitting below it.

Quoted in Listener, 11 June 1953

- 3 [To actress Jean Harlow, who had been mispronouncing Asquith's first name:] The final "t" in my Christian name is silent, unlike your family name.

Quoted in Lewis Einstein, Letter to Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., 4 Oct. 1934

Mary Astell

English religious writer, 1668–1731

- 1 If Absolute Sovereignty be not necessary in a State, how comes it to be so in a Family? or if in a Family why not in a State; since no Reason can be alledg'd for the one that will not hold more strongly for the other? . . . If all Men are born free, how is it that all Women are born Slaves? As they must be if the being subjected to the inconstant, uncertain, unknown, arbitrary Will of Men, be the perfect Condition of Slavery? Reflections upon Marriage, 3rd ed., preface (1706)

Mary Astor (Lucile Langhanke)

U.S. actress, 1906–1987

- 1 Five stages in the life of an actor. . . . 1. Who's Mary Astor? 2. Get me Mary Astor. 3. Get me a Mary Astor type. 4. Get me a young Mary Astor. 5. Who's Mary Astor?

A Life on Film ch. 14 (1967). A very similar quotation by the actor Hugh O'Brian appeared in the Pasadena Independent, 23 Sept. 1960.

Nancy Astor

U.S.-born British politician, 1879–1964

- 1 The first time Adam had a chance he laid the blame on woman.
My Two Countries ch. 1 (1923)
- 2 One reason why I don't drink is because I wish to know when I am having a good time.
Quoted in Christian Herald, June 1960. This was a condensation of remarks made by Astor at the Edinburgh World's Christian Temperance Union Convention in 1926.

- 3 The penalty of success is to be bored by people who used to snub you.

Quoted in Reno Evening Gazette, 4 May 1964

- 4 [Speech, Oldham, England, 1951:] I married beneath me, all women do.

Quoted in Dictionary of National Biography 1961–1970 (1981)

Mustapha Kemal Atatürk

Turkish statesman, 1880–1938

- 1 It was necessary to abolish the fez, emblem of ignorance, negligence, fanaticism, and hatred of progress and civilization, to accept in its place the hat—the headgear worn by the whole civilized world.

Speech to Turkish Assembly, Oct. 1927

Ti-Grace Atkinson

U.S. feminist and writer, 1938–

- 1 Love is the victim's response to the rapist.

Quoted in Sunday Times Magazine (London), 14 Sept. 1969

- 2 Feminism is a theory, lesbianism is a practice.

Quoted in Sidney Abbott and Barbara Love, Sappho Was a Right-On Woman (1972). This saying, from a 1970 speech, is usually quoted, "Feminism is the theory, lesbianism is the practice."

Margaret Atwood

Canadian writer, 1939–

- 1 This above all, to refuse to be a victim.

Surfacing ch. 27 (1972)

- 2 I would like to be the air that inhabits you for a moment only. I would like to be that unnoticed and that necessary.

"Variation on the Word Sleep" l. 27 (1981)

- 3 We were the people who were not in the papers. We lived in the blank white spaces at the edges of print. It gave us more freedom. We lived in the gaps between the stories.

The Handmaid's Tale ch. 10 (1986)

- 4 Nobody dies from lack of sex. It's lack of love we die from.

The Handmaid's Tale ch. 18 (1986)

- 5 A divorce is like an amputation; you survive, but there's less of you.
Quoted in Time, 19 Mar. 1973

John Aubrey

English antiquarian, 1616–1697

- 1 Oval face. His eye a dark grey. He had auburn hair. His complexion exceeding fair—he was so fair that they called him the lady of Christ's College.
Brief Lives “John Milton” (1690)
- 2 He had read much, if one considers his long life; but his contemplation was more than his reading. He was wont to say that if he had read as much as other men, he should have known no more than other men.
Brief Lives “Thomas Hobbes” (1690)

W. H. Auden

English-born U.S. poet, 1907–1973

- 1 Stop all the clocks, cut off the telephone,
Prevent the dog from barking with a juicy bone,
Silence the pianos and with muffled drum
Bring out the coffin, let the mourners come.
“Funeral Blues” l. 1 (1936)
- 2 He was my North, my South, my East and West,
My working week and my Sunday rest,
My noon, my midnight, my talk, my song;
I thought that love would last for ever: I was wrong.
“Funeral Blues” l. 9 (1936)
- 3 History to the defeated
May say Alas but cannot help or pardon.
“Spain, 1937” l. 90 (1937)

- 4 Evil is unspectacular and always human,
And shares our bed and eats at our own table.
“Herman Melville” l. 17 (1939)
- 5 The Godhead is broken like bread. We are the pieces.

See Glanvill 1
- 8 One rational voice is dumb: over a grave
The household of Impulse mourns one dearly loved.
Sad is Eros, builder of cities,
And weeping anarchic Aphrodite.
“In Memory of Sigmund Freud” l. 109 (1939)
- 9 Like love we don't know where or why
Like love we can't compel or fly
Like love we often weep
Like love we seldom keep.
“Law like Love” l. 57 (1939)
- 10 I sit in one of the dives
On Fifty-second Street
Uncertain and afraid
As the clever hopes expire
Of a low dishonest decade.
“September 1, 1939” l. 1 (1939)
- 11 I and the public know
What all schoolchildren learn,
Those to whom evil is done
Do evil in return.
“September 1, 1939” l. 19 (1939)
- 12 What mad Nijinsky wrote
About Diaghilev
Is true of the normal heart;
For the error bred in the bone
Of each woman and each man
Craves what it cannot have,
Not universal love
But to be loved alone.
“September 1, 1939” l. 59 (1939)
- 13 We must love one another or die.
“September 1, 1939” l. 88 (1939). In a 1955 printing of the poem Auden changed this to “love one another and die.”

- 14 Ironic points of light
Flash out wherever the Just Exchange their messages:
May I, composed like them
Of Eros and of dust,
Beleaguered by the same
Negation and despair,
Show an affirming flame.

- 40 Speaking for myself, the questions which interest me most when reading a poem are two. The first is technical: "Here is a verbal contraption. How does it work?" The second is, in the broadest sense, moral: "What kind of a guy inhabits this poem? What is his notion of the good life or the good place? His notion of the Evil One? What does he conceal from the reader? What does he conceal even from himself?"

Jane Austen

English novelist, 1775–1817

- 1 I do not want people to be very agreeable, as it saves me the trouble of liking them a great deal.
Letter to Cassandra Austen, 24 Dec. 1798
- 2 We met . . . Dr. Hall in such very deep mourning that either his mother, his wife, or himself must be dead.
Letter to Cassandra Austen, 17 May 1799
- 3 An annuity is a very serious business.
Sense and Sensibility vol. 1, ch. 2 (1811)
- 4 Seven years would be insufficient to make some people acquainted with each other, and seven days are more than enough for others.
Sense and Sensibility vol. 2, ch. 12 (1811)
- 5 She was not a woman of many words; for, unlike people in general, she proportioned them to the number of her ideas.
Sense and Sensibility vol. 2, ch. 12 (1811)
- 6 It is a truth universally acknowledged, that a single man in possession of a good fortune, must be in want of a wife.
Pride and Prejudice ch. 1 (1813)
- 7 In nine cases out of ten, a woman had better show more affection than she feels.

- 13 For what do we live, but to make sport for our neighbors, and laugh at them in our turn?
Pride and Prejudice ch. 57 (1813)
- 14 Be honest and poor, by all means—but I shall not envy you; I do not much think I shall even respect you. I have a much greater respect for those that are honest and rich.
Mansfield Park ch. 22 (1814)
- 15 One half of the world cannot understand the pleasures of the other.
Emma ch. 9 (1816)
- 16 Why not seize the pleasure at once?—How often is happiness destroyed by preparation, foolish preparation!
Emma ch. 30 (1816)
- 17 How could I possibly join them on to the little bit (two inches wide) of ivory on which I work with so fine a brush, as produces little effect after much labor?
Letter to J. Edward Austen, 16 Dec. 1816
- 18 “Oh! It is only a novel! . . .” in short, only some work in which the greatest powers of the mind are displayed, in which the most thorough knowledge of human nature, the happiest delineation of its varieties, the liveliest effusions of wit and humor, are conveyed to the world in the best-chosen language.
Northanger Abbey ch. 5 (1818)
- 19 [On history:] The quarrels of popes and kings, with wars or pestilences in every page; the men all so good for nothing, and hardly any women at all, it is very tiresome; and yet I often think it odd that it should be so dull, for a great deal of it must be invention.

Northanger Abbey ch. 14 (1818)

- 20 One man’s ways may be as good as another’s, but we all like our own best.
Persuasion ch. 13 (1818)
- 21 “My idea of good company, Mr. Elliot, is the company of clever, well-informed people, who have a great deal of conversation; that is what I call good company.” “You are mistaken,” said he gently, “that is not good company, that is the best.”
Persuasion ch. 16 (1818)
- 22 She gloried in being a sailor’s wife, but she must pay the tax of quick alarm for belonging to that profession which is, if possible, more distinguished in its domestic virtues than in its national importance.
Persuasion ch. 24 (1818)

Paul Auster

U.S. writer, 1947–

Tex Avery

U.S. cartoon animator, 1907–1980

- 1 What’s up, Doc?
A Wild Hare (animated cartoon) (1940). According to Jeff Lenburg, The Encyclopedia of Animated Cartoons (1991), Avery originated this phrase for the first Bugs Bunny cartoon, based on the line “What’s up, Duke” from the film My Man Godfrey together with the common use of the address “Doc” in Avery’s native Texas.

Wilbert Awdry

English children’s book writer, 1911–1997

- 1 You’ve a lot to learn about trucks, little Thomas. They are silly things and must be kept in their place. After pushing them about here for a few weeks, you’ll know almost as much about them as Edward. Then you’ll be a Really Useful Engine.

Thomas the Tank Engine (1946)

Hoyt Axton

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1938–1999

Quoted in Art Spiegelman and Bob Schneider, Whole Grains: A Book of Quotations (1973)

Charles Babbage

English mathematician and inventor, 1792–1871

- 1 On two occasions I have been asked—“Pray, Mr. Babbage, if you put into the machine wrong figures, will the right answers come out?” In one case a member of the Upper, and in the other a member of the Lower, House put this question. I am not able rightly to apprehend the kind of confusion of ideas that could provoke such a question.

Isaac Babel

Russian short-story writer, 1894–1941

- 1 No steel can pierce the human heart so chillingly as a period at the right moment.
“Guy de Maupassant” (1924) (translation by Max Hayward)
- 2 A phrase is born into the world both good and bad at the same time. The secret lies in a slight, an almost invisible twist. The lever should rest in your hand, getting warm, and you can only turn it once, not twice.

“Guy de Maupassant” (1924) (translation by Walter Morison)

- 3 You're trying to live without enemies. That's all you think about, not having enemies.

Red Cavalry “Argamak” (1926)

Lauren Bacall (Betty Joan Perske)

U.S. actress, 1924–2014

- 1 I think your whole life shows in your face and you should be proud of that.

Quoted in Daily Telegraph (London), 2 Mar. 1988

Johann Sebastian Bach

German composer, 1685–1750

- 1 There is nothing wonderful in that [playing the organ]; you have only to hit the right notes in the right time, and the instrument plays itself.

Attributed in The Musical Visitor, Aug. 1897

Francis Bacon

English jurist, philosopher, and man of letters, 1561–1626

- 1 I have taken all knowledge to be my province.

Letter to Lord Burghley, 1592

- 2 Nam et ipsa scientia potestas est.

For also knowledge itself is power.

Mediationes Sacrae “Of Heresies” (1597). Source of the proverb “knowledge is power.”

- 3 If a man will begin with certainties, he shall end in doubts; but if he will be content to begin with doubts, he shall end in certainties.
The Advancement of Learning bk. 1, ch. 5, sec. 8 (1605)
- 4 We are much beholden to Machiavel and others, that write what men do, and not what they ought to do.
The Advancement of Learning bk. 2, ch. 2, sec. 9 (1605)
- 5 There are four classes of Idols which beset men's minds. To these for distinction's sake I have assigned names—calling the first class, Idols of the Tribe; the second, Idols of the Cave; the third, Idols of the Market-Place; the fourth, Idols of the Theater.

New Atlantis (1627)
- 26 [Confession to Parliament of his being guilty of corruption as Lord Chancellor:] I beseech your Lordships, be merciful unto a broken reed.
Quoted in Journals of the House of Lords, 30 Apr. 1621

Roger Bacon

English philosopher and scientist, ca. 1220–ca. 1292

- 1 If in other sciences we should arrive at certainty without doubt and truth without error, it behooves us to place the foundations of knowledge in mathematics.
Opus Majus bk. 1, ch. 4 (ca. 1267) (translation by Robert Burke)

Robert Stephenson Smyth Baden-Powell

English soldier and founder of the Boy Scouts, 1857–1941

Scouting for Boys pt. 1 (1908)
See Lehrer 1
- 2 A Scout's Honor is to be Trusted.
Scouting for Boys pt. 1 (1908)

Joan Baez

U.S. folk singer, 1941–

- 1 The only thing that's been a worse flop than the organization of non-violence has been the organization of violence.
Daybreak (1968)

- 2 We both know what memories can bring
They bring diamonds and rust.
"Diamonds and Rust" (song) (1975)

Walter Bagehot

English economist and essayist, 1826–1877

- 1 You may talk of the tyranny of Nero and Tiberius; but the real tyranny is the tyranny of your next-door neighbor. . . . Public opinion is a permeating influence, and it exacts obedience to itself; it requires us to think other men's thoughts, to speak other men's words, to follow other men's habits.
"The Character of Sir Robert Peel" (1856)
- 2 Nations touch at their summits.
The English Constitution "The House of Lords" (1867)
- 3 The best reason why Monarchy is a strong government is, that it is an intelligible government. The mass of mankind understand it, and they hardly anywhere in the world understand any other.
The English Constitution "The Monarchy" (1867)
- 4 Our royalty is to be revered, and if you begin to poke about it you cannot reverence it. . . . Its mystery is its life. We must not let in daylight upon magic.
The English Constitution "The Monarchy (continued)" (1867)
- 5 The Sovereign has, under a constitutional monarchy such as ours, three rights—the right to be consulted, the right to encourage, the right to warn.
The English Constitution "The Monarchy (continued)" (1867)

P. J. Bailey

English poet, 1816–1902

- 1 Ye are all nations, I a single soul.
Yet shall this new world order outlast all.

Fragments from France cartoon caption (1915)

Dorothy Baker

U.S. novelist, 1907–1968

- 1 He watched, stunned, and while he was watching, Rick died. He could tell when it happened. There was a difference.
Young Man with a Horn bk. 4, ch. 8 (1938)

George Baker

U.S. cartoonist, 1915–1975

- 1 The Sad Sack.
Title of comic strip (1942)

Howard H. Baker, Jr.

U.S. politician, 1925–2014

- 1 I'll tell you what my daddy told me after my first trial. I thought I was just great. I asked him, "How did I do?" He paused and said, "You've got to guard against speaking more clearly than you think."
Quoted in Wash. Post, 24 June 1973
- 2 What did the President know about Watergate and when did he know it?
Quoted in Wash. Post, 1 July 1973. This was Baker's recurrent question as a member of the U.S. Senate committee investigating the Nixon administration's Watergate scandal in 1973.

Michael Bakunin

Russian revolutionary and anarchist, 1814–1876

- 1 The urge for destruction is also a creative urge!
"Die Reaktion in Deutschland," Jahrbuch für Wissenschaft und Kunst (1842)

- 2 I shall continue to be an impossible person so long as those who are now possible remain possible.

Letter to Nikolai Ogarev, 14 June 1868

- 3 I am truly free only when all human beings, men and women, are equally free. The freedom of other men, far from negating or limiting my freedom, is, on the contrary, its necessary premise and confirmation.

"God and the State" (1871)

- 4 But it will scarcely be any easier on the people if the cudgel with which they are beaten is called the people's cudgel.

Statism and Anarchy ch. 1 (1873) (translation by Marshall Shatz)

James Baldwin

U.S. novelist and essayist, 1924–1987

- 1 Money, it turned out, was exactly like sex, you thought of nothing else if you didn't have it and thought of other things if you did.
"The Black Boy Looks at the White Boy" (1961)
- 2 If we do not now dare everything, the fulfillment of that prophecy, re-created from the Bible in song by a slave, is upon us: God gave Noah the rainbow sign, No more water, the fire next time!
The Fire Next Time (1963)
See Folk and Anonymous Songs 36
- 3 Do I really want to be integrated into a burning house?
The Fire Next Time (1963)
- 4 Consider the history of labor in a country in which, spiritually speaking, there are no workers, only candidates for the hand of the boss's daughter.
The Fire Next Time (1963)
- 5 Around the age of 5, 6, or 7. . . . It comes as a great shock to see Gary Cooper killing off the Indians and, although you are rooting for Gary Cooper, that the Indians are you.
Speech at Cambridge Union, Cambridge, England, 17 Feb. 1965
- 6 If they take you in the morning, they will be coming for us that night.
"Open Letter to My Sister Angela Y. Davis" (1971)

- 7 The White man, someone told me, discovered the Cross by way of the Bible, but the Black man discovered the Bible by way of the Cross.
Evidence of Things Not Seen (1985)

Stanley Baldwin

British prime minister, 1867–1947

- 1 I think it is well for the man in the street to realize that there is no power on earth that can protect him from being bombed. Whatever people may tell him, the bomber will always get through. The only defence is in offence, which means that you have to kill more women and children more quickly than the enemy if you want to save yourselves.
 Speech in House of Commons, 10 Nov. 1932
- 2 I shall be but a short time tonight. I have seldom spoken with greater regret, for my lips are not yet unsealed.
 Speech in House of Commons, 10 Dec. 1935.
 Popularly quoted as “my lips are sealed.”

Arthur James Balfour

British prime minister, 1848–1930

- 1 His Majesty’s Government view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country.
 Letter to Lionel Walter, Lord Rothschild, 2 Nov. 1917.
 Known as the “Balfour Declaration.”
- 2 In Palestine we do not propose even to go through the form of consulting the wishes of the present inhabitants of the country. . . . The Four Great Powers are committed to Zionism. And Zionism, be it right or wrong, good or bad, is rooted in age-long traditions, in present needs, in future hopes, of far profounder import than the desires and prejudices of the 700,000 Arabs who now inhabit that ancient land.
 Memorandum respecting Syria, Palestine, and Mesopotamia, 11 Aug. 1919

- 3 [To Frank Harris, who had said that “all the faults of the age come from Christianity and journalism”:] Christianity, of course . . . but why journalism?
 Quoted in Margot Asquith, Autobiography (1920)

John Ball

U.S. writer, 1911–1988

- 1 They call me Mr. Tibbs.
In the Heat of the Night ch. 4 (1965)

- 1 In Scarlet town, where I was born,
 There was a fair maid dwellin’,
 Made every youth cry Well-a-day!
 Her name was Barbara Allen.
 “Barbara Allen’s Cruelty”
- 2 Ye Highlands and ye Lawlands,
 O where hae ye been?
 They hae slain the Earl of Murray,
 And hae laid him on the green.
 “The Bonny Earl of Murray.” Sylvia Wright in 1954 (Harper’s Magazine, Nov.) coined the term mondegreen to refer to a misunderstood word derived from mishearing of song lyrics, inspired by the fact that “when I was a child, my mother used to read aloud to me from Percy’s Reliques, and one of my favorite poems began, as I remember: Ye Highlands and ye Lowlands, Oh, where hae ye been? They hae slain the Earl Amurray, And Lady Mondegreen.”
- 3 Turn again, Whittington . . .
 Lord Mayor of London.
 “Dick Whittington”
- 4 Och, Johnny, I hardly knew ye!
 “Johnny, I Hardly Knew Ye”
- 5 “O where ha you been, Lord Randal, my son,
 And where ha you been, my handsome young man?”
 “I ha been at the greenwood; mother, mak my bed soon,
 For I’m wearied wi hunting, and fain wad lie down.”
 “An wha met ye there, Lord Randal, my son?
 An wha met you there, my handsome
 young man?”
 “O I met wi my true-love; mother, mak my bed soon,

For I'm wearied wi huntin, an fain wad lie down."

"Lord Randal"

6 When captains courageous whom death could not daunt,

Did march to the siege of the city of Gaunt,
They mustered their soldiers by two and by three,

And the foremost in battle was Mary Ambree.

Let's do the twist.

"The Twist" (song) (1960)

J. G. (James Graham) Ballard

Chinese-born English writer, 1930–2009

1 Everything is becoming science fiction. From the margins of an almost invisible literature has sprung the intact reality of the 20th century.

"Fictions of Every Kind" (1971)

Honoré de Balzac

French novelist, 1799–1850

1 "I've been tormented by evil thoughts."

"Of what sort? Ideas can cure you, you know."

"They can?"

"If you give in to them."

The secret of great fortunes without apparent source is a forgotten crime.

Le Père Goriot ch. 2 (1835). Source of the proverb "Behind every great fortune there lies a crime," the earliest occurrence of which was found in C. Wright Mills, The Power Elite (1956).

3 Je ne suis pas profond, mais très épais, et il faut du temps pour faire le tour de ma personne.

I am not deep, but I am very wide, and it takes time to walk round me.

Letter to Clara Carrara-Spinelli Maffei, Oct. 1837

U.S. actress, 1903–1968

1 Cocaine habit-forming? Of course not. I ought to know. I've been using it for years.

Tallulah ch. 4 (1952)

2 Never practice two vices at once.

Tallulah ch. 4 (1952)

3 [Remark to Alexander Woollcott after attending an unsuccessful revival of Maeterlinck's play Aglavaine and Selysette:] There is less in this than meets the eye.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 4 Jan. 1922

4 I'm as pure as the driven slush.

Quoted in Tucson Daily Citizen, 3 Sept. 1941

5 I don't know what I am, darling. I've tried several varieties of sex. The conventional position makes me claustrophobic. And the others give me either stiff neck or lockjaw.

Quoted in Lee Israel, Miss Tallulah Bankhead (1972)

6 They used to photograph Shirley Temple through gauze. They should photograph me through linoleum.

Quoted in Leslie Halliwell, The Filmgoer's Book of Quotes (1973)

7 There have been only two authentic geniuses in the world, Willie Mays and Willie Shakespeare.

Quoted in The Baseball Card Engagement Book (1987). Bankhead was quoted, saying something very similar to this, in Chicago Daily Defender, 23 Oct. 1962.

Ernie Banks

U.S. baseball player, 1931–2015

1 Isn't it a beautiful day? . . . The Cubs of Chicago versus the Phillies of Philadelphia, in beautiful, historic Wrigley Field. Let's go, let's go. It's Sunday in America.

Quoted in Sport, Dec. 1971

2 It's a great day for baseball. Let's play two.

Quoted in Lowell (Mass.) Sun, 12 Oct. 1972. Earlier version by Banks quoted in the Valley Independent (Monessen, Pa.), 23 June 1969: "It's a wonderful day, a great day to play two."

David Barker

U.S. poet, 1816–1874

1 But for me—and I care not a single fig

If they say I am wrong or am right—

I shall always go for the weaker dog:

For the under dog in the fight.

"The Under Dog in the Fight" 1.5 (1859). Appears to be the origin of the term underdog, previously thought to date from 1887.

Alben W. Barkley

U.S. politician, 1877–1956

- I I would rather be a servant in the House of the Lord than to sit in the seats of the mighty.
Speech at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., 30 Apr. 1956. Immediately after delivering this line, the seventy-eight-year-old Barkley died. Jane R. Barkley writes in I Married the Veep (1958): “I am not sure, even now, how these words came into being, where they came from. I believe they were original with him but were based on the Old Testament, 84th Psalm: 10, ‘I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness.’”
See Bible 115

Joel Barlow

U.S. poet and diplomat, 1754–1812

- I The Government of the United States of America is not, in any sense, founded on the Christian religion.
Treaty of peace and friendship with Tripoli art. 11 (1797)

Julian Barnes

English novelist, 1946–

- I Why does the writing make us chase the writer? Why can't we leave well enough alone? Why aren't the books enough?
Flaubert's Parrot ch. 1 (1984)
- 2 Books say: she did this because. Life says: she did this. Books are where things are explained to you; life is where things aren't.
Flaubert's Parrot ch. 13 (1984)

Peter Barnes

English playwright, 1931–2004

- I [The Earl of Gurney, responding to the question, “How do you know you're . . . God?”:] Simple. When I pray to Him I find I'm talking to myself.
The Ruling Class act 1, sc. 4 (1969)

Natalie Clifford Barney

U.S.-born French writer, 1876–1972

- I The most beautiful life is one spent creating oneself, not procreating.
Éparpillements (1910)

P. T. Barnum

U.S. showman, 1810–1891

- I There is a sucker born every minute.
Attributed in Daily Colonist (Victoria, Canada), 21 July 1892. Although Barnum is closely associated with this quotation, the earliest known appearance of “There's a sucker born every minute” occurred in the Inter-Ocean (Chicago), 2 Jan. 1879, where no individual was credited for the saying. Garson O'Toole has tracked down many older variants, beginning with “There vash von fool born every minute” (European Magazine and London Review, Jan. 1806).

Roseanne Barr

U.S. comedian, 1953–

- I The only option for girls when I was growing up was mother, secretary, or teacher. Now I must say how lucky we are as women to live in an age where “dental hygienist” has been added to the list.
Quoted in Chicago Tribune, 16 Apr. 1989
- 2 I don't like the terms housewife and homemaker. I prefer to be called Domestic Goddess.
Quoted in People, 28 Apr. 1986

James M. Barrie

Scottish writer, 1860–1937

- I The tragedy of a man who has found himself out.
What Every Woman Knows act 4 (1908)
- 2 All children, except one, grow up.
Peter and Wendy ch. 1 (1911)
- 3 Every child is affected thus the first time he is treated unfairly. All he thinks he has a right to when he comes to you to be yours is fairness. After you have been unfair to him he will love you again, but he will never afterwards be quite the same boy.
Peter and Wendy ch. 8 (1911)
- 4 [Response to being asked, “Where do you live?”:] Second to the right and then straight on till morning.
Peter Pan act 1 (1928)
- 5 You see, Wendy, when the first baby laughed for the first time, the laugh broke into a thousand pieces and they all went skipping about, and that was the beginning of fairies.

Peter Pan act 1 (1928)

- 6 Every time a child says “I don’t believe in fairies” there is a fairy somewhere that falls down dead.

Peter Pan act 1 (1928)

- 7 Do you know why swallows build in the eaves of houses? It is to listen to the stories.

Peter Pan act 1 (1928)

- 8 [Explaining how to fly]: You just think lovely wonderful thoughts and they lift you up in the air.

Peter Pan act 1 (1928)

- 9 To die will be an awfully big adventure.

Peter Pan act 3 (1928)

See Frohman 1

- 10 She [Tinker Bell] says she thinks she could get well again if children believed in fairies!

Peter Pan act 4 (1928)

- 11 Do you believe in fairies? Say quick that you believe! If you believe, clap your hands!

Peter Pan act 4 (1928)

- 12 Proud and insolent youth, prepare to meet thy doom.

Peter Pan act 5 (1928)

- 13 I’m youth, I’m joy, I’m a little bird that has broken out of the egg.

Peter Pan act 5 (1928)

George Barrington

Irish-born Australian criminal and author, 1755–1804

- 1 From distant climes, o’er wide-spread seas we come,

Though not with much éclat, or beat of drum,

True patriots all, for be it understood,

We left our country, for our country’s good.

The History of New South Wales ch. 4 (1802). This poem may not have been written by Barrington.

Marion Barry

U.S. politician, 1936–2014

- 1 Outside of the killings, [Washington, D.C.] has one of the lowest crime rates in the country.

Quoted in Chicago Tribune, 28 Mar. 1989

- 2 Bitch set me up!

Quoted in Wash. Post, 29 June 1990. Barry was mayor of Washington, D.C., when he uttered this line while being arrested for smoking crack cocaine with a woman in a Washington hotel, 18 Jan. 1990.

Ethel Barrymore (Ethel Mae Blythe)

U.S. actress, 1879–1959

- 1 That’s all there is, there isn’t any more.

Curtain line, added to Sunday (play by Thomas Raceward) (1904)

John Barrymore (John Sidney Blyth)

U.S. actor, 1882–1942

- 1 The trouble with life is that there are so many beautiful women—and so little time.

Quoted in Evan Esar, The Dictionary of Humorous Quotations (1949)

John Barth

U.S. novelist, 1930–

- 1 [This book is] a floating opera, friend, chock-full of curiosities, melodrama, spectacle, instruction, and entertainment, but it floats willy-nilly on the tide of my vagrant prose: you’ll catch sight of it, then lose it, then spy it again.

The Floating Opera ch. 1 (1956)

Karl Barth

Swiss theologian, 1886–1968

- 1 It may be that when the angels go about their task praising God, they play only Bach. I am sure, however, that when they are together en famille, they play Mozart.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart (1956) (translation by Clarence K. Pott)

Guillaume de Salluste, Seigneur du Bartas

French diplomat and poet, 1544–1590

- 1 In the jaws of death.

Divine Weeks and Works week 2, day 1, pt. 4 (1578)

Donald Barthelme

U.S. writer, 1931–1989

- 1 “You may not be interested in absurdity,” she said firmly, “but absurdity is interested in you.” “A Shower of Gold” (1963)

- 2 The death of God left the angels in a strange position.

“On Angels” (1969)

Roland Barthes

French writer and critic, 1915–1980

- 1 I think that cars today are almost the exact equivalent of the great Gothic cathedrals: I mean the supreme creation of an era, conceived with passion by unknown artists, and consumed in image if not in usage by a whole population which appropriates them as a purely magical object.

Mythologies “La Nouvelle Citroën” (1957) (translation by Annette Lavers)

- 2 The birth of the reader must be at the cost of the death of the Author.
“The Death of the Author” (1968)
- 3 Opposite the writerly text, then, is its countervalue, its negative, reactive value: what can be read, but not written: the readerly. We call any readerly text a classic text.
S/Z (1970)
- 4 The goal of literary work (of literature as work) is to make the reader no longer a consumer, but a producer of the text. Our literature is characterized by the pitiless divorce which the literary institution maintains between the producer of the text and its user, between its owner and its consumer, between its author and its reader. This reader is thereby plunged into a kind of idleness—he is intransitive; he is, in short, serious: instead of functioning himself, instead of gaining access to the magic of the signifier, to the pleasure of writing, he is left with no more than the poor freedom either to accept or reject the text: reading is nothing more than a referendum.
S/Z (1970)

Bernard M. Baruch

U.S. financier and presidential adviser, 1870–1965

- 1 My fellow citizens of the world, we are here to make a choice between the quick and the dead. . . . Behind the black portent of the new atomic age lies a hope which, seized upon with faith, can work our salvation. . . . We must elect World Peace or World Destruction.

Speech to United Nations meeting, 14 June 1946
See Book of Common Prayer 9

- 2 Let us not be deceived—we are today in the midst of a cold war. Our enemies are to be found abroad and at home. Let us never forget this: Our unrest is the heart of their success. The peace of the world is the hope and the goal of our political system; it is the despair and defeat of those who stand against us.

Address at the unveiling of his portrait in the South Carolina Legislature, Columbia, S.C., 16 Apr. 1947. The term cold war was popularized by Baruch’s speech and by Walter Lippmann’s 1947 book with that title. An earlier use was by George Orwell writing in the Tribune, 19 Oct. 1945 (see Orwell for this and still older antecedents). Baruch credited speechwriter Herbert Bayard Swope with supplying him with this phrase in 1946 (in a draft speech about United States–Soviet relations).
See Orwell 27

- 3 Every man has the right to an opinion, but no man has a right to be wrong in his facts.

Quoted in L.A. Times, 9 Oct. 1946. This saying is now frequently stated as “Everyone is entitled to his own opinions, not his own facts,” and is usually credited to Daniel Patrick Moynihan.

- 4 To me, old age is always fifteen years older than I am.

Quoted in Evan Esar, The Dictionary of Humorous Quotations (1949)

Jacques Barzun

French-born U.S. historian, 1907–2012

- 1 Whoever wants to know the heart and mind of America had better learn baseball, the rules and realities of the game—and do it by watching first some high school or small-town teams.
God’s Country and Mine ch. 8 (1954)
- 2 If it were possible to talk to the unborn, one could never explain to them how it feels to be alive, for life is washed in the speechless real.
The House of Intellect ch. 6 (1959)

Matsuo Basho

Japanese poet, 1644–1694

- 1 Days and months are travellers of eternity. So are the years that pass by.

The Narrow Road to the Deep North (translation by Nobuyuki Yuasa)

- 2 An old pond—
A frog tumbles in—
The sound of water.
Poem (translation by Bernard Lionel Einbond)
- 3 Refinement's origin:
The remote north country's
Rice-planting song.
Poem (translation by Bernard Lionel Einbond)
- 4 Clouds now and again
Give a soul some respite from
Moon-gazing—behold.
Poem (translation by Bernard Lionel Einbond)
- 5 The summer grasses:
Of mighty warlords' visions
All that they have left.
Poem (translation by Bernard Lionel Einbond)
- 6 Cooling, so cooling,
With a wall against my feet,
Midday sleep—behold.
Poem (translation by Bernard Lionel Einbond)
- 7 On a withered branch
A crow has settled—
Autumn nightfall.
Poem (translation by Harold G. Henderson)
- 8 On a journey, ill,
And over fields all withered, dreams
Go wandering still.
Poem (translation by Harold G. Henderson)

Anselme Batbie

French jurist and government official, 1828–1887

- 1 Celui qui n'est pas républicain à vingt ans fait douter de la générosité de son âme; mais celui qui, après trente ans, persévère, fait douter de la rectitude de son esprit.
He who is not a republican at twenty compels one to doubt the generosity of his heart; but he who, after thirty, persists, compels one to doubt the soundness of his mind.
Quoted in Jules Claretie, Portraits Contemporains vol. 1 (1875). Claretie indicates that Batbie wrote this in a well-known letter and that Batbie was himself quoting or paraphrasing a “paradox” of Edmund Burke’s. The Burke passage has not been traced. See John Adams 19; Clemenceau 5; George Bernard Shaw 48

Katherine Lee Bates

U.S. poet and educator, 1859–1929

- 1 O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
Above the fruited plain!
America! America!
God shed his grace on thee
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea!
“America the Beautiful” (song) (1893)

Gregory Bateson

English social scientist, 1904–1980

- 1 What we mean by information—the elementary unit of information—is a difference which makes a difference, and it is able to make a difference because the neural pathways along which it travels and is continually transformed are themselves provided with energy. The pathways are ready to be triggered. We may even say that the question is already implicit in them.
General Semantics Bulletin no. 37 (1970)

William Bateson

English geneticist, 1861–1926

- 1 The best title would, I think, be “The Quick Professorship of the study of Heredity.” No single word in common use quite gives this meaning. Such a word is badly wanted, and if it were desirable to coin one, “Genetics” might do.
Letter to Adam Sedgewick, 18 Apr. 1905

John Batman

Australian explorer, 1801–1839

- 1 [Of the future site of the city of Melbourne.] This will be the place for a Village.
Journal, June 1835

Charles Baudelaire

French poet and critic, 1821–1867

Richard Howard)
- 7 J’ai plus de souvenirs que si j’avais mille ans.
Souvenirs? More than if I had lived a thousand years!
Les Fleurs du Mal “Spleen (II)” (1857) (translation by Richard Howard)
- 8 La plus belle des ruses du Diable est de vous
persuader qu’il n’existe pas!
The finest trick of the devil is to persuade you that he does not exist.
“Le Joueur Généreux” (1864)
- 9 Belief in progress is a doctrine of idlers and Belgians. It is the individual relying upon his neighbors to do his work.
Journaux Intimes “Mon Coeur Mis à Nu” no. 9 (1887)

- 10 Theory of the true civilization. It is not to be found in gas or steam or table turning.
It consists in the diminution of the traces of original sin.
Journaux Intimes “Mon Coeur Mis à Nu” no. 59
(1887)

Baudouin

Belgian king, 1930–1993

- 1 America has been called a melting pot, but it seems better to call it a mosaic, for in it each nation, people, or race which has come to its shores has been privileged to keep its individuality, contributing at the same time its share to the unified pattern of a new nation.

Jean Baudrillard

French philosopher, 1929–2007

- 1 It is the real, and not the map, whose vestiges subsist here and there, in the deserts which are no longer those of the Empire, but our own.
The desert of the real itself.
“The Precession of the Simulacra” (1981)

- 2 Everywhere one seeks to produce meaning, to make the world signify, to render it visible. We are not, however, in danger of lacking meaning;
quite the contrary, we are gorged with meaning and it is killing us.
The Ecstasy of Communication “Seduction, or the Superficial Abyss” (1987)

L. Frank Baum

U.S. writer, 1856–1919

- 1 The road to the City of Emeralds is paved with yellow brick.
The Wonderful Wizard of Oz ch. 2 (1900). The phrase “yellow brick road” does not appear in this book.
See Harburg 6
- 2 My name is Dorothy . . . and I am going to the Emerald City, to ask the great Oz to send me back to Kansas.

1 [Comment to fellow passengers preparing to challenge hijackers on United Airlines Flight 93, 11 Sept. 2001]: Let’s roll!

Quoted in Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, 16 Sept. 2001

Charles A. Beard

U.S. historian, 1874–1948

1 It is for us . . . to inquire constantly and persistently, when theories of national power or states’ rights are propounded: “What interests are behind them and to whose advantage will changes or the maintenance of old forms accrue?” By refusing to do this we become victims of history—clay in the hands of its makers.

An Economic Interpretation of the Constitution of the United States introduction (1935)
See Cicero 12

2 At no time, at no place, in solemn convention assembled, through no chosen agents, had the American people officially proclaimed the United States to be a democracy. The Constitution did not contain the word or any word lending countenance to it, except possibly the mention of “we, the people,” in the preamble. . . . When the Constitution was framed no respectable person called himself or herself a democrat.

- 4 Vous vous êtes donné la peine de naître, et rien de plus.

You went to some trouble to be born, and that's all.

Le Mariage de Figaro act 5, sc. 3 (1785)

Francis Beaumont

English poet and playwright, 1584–1616

- 1 Those have most power to hurt us that we love.

The Maid's Tragedy act 5 (written 1610–1611).

Coauthored with John Fletcher.

Max Aitken, First Baron Beaverbrook

Canadian-born British newspaper owner and politician, 1879–1964

- 1 Let me say that the credit belongs to the boys in the back-rooms. It isn't the man who sits in the limelight like me who should have the praise. It is not the men who sit in prominent places. It is the men in the back-rooms.

Broadcast, 19 Mar. 1941

Cesare Bonesana, Marchese di Beccaria

Italian economist and criminologist, 1738–1794

- 1 If we glance at the pages of history, we will find that laws, which surely are, or ought to be, compacts of free men, have been, for the most part, a mere tool of the passions of some, or have arisen from an accidental and temporary need. Never have they been dictated by a dispassionate student of human nature who might, by bringing the actions of a multitude of men into focus, consider them from this single point of view: the greatest happiness shared by the greatest number.

Dei Delitti e Delle Pene (On Crimes and Punishments) introduction (1764)

See Bentham 1; Hutcheson 1

- 2 No man can be judged a criminal until he be found guilty; nor can society take from him the public protection, until it have been proved that he has violated the conditions on which it was granted. What right, then, but that of power, can authorize the punishment of a citizen, so long as there remains any doubt of his guilt? The dilemma is frequent. Either he is guilty, or not guilty. If guilty, he should only suffer the punishment ordained by the laws, and torture becomes useless, as his confession is unnecessary. If he be not guilty, you torture the innocent; for, in the eye of the law, every man is innocent, whose crime has not been proved.

Dei Delitti e Delle Pene (On Crimes and Punishments) ch. 16 (1764)

- 3 [On the death penalty:] It seems so absurd to me that the laws, that are the expression of the public will, that hate and punish the murder, make one themselves, and, to dissuade citizens from the murder, order a public murder.

Dei Delitti e Delle Pene (On Crimes and Punishments) ch. 28 (1764)

Dave Beck

U.S. labor leader, 1894–1993

- 1 I define a recession as when your neighbor loses his job, but a depression is when you lose your own.

Quoted in Time, 22 Feb. 1954. Frequently attributed to Harry Truman, but the earliest evidence of Truman's using it is later than 1954.

Carl Becker

U.S. historian, 1873–1945

- 1 The significance of man is that he is that part of the universe that asks the question, What is the significance of man? He alone can stand apart imaginatively and, regarding himself and the universe in their eternal aspects, pronounce a judgment: The significance of man is that he is insignificant and is aware of it.

- 9 There is no use indicting words, they are no shoddier than what they peddle.
Malone Dies (1956)
- 10 Where I am, I don't know, I'll never know, in the silence you don't know, you must go on, I can't go on, I'll go on.
The Unnamable (1959)
- 11 I could not have gone through the awful wretched mess of life without having left a stain upon the silence.
Quoted in Deirdre Bair, Samuel Beckett (1978)

Grace Bedell

U.S. schoolchild, 1848–1936

- 1 I am a little girl only eleven years old, but want you should be President of the United States.

. . . I have got 4 brother's and part of them will vote for you any way and if you let your whiskers grow I will try and get the rest of them to vote for you you would look a great deal better for your face is so thin. All the ladies like whiskers and they would tease their husband's to vote for you.

Letter to Abraham Lincoln, 15 Oct. 1860

Barnard Elliott Bee, Jr.

U.S. Confederate general, 1823–1861

- 1 [Of Confederate general Thomas J. Jackson (thereafter known as "Stonewall" Jackson) at the Battle of Bull Run, 21 July 1861:] There is Jackson standing like a stone wall.
Quoted in Augusta Chronicle, 26 July 1861

Henry Ward Beecher

U.S. clergyman, 1813–1887

- 1 It usually takes a hundred years to make a law; and then, after it has done its work, it usually takes a hundred years to get rid of it.

See Remarque 1

Ludwig van Beethoven

German composer, 1770–1827

- 1 Prince, what you are, you are by accident of birth; what I am, I am of myself. There are and there will be thousands of princes. There is only one Beethoven.
Letter to Prince Karl Lichnowsky, 1806
- 2 Beethoven can write music, thank God—but he can do nothing else on earth.
Letter to Ferdinand Ries, 20 Dec. 1822
- 3 Muss es sein? Es muss sein.
Must it be? It must be.
String Quartet in F Major, Opus 135, epigraph to fourth movement (1826)
- 4 ["Last words," referring to his deafness:] I shall hear in heaven.
Quoted in N.Y. Evening Post, 8 Aug. 1845. This quotation is undoubtedly apocryphal, and there are alternative traditions with different "last words."
- 5 [Reply to Goethe when the latter complained about constant greetings from passers-by when the two of them were walking together:] Do not let that trouble your Excellency, perhaps the greetings are intended for me.
Attributed in Elliot Forbes, Thayer's Life of Beethoven
(1964)

Isabella Beeton

English writer, 1836–1865

- 1 The housekeeper must consider herself as the immediate representative of her mistress, and bring, to the management of the household, all those qualities of honesty, industry, and vigilance, in the same degree as if she were at the head of her own family. . . . Cleanliness, punctuality, order, and method, are essentials in the character of a housekeeper.

Edward Bellamy

U.S. author, 1850–1898

- 1 There is no such thing as moral responsibility for past acts, no such thing as real justice in punishing them, for the reason that human beings are not stationary existences, but changing, growing, incessantly progressive organisms, which in no two moments are the same. Therefore justice, whose only possible mode of proceeding is to punish in present time for what is done in past time, must always punish a person more or less similar to, but never identical with, the one who committed the offense, and therein must be no justice.
Dr. Heidenhoff's Process (1880)
- 2 The nation guarantees the nurture, education, and comfortable maintenance of every citizen from the cradle to the grave.

Francis Bellamy

U.S. clergyman and editor, 1856–1931

- 1 I pledge allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.
The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag (1892). Introduced at the dedication of the World's Fair Grounds in Chicago, Ill., 21 Oct. 1892, and published in The Youth's Companion, 8 Sept. 1892, with the wording above. A number of changes were made over the years, most notably the addition of “under God” in 1954. The present version reads: “I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.”

 Quoted in Daily News (Frederick, Md.), 10 Sept. 1937.
 This occurrence, discovered by Barry Popik, was earlier than the quotation’s appearance in the 1937 film Every Day’s a Holiday.
- 7 I do most of my work sitting down; that’s where I shine.
 Quoted in L.A. Times, 4 Oct. 1942.
- 8 [Suggested epitaph for a movie star:] She sleeps alone at last.
 Quoted in Edmund Fuller, 2500 Anecdotes for All
Occasions (1943)
- 9 [On his sharing a tiny office in the Metropolitan Opera House studios with Dorothy Parker:] One cubic foot less and it would be adulterous.
 Quoted in New Yorker, 5 Jan. 1946
- 10 It took me 15 years to discover I had no talent for writing, but I couldn’t give it up because by that time I was too famous.
 Quoted in Reader’s Digest, Sept. 1949. Similar jokes have been traced by Garson O’Toole as far back as Puck, Feb. 1912 (the punch line there was “By that time I had a reputation”).
- 11 [Upon withdrawing his savings from a bank that had granted him a loan:] I don’t trust a bank that would lend money to such a poor risk.

English philosopher and jurist, 1748–1832

- 1 It is the greatest happiness of the greatest number that is the measure of right and wrong.
A Fragment on Government preface (1776). Bentham said that he derived this formula from either Joseph Priestley or Cesare Beccaria; Beccaria is the more likely. If Priestley was the source, then Bentham was paraphrasing him because the phrase is not found in Priestley's writings.

- 2 I dreamt t'other night that I was a founder of a sect; of course a personage of great sanctity and importance. It was called the sect of utilitarians. Manuscript (ca. 1780). This passage, quoted in David Baumgardt, Bentham and the Ethics of Today (1952), represents the earliest known usage of the word utilitarian.

- 3 Nature has placed mankind under the governance of two sovereign masters, pain and pleasure. It is for them alone to point out what we ought to do, as well as to determine what we shall do.

An Introduction to the Principles of Morals and Legislation ch. 1 (1789)

- 4 The day may come, when the rest of the animal creation may acquire those rights which never could have been withholden from them but by the hand of tyranny. . . . The question is not, Can they reason? nor, Can they talk? but, Can they suffer?

An Introduction to the Principles of Morals and Legislation ch. 17 (1789)

- 5 The word international, it must be acknowledged, is a new one; though, it is hoped, sufficiently analogous and intelligible. It is calculated to express . . . the branch of law which goes commonly under the name of the law of nations.

An Introduction to the Principles of Morals and Legislation ch. 17 (1789)

- 6 All inequality that has no special utility to justify it is injustice.
Supply Without Burthen; or Escheat Vice Taxation (1795)

- 7 Natural rights is simple nonsense: natural and imprescriptible rights, rhetorical nonsense,—nonsense upon stilts.

Anarchical Fallacies art. 2 (1816)

- 8 The utility of all these arts and sciences,—I speak both of those of amusement and curiosity,—the value which they possess, is exactly in proportion to the pleasure they yield. . . . Prejudice apart, the game of push-pin is of equal value with the arts and sciences of music and poetry.

The Rationale of Reward bk. 3, ch. 1 (1825)

- 9 “Whatever is, is right” . . . This is called following precedents. . . . Thus it is—that, by the comparative blindness of man in each preceding period, the like blindness in each succeeding period is secured: without the trouble or need of reflection,—men, by opulence rendered indolent, and by indolence and self-indulgence doomed to ignorance, follow their leaders—as sheep follow sheep, and geese geese.

E. Clerihew Bentley

English writer, 1875–1956

- 1 Sir Christopher Wren
Said, “I am going to dine with some men.
If anybody calls
Say I am designing St. Paul’s.”
Biography for Beginners (1905)

Richard Bentley

English classical scholar, 1662–1742

- 1 [On Alexander Pope’s translation of Homer’s Iliad:] It is a pretty poem, Mr. Pope, but you must not call it Homer.
Quoted in Samuel Johnson, “The Life of Pope” (1787)

Lloyd Bentsen

U.S. politician, 1921–2006

- 1 [Responding to Dan Quayle’s claim to have “as much experience in the Congress as Jack Kennedy did when he sought the presidency”:] Senator, I served with Jack Kennedy, I knew Jack Kennedy, Jack Kennedy was a friend of mine. Senator, you are no Jack Kennedy.
Remark in vice-presidential debate, 5 Oct. 1988

Charles William de la Poer, First Baron Beresford

British naval officer and author, 1846–1919

- 1 [Telegram to Edward, Prince of Wales, responding to dinner invitation:] Very sorry can't come. Lie follows by post.
Quoted in Ralph Nevill, The World of Fashion 1837–1922 (1923)

Edgar Bergen

U.S. ventriloquist, 1903–1978

- 1 [Catchphrase of dummy “Charlie McCarthy”:] Hard work never killed anybody, but why take a chance?
Quoted in Robert Byrne, The Other 637 Best Things Anybody Ever Said (1984)
See Modern Proverbs 39

Thomas Berger

U.S. novelist, 1924–2014

- 1 Whatever else you can say about the white man, it must be admitted that you cannot get rid of him. He is in never-ending supply. There has always been only a limited supply of Human Beings.
Little Big Man ch. 13 (1964)

Henri Bergson

French philosopher, 1859–1941

- 1 L'Élan vital.

George Berkeley

Irish philosopher and bishop, 1685–1753

- 1 Upon the whole, I am inclined to think that the far greater part, if not all, of those difficulties which have hitherto amused philosophers, and blocked up the way to knowledge, are entirely owing to our selves. That we have first raised a dust and then complain we cannot see.

A Treatise Concerning the Principles of Human Knowledge introduction, sec. 3 (1710)

- 2 All the choir of heaven and furniture of earth—in a word, all those bodies which compose the mighty frame of the world—have not any subsistence without a mind . . . their being is to be perceived or known.
A Treatise Concerning the Principles of Human Knowledge pt. 1, sec. 6 (1710)
- 3 Westward the course of empire takes its way;
The first four acts already past,
A fifth shall close the drama with the day:
Time's noblest offspring is the last.
“On the Prospect of Planting Arts and Learning in America” st. 6 (1752)

David Berkowitz (Richard David Falco)

U.S. criminal, 1953–

- 1 I am the “Son of Sam.”
Letter to Joseph Borrelli, Apr. 1977

Adolf A. Berle, Jr.

U.S. diplomat, 1895–1971

- 1 The issue may well simmer down to whether the judgment of the courts of the United States, the executive arm of the United States, and, in fact though not in form, the apparent opinion of the great majority of the United States, considers essential this economic readjustment; or whether the nine old men of the Supreme Court are entitled to form their own opinion about it and to upset a movement of national scope solely on that opinion.

Irving Berlin (Israel Baline)

Russian-born U.S. songwriter, 1888–1989

- 1 Come on and hear, come on and hear,
Alexander's Ragtime Band.
“Alexander's Ragtime Band” (song) (1911)
- 2 Everybody's Doin' It Now.
Title of song (1911)

- 3 Oh! How I hate to get up in the morning,
Oh! How I'd love to remain in bed.
For the hardest blow of all
Is to hear the bugler call:
"You've got to get up,
You've got to get up,
You've got to get up this morning!"
Some day I'm going to murder the bugler,
Some day they're going to find him dead.
I'll amputate his reveille,
And step upon it heavily,
And spend the rest of my life in bed.
"Oh! How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning" (song) (1918)
- 4 A pretty girl is like a melody
That haunts you night and day.
"A Pretty Girl Is like a Melody" (song) (1919)
- 5 The Song Is Ended (But the Melody Lingers On).
Title of song (1927)
- 6 Puttin' on the Ritz.
Title of song (1928)
- 7 Heaven,
I'm in heaven,
And my heart beats so that I can hardly speak;
And I seem to find the happiness I seek
When we're out together dancing
Cheek to cheek.
"Cheek to Cheek" (song) (1935)
- 8 God bless America,
Land that I love,
Stand beside her and guide her
Thru the night with a light from above.
From the mountains to the prairies,
To the oceans white with foam,
God bless America,
My home sweet home.
"God Bless America" (song) (1939)
See Peeke 1
- 9 This is the army, Mr. Jones,
No private rooms or telephones,
You had your breakfast in bed before,
But you won't have it there anymore.
"This Is the Army, Mr. Jones" (song) (1942)
- 10 I'm dreaming of a white Christmas
Just like the ones I used to know.
- "White Christmas" (song) (1942)
- 11 I'm dreaming of a white Christmas
With ev'ry Christmas card I write.
"May your days be merry and bright,
And may all your Christmases be white."
"White Christmas" (song) (1942)
- 12 Anything you can do, I can do better,
I can do anything better than you.
"Anything You Can Do" (song) (1946)
- 13 Got no diamond, got no pearl,
Still I think I'm a lucky girl,
I got the sun in the morning
And the moon at night.
"I Got the Sun in the Morning" (song) (1946)
- 14 There's no bus'ness like show bus'ness,
Like no bus'ness I know.
Ev'rything about it is appealing,
Ev'rything the traffic will allow.
Nowhere could you get that happy feeling
When you are stealing that extra bow.
"There's No Business like Show Business" (song)
(1946)
- 15 Even with a turkey that you know will fold,
You may be stranded out in the cold,
Still you wouldn't change it for a sack of gold.
Let's go on with the show.
"There's No Business like Show Business" (song)
(1946)
- 16 They say that falling in love is wonderful.
It's wonderful, so they say.
And with a moon up above,
It's wonderful,
It's wonderful,
So they tell me.
"They Say It's Wonderful" (song) (1946)

Isaiah Berlin

Latvian-born English philosopher, 1909–1997

- 1 There exists a great chasm between those,
on one side, who relate everything to a single central vision . . . and, on the other side, those who pursue many ends, often unrelated and even contradictory. . . . The first kind of intellectual and artistic personality belongs to the hedgehogs, the second to the foxes.

The Hedgehog and the Fox sec. 1 (1953)
See Archilochus 1

Hector Berlioz

French composer, 1803–1869

- 1 Time is a great teacher, they say; unfortunately it is an inhuman teacher that kills its pupils.
Letter to Jules-Henri Vernoy de Saint-Georges, 27 Nov. 1856

Georges Bernanos

French writer, 1888–1948

- 1 Hell, madam, is to love no more.
Journal d'un Curé de Campagne ch. 2 (1936)

Bernard of Chartres

French philosopher, fl. 1100

- 1 We are like dwarfs on the shoulders of giants, so that we can see more than they, and things at a greater distance, not by virtue of any sharpness of sight on our part, or any physical distinction, but because we are carried high and raised up by their giant size.
Quoted in John of Salisbury, The Metalogicon (1159)
See Robert Burton 1; Coleridge 30; Isaac Newton 1

St. Bernard of Clairvaux

French ecclesiastic, 1090–1153

- 1 You will find something more in woods than in books. Trees and stones will teach you that which you can never learn from masters.
Epistles no. 106
- 2 Hell is full of good intentions or desires.
Attributed in St. Francis de Sales, Letter 74
See Proverbs 255

Edward Bernays

Austrian public relations pioneer, 1891–1995

- 1 The engineering of consent is the very essence of the democratic process, the freedom to persuade and suggest.
Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, Mar. 1947

Eric Berne

U.S. psychiatrist, 1910–1970

- 1 Games People Play: The Psychology of Human Relationships.
Title of book (1964)

Tim Berners-Lee

English computer scientist, 1955–

- 1 WorldWideWeb: Proposal for a HyperText Project.
Title of electronic document (1990). Coauthored with Robert A. Cailliau.

Bert Berns

U.S. songwriter and record producer, 1929–1967

- 1 Take another little piece of my heart now baby
You know you got it if it makes you feel good.
“Piece of My Heart” (song) (1967). Cowritten with Jerry Ragovoy.

Yogi Berra

U.S. baseball player and sage, 1925–2015

- 1 [Referring to rain that had just begun:] Where is that coming from?
Yogi: It Ain't Over (1989)
- 2 [While driving:] We're lost, but we're making good time!
The Yogi Book (1998). This anecdote, worded slightly differently, appeared in South Illinoisan (Carbondale, Ill.), 28 Oct. 1963. Similar jokes, not attributed to Berra, can be found as early as Collier's Weekly, Oct. 1947.
- 3 You've got to be careful if you don't know where you're going 'cause you might not get there!
The Yogi Book (1998)
- 4 How can a guy hit and think at the same time?
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 12 June 1947

- 5 I wanna thank everyone for making this night necessary.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 12 June 1947
- 6 It don't matter if you're ugly in this racket. All you have to do is hit the ball and I never saw anybody hit one with his face.
Quoted in Milton Gross, Yankee Doodles (1948)
- 7 If they don't want to come out [to the ballpark], nobody's gonna stop 'em.
Quoted in New Orleans Times-Picayune, 13 Sept. 1962. Sol Hurok was quoted as stating the same thing about filmgoers, in Portland Oregonian, 16 Aug. 1952.
- 8 It gets late early.
Quoted in Lexington (Ky.) Leader, 4 Oct. 1963. Berra says in The Yogi Book (1998) that he was referring here to the difficulty of playing left field in Yankee Stadium in late autumn when "the shadows would creep up on you and you had a tough time seeing the ball off the bat."
- 9 You can observe a lot by watchin'.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 25 Oct. 1963
- 10 [When asked for the time:] You mean right now?
Quoted in Fresno Bee, 24 Nov. 1970
- 11 [When asked if he wanted his pizza pie sliced into four or eight slices:] Cut mine in four. I don't think I can eat eight.
Quoted in Fresno Bee, 24 Nov. 1970. A very similar comment by Milwaukee Braves pitcher Dan Osinski (with six slices instead of four) was quoted in the High Point (N.C.) Enterprise, 8 Aug. 1965.
- 12 [Explaining why it is not necessary to have expensive luggage:] You only use it for traveling.
Quoted in Phil Pepe, The Wit and Wisdom of Yogi Berra (1974)
- 13 Slump? I ain't in no slump. I just ain't hitting.
Quoted in Pete Rose, Charlie Hustle (1975)
- 14 It ain't over 'til it's over.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 26 Sept. 1977. Berra notes in The Yogi Book (1998): "That was my answer to a reporter when I was managing the New York Mets in July 1973. We were about nine games out of first place. We went on to win the division." Berra was quoted using the similar expression "You're not out of it until you're out of it" in N.Y. Times, 30 June 1974. "A ball game's never over until it's over" appeared in The Delta of Sigma Nu Fraternity (1921), quoting the Indianapolis News.
See Ralph Carpenter 1
- 15 It's déjà vu all over again.
Quoted in Forbes, 15 July 1985. Berra describes this as "My comment after Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris hit back-to-back home runs for the umpteenth time" (The Yogi Book [1998]). Jim Prior wrote "It's Déjà vu again" in a humorous poem in the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Evening Independent, 22 Sept. 1962, without mentioning Berra but in a context relating to home runs.
- 16 I really didn't say everything I said.
Quoted in Sports Illustrated, 17 Mar. 1986
- 17 [Giving driving directions to Joe Garagiola:] If you come to a fork in the road, take it.
Quoted in Wall Street Journal, 11 May 1987
- 18 [Watching a Steve McQueen movie on television:] He made that picture before he died.
Quoted in Phil Pepe, The Wit and Wisdom of Yogi Berra, 2nd ed. (1988)

Daniel Berrigan

U.S. priest and political activist, 1921–2016

- 1 Our apologies, good friends, for the fracture of good order, the burning of paper instead of children.
Night Flight to Hanoi preface (1968)

Chuck Berry

U.S. rock singer, 1926–2017

- 1 Roll over Beethoven
And tell Tchaikovsky the news.
"Roll Over, Beethoven" (song) (1956)
- 2 Just let me hear some of that Rock and Roll Music,
Any old way you choose it . . .
It's got to be Rock and Roll Music,
If you want to dance with me.
"Rock and Roll Music" (song) (1957)
- 3 Hail, hail, rock 'n' roll,
Deliver me from the days of old.
"School Days" (song) (1957)
- 4 Go Johnny go!
"Johnny B. Goode" (song) (1958)
- 5 He never learned to read or write so well
But he could play a guitar just like ringing a bell.
"Johnny B. Goode" (song) (1958)

Richard Berry

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1935–1997

- 1 Louie, Louie,
Me gotta go. . . .
Three nights and days we sailed the sea;
Me think of girl constantly.
On the ship, I dream she there;
I smell the rose in her hair.
“Louie, Louie” (song) (1955). These are the true lyrics for the song. A raunchy version (“Each night at ten, I lay her again; I fuck my girl all kinds of ways”) became world-famous after the Kingsmen’s poorly enunciated 1963 cover of the song lent itself to creative interpretation.

John Berryman

U.S. poet, 1914–1972

- 1 We must travel in the direction of our fear.
“A Point of Age” l. 42 (1948)
- 2 Life, friends, is boring. We must not say so.
77 Dream Songs no. 14, l. 1 (1964)

Pierre Berton

Canadian writer and journalist, 1920–2004

- 1 A Canadian is somebody who knows how to make love in a canoe.
Quoted in The Canadian, 22 Dec. 1973

Bruce Bethke

U.S. science fiction writer, 1955–

- 1 Cyberpunk.
Title of story, Amazing Stories, Nov. 1983. Coinage of the term cyberpunk.

Theobald von Bethmann-Hollweg

German chancellor, 1856–1921

- 1 [Remark to Edward Goschen, Berlin, 4 Aug. 1914:]
Just for a word “neutrality”—a word which in war time has so often been disregarded—just for a scrap of paper, Great Britain was going to make war on a kindred nation who desired nothing better than to be friends with her.
Attributed in Edward Goschen, Report, 18 Aug. 1914. The date of Goschen’s report, which apparently originally read “August 18th,” was altered to read “August 6th.” It is not clear what Bethmann-Hollweg’s true exact words were, nor even in what language they were spoken (English, German, or French?). Goschen’s recollections may have been influenced by Victorien Sardou’s 1860 play, Les Pattes de Mouche, translated into English as A Scrap of Paper; Goschen had appeared in an amateur production of the Sardou play.

Mary McLeod Bethune

U.S. educator and administrator, 1875–1955

- 1 [Motto of National Council of Negro Women:]
Leave No One Behind.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 17 Nov. 1985

John Betjeman

English poet, 1906–1984

- 1 He rose, and he put down The Yellow Book.
He staggered—and, terrible-eyed,
He brushed past the palms on the staircase
And was helped to a hansom outside.
“The Arrest of Oscar Wilde at the Cadogan Hotel”
l. 33 (1937)
- 2 The sort of girl I like to see
Smiles down from her great height at me.
“The Olympic Girl” l. 1 (1954)
- 3 Oh! Would I were her racket pressed
With hard excitement to her breast.
“The Olympic Girl” l. 13 (1954)

Aneurin Bevan

British politician, 1897–1960

- 1 How can wealth persuade poverty to use its political freedom to keep wealth in power?
Here lies the whole art of Conservative politics in the twentieth century.
In Place of Fear ch. 1 (1952)
- 2 We know what happens to people who stay in the middle of the road. They get run over.
Quoted in Observer, 9 Dec. 1953
See Hightower 2

Hugh M. Beville, Jr.

U.S. broadcasting executive, 1908–1988

- 1 In advertising there is a saying that if you can keep your head while all those around you are losing theirs—then you just don’t understand the problem.
National Broadcasting Corporation brochure, 18 Nov. 1954. A similar statement appeared in the Rhinebeck (N.Y.) Gazette, 20 Sept. 1935.
See Kipling 31

Beyoncé (Beyoncé Giselle Knowles)

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1981–

- 1 If you liked it, then you should have put a ring on it.

“Single Ladies (Put a Ring on It)” (song) (2008).
Cowritten with Terius Nash, Thaddis Harrell, and Christopher Stewart.

Bhagavadgita

Hindu poem, ca. 250 B.C.–ca. A.D. 250

- 1 If any man thinks he slays, and if another thinks he is slain, neither knows the ways of truth. The Eternal in man cannot kill: the Eternal in man cannot die. He is never born, and he never dies. He is in Eternity, he is for evermore. Never-born and eternal, beyond times gone or to come, he does not die when the body dies.
Bhagavadgita ch. 2, v. 19
- 2 If the radiance of a thousand suns were to burst forth at once in the sky, that would be like the splendor of the Mighty One.
Bhagavadgita ch. 11, v. 12
See Oppenheimer 3
- 3 I [Krishna] am mighty, world-destroying Time.
Bhagavadgita ch. 11, v. 32
See Oppenheimer 3
- 4 Only by love can men see me, and know me,
and come unto me.
Bhagavadgita ch. 11, v. 54

Bible

Wording and chapter and verse numbers are from the Authorized (King James) Version (1611). Much of the language of the King James Bible, particularly the New Testament, derives from the translation by William Tyndale, printed between 1525 and 1535.

Genesis

- 1 In the beginning God created the heaven and
the earth.
And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.
And God said, Let there be light: and there was light.
Genesis 1:1–3
- 2 And the evening and the morning were the first day.
Genesis 1:5
- 3 And God saw that it was good.
Genesis 1:10
- 4 And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness.
Genesis 1:26
- 5 Male and female created he them.
Genesis 1:27
- 6 Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon
the earth.
Genesis 1:28
See Woody Allen 1
- 7 And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden.
Genesis 2:8
- 8 And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.
Genesis 2:9
- 9 But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die.
Genesis 2:17
- 10 It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him.
Genesis 2:18
- 11 And the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman.
Genesis 2:22
- 12 This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man.
Genesis 2:23
- 13 Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh.
Genesis 2:24

- 14 And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.
Genesis 2:25
- 15 Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field.
Genesis 3:1
- 16 Your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.
Genesis 3:5
- 17 And they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons.
And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day.
Genesis 3:7-8
- 18 The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.
Genesis 3:12
- 19 The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.
Genesis 3:13
- 20 In sorrow thou shalt bring forth children.
Genesis 3:16
- 21 In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread.
Genesis 3:19
- 22 For dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return.
Genesis 3:19
See Longfellow 1
- 23 Am I my brother's keeper?
Genesis 4:9
- 24 And the Lord set a mark upon Cain.
Genesis 4:15
- 25 And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of Eden.
Genesis 4:16
- 26 There were giants in the earth in those days.
Genesis 6:4

I Samuel 17:37

85 He fell likewise upon his sword.

I Samuel 31:5

II Samuel

86 The beauty of Israel is slain upon thy high places: how are the mighty fallen!

II Samuel 1:19

87 Saul and Jonathan were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were not divided: they were swifter than eagles, they were stronger than lions.

II Samuel 1:23

88 Thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women.

II Samuel 1:26

89 Would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!

II Samuel 18:33

I Kings

90 Then will I cut off Israel out of the land which I have given them; and this house, which I have hallowed for my name, will I cast out of my sight; and Israel shall be a proverb and a byword among all people.

I Kings 9:7

91 The half was not told me: thy wisdom and prosperity exceedeth the fame which I heard.
I Kings 10:7

92 How long halt ye between two opinions?
I Kings 18:21

93 He girded up his loins.
I Kings 18:46

94 But the Lord was not in the wind: and after the wind an earthquake; but the Lord was not in the earthquake:
And after the earthquake a fire: but the Lord was not in the fire: and after the fire a still small voice.
I Kings 19:11-12

95 Elijah passed by him, and cast his mantle upon him.
I Kings 19:19

Job

96 And I only am escaped alone to tell thee.
Job 1:15

97 Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither: the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.
Job 1:21

98 Let the day perish wherein I was born.
Job 3:3

99 Miserable comforters are ye all.
Job 16:2

103 I am a brother to dragons, and a companion to owls.
Job 30:29

104 Behold now behemoth, which I made with thee; he eateth grass as an ox.
Job 40:15

105 Canst thou draw out leviathan with an hook?
Job 41:1

Psalms

106 Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel.
Psalms 2:9

107 Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast thou ordained strength, because of thine enemies, that thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger.

When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained;

What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him? For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels.

Psalms 8:2-5

108 The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.
Psalms 23:1-3

109 Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Psalms 23:4-6
See Coolio 1

110 The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein.

For he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods.

Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place?

He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully.

Psalms 24:1-4

111 Into thine hand I commend my spirit.

Psalms 31:5
See Bible 307

- 112 The meek shall inherit the earth.

- 113 God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.
 Psalms 46:1
- 114 They are like the deaf adder that stoppeth her ear;
 Which will not hearken to the voice of charmers, charming never so wisely.
 Psalms 58:4–5
See John Adams 3
- 115 A day in thy courts is better than a thousand. I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness.
 Psalms 84:10
See Barkley 1
- 116 For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night.
 Psalms 90:4
- 117 The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away.
 Psalms 90:10
- 118 They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters.
 Psalms 107:23
- 119 The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.
 Psalms 111:10
- 120 Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it: except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain.
 Psalms 127:1
- 121 Out of the depths have I cried unto thee, O Lord.
 Psalms 130:1. Vulgate translation: De profundis clamavi ad te, Domine.
- 122 By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion.
 Psalms 137:1
See Smart 1
- 123 If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning.

If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth.

Proverbs 31:10
- Ecclesiastes
- 139 Vanity of vanities; all is vanity.
Ecclesiastes 1:2
- 140 One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth abideth for ever.
The sun also ariseth.
Ecclesiastes 1:4-5
- 141 The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun.
Ecclesiastes 1:9. Often quoted as "There's nothing new under the sun."
- 142 He that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow.
Ecclesiastes 1:18
- 143 To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven:
A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted.
Ecclesiastes 3:1-2
See Pete Seeger 3
- 144 A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up;
A time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance.
Ecclesiastes 3:3-4
- 145 A time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;
A time to get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away;
A time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak;
A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace.
Ecclesiastes 3:5-8
- 146 A threefold cord is not quickly broken.
Ecclesiastes 4:12
- 147 A man hath no better thing under the sun,
than to eat, and to drink, and to be merry.
Ecclesiastes 8:15
See Bible 170
- 148 Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave,
whither thou goest.
Ecclesiastes 9:10
- 149 I returned, and saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favor to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all.
Ecclesiastes 9:11
See Keough 1
- 150 Wine maketh merry: but money answereth all things.
Ecclesiastes 10:19
- 151 Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days.
Ecclesiastes 11:1
- 152 And desire shall fail: because man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets:
Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern.
Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it.
Ecclesiastes 12:5-7
- 153 Of making many books there is no end; and much study is a weariness of the flesh.
Ecclesiastes 12:12
- 154 Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man.

Daniel

189 His legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay.

Daniel 2:33

190 And this is the writing that was written,

MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN.

This is the interpretation of the thing: MENE; God hath numbered thy kingdom, and finished it.

TEKEL; Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting.

PERES; Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians.

Daniel 5:25–28

191 Now, O king, establish the decree, and sign the writing, that it be not changed, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not.

- 210 And if thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.
And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off.
Matthew 5:29-30
- 211 Resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also.
Matthew 5:39
- 212 Whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain.
Matthew 5:41
- 213 He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.
Matthew 5:45
See Lord Bowen 2
- 214 When thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth.
Matthew 6:3
- 215 After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name.
Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread.
And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.
And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.
Matthew 6:9-13
See Book of Common Prayer 12; Missal 5

- 216 Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven.
Matthew 6:19–20
- 217 Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.
Matthew 6:21
- 218 No man can serve two masters. . . . Ye cannot serve God and mammon.
Matthew 6:24
- 219 Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.
Matthew 6:28–29
- 220 Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.
Matthew 6:34
- 221 Judge not, that ye be not judged.
Matthew 7:1
See Lincoln 49
- 222 Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?
Matthew 7:3
- 223 Neither cast ye your pearls before swine.
Matthew 7:6
- 224 Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.
Matthew 7:7
- 225 Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.
Matthew 7:12
See Aristotle 12; Chesterfield 4; Confucius 9; Hillel 2
- 226 Wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be that go in thereat.
Matthew 7:13
- 227 Strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.
Matthew 7:14
- 228 Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.
Matthew 7:15
- 229 By their fruits ye shall know them.
Matthew 7:20
- 230 A foolish man, which built his house upon the sand.
Matthew 7:26
- 231 But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.
Matthew 8:12
- 232 The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

- 239 Some seeds fell by the wayside.
Matthew 13:4
- 240 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchant man, seeking goodly pearls: Who, when he had found one pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had, and bought it.
Matthew 13:45–46
- 241 A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country, and in his own house.
Matthew 13:57

- 242 Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid.
Matthew 14:27
- 243 O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?
Matthew 14:31
- 244 If the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch.
Matthew 15:14
- 245 Can ye not discern the signs of the times?
Matthew 16:3
- 246 Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.
And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven.
Matthew 16:18-19
- 247 Get thee behind me, Satan.
Matthew 16:23
- 248 Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.

284 For he hath regarded the low estate of his handmaiden: for, behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed.

Luke 1:48

285 He hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts.

He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree.

Luke 1:51–52

286 He hath filled the hungry with good things; and the rich he hath sent empty away.

Luke 1:53

287 She brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

Luke 2:7

288 And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

Luke 2:8–9

289 And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord.

- 351 For the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof.
I Corinthians 10:26
- 352 If a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her.
I Corinthians 11:15
- 353 Though I have all faith; so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.
And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.
Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up.
I Corinthians 13:2-4
- 354 Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.
Charity never faileth.
I Corinthians 13:7-8
- 355 When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.
For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known.
And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.
I Corinthians 13:11-13
- 356 And last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time.
For I am the least of the apostles, that am not meet to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God.
But by the grace of God I am what I am.
I Corinthians 15:8-10
- 357 The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.
I Corinthians 15:26

- 358 In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

- 366 Be ye angry and sin not: let not the sun go down upon your wrath.
Ephesians 4:26
- 367 See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise,
Redeeming the time, because the days are evil.
Ephesians 5:15-16
- 368 For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.
Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.
Ephesians 6:12-13

Revelation 2:10
- 392 Behold a pale horse: and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him.
Revelation 6:8
- 393 These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.
Revelation 7:14
- 394 God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.
Revelation 7:17
- 395 And when he had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour.
Revelation 8:1
- 396 And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.
Revelation 13:17
- 397 Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is Six hundred threescore and six.
Revelation 13:18
- 398 And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon.
Revelation 16:16
- 399 And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away.
And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new.

- 2 Aborigines, n. Persons of little worth found cumbering the soil of a newly discovered country. They soon cease to cumber; they fertilize.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 3 Accomplice, n. One associated with another in a crime, having guilty knowledge and complicity, as an attorney who defends a criminal, knowing him guilty. This view of the attorney's position in the matter has not hitherto commanded the assent of attorneys, no one having offered them a fee for assenting.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)

- 4 Acquaintance, n. A person whom we know well enough to borrow from, but not well enough to lend to. A degree of friendship called slight when its object is poor or obscure, and “intimate” when he is rich or famous.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 5 Adherent, n. A follower who has not yet obtained all that he expects to get.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)

The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 9 Alliance, n. In international politics, the union of two thieves who have their hands so deeply inserted in each other’s pocket that they cannot separately plunder a third.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 10 Alone, adj. In bad company.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 11 Ambition, n. An overmastering desire to be vilified by enemies while living and made ridiculous by friends when dead.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 12 Applause, n. The echo of a platitude.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 13 Architect, n. One who drafts a plan of your house, and plans a draft of your money.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 14 Asperse, v.t. Maliciously to ascribe to another vicious actions which one has not had the temptation and opportunity to commit.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 15 Auctioneer, n. The man who proclaims with a hammer that he has picked a pocket with his tongue.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 16 Back, n. That part of your friend which it is your privilege to contemplate in your adversity.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 17 Befriend, v.t. To make an ingrate.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 18 Belladonna, n. In Italian a beautiful lady; in English a deadly poison. A striking example of the essential identity of the two tongues.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)
- 19 Bore, n. A person who talks when you wish him to listen.
The Cynic’s Word Book (1906)

The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 25 Conservative, n. A statesman who is enamored of existing evils, as distinguished from the Liberal, who wishes to replace them with others.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 26 Consolation, n. The knowledge that a better man is more unfortunate than yourself.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 27 Consul, v.t. In American politics, a person who having failed to secure an office from the people is given one by the Administration on condition that he leave the country.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 28 Consult, v. To seek another's approval of a course already decided on.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 29 Corrupt, adj. In politics, holding an office of trust or profit.
Wasp (San Francisco), 7 Oct. 1881
- 30 Cynic, n. A blackguard whose faulty vision sees things as they are, not as they ought to be. Hence the custom among the Scythians of plucking out a cynic's eyes to improve his vision.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 31 Dawn, n. The time when men of reason go to bed. Certain old men prefer to rise at about that time, taking a cold bath and a long walk, with an empty stomach, and otherwise mortifying the flesh. They then point with pride to these practices as the cause of their sturdy health and ripe years; the truth being that they are hearty and old, not because of their habits, but in spite of them. The reason we find only robust persons doing this thing is that it has killed all the others who have tried it.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 32 Deliberation, n. The act of examining one's bread to determine which side it is buttered on.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 33 Demagogue, n. A political opponent.
Wasp (San Francisco), 20 Jan. 1882
- 34 Dictionary, n. A malevolent literary device for cramping the growth of language and making it hard and inelastic. This dictionary, however, is a most useful work.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 35 Diplomacy, n. The patriotic art of lying for one's country.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 36 Distress, n. A disease incurred by exposure to the prosperity of a friend.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 37 Effect, n. The second of two phenomena which always occur together in the same order. The first, called a Cause, is said to generate the other—which is no more sensible than it would be for one who has never seen a dog except in the pursuit of a rabbit to declare the rabbit the cause of the dog.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 38 Egotist, n. A person of low taste, more interested in himself than in me.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 39 Elysium, n. An imaginary delightful country which the ancients foolishly believed to be inhabited by the spirits of the good. This ridiculous and mischievous fable was swept off the face of the earth by the early Christians—may their souls be happy in Heaven!
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 40 Equal, adj. As bad as something else.
Wasp (San Francisco), 24 May 1884
- 41 Err, v.i. To believe or act in a way contrary to my beliefs and actions.
Wasp (San Francisco), 24 May 1884
- 42 Eucharist, n. A sacred feast of the religious sect of Theophagi. A dispute once unhappily arose among the members of this sect as to what it was that they ate. In this controversy some five hundred thousand have already been slain, and the question is still unsettled.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 43 Expediency, n. The father of all the virtues.
Wasp (San Francisco), 7 June 1884

- 44 Faith, n. Belief without evidence in what is told by one who speaks without knowledge, of things without parallel.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 45 Fidelity, n. A virtue peculiar to those who are about to be betrayed.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 46 Forbidden, pp. Invested with a new and irresistible charm.
Wasp (San Francisco), 13 Dec. 1884
- 47 Forefinger, n. The finger commonly used in pointing out two malefactors.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 48 Friendless, n. Having no favors to bestow. Destitute of fortune. Addicted to utterance of truth and common sense.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 49 Future, n. That period of time in which our affairs prosper, our friends are true, and our happiness is assured.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 50 Generous, adj. Originally this word meant noble by birth and was rightly applied to a great multitude of persons. It now means noble by nature, and is taking a bit of a rest.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 51 Genuine, adj. Real, veritable, as, A genuine counterfeit, Genuine hypocrisy, etc.
Wasp (San Francisco), 28 Feb. 1885
- 52 Gold, n. A yellow metal greatly prized for its convenience in the various kinds of robbery known as trade. The word was formerly spelled "God"—the l was inserted to distinguish it from the name of another and inferior deity.
Wasp (San Francisco), 7 May 1885
- 53 Gratitude, n. A sentiment lying midway between a benefit received and a benefit expected.
Wasp (San Francisco), 28 May 1885
- 54 Gum, n. A substance greatly used by young women in place of a contented spirit and religious consolation.
Wasp (San Francisco), 4 Apr. 1885
- 55 Habit, n. A shackle for the free.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 56 Happiness, n. An agreeable sensation arising from contemplating the misery of another.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 57 Harmonists, n. A sect of Protestants, now extinct, who came from Europe in the beginning of the last century and were distinguished for the bitterness of their internal controversies and dissensions.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 58 Hatred, n. A sentiment appropriate to the occasion of another's success or superiority.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 59 Haughty, adj. Proud and disdainful, like a waiter.
Wasp (San Francisco), 25 Apr. 1885
- 60 Heaven, n. A place where the wicked cease from troubling you with talk of their personal affairs, and the good listen with attention while you expound your own.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 61 Historian, n. A broad-gauge gossip.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 62 Homesick, adj. Dead broke abroad.
Wasp (San Francisco), 18 July 1885
- 63 Idolator, n. One who professes a religion which we do not believe, with a symbolism different from our own. A person who thinks more of an image on a pedestal than of an image on a coin.
Wasp (San Francisco), 29 Aug. 1885
- 64 Immigrant, n. An unenlightened person who thinks one country better than another.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 65 Impunity, n. Wealth.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 66 Inhumanity, n. One of the signal and characteristic qualities of humanity.
Wasp (San Francisco), 17 Oct. 1885
- 67 Interpreter, n. One who enables two persons of different languages to understand each other by repeating to each what it would have been to the interpreter's advantage for the other to have said.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)

- 68 Joy, n. An emotion variously excited, but in its highest degree arising from the contemplation of grief in another.
Wasp (San Francisco), 9 Jan. 1886
- 69 Labor, n. One of the processes by which A acquires property for B.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 70 Lawful, adj. Compatible with the will of a judge having jurisdiction.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 71 Legislator, n. A person who goes to the capital of his country to increase his own; one who makes laws and money.
Wasp (San Francisco), 19 June 1886
- 72 Lexicographer, n. A pestilent fellow who, under the pretense of recording some particular stage in the development of a language, does what he can to arrest its growth, stiffen its flexibility, and mechanize its methods. For your lexicographer, having written his dictionary, comes to be considered "as one having authority," whereas his function is only to make a record, not to give a law. The natural servility of the human understanding having invested him with judicial power, surrenders its right of reason and submits itself to a chronicle as if it were a statute.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 73 Liar, n. A lawyer with a roving commission.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 74 Literally, adv. Figuratively, as: "The pond was literally full of fish"; "The ground was literally alive with snakes," etc.
San Francisco Examiner, 4 Sept. 1887
- 75 Litigant, n. A person about to give up his skin for the hope of retaining his bones.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 76 Loquacity, n. A disorder which renders the sufferer unable to curb his tongue when you wish to talk.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 77 Mad, adj. Affected with a high degree of intellectual independence; not conforming to standards of thought, speech, and action derived by the conformants from study of themselves; at odds with the majority; in short, unusual.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 78 Mammon, n. The god of the world's leading religion. His chief temple is in the holy city of New York.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 79 Manna, n. A food miraculously given to the Israelites in the wilderness. When it was no longer supplied to them they settled down and tilled the soil, fertilizing it, as a rule, with the bodies of the original occupants.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 80 Marriage, n. The state or condition of a community consisting of a master, a mistress, and two slaves, making in all, two.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 81 Mythology, n. The body of a primitive people's beliefs concerning its origin, early history, heroes, deities, and so forth, as distinguished from the true accounts which it invents later.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 82 Oath, n. In law, a solemn appeal to the Deity, made binding upon the conscience by a penalty for perjury.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 83 Occident, n. The part of the world lying west (or east) of the Orient. It is largely inhabited by Christians, a powerful subtribe of the Hypocrites, whose principal industries are murder and cheating, which they are pleased to call "war" and "commerce."
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 84 Ocean, n. A body of water occupying about two-thirds of a world made for man—who has no gills.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 85 Opera, n. A play representing life in another world, whose inhabitants have no speech but song, no motions but gestures, and no postures but attitudes. All acting is simulation, and the word simulation is from simia, an ape; but in opera the actor takes for his model Simia audibilis (or Pithecantropos stentor)—the ape that howls.

- The actor apes a man—at least in shape;
The opera performer apes an ape.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 86 Orphan, n. A living person whom death has deprived of the power of filial ingratitude.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 87 Outdo, v.t. To make an enemy.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 88 Pain, n. An uncomfortable frame of mind that may have a physical basis in something that is being done to the body, or may be purely mental, caused by the good fortune of another.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 89 Palace, n. A fine and costly residence, particularly that of a great official. The residence of a high dignitary of the Christian Church is called a palace; that of the Founder of his religion was known as a field, or wayside. There is progress.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 90 Palmistry, n. The 947th method (according to Mimbleshaw's classification) of obtaining money by false pretences. It consists in "reading character" in the wrinkles made by closing the hand. The pretence is not altogether false; character can really be read very accurately in this way, for the wrinkles in every hand submitted plainly spell the word "dupe." The imposture consists in not reading it aloud.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 91 Past, n. That part of Eternity with some small fraction of which we have a slight and regrettable acquaintance. A moving line called the Present parts it from an imaginary period known as the Future. These two grand divisions of Eternity, of which the one is continually effacing the other, are entirely unlike. The one is dark with sorrow and disappointment, the other bright with prosperity and joy. . . . Yet the Past is the Future of yesterday, the Future is the Past of to-morrow. They are one—the knowledge and the dream.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 92 Patience, n. A minor form of despair, disguised as a virtue.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 93 Patriot, n. One to whom the interests of a part seem superior to those of the whole. The dupe of statesmen and the tool of conquerors.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 94 Patriotism, n. . . . In Dr. Johnson's famous dictionary patriotism is defined as the last resort of a scoundrel. With all due respect to an enlightened but inferior lexicographer I beg to submit that it is the first.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
See Samuel Johnson 80
- 95 Peace, n. In international affairs, a period of cheating between two periods of fighting.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 96 Penitent, adj. Undergoing or awaiting punishment.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 97 Piety, n. Reverence for the Supreme Being, based on His supposed resemblance to man.
The pig is taught by sermons and epistles
To think the God of Swine has snouts and bristles.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 98 Pillage, v. To carry on business candidly.
New York American, 22 Feb. 1906
- 99 Plagiarize, v. To take the thought or style of another writer whom one has never, never read.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 100 Plan, v.t. To bother about the best method of accomplishing an accidental result.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 101 Platonic, adj. . . . Platonic Love is a fool's name for the affection between a disability and a frost.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 102 Please, v. To lay the foundation for a superstructure of imposition.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 103 Plebiscite, n. A popular vote to ascertain the will of the sovereign.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)

- 104 Plutocracy, n. A republican form of government deriving its powers from the conceit of the governed—in thinking they govern.
New York American, 27 Jan. 1905
- 105 Polite, adj. Skilled in the art and practice of dissimulation.
New York American, 16 Mar. 1906
- 106 Politician, n. An eel in the fundamental mud upon which the superstructure of organized society is reared. When he wriggles he mistakes the agitation of his tail for the trembling of the edifice. As compared with the statesman, he suffers the disadvantage of being alive.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
See Thomas B. Reed 1; Truman 10
- 107 Politics, n. A strife of interests masquerading as a contest of principles. The conduct of public affairs for private advantage.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 108 Positive, adj. Mistaken at the top of one's voice.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 109 Pray, v. To ask that the laws of the universe be annulled in behalf of a single petitioner confessedly unworthy.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 110 Predict, v.t. To relate an event that has not occurred, is not occurring, and will not occur.
New York American, 30 May 1906
- 111 Preference, n. A sentiment, or frame of mind, induced by the erroneous belief that one thing is better than another.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 112 Present, n. Something given in expectation of something better. To-day's payment for tomorrow's service.
New York American, 30 May 1906
- 113 Present, n. That part of eternity dividing the domain of disappointment from the realm of hope.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 114 President, n. The leading figure in a small group of men of whom—and of whom only—it is positively known that immense numbers of their countrymen did not want any of them for President.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911). Bierce had earlier written in the San Francisco Examiner, 3 Nov. 1889 (addressing the wife of Benjamin Harrison): "With a single exception, your husband is the only man in the United States of whom it is certainly known that several millions of his fellow citizens did not wish him to be President this time."
- 115 Pretty, adj. Vain, conceited, as "a pretty girl." Tiresome, as "a pretty picture."
New York American, 14 June 1906
- 116 Prevaricator, n. A liar in the caterpillar state.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 117 Projectile, n. The final arbiter in international disputes. Formerly these disputes were settled by physical contact of the disputants, with such simple arguments as the rudimentary logic of the times could supply—the sword, the spear, and so forth. With the growth of prudence in military affairs the projectile came more and more into favor, and is now held in high esteem by the most courageous. Its capital defect is that it requires personal attendance at the point of propulsion.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 118 Prophecy, n. The art and practice of selling one's credibility for future delivery.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 119 Public, n. The negligible factor in problems of legislation.
New York American, 28 June 1906
- 120 Quotation, n. The act of repeating erroneously the words of another. The words erroneously repeated.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 121 Rash, adj. Insensible to the value of our advice.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 122 Really, adv. Apparently.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 123 Rebel, n. A proponent of a new misrule who has failed to establish it.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 124 Recount, n. In American politics, another throw of the dice, accorded to the player against whom they are loaded.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)

- 125 Religion, n. A daughter of Hope and Fear, explaining to Ignorance the nature of the Unknowable.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 126 Resident, adj. Unable to leave.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 127 Resolute, adj. Obstinate in a course that we approve.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 128 Responsibility, n. A detachable burden easily shifted to the shoulders of God, Fate, Fortune, Luck, or one's neighbor. In the days of astrology it was customary to unload it upon a star.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 129 Revolution, n. In politics, an abrupt change in the form of misgovernment. Specifically, in American history, the substitution of the rule of an Administration for that of a Ministry, whereby the welfare and happiness of the people were advanced a full half-inch.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 130 Robber, n. A candid man of affairs.
It is related of Voltaire that one night he and some traveling companions lodged at a wayside inn. The surroundings were suggestive, and after supper they agreed to tell robber stories in turn. When Voltaire's turn came he said: "Once there was a Farmer-General of the Revenues." Saying nothing more, he was encouraged to continue. "That," he said, "is the story."
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 131 Saint, n. A dead sinner revised and edited.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 132 Scriptures, n. The sacred books of our holy religion, as distinguished from the false and profane writings on which all other faiths are based.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 133 Self-esteem, n. An erroneous appraisalment.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 134 Self-evident, adj. Evident to one's self and to nobody else.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 135 Selfish, adj. Devoid of consideration for the selfishness of others.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 136 Telephone, n. An invention of the devil which abrogates some of the advantages of making a disagreeable person keep his distance.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 137 Telescope, n. A device having a relation to the eye similar to that of the telephone to the ear, enabling distant objects to plague us with a multitude of needless details. Luckily it is unprovided with a bell summoning us to the sacrifice.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 138 Truthful, adj. Dumb and illiterate.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 139 Ultimatum, n. In diplomacy, a last demand before resorting to concessions.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 140 Year, n. A period of three hundred and sixty-five disappointments.
The Devil's Dictionary (1911)
- 141 All men are created equal. Some, it appears, are created a little more equal than others.
Wasp (San Francisco), 16 Sept. 1882

- 142 The bold and discerning writer who, recognizing the truth that language must grow by innovation if it grow at all, makes new words and uses the old in an unfamiliar sense has no following and is tartly reminded that "it isn't in the dictionary"—although down to the time of the first lexicographer (Heaven forgive him!) no author ever had used a word that was in the dictionary.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 143 You are not permitted to kill a woman that has injured you, but nothing forbids you to reflect that she is growing older every minute. You are avenged 1440 times a day.
The Cynic's Word Book (1906)
- 144 [One-sentence book review:] The covers of this book are too far apart.
Quoted in Robert H. Davis, Introduction to Work of Stephen Crane vol. 2 (1925). "I think the covers are too far apart" as a comment about a book appeared as early as 1899 (Logansport [Ind.] Pharos, 28 Sept.).

South African political activist, 1946–1977

- 1 The most potent weapon in the hands of the oppressor is the mind of the oppressed.
 “White Racism and Black Consciousness” (paper presented at workshop sponsored by Abe Bailey Institute of Interracial Studies), Cape Town, South Africa, Jan. 1971

Josh Billings (Henry Wheeler Shaw)

U.S. humorist, 1818–1885

- 1 We hate those who will not take our advise, an despise them who do.
Josh Billings, Hiz Sayings (1866)
- 2 I hate to be a kicker, I always long for peace,
 But the wheel that does the squeaking is the one that gets the grease.
 “The Kicker” (ca. 1870). This citation is traditional among quotation dictionaries, but it must be noted that no Billings poem called “The Kicker” or with words like these has ever been verified. The earliest documented version appears in Cal Stewart, Uncle Josh Weathersby’s “Punkin Centre” Stories (1903): “I don’t believe in kickin’, / It ain’t apt to bring one peace; / But the wheel what squeaks the loudest / Is the one what gets the grease.” The saying is now proverbial, often with a form like “the squeaky wheel gets the grease.”
- 3 It is better tew know nothing than tew know what ain’t so.
Harrisburg Telegraph, 7 May 1869
- 4 As scarce as truth is, the supply has always been in excess of the demand.
 Quoted in Evan Esar, The Dictionary of Humorous Quotations (1949)

Osama bin Laden

Saudi Arabian jihadist, 1957–2011

- 1 To kill Americans and their allies, both civilian and military, is an individual duty of every Muslim who can, in any country where this is possible, until the Aqsa mosque and the Haram mosque are freed from their grip, and until their armies, shattered and broken-winged, depart from all the lands of Islam, incapable of threatening any Muslim.
 Declaration of jihad, Feb. 1998
- 2 We calculated in advance the number of casualties from the enemy, who would be killed based on the position of the tower. We calculated that the floors that would be hit would be three or four floors. I was the most optimistic of them all. . . . Due to my experience in this field, I was thinking that the fire from the gas in the plane would melt the iron structure of the building and collapse the area where the plane hit and all the floors above it only. That is all that we had hoped for.

 Videotape released by U.S. government, Dec. 2001

Arthur Binstead

British journalist, 1861–1914

- 1 The great secret in life [is] not to open your letters for a fortnight. At the expiration of that period you will find that nearly all of them have answered themselves.
Pitcher’s Proverbs (1909)

Laurence Binyon

English poet, 1869–1943

- 1 They shall grow not old, as we that are left grow old.
 Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
 At the going down of the sun and in the morning
 We will remember them.
 “For the Fallen” l. 13 (1914)

Bion

Greek poet, ca. 325 B.C.–ca. 255 B.C.

- 1 Boys throw stones at frogs for fun, but the frogs don’t die for “fun,” but in sober earnest.
 Quoted in Plutarch, Moralia

John Bird

English actor and satirist, 1936–

- 1 That Was the Week That Was.
 Title of BBC television series (1962–1963)

Augustine Birrell

English politician and writer, 1850–1933

- 1 That great dust-heap called “history.”

 See Trotsky 2

Elizabeth Bishop

U.S. poet, 1911–1979

- 1 Until everything
was rainbow, rainbow, rainbow!
And I let the fish go.
“The Fish” l. 74 (1946)
- 2 I knew that nothing stranger had ever happened.
“In the Waiting Room” l. 72 (1976)
- 3 How had I come to be here like them, and overhear a cry of pain that could have got loud and worse but hadn’t?
“In the Waiting Room” l. 86 (1976)
- 4 The art of losing isn’t hard to master;
so many things seem filled with the intent to be lost that their loss is no disaster.
“One Art” l. 1 (1976)

Otto von Bismarck

German statesman, 1815–1898

- 1 The great questions of the day will not be settled by means of speeches and majority decisions . . . but by iron and blood.
Speech to Prussian Diet, 30 Sept. 1862. Bismarck later used the variant “blood and iron” (Blut und Eisen) frequently. The expression “blood and iron” had also been used much earlier in Quintilian,
Declamationes.
- 2 Politics is not an exact science.
Speech to Prussian legislature, 18 Dec. 1863
- 3 Let us put Germany in the saddle, so to speak—it already knows how to ride.
Speech to North German Reichstag, 11 Mar. 1867
- 4 [Of his dispute with Pope Pius IX over papal authority in Germany, alluding to Emperor Henry IV’s obeisance to Pope Gregory VII at Canossa in 1077:] We will not go to Canossa.
Speech to Reichstag, 14 May 1872
- 5 Whoever speaks of Europe is wrong, [it is] a geographical concept.
Marginal note on letter from A. M. Gorchakov, Nov.
1876
See Klemens von Metternich 1
- 6 [Of possible German military intervention in the Balkans:] Not worth the healthy bones of a single Pomeranian grenadier.
Speech to Reichstag, 5 Dec. 1876

7 I do not regard the procuring of peace as a matter in which we should play the role of arbiter between different opinions . . . more that of an honest broker who really wants to press the business forward.
Speech to Reichstag, 19 Feb. 1878

8 We Germans fear God, but nothing else in the world.
Speech to Reichstag, 6 Feb. 1888

9 [Remark to Meyer von Waldeck, 11 Aug. 1867:]
Die Politik ist die Lehre von Möglichen.
Politics is the art of the possible.
Quoted in Heinz Amelung, Bismarck-Worte (1918)

10 One day the great European War [will] come out of some damned foolish thing in the Balkans.
Attributed in Winston Churchill, The World Crisis
(1923)

Hugo L. Black

U.S. judge, 1886–1971

- 1 It is my belief that there are “absolutes” in our Bill of Rights, and that they were put there on purpose by men who knew what words meant,
and meant their prohibitions to be “absolutes.”
“The Bill of Rights,” New York University Law Review, Apr. 1960
- 2 An unconditional right to say what one pleases about public affairs is what I consider to be the minimum guarantee of the First Amendment.
New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (concurring opinion) (1964)
- 3 When I was 40, my doctor advised me that a man in his forties shouldn’t play tennis. I heeded his advice carefully and could hardly wait until I reached 50 to start again.
Quoted in Think, Feb. 1963

Black Hawk

Native American leader, 1767–1838

- 1 The pathway to glory is rough, and many gloomy hours obscure it. May the Great Spirit shed light on yours, and that you may never experience the humiliation that the power of the American government has reduced me to,
is the wish of him who, in his native forests,
was once as proud as you.
The Autobiography of Black Hawk “Dedication to General Atkinson” (1833)

- 2 [Surrender speech, 1832:] The white men despise the Indians, and drive them from their homes. But the Indians are not deceitful. The white men speak bad of the Indian, and look at him spitefully. But the Indian does not tell lies; Indians do not steal. An Indian, who is as bad as the white men, could not live in our nation; he would be put to death, and eat up by the wolves.

Quoted in Samuel G. Drake, Biography and History of the Indians of North America, 11th ed. (1841)

Harry A. Blackmun

U.S. judge, 1908–1999

- 1 This right of privacy, whether it be founded in the Fourteenth Amendment's concept of personal liberty and restrictions upon state action, as we feel it is, or . . . in the Ninth Amendment's reservation of rights to the people, is broad enough to encompass a woman's decision whether or not to terminate her pregnancy.
Roe v. Wade (1973)
- 2 In order to get beyond racism, we must first take account of race. There is no other way. And in order to treat some persons equally, we must treat them differently.
University of California Regents v. Bakke (opinion concurring in part and dissenting in part) (1978)
- 3 For today, at least, the law of abortion stands undisturbed. For today, the women of this Nation still retain the liberty to control their destinies. But the signs are evident and very ominous, and a chill wind blows. I dissent.
Webster v. Reproductive Health Services (opinion concurring in part and dissenting in part) (1989)
- 4 From this day forward, I no longer shall tinker with the machinery of death.
Callins v. Collins (dissenting opinion) (1994)

William Blackstone

English jurist, 1723–1780

- 1 Man was formed for society.
Commentaries on the Laws of England introduction, sec. 2 (1765)
- 2 Whence it is that in our law the goodness of a custom depends upon its having been used time out of mind; or, in the solemnity of our legal phrase, time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

Commentaries on the Laws of England introduction, sec. 3 (1765)

- 3 In all tyrannical governments the supreme magistracy, or the right both of making and of enforcing the laws, is vested in one and the same man, or one and the same body of men; and wherever these two powers are united together, there can be no public liberty.

Commentaries on the Laws of England bk. 1, ch. 2 (1765)

- 4 The king, moreover, is not only incapable of doing wrong, but even of thinking wrong: he can never mean to do an improper thing: in him is no folly or weakness.

Commentaries on the Laws of England bk. 1, ch. 7 (1765)

- 5 The royal navy of England hath ever been its greatest defence and ornament: it is its ancient and natural strength; the floating bulwark of the island.

Commentaries on the Laws of England bk. 1, ch. 13 (1765)

- 6 That the king can do no wrong, is a necessary and fundamental principle of the English Constitution.

Commentaries on the Laws of England bk. 3, ch. 17 (1768)

See Proverbs 160

- 7 All presumptive evidence of felony should be admitted cautiously; for the law holds, that it is better that ten guilty persons escape, than that one innocent suffer.

Commentaries on the Laws of England bk. 4, ch. 27 (1769)

See Fortescue 1; Benjamin Franklin 37; Maimonides 1; Voltaire 3

Antoinette Brown Blackwell

U.S. reformer, 1825–1921

- 1 Mr. Darwin . . . has failed to hold definitely before his mind the principle that the difference of sex, whatever it may consist in, must itself be subject to natural selection and to evolution.

The Sexes Throughout Nature "Sex and Evolution" (1875)

Otis Blackwell

U.S. songwriter, 1931–2002

- 1 You shake my nerves and you rattle my brain.
Too much love drives a man insane.
You broke my will,
But what a thrill.
Goodness gracious, great balls of fire!
“Great Balls of Fire” (song) (1957)

Tony Blair

British prime minister, 1953–

- 1 We should be tough on crime and tough on the causes of crime.
Speech at Labor Party conference, Bournemouth, England, 5 Feb. 1993
- 2 We need to build a relationship of trust not just within a firm but within a society. By trust, I mean the recognition of a mutual purpose for which we work together and in which we all benefit. It is a Stakeholder Economy in which opportunity is available to all, advancement is through merit, and from which no group or class is set apart or excluded.
Speech, Singapore, 8 Jan. 1996
- 3 Ask me my three main priorities for Government, and I’ll tell you: education, education and education.
Speech at Labor Party Conference, Blackpool, England, 1 Oct. 1996
- 4 I think most people who have dealt with me, think I’m a pretty straight sort of guy, and I am.
Interview on BBC TV “On the Record” show, 16 Nov. 1997
- 5 I feel the hand of history upon our shoulders.
Statement to press on arriving at Hillsborough Castle for talks on Northern Ireland, Belfast, 7 Apr. 1998
- 6 This is not a battle between the United States of America and terrorism, but between the free and democratic world and terrorism. We, therefore, here in Britain stand shoulder to shoulder with our American friends in this hour of tragedy, and we, like them, will not rest until this evil is driven from our world.
Statement, 11 Sept. 2001
- 7 [Remark on hearing of Princess Diana’s death:]
She was the People’s Princess, and that is how she will stay . . . in our hearts and in our memories forever.

Quoted in Times (London), 1 Sept. 1997. Earliest usage of the term People’s Princess was found in a locally published souvenir booklet from Prince Charles and Lady Diana’s tour of Australia in 1983; a section of the booklet was titled “Diana: The People’s Princess.”

Eubie Blake

U.S. ragtime musician, 1883–1983

- 1 [When asked, at the age of ninety-seven, at what age the sex drive ends:] You’ll have to ask somebody older than me.
Quoted in Ned Sherrin, In His Anecdote (1993)
See Pauline Metternich 1

James W. Blake

U.S. songwriter, 1862–1935

- 1 East Side, West Side, all around the town
The kids sang “ring around rosie,” “London Bridge is falling down”
Boys and girls together, me and Mamie O’Rourke
We tripped the light fantastic on the sidewalks of New York.
“The Sidewalks of New York” (song) (1894)

William Blake

English poet and painter, 1757–1827

- 1 Love to faults is always blind,
Always is to joy inclin’d,
Lawless, wing’d, and unconfin’d,

- And breaks all chains from every mind.
Note-Book "Love to Faults" (ca. 1791–1792)
- 2 If the doors of perception were cleansed everything would appear to man as it is, infinite.
The Marriage of Heaven and Hell "A Memorable Fancy" plate 14 (1790–1793). Inspired the title of Aldous Huxley's 1954 book about drug experimentation, The Doors of Perception, which in turn inspired the name of the 1960s rock group The Doors.
- 3 One Law for the Lion & Ox is Oppression.
The Marriage of Heaven and Hell "A Memorable Fancy" plate 24 (1790–1793)
- 4 The road of excess leads to the palace of wisdom.
The Marriage of Heaven and Hell "Proverbs of Hell" (1790–1793)
- 5 Prisons are built with stones of Law, brothels with bricks of Religion.
The Marriage of Heaven and Hell "Proverbs of Hell"
 (1790–1793)
- 6 The pride of the peacock is the glory of God.
 The lust of the goat is the bounty of God.
 The wrath of the lion is the wisdom of God.
 The nakedness of woman is the work of God.
The Marriage of Heaven and Hell "Proverbs of Hell"
 (1790–1793)
- 7 The tygers of wrath are wiser than the horses of instruction.
The Marriage of Heaven and Hell "Proverbs of Hell" (1790–1793)
- 8 The reason Milton wrote in fetters when he wrote of Angels and God, and at liberty when of Devils and Hell, is because he was a true Poet, and of the Devil's party without knowing it.
The Marriage of Heaven and Hell "The Voice of the Devil" (note) (1790–1793)
- 9 O Rose, thou art sick!
Songs of Experience "The Sick Rose" (1794)
- 10 Tyger Tyger, burning bright,
 In the forests of the night;
 What immortal hand or eye,
 Could frame thy fearful symmetry?
Songs of Experience "The Tiger" (1794)
- 11 What the hammer? What the chain?
 In what furnace was thy brain?
 What the anvil? What dread grasp
 Dare its deadly terrors clasp?
Songs of Experience "The Tiger" (1794)
- 12 Did he smile his work to see?
 Did he who made the Lamb make thee?
Songs of Experience "The Tiger" (1794)
- 13 May God us keep
 From Single vision and Newton's sleep!
 "Letter to Thomas Butts, 22 November 1802" (1802)
- 14 To see a world in a grain of sand
 And a heaven in a wild flower,
 Hold infinity in the palm of your hand
 And eternity in an hour.
 "Auguries of Innocence" l. 1 (ca. 1803)
- 15 A robin red breast in a cage
 Puts all Heaven in a rage.
 "Auguries of Innocence" l. 5 (ca. 1803)
- 16 A dog starv'd at his master's gate
 Predicts the ruin of the State.
 "Auguries of Innocence" l. 9 (ca. 1803)
- 17 To generalize is to be an idiot. To particularize is the alone distinction of merit—general knowledges are those knowledges that idiots possess.
 "Annotations to The Works of Sir Joshua Reynolds"
 (ca. 1798–1809)
- 18 Great things are done when men and mountains meet;
 This is not done by jostling in the street.
Note-Book (1807–1809)
- 19 And did those feet in ancient time
 Walk upon England's mountains green?
 And was the Holy Lamb of God
 On England's pleasant pastures seen?
 And did the Countenance Divine
 Shine forth upon our clouded hills?
 And was Jerusalem builded here
 Among these dark Satanic mills?
Milton preface (1804–1810)
- 20 Bring me my bow of burning gold:
 Bring me my arrows of desire:
 Bring me my spear: O clouds, unfold!
 Bring me my chariot of fire.
Milton preface (1804–1810)
- 21 I will not cease from mental fight,
 Nor shall my sword sleep in my hand,
 Till we have built Jerusalem,
 In England's green and pleasant land.
Milton preface (1804–1810)

22 I give you the end of a golden string;
 Only wind it into a ball:
 It will lead you in at Heaven's gate,
 Built in Jerusalem's wall.
Jerusalem "I give you the end of a golden string" (1815)

23 Poetry fettered fetters the human race. Nations are destroyed, or flourish, in proportion as their poetry, painting, and music are destroyed or flourish!
Jerusalem "To the Public" plate 1 (1815)

24 He who would do good to another must do it in minute particulars;
 General good is the plea of the scoundrel,
 hypocrite, and flatterer:
 For art and science cannot exist but in minutely organized particulars.
Jerusalem ch. 3, plate 55, l. 60 (1815)

Jean Joseph Louis Blanc

Spanish-born French socialist, 1811–1882

1 *Dans la doctrine saint-simonienne, le problème de la répartition des bénéfices est résolu par cette fameuse formule: à chacun suivant sa capacité;
 à chaque capacité suivant ses oeuvres.*

In the Saint-Simonian doctrine, the problem of the distribution of benefits is resolved by this famous saying: *To each according to his ability;
 to each ability according to its fruits.*

 constant; the population is growing.
Murphy's Law and Other Reasons Why Things Go Wrong! (1977)

Ernst Bloch

German philosopher, 1885–1977

1 It is important to learn hoping. Its work does not despair, it fell in love with succeeding rather than with failure. Hoping, located above fearing, is neither passive like the latter nor imprisoned into nothingness. The emotion of hoping expands out of itself, makes people wider instead of narrower; insatiable, it wants to know what makes people purposeful on the inside and what might be allied with them on the outside.

The Principle of Hope vol. 1 (1959)

Robert Bloch

U.S. novelist and screenwriter, 1917–1994

- 1 She didn't swat it, and she hoped they were watching, because that proved what sort of a person she really was. Why, she wouldn't even harm a fly. . . .
Psycho ch. 17 (1959). Ellipsis in original text.
- 2 I have the heart of a small boy—I keep it on my desk, in a jar.
Quoted in S.F. Chronicle, 4 Nov. 1945

Alexander Blok

Russian poet, 1880–1921

- 1 The wind plays up; snow flutters down.
Twelve men are marching through the town.
“The Twelve” (1918) (translation by Jon Stallworthy and Peter France)

Harold Bloom

U.S. literary critic, 1930–2019

- 1 The Anxiety of Influence.
Title of book (1973)

Amelia Jenks Bloomer

U.S. feminist and reformer, 1818–1894

- 1 The costume of woman . . . should conduce at once to her health, comfort, and usefulness . . . while it should not fail also to conduce to her personal adornment, it should make that end of secondary importance.
Letter to Charlotte Joy, 3 June 1857

Henry Blossom

U.S. composer and writer, 1867–1919

- 1 I Want What I Want When I Want It.
Title of song (1905)

Judy Blume (Judith Sussman)

U.S. children's book writer, 1938–

- 1 Are you there God? It's me, Margaret. I just told my mother I want a bra. Please help me grow God. You know where.
Are You There God? It's Me, Margaret. ch. 6 (1970)

Robert Bly

U.S. poet, 1926–

- 1 There is a privacy I love in this snowy night.
Driving around, I will waste more time.
“Driving to Town Late to Mail a Letter” l. 4 (1962)
- 2 Every modern man has, lying at the bottom of his psyche, a large, primitive being covered with hair down to his feet. Making contact with this Wild Man is the step the Eighties male or the Nineties male has yet to take.
Iron John ch. 1 (1990)

Franz Boas

German-born U.S. anthropologist, 1858–1942

- 1 There is no fundamental difference in the ways of thinking of primitive and civilized man. A close connection between race and personality has never been established.
The Mind of Primitive Man preface (1938)
- 2 The behavior of an individual is therefore determined not by his racial affiliation, but by the character of his ancestry and his cultural environment.
Race and Democratic Society ch. 4 (1945)
- 3 No one has ever proved that a human being, through his descent from a certain group of people must of necessity have certain mental characteristics.

Race and Democratic Society ch. 7 (1945)

Giovanni Boccaccio

Italian writer and humanist, 1313–1375

- 1 [Of the Black Death:] How many valiant men, how many fair ladies, breakfast with their kinfolk and the same night supped with their ancestors in the next world!
Decameron introduction (1348–1353)
- 2 [Of the Black Death:] The condition of the people was pitiable to behold. They sickened by the thousands daily, and died unattended and without help. Many died in the open street, others dying in their houses, made it known by the stench of their rotting bodies. Consecrated churchyards did not suffice for the burial of the vast multitude of bodies, which were heaped by the hundreds in vast trenches, like goods in a ship's hold and covered with a little earth.
Decameron introduction (1348–1353)

Ivan Boesky

U.S. financier, 1937–

- 1 Greed is all right. . . . Greed is healthy. You can be greedy and still feel good about yourself.

William J. H. Boetcker

U.S. clergyman, 1873–1962

- 1 1. You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift.
2. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.
3. You cannot help small men up by tearing down big men.
4. You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich.
5. You cannot lift the wage earner up by pulling the wage payer down.
6. You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than your income.
7. You cannot further the brotherhood of man by inciting class hatred.

8. You cannot establish sound social security on borrowed money.
9. You cannot build character and courage by taking away a man's initiative and independence.
10. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

"The Industrial Decalogue" (1916). These "ten cannots" are frequently, but falsely, attributed to Abraham Lincoln.

Boethius

Roman statesman and philosopher,
ca. 476–524

- 1 For in every ill-turn of fortune the most unhappy sort of unfortunate man is the one who has been happy.
De Consolatione Philosophiae bk. 2, prose 4
See Dante Alighieri 7

Louise Bogan

U.S. poet, 1897–1970

- 1 What she has gathered, and what lost,
She will not find to lose again.
She is possessed by time, who once
Was loved by men.
"Portrait" l. 9 (1923)
- 2 Now that I have your heart by heart, I see.
"Song for the Last Act" l. 27 (1968)

Niels Bohr

Danish physicist, 1885–1962

- 1 The old saying of the two kinds of truth. To the one kind belongs statements so simple and clear that the opposite assertion obviously could not be defended. The other kind, the so-called "deep truths," are statements in which the opposite also contains deep truth.
Quoted in Albert Einstein: Philosopher-Scientist, ed. P. A. Schilpp (1949)
See Wilde 20
- 2 It is very difficult to predict, especially the future.
Attributed in Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, Dec. 1971. This is often said to be "an old Danish proverb." K. K. Steincke, Goodbye and Thanks (1948), quotes it as a pun used in the Danish parliament in the late 1930s.

- 3 Anyone who is not shocked by quantum theory has not understood it.
Attributed in Kit Pedler, Mind over Matter (1981)

Nicolas Boileau

French critic and poet, 1636–1711

- 1 Nothing but truth is lovely, nothing fair.
Epistles no. 9 (1673)
- 2 At last came Malherbe, and he was the first in France to give poetry a proper flow.
L'Art Poétique canto 1 (1674)
- 3 A fool can always find a greater fool to admire him.
L'Art Poétique canto 1 (1674)
- 4 Ce que l'on conçoit bien s'énonce clairement.
What is well conceived is clearly said.
L'Art Poétique canto 1 (1674)

Pierre le Pesant, Sieur de Boisguilbert

French economist, 1646–1714

- 1 Il n'y avait qu'à laisser faire la nature et la liberté.
It was only necessary to let nature and liberty alone.
Factum de la France (1707). Journal Oeconomique, Apr. 1751, records the following: "Monsieur Colbert assembled several deputies of commerce at his house to ask what could be done for commerce; the most rational and the least flattering among them answered him in one word: 'Laissez-nous-faire' [Leave us to do it]."
See Quesnay 1

Derek C. Bok

U.S. university president, 1930–

- 1 There is far too much law for those who can afford it and far too little for those who cannot.
"A Flawed System," Harvard Magazine, May-June 1983
- 2 If you think education is expensive—try ignorance.
Attributed in Paul Dickson, The Official Rules (1978). An earlier occurrence, without attribution to any individual, was in the Washington Post, 6 Oct. 1975.

Anne Boleyn

English queen, ca. 1501–1536

- 1 I heard say the executor [executioner] was very good, and I have a little neck.
Quoted in William Kingston, Letter to Thomas Cromwell, 19 May 1536

Simón Bolívar

Venezuelan statesman and military leader, 1783–1830

- 1 The hate that the Iberian peninsula has inspired in us is broader than the sea which separates us from it; it is less difficult to join both continents than to join both countries' souls.
"The Jamaican Letter" (1815)
- 2 All who have served the Revolution have plowed the sea.
Letter to Juan José Flores, 9 Nov. 1830

Robert Bolt

English playwright, 1924–1995

- 1 Yes, I'd give the Devil benefit of law, for my own safety's sake.
A Man for All Seasons act 1 (1960)
- 2 When the last law was down, and the Devil turned round on you—where would you hide, Roper, the laws all being flat? This country's planted thick with laws from coast to coast—Man's laws, not God's—and if you cut them down—and you're just the man to do it—d'you really think you could stand upright in the winds that would blow then?
A Man for All Seasons act 1 (1960)
- 3 It profits a man nothing to give his soul for the whole world . . . But for Wales—!
A Man for All Seasons act 2 (1960). Ellipsis in original text.
See Bible 278

Erma Bombeck

U.S. humorist, 1927–1996

- 1 The Grass Is Always Greener over the Septic Tank.
Title of book (1976)

Heavy metal thunder
“Born to Be Wild” (song) (1968)
See William S. Burroughs 3
- 2 Like a true nature’s child
We were born, born to be wild
We can climb so high
I never wanna die.
“Born to Be Wild” (song) (1968)

Dietrich Bonhoeffer

German clergyman and theologian, 1906–1945

- 1 The third possibility [for the church] is not just to bandage the victims under the wheel, but to put a spoke in the wheel itself.
“The Church and the Jewish Question” (1933)
- 2 Cheap grace is the deadly enemy of our Church.
The Cost of Discipleship ch. 1 (1937)
- 3 When Christ calls a man, he bids him come and die.
The Cost of Discipleship ch. 4 (1937)

- 4 We have learnt a bit too late in the day that action springs not from thought, but from a readiness for responsibility.
“Thoughts on the Baptism of D.W.R.” (1944)

Bono (Paul Hewson)

Irish rock singer and songwriter, 1960–

- 1 I can’t believe the news today
I can’t close my eyes and make it go away.
How long, how long must we sing this song.
“Sunday Bloody Sunday” (song) (1983)
- 2 Early morning, April 4
Shots rang out in the Memphis sky
Free at last!
They took your life
But they could not take your pride.
“Pride (In the Name of Love)” (song) (1984)
- 3 One life, with each other
Sisters, brothers
One life, but we’re not the same
We get to carry each other, carry each other.
“One” (song) (1991)

Salvatore Phillip “Sonny” Bono

U.S. singer and politician, 1935–1998

- 1 The Beat Goes On.
Title of song (1967)

The Book of Common Prayer

- 1 Whosoever shall be saved: before all things it is necessary that he hold the Catholic Faith.
At Morning Prayer “Athanasian Creed” (1662)
- 2 Man that is born of a woman hath but a short time to live, and is full of misery.
The Burial of the Dead “First Anthem” (1662)
- 3 In the midst of life we are in death.
The Burial of the Dead “First Anthem” (1662)
- 4 Forasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God of his great mercy to take unto himself the soul of our dear brother here departed, we therefore commit his body to the ground; earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust; in sure and certain hope of the Resurrection to eternal life.
The Burial of the Dead “Interment” (1662)
- 5 I believe in one God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth, And of all things visible and invisible:

- And in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only-begotten Son of God, Begotten of his Father before all worlds, God of God, Light of Light, Very God of very God, Begotten, not made, Being of one substance with the Father, By whom all things were made.
Holy Communion "Nicene Creed" (1662)
- 6 And I believe one Catholick and Apostolick Church.
Holy Communion "Nicene Creed" (1662)
- 7 Have mercy upon us miserable sinners.
The Litany (1662)
- 8 From all the deceits of the world, the flesh, and the devil,
Good Lord, deliver us.
The Litany (1662)
- 9 I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth:
And in Jesus Christ his only Son our Lord, Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary, Suffered under Pontius Pilate, Was crucified, dead, and buried, He descended into hell; The third day he rose again from the dead, He ascended into heaven, And sitteth on the right hand of God, the Father Almighty; From thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead. I believe in the Holy Ghost; The holy Catholic Church; The Communion of Saints; The Forgiveness of sins; The Resurrection of the body, And the life everlasting. Amen.
Morning Prayer "The Apostles' Creed" (1662)
See Baruch 1
- 10 We have left undone those things which we ought to have done; And we have done those things which we ought not to have done; And there is no health in us.
Morning Prayer "General Confession" (1662)
- 11 Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Ghost; As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be: world without end. Amen.
Morning Prayer "Gloria" (1662)
- 12 And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us.
Morning Prayer "The Lord's Prayer" (1662)
See Bible 215
- 13 If any of you know cause, or just impediment, why these two persons should not be joined together in holy Matrimony, ye are to declare it.
Solemnization of Matrimony "The Banns" (1662)
- 14 Wilt thou love her, comfort her, honor, and keep her in sickness and in health; and, forsaking all other, keep thee only unto her, so long as ye both shall live?
Solemnization of Matrimony "Betrothal" (1662)
- 15 To have and to hold from this day forward, for better for worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love, cherish, and to obey, till death us do part, according to God's holy ordinance; and thereto I give thee my troth.
Solemnization of Matrimony "Betrothal" (1662)
- 16 Dearly beloved, we are gathered together here in the sight of God, and in the face of this congregation, to join together this Man and this Woman in holy Matrimony.
Solemnization of Matrimony "Exhortation" (1662)
- 17 If any man can shew any just cause, why they may not lawfully be joined together, let him now speak, or else hereafter for ever hold his peace.
Solemnization of Matrimony "Exhortation" (1662)
- 18 With this Ring I thee wed, with my body I thee worship, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow.
Solemnization of Matrimony "Wedding" (1662)
- 19 Those whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder.
Solemnization of Matrimony "Wedding" (1662)
See Bible 249

Daniel Boone

U.S. pioneer, 1734–1820

- 1 [Remark, June 1819:] I can't say as ever I was lost, but I was bewildered once for three days.
Quoted in Chester Harding, My Egotistigraphy (1866)

Daniel J. Boorstin

U.S. historian, 1914–2004

- 1 A pseudo-event . . . comes about because someone has planned, planted, or incited it. Typically, it is not a train wreck or an earthquake, but an interview.
The Image ch. 1 (1962)

- 2 The celebrity is a person who is known for his well-knownness.

The Image ch. 1 (1962)

John Wilkes Booth

U.S. actor and assassin, 1838–1865

- 1 [After shooting Abraham Lincoln, 14 Apr. 1865:]
Sic semper tyrannis!

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 15 Apr. 1865. Sic semper tyrannis, “Thus always to tyrants,” is the state motto of Virginia. Booth is often said to have followed this with “the South is avenged,” but these latter words do not appear in any contemporary source and may be apocryphal.

See Anonymous (Latin) 12

William Booth

English founder of the Salvation Army, 1829–1912

- 1 [Of the poor:] The submerged tenth.

In Darkest England pt. 1, title of ch. 2 (1890)

Émile Borel

French mathematician and government official, 1871–1956

- 1 Concevons qu'on ait dressé un million de singes à frapper au hasard sur les touches d'une machine à écrire et que . . . ces singes dactylographes travaillent avec ardeur dix heures par jour avec un million de machines à écrire de types variés. . . . Et au bout d'un an, ces volumes se trouveraient renfermer la copie exacte des livres de toute nature et de toutes langues conservés dans les plus riches bibliothèques du monde.

Let us imagine that a million monkeys have been trained to strike the keys of a typewriter at random, and that . . . these typist monkeys work eagerly ten hours a day on a million typewriters of various kinds. . . . And at the end of a year, these volumes turn out to contain the exact texts of the books of every sort and every language found in the world's richest libraries.

“Mécanique Statistique et Irréversibilité” (1913). Borel in his book Le Hasard (1914) specifically wrote of the monkeys typing all the books in the Bibliothèque Nationale. The venue of this quotation is changed to a different library by Gilbert N. Lewis, The Anatomy of Science (1926): “Borel makes the amusing supposition of a million monkeys allowed to play upon the keys of a million typewriters. What is the chance that this wanton activity should reproduce exactly all of the volumes which are contained in the library of the British Museum?”

Jorge Luis Borges

Argentinian writer, 1899–1986

- 1 The universe (which others call the Library) is composed of an indefinite and perhaps infinite number of hexagonal galleries.

“The Library of Babel” (1941) (translation by James E. Irby)

- 2 It does not seem unlikely to me that there is a total book on some shelf of the universe; I pray to the unknown gods that a man—just one, even though it were thousands of years ago!—may have examined and read it. If honor and wisdom and happiness are not for me, let them be for others. Let heaven exist, though my place be in hell. Let me be outraged and annihilated, but for one instant, in one being, let Your enormous Library be justified.

“The Library of Babel” (1941) (translation by James E. Irby)

- 3 On those remote pages [of “a certain Chinese encyclopedia”] it is written that animals are divided into (a) those that belong to the Emperor, (b) embalmed ones, (c) those that are trained, (d) suckling pigs, (e) mermaids, (f) fabulous ones, (g) stray dogs, (h) those that are included in this classification, (i) those that tremble as if they were mad, (j) innumerable ones, (k) those drawn with a very fine camel's hair brush, (l) others, (m) those that have just broken a flower vase, (n) those that resemble flies from a distance.

“The Analytical Language of John Wilkins” (1942) (translation by Ruth L. C. Simms)

- 4 To die for a religion is easier than to live it absolutely.

“Deutsches Requiem” (1946) (translation by Julian Palley)

- 5 Time is a river which sweeps me along, but I am the river; it is a tiger which destroys me, but I am the tiger; it is a fire which consumes me, but I am the fire. The world, unfortunately, is real; I, unfortunately, am Borges.

“A New Refutation of Time” (1946) (translation by James E. Irby)

6 In the critics' vocabulary, the word "precursor" is indispensable, but it should be cleansed of all connotations of polemics or rivalry. The fact is that every writer creates his own precursors. His work modifies our conception of the past, as it will modify the future.

"Kafka and His Precursors" (1951) (translation by James E. Irby)

7 I . . . had always thought of Paradise
In form and image as a library.

"Poem of the Gifts" (1959) (translation by Alastair Reid)

8 There are no moral or intellectual merits.
Homer composed the Odyssey; if we postulate an infinite period of time, with infinite circumstances and changes, the impossible thing is not to compose the Odyssey, at least once.

"The Immortal" (1968) (translation by James E. Irby)

Frank Borman

U.S. astronaut and business executive, 1928–

1 Capitalism without bankruptcy is like Christianity without hell.

Quoted in Forbes, 8 June 1981

Pierre Bosquet

French general, 1810–1861

1 [On the charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava, 25 Oct. 1854:] C'est magnifique, mais ce n'est pas la guerre.

It is magnificent, but it is not war.

Quoted in Cecil Woodham-Smith, The Reason Why (1953)

John Collins Bossidy

U.S. physician and poet, 1860–1928

1 I'm from good old Boston,
The home of the bean and the cod,
Where the Cabots speak only to the Lowells,
And the Lowells speak only with God.

Quoted in Wash. Post, 14 Feb. 1915. Recited at the midwinter dinner of the alumni of Holy Cross College in Boston in 1910. Bossidy was inspired by a toast given at the twenty-fifth anniversary dinner of the Harvard Class of 1880: "Here's to old Massachusetts, / The home of the sacred cod, / Where the Adamses vote for Douglas / And the Cabots walk with God."

James Boswell

Scottish biographer and lawyer, 1740–1795

1 That favourite subject, Myself.

Letter to William Temple, 26 July 1763

2 He who praises everybody, praises nobody.

Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (footnote for 30 Mar. 1778 entry)

Horatio Bottomley

British journalist and financier, 1860–1933

1 [When in prison and asked by a visitor whether he were sewing:] No, reaping.

Quoted in S. T. Felstead, Horatio Bottomley (1936)

Anthony Boucher (William Anthony Parker White)

U.S. writer and critic, 1911–1968

1 Eliminate the impossible. Then if nothing remains, some part of the "impossible" must be possible.

Rocket to the Morgue epigraph (1942)
See Arthur Conan Doyle 10

F. W. Bourdillon

English poet, 1852–1921

1 The night has a thousand eyes,
And the day but one;
Yet the light of the bright world dies
With the dying sun.

Among the Flowers "Light" l. 1 (1878)
See Lyly 2

2 The light of a whole life dies
When love is gone.

Among the Flowers "Light" l. 7 (1878)

Margaret Bourke-White

U.S. photojournalist, 1906–1971

1 [Of modern photojournalism:] The beauty of the past belongs to the past.

Diary, 11 May 1928

Randolph Bourne

U.S. writer, 1886–1918

1 War is the health of the State.

"Unfinished Fragment on the State" (1918)

Jim Bouton

U.S. baseball player, 1939–2019

- 1 You spend a good piece of your life gripping a baseball and in the end it turns out that it was the other way around all the time.
Ball Four (1970)

Elizabeth Bowen

Irish-born English writer, 1899–1973

- 1 There is no end to the violations committed by children on children, quietly talking alone.
The House in Paris pt. 1, ch. 2 (1935)
- 2 Fate is not an eagle, it creeps like a rat.
The House in Paris pt. 2, ch. 2 (1935)
- 3 Experience isn't interesting till it begins to repeat itself—in fact, till it does that, it hardly is experience.
The Death of the Heart pt. 1, ch. 1 (1938)
- 4 When you love someone all your saved-up wishes start coming out.
The Death of the Heart pt. 1, ch. 9 (1938)

Charles Synge Christopher, Lord Bowen

English judge, 1835–1894

- 1 The state of a man's mind is as much a fact as the state of his digestion.
Edginton v. Fitzmaurice (1885)
- 2 The rain, it raineth on the just
And also on the unjust fella:
But chiefly on the just, because
The unjust steals the just's umbrella.
Quoted in Walter Sichel, Sands of Time (1923)
See Bible 213

David Bowie (David Robert Jones)

English rock musician, 1947–2016

- 1 Ground control to Major Tom.
"Space Oddity" (song) (1969)
- 2 For here am I sitting in a tin can,
Far above the world.
Planet Earth is blue, and there's nothing I can do.
"Space Oddity" (song) (1969)
- 3 It's the terror of knowing
What this world is about

Watching some good friends

Screaming "Let me out."

"Under Pressure" (song) (1981). Cowritten with Queen (Rogers Meddows Taylor, Freddie Mercury, Brian Harold May, and John Richard Deacon).

- 4 'Cause love's such an old fashioned word
And love dares you to care
For the people on the edge of the night
And love dares you to change our way of Caring about ourselves
This is our last dance
This is our last dance
This is ourselves
Under pressure.

"Under Pressure" (song) (1981). Cowritten with Queen (Rogers Meddows Taylor, Freddie Mercury, Brian Harold May, and John Richard Deacon).

Edward Boyd-Jones

English songwriter, fl. 1900

- 1 Tell Me, Pretty Maiden, Are There Any More at Home Like You?
Title of song (1899). Cowritten with Paul Rubens.

Charles Boyer

French actor, 1899–1978

- 1 Come with me to the Casbah.
Attributed in Cleveland Plain Dealer, 31 May 1944.
Nigel Rees, Cassell's Movie Quotations, states that Boyer does not say this line in the 1938 film Algiers: "He is supposed to have said it to Hedy Lamarr. Boyer impersonators used it and the film was laughed at because of it, but it was simply a Hollywood legend that grew up. Boyer himself denied he had ever said it, and thought it had been invented by a press agent."

François Boyer

French writer, 1920–2003

- 1 Jeux Interdits.
Forbidden Games.
Title of book (1947)

Ray Bradbury

U.S. science fiction writer, 1920–2012

- 1 It was a pleasure to burn.
Fahrenheit 451 pt. 1 (1954)

John Bradford

English martyr, ca. 1510–1555

- 1 [On seeing criminals being led to execution:] But for the grace of God there goes John Bradford. Quoted in The Writings of John Bradford (1853). “Take away the grace of God, and there goes John Bradford” appears in Free-will and Merit Fairly Examined (1775). Usually quoted as “There but for the grace of God go I.”
See Mankiewicz 1

William Bradford

English-born colonial American political leader, 1590–1657

- 1 Being brought safe to land, they fell upon their knees and blessed the God of Heaven, who had brought them over the vast and furious Ocean, and delivered them from many perils and miseries. Quoted in Nathaniel Morton, New Englands Memoriall (1669). Morton was quoting from Bradford’s manuscript, Of Plymouth Plantation.
See Everts 1
- 2 They knew that they were Pilgrims and Strangers here below. Quoted in Nathaniel Morton, New Englands Memoriall (1669). Morton was quoting from Bradford’s manuscript, Of Plymouth Plantation.

Joseph P. Bradley

U.S. judge, 1813–1892

- 1 Man is, or should be, woman’s protector and defender. The natural and proper timidity and delicacy which belongs to the female sex evidently unfits it for many of the occupations of civil life. The constitution of the family organization, which is founded in the divine ordinance, as well as in the nature of things, indicates the domestic sphere as that which properly belongs to the domain and functions of womanhood. The harmony, not to say identity, of interests and views which belong, or should belong, to the family institution is repugnant to the idea of a woman adopting a distinct and independent career from that of her husband. . . . The paramount destiny and mission of woman are to fulfil the noble and benign offices of wife and mother. This is the law of the Creator.
Bradwell v. State (concurring opinion) (1873)

Omar Bradley

U.S. general, 1893–1981

- 1 We have grasped the mystery of the atom and rejected the Sermon on the Mount. . . . Ours is a world of nuclear giants and ethical infants. Speech on Armistice Day, Boston, Mass., 11 Nov. 1948
- 2 [Of possible United States–Chinese conflict in the Korean War:] Red China is not the powerful nation seeking to dominate the world. Frankly, in the opinion of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, this strategy would involve us in the wrong war, at the wrong place, at the wrong time, and with the wrong enemy.
Testimony before Senate Armed Services and Foreign Affairs Committees, 15 May 1951

Anne Bradstreet

English-born colonial American poet, ca. 1612–1672

- 1 I am obnoxious to each carping tongue,
Who says my hand a needle better fits.
“The Prologue” l. 25 (1650)
- 2 If ever two were one, then surely we.
If ever man were loved by wife, then thee;
If ever wife was happy in a man,
Compare with me ye women if you can.
“To My Dear and Loving Husband” l. 1 (1678)

Edward S. Bragg

U.S. politician and soldier, 1827–1912

- 1 [Of Grover Cleveland:] They love him for the enemies he has made.
Nominating speech at Democratic National Convention, Cleveland, Ohio, 9 July 1884

Tycho Brahe

Danish astronomer, 1546–1601

- 1 I noticed that a new and unusual star, surpassing all the others in brilliancy, was shining almost directly above my head. . . . A miracle indeed, either the greatest of all that have occurred in the whole range of nature since the beginning of the world, or one certainly that is to be classed with those attested by the Holy Oracles.
De Stella Nova (On the New Star) (1573)

Harry Braisted

U.S. songwriter, fl. 1896

- 1 If you want to win her hand,
Let the maiden understand
That she's not the only pebble on the beach.
"You're Not the Only Pebble on the Beach" (song) (1896)

George William Wilshere, Baron Bramwell

English judge, 1808–1892

- 1 The matter does not appear to me now as it appears to have appeared to me then.
Andrews v. Styrup (1872)

Stewart Brand

U.S. author and futurist, 1938–

- 1 Why Haven't We Seen a Photograph of the Whole Earth Yet?
Button (1966)
- 2 Once a new technology rolls over you, if you're not part of the steamroller, you're part of the road.
The Media Lab: Inventing the Future at MIT ch. 1
(1987)
- 3 A library doesn't need windows. A library is a window.
How Buildings Learn ch. 3 (1994)
- 4 Information wants to be free.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 18 Nov. 1984

Louis D. Brandeis

U.S. lawyer and judge, 1856–1941

- 1 Political, social, and economic changes entail the recognition of new rights, and the common law, in its eternal youth, grows to meet the demands of society. . . . Now the right to life has come to mean the right to enjoy life,—the right to be let alone; the right to liberty secures the exercise of extensive civil privileges; and the term "property" has grown to comprise every form of possession—intangible, as well as tangible.
"The Right to Privacy," Harvard Law Review, Dec.
1890. Coauthored with Samuel D. Warren.
See Brandeis 8
- 2 Instead of holding a position of independence, between the wealthy and the people, prepared to curb the expenses of either, able lawyers have, to a large extent, allowed themselves to become adjuncts of great corporations and have neglected their obligation to use their powers for the protection of the people. We hear much of the "corporation lawyer," and far too little of the "people's lawyer."

"The Opportunity in the Law," American Law Review,
July-Aug. 1905

- 3 Is there not a causal connection between the development of these huge, indomitable trusts and the horrible crimes now under investigation? . . . Is it not irony to speak of the equality of opportunity in a country cursed with bigness?
Letter to the editor, Survey, 30 Dec. 1911
- 4 Publicity is justly commended as a remedy for social and industrial diseases. Sunlight is said to be the best of disinfectants; electric light the most efficient policeman.
"What Publicity Can Do," Harper's Weekly, 20 Dec. 1913
See Ralph Waldo Emerson 42
- 5 [Those who won our independence knew] that fear breeds repression; that repression breeds hate; that hate menaces stable government; that the path of safety lies in the opportunity to discuss freely supposed grievances and proposed remedies; and that the fitting remedy for evil counsels is good ones.
Whitney v. California (concurring opinion) (1927)
- 6 Those who won our independence by revolution were not cowards. They did not fear political change. They did not exalt order at the cost of liberty. To courageous, self-reliant men, with confidence in the power of free and fearless reasoning applied through the processes of popular government, no danger flowing from speech can be deemed clear and present, unless the incidence of the evil apprehended is so imminent that it may befall before there is opportunity for full discussion. If there be time to expose through discussion the falsehood and fallacies, to avert the evil by the processes of education, the remedy to be applied is more speech, not enforced silence.
Whitney v. California (concurring opinion) (1927)
See Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr. 29

7 As a means of espionage, writs of assistance and general warrants are but puny instruments of tyranny and oppression when compared with wire-tapping.

Olmstead v. United States (dissenting opinion) (1928)

8 The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings, and of his intellect. They knew that only a part of the pain, pleasure, and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions, and their sensations. They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone—the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men.

Olmstead v. United States (dissenting opinion) (1928)
See Brandeis 1

9 Experience should teach us to be most on our guard to protect liberty when the Government's purposes are beneficent. Men born to freedom are naturally alert to repel invasion of their liberty by evil-minded rulers. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment by men of zeal, well-meaning but without understanding.

Olmstead v. United States (dissenting opinion) (1928)

10 Our Government is the potent, the omnipresent teacher. For good or for ill, it teaches the whole people by its example. Crime is contagious. If the Government becomes a lawbreaker, it breeds contempt for law; it invites every man to become a law unto himself; it invites anarchy. To declare that in the administration of the criminal law the end justifies the means—to declare that the Government may commit crimes in order to secure the conviction of a private criminal—would bring terrible retribution. Against that pernicious doctrine this Court should resolutely set its face.

Olmstead v. United States (dissenting opinion) (1928)

11 It is one of the happy incidents of the federal system that a single courageous State may, if its citizens choose, serve as a laboratory; and try novel social and economic experiments without risk to the rest of the country.

New State Ice Co. v. Liebmann (dissenting opinion) (1932)

12 We may have democracy, or we may have wealth concentrated in the hands of a few, but we can't have both.

William J. Brennan, Jr.

U.S. judge, 1906–1997

- I All ideas having even the slightest redeeming social importance—unorthodox ideas, controversial ideas, even ideas hateful to the prevailing climate of opinion—have the full protection of the guarantees. . . . But implicit in the history of the First Amendment is the rejection of obscenity as utterly without redeeming social importance. . . . We hold that obscenity is not within the area of constitutionally protected speech or press.
Roth v. United States (1957)
- 2 [Standard for obscenity.] Whether to the average person, applying contemporary community standards, the dominant theme of the material taken as a whole appeals to prurient interest.
Roth v. United States (1957)
- 3 We consider this case against the background of a profound national commitment to the principle that debate on public issues should be uninhibited, robust, and wide-open, and that it may well include vehement, caustic, and sometimes unpleasantly sharp attacks on government and public officials.
New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964)
- 4 The constitutional guarantees require, we think, a federal rule that prohibits a public official from recovering damages for a defamatory falsehood relating to his official conduct unless he proves that the statement was made with "actual malice"—that is, with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was false or not.
New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964). The phrase "actual malice" is first found in a 1908 libel case in Kansas, Coleman v. MacLennan; the opinion there was written by Rousseau A. Burch.
- 5 The chilling effect upon the exercise of First Amendment rights may derive from the fact of the prosecution, unaffected by the prospects of its success or failure.
Dombrowski v. Pfister (1965). Popularized the use of the term "chilling effect" to describe inhibition of freedom of expression.
- 6 If the right of privacy means anything, it is the right of the individual, married or single, to be free from unwarranted governmental intrusion into matters so fundamentally affecting a person as the decision whether to bear or beget a child.
Eisenstadt v. Baird (1972)
- 7 We current Justices read the Constitution in the only way that we can: as Twentieth Century Americans. We look to the history of the time of framing and to the intervening history of interpretation. But the ultimate question must be, what do the words of the text mean in our time. For the genius of the Constitution rests not in any static meaning it might have had in a world that is dead and gone, but in the adaptability of its great principles to cope with current problems and current needs.
"The Constitution of the United States: Contemporary Ratification" (speech), Washington,
D.C., 12 Oct. 1985

Jimmy Breslin

U.S. journalist and writer, 1928–2017

- 1 The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight.
Title of book (1969)
- 2 All political power is primarily an illusion. . . .
Illusion. Mirrors and blue smoke, beautiful blue smoke rolling over the surface of highly polished mirrors, first a thin veil of blue smoke, then a thick cloud that suddenly dissolves into wisps of blue smoke, the mirrors catching it all, bouncing it back and forth.

Impeachment Summer* (1975). Usually quoted as "smoke and mirrors."

- 3 The imaginary is what tends to become real.
The White-Haired Revolver (1932)
- 4 It is at the movies that the only absolutely modern mystery is celebrated.
Quoted in J. H. Matthews, Surrealism and Film (1971)

David J. Brewer

Turkish-born U.S. judge, 1837–1910

- 1 That woman's physical structure and the performance of maternal functions place her at a disadvantage in the struggle for subsistence is obvious. This is especially true when the burdens of motherhood are upon her. . . .
As healthy mothers are essential to vigorous offspring, the physical well-being of woman becomes an object of public interest and care in order to preserve the strength and vigor of the race.
Muller v. Oregon (1908)

Kingman Brewster, Jr.

U.S. university president, 1919–1988

- 1 I am appalled and ashamed that things should have come to pass that I am skeptical of the ability of Black revolutionaries to achieve a fair trial anywhere in the United States.

Statement at Yale University faculty meeting, New Haven, Conn., 23 Apr. 1970

Leonid Brezhnev

Soviet president, 1906–1982

- 1 When internal and external forces which are hostile to Socialism try to turn the development of any Socialist country towards the restoration of a capitalist regime . . . it becomes not only a problem of the people concerned, but a common problem and concern of all Socialist countries.
Speech to Congress of Polish Communist Party, 12
Nov. 1968

Aristide Briand

French statesman, 1862–1932

- 1 The high contracting powers solemnly declare
. . . that they condemn recourse to war and renounce it . . . as an instrument of their national policy towards each other. . . . The settlement or the solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be which may arise . . . shall never be sought by either side except by pacific means.
Treaty draft, 20 June 1927. Briand's language was later incorporated into the Kellogg Pact (1928).
- 2 This war is too important to be left to military men.
Quoted in Frances Stevenson, Diary, 23 Oct. 1916.
Also attributed to Clemenceau and Talleyrand, often ending "entrusted to generals."
See Clemenceau 4; de Gaulle 10

Leslie Bricusse 1931– and Anthony Newley

1931–1999

English songwriters

- 1 What kind of fool am I
Who never fell in love?
It seems that I'm the only one
That I have been thinking of.
"What Kind of Fool Am I?" (song) (1961)
- 2 Stop the World, I Want to Get Off.
Title of musical comedy (1961). Current as graffiti before 1961.

- 3 Maybe tomorrow
I'll find what I'm after.
I'll throw off my sorrow,
Beg, steal, or borrow
My share of laughter.
"Who Can I Turn To (When Nobody Needs Me)"
(song) (1964)

Robert Bridges

English poet, 1844–1930

- 1 When men were all asleep the snow came flying,
In large white flakes falling on the city brown, Stealthily and perpetually settling and loosely lying,
Hushing the latest traffic of the drowsy town.
"London Snow" l. 1 (1890)

Robert Briffault

French-born British anthropologist and novelist, 1876–1948

- 1 Democracy is the worst form of government.
It is the most inefficient, the most clumsy, the most unpractical. . . . It reduces wisdom to impotence and secures the triumph of folly, ignorance, clap-trap, and demagoguery. . . . Yet democracy is the only form of social order that is admissible, because it is the only one consistent with justice.
Rational Evolution (The Making of Humanity) ch. 15 (1930)
See Winston Churchill 34

Le Baron Russell Briggs

U.S. educator, 1855–1934

- 1 As has often been said, the youth who loves his Alma Mater will always ask, not "What can she do for me?" but "What can I do for her?"

John Bright

English politician, 1811–1889

- 1 England is the mother of parliaments.
Speech, Birmingham, England, 18 Jan. 1865

- 2 [Of the American Civil War:] My opinion is that the Northern States will manage somehow to muddle through.
Quoted in Justin McCarthy, Reminiscences (1899)

Anthelme Brillat-Savarin

French jurist and gourmet, 1755–1826

- 1 Dis-moi ce que tu manges, je te dirai ce que tu es.
Tell me what you eat and I will tell you what you are.
Physiologie du Goût aphorism no. 4 (1825) (translation by Anne Drayton). Proverbial in the form "you are what you eat," the earliest known example of which is in Longman's Magazine, Dec. 1885.
See Feuerbach 1
- 2 The discovery of a new dish does more for the happiness of mankind than the discovery of a star.
Physiologie du Goût aphorism no. 9 (1825) (translation
by Anne Drayton)

Mary Dow Brine

U.S. writer, ca. 1836–1925

- 1 She's somebody's mother, boys, you know,
For all she's aged and poor and slow,
And I hope some fellow will lend a hand
To help my mother, you understand,
If ever she's poor and old and gray,
When her own dear boy is far away.
"Somebody's Mother" l. 29 (1878)

André Brink

South African writer, 1935–2015

- 1 Perhaps all one can really hope for, all I am entitled to, is no more than this: to write it down. To report what I know. So that it will not be possible for any man ever to say again: I knew nothing about it.
A Dry White Season epilogue (1980)

Terry Britten

Australian rock musician, fl. 1980

- 1 What's love got to do, got to do with it?
What's love but a second hand emotion?
What's love got to do, got to do with it?
Who needs a heart when a heart can be broken?
"What's Love Got to Do With It?" (song) (1984).
Cowritten with Graham Lyle.

James Brockman

U.S. songwriter, 1886–1967

- 1 I'm forever blowing bubbles,
Pretty bubbles in the air.
"I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles" (song) (1919).
Cowritten with James Kendis and Nathaniel Vincent.

Tom Brokaw

U.S. broadcaster and author, 1940–

- 1 This is the greatest generation any society has ever produced.
Remark on NBC "Meet the Press" television broadcast, June 1994

Samuel Bronfman

Russian-born Canadian business executive and philanthropist, 1889–1971

- 1 To turn $100 into $110 is work. But to turn $100 million into $110 million is inevitable.
Quoted in Peter C. Newman, Bronfman Dynasty: The Rothschilds of the New World (1978)

Anne Brontë

English poet and novelist, 1820–1849

- 1 All true histories contain instruction; though in some, the treasure may be hard to find, and when found, so trivial in quantity that the dry, shrivelled kernel scarcely compensates for the trouble of cracking the nut.
Agnes Grey ch. 1 (1847)

Charlotte Brontë

English novelist, 1816–1855

- 1 There was no possibility of taking a walk that day.
Jane Eyre ch. 1 (1847)
- 2 "My bride is here," he said, again drawing me to him, "because my equal is here, and my likeness. Jane, will you marry me?"
Jane Eyre ch. 23 (1847)
- 3 You—poor and obscure, and small and plain as you are—I entreat you to accept me as a husband.
Jane Eyre ch. 23 (1847)
- 4 My future husband was becoming to me my whole world; and more than the world: almost my hope of heaven. He stood between me and every thought of religion, as an eclipse intervenes between man and the broad sun.

I could not, in those days, see God for His creature: of whom I had made an idol.

Jane Eyre ch. 24 (1847)

- 5 Reader, I married him.

Jane Eyre ch. 38 (1847)

- 6 When his first-born was put into his arms, he could see that the boy had inherited his own eyes, as they once were—large, brilliant, and black.

Jane Eyre ch. 38 (1847)

- 7 Of late years an abundant shower of curates has fallen upon the North of England.

Shirley ch. 1 (1849)

- 8 Life is so constructed that the event does not,
cannot, will not, match the expectation.

Villette ch. 36 (1853)

Emily Brontë

English novelist and poet, 1818–1848

- 1 No coward soul is mine,
No trembler in the world's storm-troubled sphere:
I see Heaven's glories shine,
And faith shines equal, arming me from fear.
"Last Lines" l. 1 (1846)
- 2 Cold in the earth—and fifteen wild Decembers,
From those brown hills, have melted into spring.
"Remembrance" l. 9 (1846)
- 3 Nelly, I am Heathcliff.
Wuthering Heights ch. 9 (1847)
- 4 He's [Heathcliff's] more myself than I am.
Whatever our souls are made of, his and mine are the same; and Linton's is as different as a moonbeam from lightning, or frost from fire.
Wuthering Heights ch. 9 (1847)
- 5 And I pray one prayer—I repeat it till my tongue stiffens—Catherine Earnshaw, may you not rest as long as I am living; you said I killed you—haunt me, then! The murdered do haunt their murderers, I believe. I know that ghosts have wandered on earth. Be with me always—take any form—drive me mad! only do not leave me in this abyss, where I cannot find you! Oh, God! it is unutterable! I cannot live without my life! I cannot live without my soul!

Wuthering Heights ch. 16 (1847)

- 6 I lingered round them, under that benign sky: watched the moths fluttering among the heath and harebells, listened to the soft wind breathing through the grass, and wondered how any one could ever imagine unquiet slumbers for the sleepers in that quiet earth.

Wuthering Heights ch. 34 (1847)

Esther Eberstadt Brooke

U.S. author, 1894–1987

- 1 Luck, if you will, is something you work for, and the harder you work the more luck you have.

Career Clinic pt. 3, ch. 2 (1940)

Rupert Brooke

English poet, 1887–1915

- 1 If I should die, think only this of me:
That there's some corner of a foreign field
That is for ever England.
"The Soldier" l. 1 (1914)
- 2 Well this side of Paradise! . . .
There's little comfort in the wise.
"Tiare Tahiti" l. 76 (1914). Ellipsis in original.

Anita Brookner

English novelist, 1928–2016

- 1 Dr. Weiss, at forty, knew that her life had been ruined by literature.
A Start in Life ch. 1 (1981)

Gwendolyn Brooks

U.S. poet, 1917–2000

- 1 Abortions will not let you forget.
You remember the children you got that you did not get.
"the mother" l. 1 (1945)
- 2 We
Sing sin. We Thin gin. We Jazz June. We Die soon.
"We Real Cool" l. 4 (1960)

Jack Brooks

English-born U.S. songwriter, 1912–1971

- 1 When the moon hits your eye
Like a big pizza pie,
That's amoré.
"That's Amoré (That's Love)" (song) (1953)

Mel Brooks (Melvin Kaminsky)

U.S. filmmaker and comedian, 1926–

- 1 [Leo Bloom, played by Gene Wilder, speaking:] It's simply a matter of creative accounting. Let's assume for a moment that you are a dishonest man. . . . It's very easy. You simply raise more money than you really need.

The Producers (motion picture) (1968)
- 3 [Max Bialystock, played by Zero Mostel, speaking:] A week? Are you kidding? This play has got to close on page four.
The Producers (motion picture) (1968)
- 4 [Franz Liebkind, played by Kenneth Mars, speaking:] Hitler was better looking than Churchill, he was a better dresser than Churchill, he had more hair, he told funnier jokes, and he could dance the pants off of Churchill.
The Producers (motion picture) (1968)
- 5 [Max Bialystock, played by Zero Mostel, speaking:] That's exactly why we want to produce this play. To show the world the true Hitler, the Hitler

- you loved, the Hitler you knew, the Hitler with a song in his heart.
The Producers (motion picture) (1968)
- 6 Springtime for Hitler and Germany,
Deutschland is happy and gay.
We're marching to a faster pace,
Look out, here comes the Master Race!
The Producers (motion picture) (1968)
- 7 [Roger De Bris, played by Christopher Hewett, speaking:] Will the dancing Hitlers please wait in the wings, we are only seeing singing Hitlers.
The Producers (motion picture) (1968)
- 8 [Max Bialystock, played by Zero Mostel, speaking:] How could this happen? I was so careful. I picked the wrong play, the wrong director, the wrong cast. Where did I go right?
The Producers (motion picture) (1968)
- 9 [Jury foreman, played by Bill Macy, returning verdict on Max Bialystock and Leo Bloom, played by Zero Mostel and Gene Wilder:] We find the defendants incredibly guilty.
The Producers (motion picture) (1968). The New Yorker Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Album, 1925–1950 (1951) includes a cartoon from the late 1940s in which a stern jury forewoman reads a verdict: "We find the defendant very, very guilty."
- 10 [Governor William J. Le Petomane, played by Mel Brooks, addressing his secretary's breasts:] Hello, boys . . . Have a good night's rest? . . . I missed you.
Blazing Saddles (motion picture) (1974)
- 11 [The Waco Kid, played by Gene Wilder, speaking:] You've got to remember that these are just simple farmers. These are people of the land. The common clay of the New West. You know—morons.
Blazing Saddles (motion picture) (1974)
- 12 [Lili von Shtupp, played by Madeline Kahn, speaking to black cowboy Bart, played by Cleavon Little:] Is it true how zey say zat you people are . . . gifted? Oh! It's twue! It's twue!
Blazing Saddles (motion picture) (1974)
- 13 [King Louis XVI, played by Mel Brooks, speaking:] It's good to be the king.
History of the World: Part I (motion picture) (1981)
- 14 Tragedy is when I cut my finger; comedy is when you walk into an open sewer and die.
Quoted in Portland Oregonian, 15 July 1973
- 15 Bad taste is simply saying the truth before it should be said.
Quoted in John Robert Columbo, Popcorn in Paradise (1980)
- Van Wyck Brooks
U.S. essayist and critic, 1886–1963
- 1 [Of Mark Twain:] His wife not only edited his works but edited him.
The Ordeal of Mark Twain ch. 5 (1920)
- Henry Peter Brougham
Scottish lawyer and politician, 1778–1868
- 1 An advocate, by the sacred duty which he owes his client, knows, in the discharge of that office, but one person in the world, that client and none other. To save that client . . . is the highest and most unquestioned of his duties; and he must not regard the alarm, the suffering, the torment, the destruction which he may bring upon any other. Nay . . . he must go on reckless of the consequences, if his fate it should unhappily be, to involve his country in confusion for his client's protection.
Argument at trial of Queen Caroline for adultery (1820). This speech was a veiled threat to King George IV that, if the king's bill of divorcement against the queen were pressed, Brougham would prove that George had forfeited his crown by secretly marrying a Roman Catholic.
- Heywood Broun
U.S. journalist, 1888–1939
- 1 The tragedy of life is not that man loses but that he almost wins.
Pieces of Hate and Other Enthusiasms ch. 11 (1922)
- 2 "Trees" maddens me, because it contains the most insincere line ever written by mortal man. Surely the Kilmer tongue must have been not far from the Kilmer cheek when he wrote, "Poems are made by fools like me."
It Seems to Me "'Trees,' 'If,' and 'Invictus'" (1935)
See Kilmer 2

- 3 Obscenity is such a tiny kingdom that a single tour covers it completely.

Quoted in Bennett Cerf, Shake Well Before Using (1948)

- 4 The censor believes that he can hold back the mighty traffic of life with a tin whistle and a raised right hand. For, after all, it is life with which he quarrels.

Quoted in Ezra Goodman, The Fifty-Year Decline and Fall of Hollywood (1961)

Heywood Hale Brown

U.S. sports broadcaster, 1918–2001

- 1 Sports doesn't build character. . . . Sports reveals character.

Quoted in Ames (Iowa) Daily Tribune, 16 Jan. 1974

A. Seymour Brown

U.S. songwriter, 1885–1947

- 1 Oh You Beautiful Doll.

Title of song (1911)

Manchild in the Promised Land foreword (1965)

Fredric Brown

U.S. science fiction writer, 1906–1972

- 1 He turned to face the machine. "Is there a God?"

The mighty voice answered without hesitation, without the clicking of a single relay.

"Yes, now there is a God."

"Answer" (1954)

Helen Gurley Brown

U.S. journalist and writer, 1922–2001

- 1 Sex and the Single Girl.

Title of book (1962)

- 2 Good girls go to heaven—bad girls go everywhere.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 19 Sept. 1982. The Cleveland Plain Dealer, 3 Jan. 1980, printed: "Spotted on a Terminal Tower T-shirt: Good girls go to heaven, but bad girls go everywhere."

Henry B. Brown

U.S. judge, 1836–1913

- 1 Legislation is powerless to eradicate racial instincts or to abolish distinctions based upon physical differences, and the attempt to do so can only result in accentuating the difficulties of the present situation. If the civil and political rights of both races be equal one cannot be inferior to the other civilly or politically. If one race be inferior to the other socially, the Constitution of the United States cannot put them upon the same plane.

Plessy v. Ferguson (1896)

H. Rap Brown

U.S. civil rights leader, 1943–

- 1 Violence . . . is as American as cherry pie.

Press conference at Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee headquarters, Washington, D.C., 27 July 1967

James Brown

U.S. singer, 1933–2006

- 1 Papa's Got a Brand New Bag.

- 3 What we want—soul power! What we need—soul power!

"Soul Power" (song) (1971)

John Brown

U.S. abolitionist, 1800–1859

- 1 Had I interfered in the manner, which I admit, and which I admit has been fairly proved . . . had I so interfered in behalf of any of the rich, the powerful, the intelligent, the so-called great . . . and suffered and sacrificed what I have in this interference, it would have been all right, and every man in this court would have deemed it an act worthy of reward rather than punishment.

Speech at trial for treason and insurrection, Charlestown, Va., 2 Nov. 1859

- 2 I say I am yet too young to understand that God is any respecter of persons. I believe that to have interfered as I have done . . . in behalf of His despised poor, is no wrong, but right. Now, if it is deemed necessary that I should forfeit my life for the furtherance of the ends of justice, and mingle my blood further with the blood of my children and with the blood of millions in this slave country whose rights are disregarded by wicked, cruel, and unjust enactments, I say let it be done.

Speech at trial for treason and insurrection, Charlestown, Va., 2 Nov. 1859
See Bible 333

- 3 I am fully persuaded that I am worth inconceivably more to hang for than for any other purpose.
Speech at trial for treason and insurrection, Charlestown, Va., 2 Nov. 1859
- 4 I, John Brown, am now quite certain that the crimes of this guilty land will never be purged away but with Blood.
Statement written on day of his execution, 2 Dec. 1859
- 5 This is a beautiful country.
Remark as Brown rode to the gallows seated on his coffin, Charlestown, Va., 2 Dec. 1859

John Mason Brown

U.S. critic, 1900–1969

- 1 TV seems to be chewing gum for the eyes.
Syracuse Herald-Journal, 21 Jan. 1955. Earlier, “chewing gum for the eyes” was used to refer to motion pictures by Henri Peyre in his book Writers and Their Critics: A Study of Misunderstanding (1944).

Lew Brown

U.S. songwriter, 1893–1958

- 1 Keep Your Sunny Side Up.
“Sunny Side Up” (song) (1929)
- 2 Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries.
Title of song (1931)
See Bombeck 2
- 3 Don’t Sit Under the Apple Tree with Anyone Else But Me.
Title of song (1942). Cowritten with Charles Tobias and Sam H. Stept.

Margaret Wise Brown

U.S. children’s book writer, 1910–1952

- 1 In the great green room
There was a telephone

And a red balloon
And a picture of—
The cow jumping over the moon.
Goodnight Moon (1947)

- 2 And a quiet old lady who was whispering “hush.”
Goodnight Moon (1947)
- 3 Goodnight stars
Goodnight air
Goodnight noises everywhere.
Goodnight Moon (1947)

Peter Brown

And I am a material girl.
“I Am a Material Girl” (song) (1984). Cowritten with Robert Rans.

Rita Mae Brown

U.S. writer, 1944–

- 1 The only queer people are those who don’t love anybody.
Speech at opening of Gay Olympics, San Francisco, Calif., 28 Aug. 1982
- 2 Insanity is doing the same thing over and over again, but expecting different results.
Sudden Death ch. 4 (1983). Earlier, “Insanity is repeating the same mistakes and expecting different results” appeared in a 1981 Narcotics Anonymous pamphlet (cited on the quoteinvestigator.com website).

- 3 Normal is the average of deviance.
Venus Envy ch. 21 (1993)

Sarah Frances Brown

U.S. [occupation unknown], 1913–2001

- 1 Twenty years from now you will be more disappointed by the things you didn’t do than by the ones you did do. So throw off the bowlines. Sail away from the safe harbor. Catch the trade winds in your sails. Explore. Dream. Discover.
Quoted in H. Jackson Brown, Jr., P.S. I Love You (1990). Sarah Frances Brown was H. Jackson Brown, Jr.’s mother. The quotation is frequently misattributed to Mark Twain.

T. E. Brown

English poet and educator, 1830–1897

- 1 A garden is a lovesome thing, God wot!
“My Garden” l. 1 (1893)

Thomas Brown

English satirist, 1663–1704

- 1 I do not love you, Dr. Fell,
But why I cannot tell;
But this I know full well,
I do not love you, Dr. Fell.
Works vol. 4 (1744). Adaptation of an epigram by Martial.
See Martial 1

Thomas Browne

English author and physician, 1605–1682

- 1 All things are artificial, for nature is the art of God.
Religio Medici pt. 1, sec. 16 (1643)
- 2 For the world, I count it not an inn, but a hospital; and a place not to live, but to die in.
Religio Medici pt. 2, sec. 11 (1643)
- 3 When the living might exceed the dead, and to depart this world could not be properly said to go unto the greater number.
Hydriotaphia Epistle Dedicatory (1658)
- 4 What song the Syrens sang, or what name Achilles assumed when he hid himself among women, though puzzling questions, are not beyond all conjecture.
Hydriotaphia ch. 5 (1658)

Elizabeth Barrett Browning

English poet, 1806–1861

- 1 And lips say, “God be pitiful,”
Who ne’er said, “God be praised.”
“The Cry of the Human” l. 7 (1844)
- 2 How do I love thee? Let me count the ways.
Sonnets from the Portuguese no. 43 (1850)
- 3 I love thee with the breath,
Smiles, tears, of all my life!—and if God
choose,
I shall but love thee better after death.
Sonnets from the Portuguese no. 43 (1850)

- 4 I should not dare to call my soul my own.
Aurora Leigh bk. 2, l. 786 (1857)
- 5 What was he doing, the great god Pan,
Down in the reeds by the river?
“A Musical Instrument” l. 1 (1862)

Frederick “Boy” Browning

British soldier, 1896–1965

- 1 [Speaking to Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery,
10 Sept. 1944, about the planned Arnhem “Market Garden” operation.] I think we might be going a bridge too far.
Attributed in R. E. Urquhart, Arnhem (1958).
According to Nigel Rees, Cassell’s Movie Quotations, “there is now a strong reason to doubt that Browning ever said any such thing.”

Robert Browning

English poet, 1812–1889

- 1 The year’s at the spring
And day’s at the morn;
Morning’s at seven;
The hill-side’s dew-pearled;
The lark’s on the wing;
The snail’s on the thorn:
God’s in his heaven—
All’s right with the world!
Pippa Passes pt. 1 (1841)
- 2 Then owls and bats
Cows and twats
Monks and nuns in a cloister’s moods,
Adjourn to the oak-stump pantry.
Pippa Passes pt. 4 (1841). Browning was misled into thinking the word twat referred to a piece of nun’s clothing by an anonymous 1660 poem, “Vanity of Vanities,” which included the lines: “They talk’t of his having a Cardinal’s Hat, / They’d send him as soon an Old Nuns Twat.”
- 3 That’s my last Duchess painted on the wall,
Looking as if she were alive.
“My Last Duchess” l. 1 (1842)
- 4 She had
A heart—how shall I say?—too soon made glad,
Too easily impressed; she liked whate’er
She looked on, and her looks went everywhere.
“My Last Duchess” l. 21 (1842)

- 5 She thanked men,—good! but thanked Somehow—I know not how—as if she ranked
My gift of a nine-hundred-year-old name
With anybody's gift.
“My Last Duchess” l. 31 (1842)
- 6 Oh sir, she smiled, no doubt,
Whene'er I passed her; but who passed without Much the same smile? This grew; I gave commands;
Then all smiles stopped together. There she stands
As if alive.
“My Last Duchess” l. 42 (1842)
- 7 Notice Neptune, though,
Taming a sea-horse, thought a rarity,
Which Claus of Innsbruck cast in bronze
for me!
“My Last Duchess” l. 54 (1842)
- 8 Oh, to be in England
Now that April's there.
“Home-Thoughts, from Abroad” l. 1 (1845)
- 9 That's the wise thrush; he sings each song twice over,
Lest you should think he never could recapture
The first fine careless rapture!
“Home-Thoughts, from Abroad” l. 14 (1845)
- 10 I sprang to the stirrup, and Joris, and he;
I galloped, Dirck galloped, we galloped all
three.
“How They Brought the Good News from Ghent to Aix” l. 1 (1845)
- 11 Just for a handful of silver he left us,
Just for a riband to stick in his coat.
“The Lost Leader” l. 1 (1845). Refers to William Wordsworth.
- 12 Well, less is more, Lucrezia.
“Andrea del Sarto” l. 78 (1855). Nigel Rees (*Quote . . .
Unquote Newsletter*, Oct. 1997) points out a precursor to this saying: “In January 1774 . . . Wieland in his Teutsche Merkur . . . wrote: ‘Und minder ist oft mehr’ [Less is often more].”
See Mies van der Rohe 1; Venturi 1
- 13 Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp,
Or what's a heaven for?
“Andrea del Sarto” l. 97 (1855)
- 14 Who knows but the world may end tonight?
“The Last Ride Together” l. 22 (1855)

- 15 Ah, did you once see Shelley plain,
And did he stop and speak to you
And did you speak to him again?
How strange it seems, and new!
“Memorabilia” l. 1 (1855)
- 16 It was roses, roses, all the way.
“The Patriot” l. 1 (1855)
- 17 What of soul was left, I wonder, when the kissing had to stop?
“A Toccata of Galuppi's” l. 42 (1855)
- 18 The best way to escape His ire
Is, not to seem too happy.
“Caliban upon Setebos” l. 256 (1864)
- 19 Grow old along with me!
The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which the first was made.
“Rabbi Ben Ezra” l. 1 (1864)

Susan Brownmiller

U.S. writer, 1935–

- 1 Man's discovery that his genitalia could serve as a weapon to generate fear must rank as one of the most important discoveries of prehistoric times, along with the use of fire and the first crude stone axe. From prehistoric times to the present, I believe, rape has played a critical function. It is nothing more or less than a conscious process of intimidation by which all men keep all women in a state of fear.
Against Our Will ch. 1 (1975)
- 2 My purpose in this book has been to give rape its history. Now we must deny it a future.
Against Our Will ch. 12 (1975)

Ed Bruce

U.S. songwriter and singer, 1939–2021

- 1 Mammas, Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to Be Cowboys.
Title of song (1978). Cowritten with Patsy Bruce.

Lenny Bruce (Leonard Alfred Schneider)

U.S. comedian, 1925–1966

- 1 People should be taught what is, not what should be. All my humor is based on destruction and despair. If the whole world were tranquil, without disease and violence, I'd be standing in the headline—right back of J. Edgar Hoover.

The Essential Lenny Bruce, ed. John Cohen, epigram (1967)

- 2 The halls of justice. That's the only place you see the justice, is in the halls.
The Essential Lenny Bruce, ed. John Cohen (1967)
- 3 Every day people are straying away from the church and going back to God.
The Essential Lenny Bruce, ed. John Cohen (1967)
- 4 [On his drug addiction:] I'll die young but it's like kissing God.
Quoted in Richard Neville, Playpower (1970)

Giordano Bruno (Filippo Bruno)

Italian philosopher, 1548–1600

- 1 He is glorified not in one, but in countless suns, not in a single earth, a single world, but in a thousand thousand, I say in an infinity of worlds.
On the Infinite Universe and Worlds introduction (1584)

Alfred Bryan

U.S. songwriter, ca. 1870–1958

- 1 I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier.
Title of song (1915)

William Jennings Bryan

U.S. politician, 1860–1925

- 1 I am in favor of an income tax. When I find a man who is not willing to bear his share of the burdens of the government which protects him, I find a man who is unworthy to enjoy the blessings of a government like ours.
Speech at Democratic National Convention, Chicago, Ill., 8 July 1896
- 2 There are those who believe that, if you will only legislate to make the well-to-do prosperous, their prosperity will leak through on those below. The Democratic idea, however, has been that if you make the masses prosperous, their prosperity will find its way up through every class, which rests upon them.
Speech at Democratic National Convention, Chicago, Ill., 8 July 1896
- 3 We will answer their demand for a gold standard by saying to them: You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns, you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold.

Speech at Democratic National Convention, Chicago, Ill., 8 July 1896. In an earlier speech in the House of Representatives, 22 Dec. 1894, Bryan had said: "I shall not help crucify mankind upon a cross of gold. I shall not aid in pressing down upon the bleeding brow of labor this crown of thorns."

William Cullen Bryant

U.S. poet and editor, 1794–1878

- 1 He who, from zone to zone,
Guides through the boundless sky thy certain flight,
In the long way that I must tread alone,
Will lead my steps aright.
"To a Waterfowl" l. 29 (1818)
- 2 To him who in the love of Nature holds
Communion with her visible forms, she speaks
A various language.
Thanatopsis l. 1 (1817–1821)

James Bryce

British statesman and historian, 1838–1922

- 1 To most people nothing is more troublesome than the effort of thinking.
Studies in History and Jurisprudence "Obedience" (1901)

Martin Buber

Austrian-born Israeli philosopher, 1878–1965

- 1 Through the Thou a person becomes I.
I and Thou (1923)

John Buchan, Baron Tweedsmuir

Scottish novelist and statesman, 1875–1940

- 1 It's a great life if you don't weaken.
Mr. Standfast ch. 5 (1919). Although this line is associated with Buchan, it appeared as a show-business saying as early as Variety, 27 Mar. 1914. The Chicago Tribune, 5 July 1914, credited singer Elizabeth Murray with supplying the same line to the libretto of the 1913 operatic farce High Jinks by Otto Hauerbach and Leo Dietrichstein.
- 2 I have heard an atheist defined as a man who has no invisible means of support.
Quoted in Law Journal, 2 Mar. 1935

Patrick J. Buchanan

U.S. politician, 1938–

- 1 [On AIDS:] The poor homosexuals . . . they have declared war upon nature, and now nature is exacting an awful retribution.
N.Y. Post, 24 May 1983

Georg Büchner

German playwright, 1813–1837

- 1 The Revolution is like Saturn, it devours its own children.
Danton's Death act 1, sc. 5 (1835)
See Vergniaud 1

Gene Buck

U.S. songwriter, 1885–1957

- 1 That Shakespearian rag,—
Most intelligent, very elegant.
“That Shakespearian Rag” (song) (1912). Cowritten with Herman Ruby.
See T. S. Eliot 48

Pearl S. Buck

U.S. writer, 1892–1973

- 1 It is better to be first with an ugly woman than the hundredth with a beauty.
The Good Earth ch. 1 (1931)
- 2 “Rest assured, our father, rest assured. The land is not to be sold.” But over the old man’s head they looked at each other and smiled.
The Good Earth ch. 34 (1931)
- 3 Yet somehow our society must make it right and possible for old people not to fear the young or be deserted by them, for the test of a civilization is in the way that it cares for its helpless members.

Canadian psychiatrist, 1837–1902

- 1 Cosmic consciousness.
Title of paper before American Medico-Psychological Association, Philadelphia, Pa., 18 May 1894

William F. Buckley, Jr.

U.S. editor and writer, 1925–2008

- 1 [The magazine National Review] stands athwart history yelling Stop.
National Review, 19 Nov. 1955
- 2 I would rather be governed by the first 2,000 people in the telephone directory than by the Harvard University faculty.
Quoted in Esquire, Jan. 1961
- 3 [Response when asked what he would do if he won his third-party bid to be elected mayor of New York:] I’d demand a recount.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 5 Sept. 1965

Michael Buffer

U.S. sports announcer, 1944–

- 1 [Catchphrase in announcing professional wrestling matches:] Let’s get ready to rumble!
Quoted in Newsday, 4 Feb. 1989

Warren Buffett

U.S. investor and businessman, 1930–

- 1 My friends and I have been coddled long enough by a billionaire-friendly Congress.
N.Y. Times op-ed article, 15 Aug. 2011
- 2 It’s only when the tide goes out that you learn who’s been swimming naked.
Quoted in U.S. News & World Report, 21 June 1993. Although this quotation is strongly associated with Buffett, it has been ascribed to others before 1993. The Economist, 27 Feb. 1988, attributed “You don’t know if someone is swimming naked until the tide goes out” to George Salem.
- 3 I’d be a bum on the street with a tin cup if the markets were always efficient.
Quoted in Fortune, 3 Apr. 1995

George-Louis Leclerc, Comte de Buffon

French naturalist, 1707–1788

Arthur Buller

Canadian botanist, 1874–1944

- 1 There was a young lady named Bright,
Whose speed was far faster than light;
She set out one day
In a relative way
And returned on the previous night.
“Relativity” l. 1 (1923)

Bernhard von Bülow

German chancellor, 1849–1929

- 1 We desire to throw no one into the shade [in East Asia], but we also demand our own place in the sun.
Speech in Reichstag, 6 Dec. 1897
See Pascal 4; Wilhelm II 1

Edward George Bulwer-Lytton

British novelist and politician, 1803–1873

- 1 [Opening line of book.] It was a dark and stormy night.
Paul Clifford ch. 1 (1830). Charles M. Schulz used this line, typed by the character Snoopy, recurrently in his comic strip Peanuts. The earliest appearance there was 12 July 1965.
- 2 In other countries poverty is a misfortune—with us it is a crime.
England and the English (1833)
- 3 Beneath the rule of men entirely great,
The pen is mightier than the sword.
Richelieu act 2, sc. 2 (1839). The Oxford Dictionary of Proverbs documents similar formulations going back to 1582 (“The dashe of a Pen, is more greuous then the counter use of a Launce” [George Whetstone, Heptameron of Civil Discourses]).
See Robert Burton 3
- 4 In the lexicon of youth, which fate reserves
For a bright manhood, there is no such word
As—fail.

Samuel Dickinson Burchard

U.S. clergyman, 1812–1891

- 1 We are Republicans and don't propose to leave our party and identify ourselves with the party whose antecedents are rum, Romanism, and rebellion.

Speech at Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York, N.Y., 29 Oct. 1884. Robert G. Caldwell, James A. Garfield (1931), quotes an 1876 letter by Garfield in which he attributed the apparent election victory of Samuel Tilden to “the combined power of rebellion, Catholicism, and whiskey.”

Julie Burchill

English journalist and writer, 1960–

- 1 The freedom women were supposed to have found in the Sixties largely boiled down to easy contraception and abortion: things to make life easier for men, in fact.

Damaged Goods “Born Again Cows” (1986)

- 2 Now, at last, this sad, glittering century has an image worthy of it: a wandering, wondering girl, a silly Sloane turned secular saint, coming home in her coffin to RAF Northolt like the good soldier she was.

Guardian, 2 Sept. 1997

Robert Jones Burdette

U.S. clergyman and humorist, 1844–1914

- 1 Don’t believe the world owes you a living. The world owes you nothing. It was here first.

Quoted in Evening Observer (Dunkirk, N.Y.), 1 Feb. 1883

Eugene Burdick

U.S. writer, 1918–1965

- 1 The Ugly American.

Title of book (1958). Coauthored with William Lederer.

Hannibal Buress

U.S. comedian, 1983–

- 1 [Of Bill Cosby:] He gets on TV, “Pull your pants up black people, I was on TV in the 80s! I can talk down to you because I had a successful sitcom!” Yeah, but you rape women, Bill Cosby, so turn the crazy down a couple notches.

Comedy performance, Philadelphia, Pa., 17 Oct. 2014. Buress’s remarks were influential in publicizing accusations of sexual assault against Cosby.

Anthony Burgess (John Wilson)

English novelist and critic, 1917–1993

- 1 Then I looked at its top sheet, and there was the name—A CLOCKWORK ORANGE . . . —“The attempt to impose upon man, a creature of growth and capable of sweetness, to ooze juicily at the last round the bearded lips of God, to attempt to impose, I say, laws and conditions appropriate to a mechanical creation, against this I raise my sword-pen—.”

A Clockwork Orange pt. 1, ch. 2 (1962)

- 2 But, gentlemen, enough of words. Actions speak louder than. Action now.

A Clockwork Orange pt. 2, ch. 7 (1962)

- 3 I was cured all right.

A Clockwork Orange pt. 3, ch. 6 (1962)

- 4 It was the afternoon of my eighty-first birthday, and I was in bed with my catamite when Ali announced that the archbishop had come to see me.

Earthly Powers ch. 1 (1980)

Gelett Burgess

U.S. humorist and illustrator, 1866–1951

- 1 I never saw a Purple Cow,
I never hope to see one;
But I can tell you, anyhow,
I’d rather see than be one!

“The Purple Cow” l. 1 (1895)

See Gelett Burgess 8

- 2 Are you a Goop, or are you Not?

For, although it’s Fun to See them,
It is TERRIBLE to Be them.

Goops and How to Be Them (1900)

- 3 The Goops they lick their fingers,
And the Goops they lick their knives,
They spill their broth on the tablecloth—
Oh, they lead disgusting lives!

Goops and How to Be Them (1900)

- 4 Are You a Bromide?

Title of book (1906). Gave rise to the term bromide meaning “commonplace statement.”

- 5 It isn’t so much the heat . . . as the humidity.

Are You a Bromide? (1906). Presumably not original with Burgess.

6 [Included in list of familiar “bromides”:] I don’t know much about Art, but I know what I like.
Are You a Bromide? (1906). Burgess listed this as number 1 in his collection of “bromides” (clichés), so it clearly was not originated by him. Scribner’s Monthly, Feb. 1877, has: “When a person prefaces his opinion of a picture or of a piece of music, with this formula,—‘I don’t profess to know anything about art (or music), but I know what I like,’—then look out for dogmatism of the most flagrant sort.”
 See Thurber 12

7 YES, this is a “BLURB”! All the other publishers commit them. Why shouldn’t we?
 Dust jacket for Are You a Bromide? (1907). Earliest usage of the word blurb. This dust jacket, with a portrait of “Miss Belinda Blurb,” was apparently specially added to copies of the 1906 book distributed at the 1907 annual dinner of the American Booksellers’ Association.

8 Ah, yes! I wrote the “Purple Cow”—
 I’m sorry, now, I wrote it!
 But I can tell you anyhow,
 I’ll kill you if you quote it!

Billie Burke

U.S. actress, 1884–1970

1 Age [doesn’t matter] unless you’re a cheese.
 Quoted in Baltimore Sun, 8 Nov. 1959

Edmund Burke

British philosopher and statesman, 1729–1797

- 1 When bad men combine, the good must associate; else they will fall, one by one, an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle.
Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770)
 See Edmund Burke 28; Mill 18
- 2 We set ourselves to bite the hand that feeds us.
Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770)
- 3 Here this extraordinary man [Charles Townsend], then Chancellor of the Exchequer, found himself in great straits. To please universally was the object of his life; but to tax and to please, no more than to love and to be wise, is not given to men. However he attempted it.
 Speech on American Taxation, 19 Apr. 1774

- 4 He was bred to the law, which is, in my opinion, one of the first and noblest of human sciences; a science which does more to quicken and invigorate the understanding, than all the other kinds of learning put together; but it is not apt, except in persons very happily born, to open and liberalize the mind exactly in the same proportion.
 Speech on American Taxation, 19 Apr. 1774
- 5 Your representative owes you, not his industry only, but his judgement; and he betrays, instead of serving you, if he sacrifices it to your opinion.
 Speech to electors of Bristol, 3 Nov. 1774
- 6 [Of the American colonies:] In no country, perhaps, in the world is the law so general a study.
 “On Moving His Resolutions for Conciliation with the Colonies,” 22 Mar. 1775
- 7 This study [of law] renders men acute, inquisitive, dexterous, prompt in attack, ready in defense, full of resources. In other countries, the people, more simple, and of a less mercurial cast, judge of an ill principle in government only by an actual grievance; here they anticipate the evil, and judge of the pressure of the grievance by the badness of

- the principle. They augur misgovernment at a distance, and snuff the approach of tyranny in every tainted breeze.
 “On Moving His Resolutions for Conciliation with the Colonies,” 22 Mar. 1775
- 8 I do not know the method of drawing up an indictment against an whole people.
 “On Moving His Resolutions for Conciliation with the Colonies,” 22 Mar. 1775
- 9 It is not, what a lawyer tells me I may do; but what humanity, reason, and justice, tells me I ought to do.
 “On Moving His Resolutions for Conciliation with the Colonies,” 22 Mar. 1775
- 10 All government, indeed every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act, is founded on compromise and barter. We balance inconveniences; we give and take; we remit some rights, that we may enjoy others; and we choose rather to be happy citizens than subtle disputants.
 “On Moving His Resolutions for Conciliation with the Colonies,” 22 Mar. 1775
- 11 The people are the masters.
 Speech in House of Commons, 11 Feb. 1780
- 12 Bad laws are the worst sort of tyranny.
 Speech at the Guildhall, Bristol, England, 6 Sept. 1780
- 13 A state without the means of some change is without the means of its conservation.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 14 People will not look forward to posterity, who never look backward to their ancestors.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 15 To be attached to the subdivision, to love the little platoon we belong to in society, is the first principle (the germ, as it were) of public affections. It is the first link in the series by which we proceed towards a love to our country and to mankind.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 16 It is said that twenty-four millions ought to prevail over two hundred thousand. True, if the constitution of a kingdom be a problem of arithmetic.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 17 I thought ten thousand swords must have leapt from their scabbards to avenge even a look that threatened her [Queen Marie Antoinette] with insult.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 18 The age of chivalry is gone.—That of sophisters, economists, and calculators, has succeeded; and the glory of Europe is extinguished for ever.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 19 Because half a dozen grasshoppers under a fern make the field ring with their importunate chink, whilst thousands of great cattle, reposed beneath the shadow of the British oak, chew the cud and are silent, pray do not imagine that those who make the noise are the only inhabitants of the field.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 20 Society is indeed a contract. . . . As the ends of such a partnership cannot be obtained in many generations, it becomes a partnership not only between those who are living, but between those who are living, those who are dead, and those who are to be born.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 21 Superstition is the religion of feeble minds.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 22 He that wrestles with us strengthens our nerves, and sharpens our skill. Our antagonist is our helper.
Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)
- 23 Old religious factions are volcanoes burnt out.
 Speech on Petition of the Unitarians, 11 May 1792
- 24 To innovate is not to reform. The French revolutionists complained of everything; they refused to reform anything, and they left nothing, no, nothing at all, unchanged.
A Letter to a Noble Lord (1796)
- 25 Falsehood and delusion are allowed in no case whatsoever: But, as in the exercise of all the virtues, there is an economy of truth.
Two Letters on the Proposals for Peace with the Regicide Directory pt. 1 (1796)
 See Robert Armstrong 1; Twain 86
- 26 Manners are of more importance than laws. . . . Manners are what vex or soothe, corrupt or purify, exalt or debase, barbarize or refine us, by a constant, steady, uniform, insensible operation, like that of the air we breathe in. They give their whole form and color to our lives.

“Three Letters to a Member of Parliament on the Proposals for Peace with the Regicide Directory of France” (1796–1797)

- 27 [On the younger William Pitt’s maiden speech in Parliament, Feb. 1781:] Not merely a chip of the old “block,” but the old block itself.

Quoted in Nathaniel W. Wraxall, Historical Memoirs of My Own Time (1904)

- 28 The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men should do nothing.

Attributed in Volume of Proceedings of the Fourth International Congregational Council (1921).

Frequently attributed to Burke but never traced in his writings. The closest Burke passage appears to be the one cross-referenced below. Garson O’Toole has found that the San Jose Mercury Herald, 31 Oct. 1916, quoted a speech by Charles F. Aked stating: “It has been said that for evil men to accomplish their purpose it is only necessary that good men should do nothing.”

See Edmund Burke 1; Mill 18

Johnny Burke

U.S. songwriter, 1908–1964

- 1 Ev’ry time it rains, it rains
Pennies from heaven.
Don’t you know each cloud contains
Pennies from heaven?
“Pennies from Heaven” (song) (1936)

Tarana Burke

U.S. social activist, 1973–

Thomas E. Burnett, Jr.

U.S. businessman, 1963–2001

- 1 [Telephone call to his wife from hijacked airplane, 11 Sept. 2001:] I know we’re all going to die—there’s three of us who are going to do something about it.
Quoted in S.F. Chronicle, 12 Sept. 2001

W. R. Burnett

U.S. author, 1899–1982

- 1 “Mother of God,” he said, “is this the end of Rico?”

Little Caesar pt. 7 (1929). In the 1930 film the line is “Mother of Mercy, is this the end of Rico?”

- 2 The Asphalt Jungle.

Title of book (1949). The Oxford English Dictionary records an earlier usage of this phrase in George Ade, Hand-Made Fables (1920): “After the newly arrived Delegate from the Asphalt Jungles had read a Telegram . . . he . . . sauntered back to the Bureau of Information.”

See Evan Hunter 1

Fanny Burney

English novelist and diarist, 1752–1840

- 1 [Of a wedding:] O! how short a time does it take to put an end to a woman’s liberty!
Diary, 20 July 1768
- 2 Travelling is the ruin of all happiness! There’s no looking at a building here after seeing Italy.
Cecilia bk. 4, ch. 2 (1782)
- 3 “The whole of this unfortunate business,” said Dr. Lyster, “has been the result of PRIDE AND PREJUDICE.”
Cecilia bk. 10, ch. 10 (1782)
- 4 A little alarm now and then keeps life from stagnation.
Camilla bk. 3, ch. 11 (1796)

Daniel Burnham

U.S. architect, 1846–1912

- 1 Make no little plans; they have no magic to stir men’s blood.
Quoted in Louisville Courier-Journal, 20 Oct. 1910. This is said by the Courier-Journal to be “From an address by Architect Daniel H. Burnham, of Chicago, at the town-planning conference in London, published in the Chicago Record-Herald.”

George Burns (Nathan Birnbaum)

U.S. comedian, 1896–1996

- 1 Too bad that all the people who know how to run the country are busy driving taxicabs and cutting hair.
Quoted in Life, Dec. 1979
- 2 The main thing about acting is honesty. If you can fake that, you've got it made.
Quoted in Playboy, Mar. 1984. Often ascribed to Burns, but the Morning Advocate (Baton Rouge, La.), 6 Apr. 1962, quoted an anonymous actor: "Honesty . . . just as soon as I can learn to fake that, I'll have it made."

Robert Burns

Scottish poet, 1759–1796

- 1 Man's inhumanity to man
Makes countless thousands mourn!
"Man Was Made to Mourn" st. 7 (1786)
- 2 O wad some Pow'r the giftie gie us
To see oursels as others see us!
It wad frae mony a blunder free us,
And foolish notion.
"To a Louse" st. 8 (1786)
- 3 The best laid schemes o' mice an' men
Gang aft a-gley.
"To a Mouse" l. 39 (1786). Often misquoted as "best laid plans."
See Dickens 67; Disraeli 7; Modern Proverbs 100; Orwell 17; Plautus 3; Proverbs 2; Sayings 25
- 4 His locked, lettered, braw brass collar,
Shew'd him the gentleman and scholar.
"The Twa Dogs" l. 13 (1786)
- 5 A man's a man for a' that.
"For a' That and a' That" l. 12 (1790)
- 6 My heart's in the Highlands, my heart is not here;
My heart's in the Highlands a-chasing the deer;
Chasing the wild deer, and following the roe,
My heart's in the Highlands, wherever I go.
"My Heart's in the Highlands" l. 1 (1790)
- 7 The mirth and fun grew fast and furious.
"Tam o' Shanter" l. 143 (1791)
- 8 Should auld acquaintance be forgot
And never brought to mind?
"Auld Lang Syne" l. 1 (1796). James Watson, Choice Collection of Comic and Serious Scots Poems

(1711), contains a ballad beginning: "Should old acquaintance be forgot, / And never thought upon, / The flames of love extinguished, / And freely past and gone? / Is thy kind heart now grown so cold / In that loving breast of thine, / That thou canst never once reflect / On old-long-syne?"

- 9 We'll tak a cup o' kindness yet,
For auld lang syne.
"Auld Lang Syne" l. 7 (1796). The phrase "auld lang syne" appears in Scotch Presbyterian Eloquence Display'd (1694): "The good God said, Jonah, now billy Jonah, wilt thou go to Nineveh, for Auld lang syne (old kindness)."
- 10 Gin a body meet a body
Comin thro' the rye,
Gin a body kiss a body
Need a body cry?
"Comin Thro' the Rye" (song) (1796). The extent to which this song was original with Burns, as opposed to being a folk song collected by him, is uncertain.
See Salinger 4
- 11 O, my Luve's like a red, red rose
That's newly sprung in June;
O my Luve's like the melodie
That's sweetly play'd in tune.
"A Red Red Rose" l. 1 (1796). Based on various folk songs.

Aaron Burr

U.S. politician, 1756–1836

- 1 Law is whatever is boldly asserted and plausibly maintained.
Quoted in James Parton, Life and Times of Aaron Burr, 7th ed. (1858)

Edgar Rice Burroughs

U.S. writer, 1875–1950

- 1 That night a little son was born in the tiny cabin beside the primeval forest, while a leopard screamed before the door, and the deep notes of a lion's roar sounded from beyond the ridge.
Tarzan of the Apes ch. 3 (1914)
- 2 The Land That Time Forgot.
Title of short story (1924)
- 3 We wish to escape not alone the narrow confines of city streets for the freedom of the wilderness, but the restrictions of man made laws, and the inhibitions that society has placed upon us. We would like to picture ourselves as roaming free, the lords of ourselves and of our world; in other words, we would each like to be Tarzan. At least I would; I admit it.

"The Tarzan Theme," Writer's Digest, June 1932

William S. Burroughs

U.S. novelist, 1914–1997

- 1 The title means exactly what the words say:
NAKED Lunch—a frozen moment when everyone sees what is on the end of every fork.
Naked Lunch introduction (1959)
- 2 Junk is the ideal product . . . the ultimate merchandise. No sales talk necessary. The client will crawl through a sewer and beg to buy.
Naked Lunch (1959)
- 3 Just look there (another Heavy Metal Boy sank through the earth's crust and we got some good pictures . . .).
The Soft Machine (1961). Earliest usage of the modern term heavy metal.
See Bonfire 1
- 4 Kerouac opened a million coffee bars and sold a million pairs of Levis to both sexes. Woodstock rises from his pages.
The Adding Machine "Remembering Jack Kerouac" (1985)
- 5 A paranoid is someone who has all the facts.
Quoted in Toronto Star, 22 Apr. 1989

Nat Burton (Nat Schwartz)

U.S. songwriter, 1901–1945

- 1 There'll be bluebirds over the white cliffs of Dover, Tomorrow, just you wait and see.
"The White Cliffs of Dover" (song) (1941)

Richard Francis Burton

English explorer, folklorist, and writer, 1821–1890

- 1 I have struggled for forty-seven years, distinguishing myself honorably in every way that I possibly could. I never had a compliment, nor a "thank you," nor a single farthing. I translate a doubtful book [the Arabian Nights] in my old age, and I immediately make sixteen thousand guineas. Now that I know the tastes of England, we need never be without money.

Quoted in Isabel Burton, The Life of Captain Sir Richard F. Burton (1893)

Robert Burton

English clergyman and scholar, 1577–1640

Barbara Bush

U.S. First Lady, 1925–2018

- 1 [Of Democratic vice-presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro:] That $4 million—I can't say it, but it rhymes with rich.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 9 Oct. 1984

George Herbert Walker Bush

U.S. president, 1924–2018

- 1 [Of Ronald Reagan's proposals to increase government revenues by reducing taxes:] Voodoo economics.
Campaign remarks, New Haven, Conn., Mar. 1980. Bush, after becoming Reagan's running mate, denied having used this term, but had to acknowledge having done so after the media produced evidence including footage of his referring to "voodoo economic policy" during an address on 10 Apr. 1980 at Carnegie Mellon University, Pittsburgh, Pa.
- 2 [On the Iran-Contra scandal:] Clearly, mistakes were made.
Speech to American Enterprise Institute, Washington, D.C., 3 Dec. 1986
- 3 We are a nation of communities, of tens and tens of thousands of ethnic, religious, social, business, labor union, neighborhood, regional, and other organizations, all of them varied, voluntary, and unique . . . a brilliant diversity spread like stars, like a thousand points of light in a broad and peaceful sky.
Acceptance speech at Republican National Convention, New Orleans, La., 18 Aug. 1988. Bush's speechwriter, Peggy Noonan, may have drawn the phrase "a thousand points of light" from the writings of Thomas Wolfe, with which she was familiar. Wolfe's novels include at least three similar expressions: "a thousand tiny points of bluish light" (Look Homeward, Angel [1929]), "a thousand points of friendly light" (The Web and the Rock [1939]), and "ten thousand points of light" (You Can't Go Home Again [1940]). Ralph Keyes, The Quote Verifier, presents citations to several usages of "a thousand points of light" going back to 1866.

Acceptance speech at Republican National Convention, New Orleans, La., 18 Aug. 1988. New York Governor Mario Cuomo, in a commencement address at Barnard College quoted in Christian Science Monitor, June 21, 1983, expressed hope to the graduates "that you will be wiser than we are, kinder, gentler, more caring."
See George H. W. Bush 6; Film Lines 91
- 6 America is never wholly herself unless she is engaged in high moral purpose. We as a people have such a purpose today. It is to make kinder the face of the nation and gentler the face of the world.

Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1989
See George H. W. Bush 5; Film Lines 91

- 7 Time and again in this century, the political map of the world was transformed. And in each instance, a new world order came about through the advent of a new tyrant, or the outbreak of a bloody global war, or its end. Now the world has undergone another upheaval, but this time, there's no war.

George W. Bush

U.S. president, 1946–

- 1 Now, some say it is unfair to hold disadvantaged children to rigorous standards. I say it is discrimination to require anything less—the soft bigotry of low expectations.
Remarks to Latin American Business Association, Los Angeles, Calif., 2 Sept. 1999
- 2 Rarely is the question asked: Is our children learning?
Speech, Florence, S.C., 11 Jan. 2000

- 3 To those of you who received honors, awards and distinctions, I say well done. And to the C students, I say you, too, can be president of the United States.
Commencement address at Yale University, New Haven, Conn., 21 May 2001
- 4 We will make no distinction between terrorists who committed these acts and those who harbor them.
Televised address, 12 Sept. 2001
- 5 [After a person in the crowd yelled “I can’t hear you”:] I can hear you. The rest of the world hears you. And the people who knocked these buildings down will hear all of us soon.
Remarks at World Trade Center site, New York, N.Y., 14 Sept. 2001
- 6 It is time for us to win the first war of the 21st century.
Press conference, 16 Sept. 2001
- 7 I want justice. And there’s an old poster out West, that I recall, that said, “Wanted, Dead or Alive.”
Remarks at Pentagon, Arlington, Va., 17 Sept. 2001
- 8 We will not tire, we will not falter, and we will not fail.
Address to joint session of Congress, 20 Sept. 2001
See Winston Churchill 19

- 9 Whether we bring our enemies to justice or bring justice to our enemies, justice will be done.
Address to joint session of Congress, 20 Sept. 2001
- 10 We have seen their kind before. They're the heirs of all the murderous ideologies of the 20th century. By sacrificing human life to serve their radical visions, by abandoning every value except the will to power, they follow in the path of fascism, Nazism, and totalitarianism. And they will follow that path all the way to where it ends in history's unmarked grave of discarded lies.
Address to joint session of Congress, 20 Sept. 2001
- 11 The course of this conflict is not known, yet its outcome is certain. Freedom and fear, justice and cruelty, have always been at war, and we know that God is not neutral between them.
Address to joint session of Congress, 20 Sept. 2001
- 12 States like these [Iraq, Iran, and North Korea] and their terrorist allies constitute an axis of evil, arming to threaten the peace of the world.
State of the Union Address, 29 Jan. 2002
- 13 All the world now faces a test, and the United Nations a difficult and defining moment. Are Security Council resolutions to be honored and enforced, or cast aside without consequence? Will the United Nations serve the purpose of its founding or will it be irrelevant?
Speech to United Nations General Assembly, New York, N.Y., 12 Sept. 2002
- 14 The British government has learned that Saddam Hussein recently sought significant quantities of uranium from Africa.
State of the Union message, 28 Jan. 2003
- 15 Saddam Hussein and his sons must leave Iraq within 48 hours. Their refusal to do so will result in military conflict, commenced at a time of our choosing.
Broadcast address, 17 Mar. 2003
- 16 My fellow Americans: Major combat operations in Iraq have ended. In the battle of Iraq, the United States and our allies have prevailed.
Address to the nation from USS Abraham Lincoln, 1 May 2003
- 17 I'm the master of low expectations.
Press interview, 4 June 2003
- 18 [On Iraqi militants attacking U.S. forces:] My answer is bring them on.
Remarks to press corps, Washington, D.C., 2 July 2003
- 19 Our enemies are innovative and resourceful, and so are we. They never stop thinking about new ways to harm our country and our people, and neither do we.
Remarks at signing of Department of Defense appropriations bill, 5 Aug. 2004
- 20 I earned capital in the campaign, political capital, and now I intend to spend it.
News conference, 4 Nov. 2004
- 21 Brownie, you're doing a heck of a job.
Remark to Federal Emergency Management Agency head Michael D. Brown after Hurricane Katrina, Mobile, Ala., 2 Sept. 2005
- 22 I'm the decider.
Remarks to press, Apr. 18, 2006
- 23 [Of his youthful indiscretions:] When I was young and irresponsible I was young and irresponsible.
Quoted in Newsweek, 2 Nov. 1998
- 24 I know how hard it is for you to put food on your family.
Quoted in N.Y. Daily News, 19 Feb. 2000
- 25 When I take action, I'm not going to fire a two-million-dollar missile at a ten-dollar empty tent and hit a camel in the butt. It's going to be decisive.
Quoted in Newsweek, 24 Sept. 2001
- 26 [Of requests to give Iraq more time to disarm:] This looks like a rerun of a bad movie and I'm not interested in watching it.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 22 Jan. 2003
- 27 [Explaining why he did not consult his father, former President George H. W. Bush, on the decision to go to war with Iraq in 2003:] There is a higher father that I appeal to.
Quoted in Bob Woodward, Plan of Attack (2004)

John Ellis “Jeb” Bush

U.S. politician, 1953–

- 1 [Of Donald Trump:] He's a chaos candidate. And he'd be a chaos president.

"Furor Scribendi" (1993)

Robert N. Butler

U.S. physician, 1927–2010

- I We shall soon have to consider . . . a form of bigotry we now tend to overlook: age discrimination or age-ism, prejudice by one age group toward other age groups.

Gerontologist, Winter 1969. Coinage of the word ageism.

Samuel Butler

English poet, 1612–1680

- I For Justice, though she's painted blind,
Is to the weaker side inclined.

Hudibras pt. 3, canto 3, l. 709 (1680)

Samuel Butler

English novelist, 1835–1902

- I A hen is only an egg's way of making another egg.

Life and Habit ch. 8 (1877)

- 2 Stowed away in a Montreal lumber room
The Discobolus standeth and turneth his face to the wall;

Dusty, cobweb-covered, maimed, and set at naught,

Beauty crieth in the attic and no man regardeth:

O God! O Montreal!

"A Psalm of Montreal" l. 1 (1878)

- 3 It was very good of God to let Carlyle and Mrs. Carlyle marry one another and so make only two people miserable instead of four.

Letter to E. M. A. Savage, 21 Nov. 1884

- 4 Some boys are born stupid; some achieve stupidity; and some have stupidity thrust upon them.

The Way of All Flesh ch. 1 (1903)

See Heller 4; Shakespeare 244

- 5 The family is a survival of the principle which is more logically embodied in the compound animal. . . . I would do with the family among mankind what nature has done with the compound animal, and confine it to the lower and less progressive races.

The Way of All Flesh ch. 24 (1903)

- 6 Sensible people get the greater part of their own dying done during their own lifetime. A man at five and thirty should no more regret not having had a happier childhood than he should regret not having been born a prince of the blood.

The Way of All Flesh ch. 24 (1903)

- 7 There are two classes of people in this world, those who sin, and those who are sinned against; if a man must belong to either, he had better belong to the first than to the second.

The Way of All Flesh ch. 26 (1903)

- 8 If there are one or two good ones in a very large family, it is as much as can be expected.

The Way of All Flesh ch. 66 (1903)

- 9 A man first quarrels with his father about three-quarters of a year before he is born.

David Byrne

Scottish-born U.S. rock musician, 1952–

- 1 And you may find yourself behind the wheel of a large automobile
And you may find yourself in a beautiful house
With a beautiful wife
And you may ask yourself
Well, how did I get here?
“Once in a Lifetime” (song) (1980). Cowritten with Brian Eno.
- 2 And you may ask yourself
What is that beautiful house?
And you may ask yourself
Where does that highway go?
And you may ask yourself
Am I right? . . . Am I wrong?
And you may tell yourself
MY GOD! . . . WHAT HAVE I DONE?
“Once in a Lifetime” (song) (1980). Cowritten with Brian Eno.

John Byrom

English poet, 1692–1763

- 1 Some say, that Signor Bononcini,
Compared to Handel’s a mere ninny;
Others aver, that to him Handel
Is scarcely fit to hold a candle.
Strange! that such high dispute should be

Letter to Caroline Lamb, 18 Oct. 1812
- 3 When one subtracts from life infancy (which is vegetation),—sleep, eating, and swilling—buttoning and unbuttoning—how much remains of downright existence? The summer of a dormouse.

Journal, 7 Dec. 1813

- 4 I wonder how the deuce any body could make such a world; for what purpose dandies, for instance, were ordained—and kings—and fellows of colleges—and women of “a certain age”—and many men of any age—and myself, most of all!
Journal, 14 Feb. 1814
- 5 The Assyrian came down like the wolf on the fold,
And his cohorts were gleaming in purple and gold;
And the sheen of their spears was like stars on the sea,

- 14 There were his young barbarians all at play,
There was their Dacian mother—he, their sire,
Butchered to make a Roman holiday.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage canto 4, st. 141 (1818)
- 15 Roll on, thou deep and dark blue Ocean—roll!
Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain;
Man marks the earth with ruin—his control
Stops with the shore.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage canto 4, st. 179 (1818)
- 16 And Coleridge, too, has lately taken wing,
But, like a hawk encumbered with his hood,
Explaining metaphysics to the nation—
I wish he would explain his explanation.
Don Juan canto 1, dedication st. 2 (written 1818)
- 17 What men call gallantry, and gods adultery,
Is much more common where the climate's sultry.
Don Juan canto 1, st. 63 (written 1818)
- 18 Christians have burnt each other, quite persuaded
That all the Apostles would have done as they did.
Don Juan canto 1, st. 83 (written 1818)
- 19 But who, alas! can love, and then be wise?
Not that remorse did not oppose temptation;
A little still she strove, and much repented,
And whispering "I will ne'er consent"— consented.
Don Juan canto 1, st. 117 (written 1818)

'Tis woman's whole existence.
Don Juan canto 1, st. 194 (written 1818)
See Stael 1
- 21 I have been more ravished myself than any body since the Trojan war.
Letter to Richard B. Hoppner, 29 Oct. 1819
- 22 Such writing [John Keats's] is a sort of mental masturbation—he is always f—gg—g his imagination.—I don't mean that he is indecent but viciously soliciting his own ideas into a state which is neither poetry nor any thing else but a Bedlam vision produced by raw pork and opium.
Letter to John Murray, 9 Nov. 1820
- 23 In her first passion woman loves her lover,
In all the others all she loves is love.
Don Juan canto 3, st. 3 (1821)
- 24 Think you, if Laura had been Petrarch's wife,
He would have written sonnets all his life?
Don Juan canto 3, st. 8 (1821)
- 25 And if I laugh at any mortal thing,
'Tis that I may not weep.
Don Juan canto 4, st. 4 (1821)
- 26 "Who killed John Keats?"
"I," said the Quarterly,
So savage and Tartarly;
"Twas one of my feats."

- 30 And after all, what is a lie? ’Tis but
The truth in masquerade.
Don Juan canto 11, st. 37 (1823)
- 31 John Keats, who was kill’d off by one critique,
Just as he really promis’d something great . . .
’Tis strange the mind, that very fiery particle,
Should let itself be snuffed out by an article.
Don Juan canto 11, st. 60 (1823)
See Byron 26
- 32 The English winter—ending in July,
To recommence in August.
Don Juan canto 13, st. 42 (1823)
- 33 ’Tis strange—but true; for truth is always strange;
Stranger than fiction.
Don Juan canto 14, st. 101 (1823)
See Chesterton 6; Twain 93
- 34 The tribe of Barabbas was unquestionably a bookseller.
Quoted in Leigh Hunt, Lord Byron and Some of His Contemporaries (1828). The later, commonly reported story was that Byron, upon receiving a Bible from his publisher, John Murray, returned it to Murray with the words “Now Barabbas was a robber” altered to “Now Barabbas was a publisher.” This anecdote is improbable on a number of accounts.
See Bible 328
- 35 I awoke one morning and found myself famous.
Quoted in Thomas Moore, Letters and Journals of Lord Byron (1830). Byron wrote this in his Memoranda after the first two cantos of his poem Childe Harold’s Pilgrimage were published in 1812 and became sensationally popular.

James Branch Cabell

U.S. novelist and essayist, 1879–1958

- 1 The optimist proclaims that we live in the best of all possible worlds; and the pessimist fears this is true.

Irving Caesar

U.S. songwriter, 1895–1996

- 1 Picture you upon my knee,
Just tea for two and two for tea.
“Tea for Two” (song) (1924)

Julius Caesar

Roman statesman and general, 100 B.C.–44 B.C.

- 1 Gallia est omnis divisa in partes tres.
All Gaul is divided into three parts.
De Bello Gallico bk. 1, sec. 1
- 2 Men are nearly always willing to believe what they wish.
De Bello Gallico bk. 3, sec. 18. Demosthenes, Third Olynthiac sec. 19, had earlier said: “Nothing is easier than self-deceit. For what each man wishes, that he also believes to be true.”

- 3 I wished my wife to be not so much as suspected.

Quoted in Plutarch, Parallel Lives. Refers to Caesar's wife Pompeia after he divorced her on the basis of unfounded aspersions; famous in the form “Caesar's wife must be above suspicion.”

- 4 I had rather be the first man among those fellows than the second man in Rome.

Quoted in Plutarch, Parallel Lives

- 5 [Proverb quoted by Caesar as he crossed the Rubicon River in defiance of restrictions on his army:] The die is cast.

Quoted in Plutarch, Parallel Lives. According to Plutarch, Caesar spoke this in Greek.

- 6 Veni, vidi, vici.

I came, I saw, I conquered.

Quoted in Suetonius, Lives of the Caesars. Suetonius has this as an inscription displayed in Caesar's Pontic triumph, while Plutarch describes it in his Parallel Lives as appearing in a letter by Caesar announcing his victory at Zela.

- 7 You too, my son?

Quoted in Suetonius, Lives of the Caesars. Suetonius reports Caesar saying this in Greek. A famous Latin rendering is Et tu, Brute? (You too, Brutus?). See Shakespeare 104

John Cage

U.S. composer, 1912–1992

- 1 I have nothing to say and I am saying it and that is poetry.
“Lecture on Nothing” (1961)
- 2 Which is more musical, a truck passing by a factory or a truck passing by a music school?
Silence (1961)

James Cagney

U.S. actor, 1899–1986

- 1 You dirty, double-crossing rat.
Blonde Crazy (motion picture) (1931). Closest documented version of Cagney's alleged quotation, “You dirty rat,” which the actor denied ever saying. Cagney says the line “Come out and take it, you dirty yellow-bellied rat” in Taxi! (1931), and “Listen, you dirty rats in there!” in Each Dawn I Die (1939).

Sammy Cahn

U.S. songwriter, 1913–1993

- 1 Love and marriage, love and marriage,
Go together like a horse and carriage.
“Love and Marriage” (song) (1955)

- 2 Love is lovelier
The second time around.
“The Second Time Around” (song) (1960)

- 3 Call me irresponsible,
Call me unreliable,
Throw in undependable, too.
“Call Me Irresponsible” (song) (1962)

Herman Cain

U.S. business executive and politician, 1945–2020

- 1 When they ask me who is the president of Ubeki-beki-beki-beki-stan-stan I’m going to say, “You know, I don’t know. Do you know?”
Interview, Christian Broadcasting Network, 7 Oct.

- 2 I kissed her. . . . It was like being in church.
The Postman Always Rings Twice ch. 3 (1934)
- 3 Hell could have opened for me then, and it wouldn’t have made any difference. I had to have her, if I hung for it.
The Postman Always Rings Twice ch. 8 (1934)
- 4 I knew I couldn’t have her and never could have had her. I couldn’t kiss the girl whose father I killed.
Double Indemnity ch. 13 (1943)

Michael Caine (Maurice Micklewhite)

English actor, 1933–

- 1 Not Many People Know That.
Title of book (1984). Catchphrase Caine used when relating obscure trivia. Caine has stated that this was actually originated by Peter Sellers.

Pedro Calderón de la Barca

Spanish playwright and poet, 1600–1681

- 1 All life is a dream, and dreams are dreams.
La Vida es Sueño “Segunda Jornada” l. 2183 (1636)
See Carroll 44; Folk and Anonymous Songs 67; Li Po 1;

Charles Calhoun (Jesse Stone)

U.S. songwriter, 1897–1972

- 1 Shake, Rattle and Roll.
Title of song (1954)

Caligula (Gaius Julius Caesar

Germanicus)

Roman emperor, A.D. 12–A.D. 41

- 1 Utinam populus Romanus unam cervicem haberet!
Would that the Roman people had but one neck!
Quoted in Suetonius, Lives of the Caesars

Callimachus

Greek scholar, ca. 305 B.C.–ca. 240 B.C.

- 1 Big book, big bore.
Fragment 465. Often translated as “A great book is like great evil.”

Cab Calloway

U.S. jazz musician, 1907–1994

- 1 Ho de ho de ho.
“Minnie the Moocher” (song) (1931)

Charles Alexandre de Calonne

French statesman, 1734–1802

- 1 If it is possible, madam, the affair is done; if it is impossible, it shall be done!
Quoted in Isaac Disraeli, Domestic Anecdotes of the French Nation During the Last Thirty Years (1794)
See Nansen 1; Santayana 14; Trollope 3

John Calvin

French-born Swiss religious leader, 1509–1564

- 1 All the sum of our wisdom that deserves to be called true and certain wisdom is comprised of two parts, to know God and to know ourselves.
Institutes of the Christian Religion pt. 1 (1541)

Italo Calvino

Italian writer, 1923–1985

- 1 The unconscious is the ocean of the unsayable, of what has been expelled from the land of language, removed as a result of ancient prohibitions.
“Cybernetics and Ghosts” (1969)

2 I speak and speak, but the listener retains only the words he is expecting. . . . It is not the voice that commands the story: it is the ear.

Invisible Cities ch. 9 (1972)

3 You are about to begin reading Italo Calvino's new novel, If on a winter's night a traveler.

If on a Winter's Night a Traveler ch. 1 (1979)

4 And you say, "Just a moment, I've almost finished If on a winter's night a traveler by Italo Calvino."

If on a Winter's Night a Traveler ch. 12 (1979)

Hélder Câmara

Brazilian clergyman, 1909–1999

I When I give food to the poor, they call me a Saint. When I ask why the poor have no food, they call me a Communist.

Quoted in The Guardian, 21 Jan. 1985

Pierre Jacques Étienne, Comte de Cambronne

French general, 1770–1842

I La Garde meurt, mais ne se rend pas.

The Guards die but do not surrender.

Attributed in Henry Houssaye, La Garde Meurt et ne se Rend pas (1907). This sentence is attributed to Cambronne at the Battle of Waterloo, 18 June 1815, when he was asked to surrender, but he denied having said it. Another popular story has him saying Merde! (Shit!), which is consequently known in France as le mot de Cambronne. Benham's Book of Quotations (new and rev. ed.) states: "Also said to have been invented by the journalist Balison de Rougemont, in his account of Waterloo, 'Journal General,' June 24, 1815, wherein de Rougemont attributes the words to Cambronne."

See McAuliffe 1

William Bruce Cameron

U.S. sociologist, fl. 1960

I Not everything that can be counted counts, and not everything that counts can be counted.

Informal Sociology (1963)

Luís Vaz de Camões

Portuguese poet, ca. 1524–1580

I Love is a fire that burns unseen,
It is an injury that hurts unfelt,
It is unsatisfied satisfaction,

It is pain that causes despair without hurting.

"Amor é um fogo que arde sem se ver" (1598)

Frank B. Camp

U.S. writer, 1882–ca. 1967

I When the final taps is sounded and we lay aside life's cares,

And we do the last and gloried parade on heaven's shining stairs,

And the angels bid us welcome and the harps begin to play

We can draw a million canteen checks and spend them in a day.

It is then we'll hear St. Peter tell us loudly with a yell,

"Take a front seat, you soldier men, you've done your hitch in Hell."

"Our Hitch in Hell" l. 29 (1917). A better known later variant is: "When he gets to Heaven, / To St. Peter he will tell, / One more Marine reporting, Sir, / I've served my time in Hell."

Roy Campanella

U.S. baseball player, 1921–1993

I You have to be a man to be a big leaguer, but you have to have a lot of little boy in you, too.

Quoted in Mt. Vernon (Ill.) Register-News, 12 Apr. 1955

Beatrice Stella Tanner (Mrs. Patrick) Campbell

English actress, 1865–1940

I [On marriage:] The deep, deep peace of the double-bed after the hurly-burly of the chaise-longue.

Quoted in Alexander Woollcott, While Rome Burns (1934)

2 What does it matter so long as they don't do it in the street and frighten the horses.

Quoted in Peter Daubeny, Stage by Stage (1952).

Said to have been a rebuke to a young actress's complaint that an old actor in the company was overly fond of the young leading man. Noted in the Oakland Tribune, 13 Feb. 1910: "There is a saying in Leicestershire, 'We do not care what you do as long as you don't frighten the horses.'"

John W. Campbell, Jr.

U.S. science fiction editor and writer, 1910–1971

- 1 [Remark to Isaac Asimov, 23 Dec. 1940:] Look, Asimov, in working this out, you have to realize that there are three rules that robots have to follow. In the first place, they can't do any harm to human beings; in the second place, they have to obey orders without doing harm; in the third, they have to protect themselves, without doing harm or proving disobedient.

Quoted in Isaac Asimov, In Memory Yet Green: The Autobiography of Isaac Asimov 1920–1954 (1979)
See Asimov 1; Asimov 2; Asimov 3

Joseph Campbell

U.S. scholar of mythology, 1904–1987

- 1 Follow your bliss.

Quoted in Time, 14 Sept. 1987. Campbell used the phrase “follow your own bliss” in an interview in Psychology Today, July 1971.

Luther Campbell

U.S. rap musician, 1960–

- 1 I'm like a dog in heat, a freak without warning
I have an appetite for sex, 'cause me so horny.
“Me So Horny” (song) (1989). The words “me so horny” are taken from dialogue in the 1987 film Full Metal Jacket, with screenplay by Stanley Kubrick and Michael Herr; the film dialogue is actually “sampled” in the song.

Roy Campbell

South African poet, 1901–1957

- 1 You praise the firm restraint with which they write—
I'm with you there, of course:
They use the snaffle and the curb all right,
But where's the bloody horse?
“On Some South African Novelists” l. 1 (1930)

Thomas Campbell

Scottish poet, 1777–1844

- 1 'Tis distance lends enchantment to the view,
And robes the mountain in its azure hue.
Pleasures of Hope pt. 1, l. 7 (1799). “The mountains too, at a distance, appear airy masses and smooth, but seen near at hand they are rough” appears in Diogenes Laertius, Pyrrho sec. 9.

- 2 O leave this barren spot to me!
Spare, woodman, spare the beechen tree.
“The Beech-Tree's Petition” l. 1 (1800)
See George Pope Morris 1

- 3 'Tis the sunset of life gives me mystical lore,
And coming events cast their shadows before.
“Lochiel's Warning” l. 55 (1801)

Timothy J. Campbell

U.S. politician, 1840–1904

- 1 What's the constitution between friends?

Attributed in Chicago Daily Tribune, 28 Oct. 1894. Grover Cleveland wrote in Presidential Problems, ch. 1 (1904): “An amusing story is told of a legislator who, endeavoring to persuade a friend and colleague to aid him in the passage of a certain measure in which he was personally interested, met the remark that his bill was unconstitutional with the exclamation, ‘What does the Constitution amount to between friends?’”

Albert Camus

Algerian-born French writer, 1913–1960

- 1 Aujourd'hui, maman est morte. Ou peut-être hier.
Mother died today, or maybe it was yesterday.
L'Étranger (The Stranger) pt. 1, ch. 1 (1942)
- 2 I laid my heart open to the benign indifference of the universe. To feel it so like myself, indeed, so brotherly, made me realize that I'd been happy, and that I was happy still. For all to be accomplished, for me to feel less lonely, all that remained to hope was that on the day of my execution there should be a huge crowd of spectators and that they should greet me with howls of execration.
L'Étranger (The Stranger) pt. 2, ch. 5 (1942)
- 3 There is but one truly serious philosophical problem, and that is suicide. Judging whether life is or is not worth living amounts to answering the fundamental question of philosophy. All the rest—whether or not the world has three dimensions, whether the mind has nine or twelve categories—comes afterwards. These are games.
Le Mythe de Sisyphe (The Myth of Sisyphus)
“Absurdity and Suicide” (1942)

- 4 La lutte elle-même vers les sommets suffit à remplir un cœur d'homme. Il faut imaginer Sisyphe heureux.

The struggle itself toward the heights is enough to fill a man's heart. One must imagine Sisyphus happy.

Le Mythe de Sisyphe (The Myth of Sisyphus) "The Myth of Sisyphus" (1942)

- 5 Can one be a saint without God? That's the problem, in fact the only problem, I'm up against today.

La Peste (The Plague) pt. 4 (1947)

- 6 What is a rebel? A man who says no.

L'Homme Révolté (The Rebel) pt. 1 (1951)

- 7 In the midst of winter, I finally learned that there was in me an invincible summer.

L'Été (Summer) "Return to Tipasa" (1954)

- 8 Je vais vous dire un grand secret, mon cher. N'attendez pas le jugement dernier. Il a lieu tous les jours.

I'll tell you a big secret, my friend. Don't wait for the Last Judgment. It takes place every day.

La Chute (The Fall) (1956)

- 9 [Remarks at debate, University of Stockholm, 1957:] I have always denounced terrorism.

I must also denounce a terrorism which is exercised blindly, in the streets of Algiers for example, and which some day could strike my mother or my family. I believe in justice, but I shall defend my mother above justice.

Quoted in Herbert R. Lottman, Albert Camus: A Biography (1979)

- 10 What I know most surely about morality and the duty of man I owe to sport.

Quoted in Herbert R. Lottman, Albert Camus: A Biography (1979)

Elias Canetti

Bulgarian-born British writer, 1905–1994

- 1 The great writers of aphorisms read as if they had all known each other very well.

The Human Province "1943" (1978) (translation by Joachim Neugroschel)

George Canning

British prime minister, 1770–1827

- 1 [On his policy of recognizing the independence of former Spanish colonies in the Western Hemisphere:] I called the New World into existence, to redress the balance of the Old. Speech in House of Commons, 12 Dec. 1826

Eddie Cantor

U.S. entertainer, 1892–1964

- 1 Matrimony is not a word, it's a sentence. Quoted in Reader's Digest, Mar. 1934

Karel Čapek

Czech writer, 1890–1938

- 1 Rossum's Universal Robots.

R.U.R. act 1 (1920). This Czech play introduced the word robot, which was coined by Čapek's brother Josef.

Al Capone

U.S. gangster, 1899–1944

- 1 [Interview, 1930:] Don't get the idea I'm one of these goddam radicals. Don't get the idea I'm knocking the American system. Quoted in Claud Cockburn, In Time of Trouble (1956)
- 2 [Of suburban Chicago:] This is virgin territory out here for whorehouses. Quoted in Kenneth Allsop, The Bootleggers and Their Era (1961)
- 3 You can get much further with a kind word and a gun than you can with a kind word alone. Attributed in Forbes, 6 Oct. 1986. Usually associated with Capone, but Paul Dickson, The Official Explanations (1980), attributes to Irwin Corey, "You can get more with a kind word and a gun than you can with a kind word."

Truman Capote (Truman Streckfus Persons)

U.S. writer, 1924–1984

- 1 It was a terrible, strange-looking hotel. But Little Sunshine stayed on: it was his rightful home, he said, for if he went away, as he had once upon a time, other voices, other rooms, voices lost and clouded, strummed his dreams. Other Voices, Other Rooms ch. 5 (1948)

2 I didn't want to harm the man. I thought he was a very nice gentleman. Soft-spoken. I thought so right up to the moment I cut his throat.

In Cold Blood pt. 3 (1966)

3 [Comment in television discussion about writers of the "Beat Generation":] That isn't writing at all, it's typing.

Quoted in New Republic, 9 Feb. 1959. In an interview in Paris Review, Spring–Summer 1957, Capote described "nonstylists": "They're not writers. They're typists."

Giovanni Capurro

Italian songwriter, 1859–1920

1 O Sole Mio.

Title of song (1899)

Francesco Caracciolo

Italian naval commander and diplomat, 1752–1799

1 There are in England sixty different religions and only one sauce.

Attributed in Hugh Percy Jones, Dictionary of Foreign Phrases (1922). Charles-Augustin Sainte-Beuve, Nouveaux Lundis (1869), attributes a comment to Talleyrand that the United States had "thirty-two religions and only one dish."

Benjamin N. Cardozo

U.S. judge, 1870–1938

1 If the nature of a thing is such that it is reasonably certain to place life and limb in peril when negligently made, it is then a thing of danger. Its nature gives warning of the consequences to be expected. If to the element of danger there is added knowledge that the thing will be used by persons other than the purchaser, and used without new tests, then, irrespective of contract, the manufacturer of this thing of danger is under a duty to make it carefully.

MacPherson v. Buick Motor Co. (1916)

2 The criminal is to go free because the constable has blundered.

People v. Defore (1926)

3 Immunities that are valid as against the federal government by force of the specific pledges of particular amendments have been found to be implicit in the concept of ordered liberty, and thus, through the Fourteenth Amendment, become valid as against the states.

Palko v. Connecticut (1937)

4 Of that freedom [freedom of thought and speech] one may say that it is the matrix, the indispensable condition, of nearly every other form of freedom.

Palko v. Connecticut (1937)

Thomas Carew

English poet, ca. 1595–1640

1 Ask me no more where Jove bestows,
When June is past, the fading rose;
For in your beauty's orient deep
These flowers, as in their causes, sleep.
"A Song" l. 1 (1640)

Archibald Carey, Jr.

U.S. clergyman, 1908–1981

1 From every mountain side, let freedom ring.
Not only from the Green Mountains and the White Mountains of Vermont and New Hampshire, not only from the Catskills of New York; but from the Ozarks in Arkansas, from the Stone Mountain in Georgia, from the Great Smokies of Tennessee and from the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia—let it ring . . . may the Republican party, under God, from every mountain side, LET FREEDOM RING!

Address to Republican National Convention, Chicago, Ill., 8 July 1952

See Martin Luther King 14; Samuel Francis Smith 1

Henry Carey

English playwright and songwriter, ca. 1687–1743

1 Namby-Pamby.

Title of poem (1725)

2 God save our gracious king!
Long live our noble king!
God save the king!
Send him victorious,
Happy, and glorious,

Long to reign over us:

God save the king!

“God Save the King” (song) (ca. 1740). The attribution to Carey is not certain. The words “God save the king” appear many times in the Old Testament, such as in I Samuel 4:24.

See Bible 82

Jane Welsh Carlyle

Scottish wife of Thomas Carlyle, 1801–1866

- 1 I am not at all the sort of person you and I took me for.

Letter to Thomas Carlyle, 7 May 1822

- 2 Medical men all over the world . . . merely entered into a tacit agreement to call all sorts of maladies people are liable to, in cold weather, by one name; so that one sort of treatment may serve for all, and their practice be thereby greatly simplified.

Letter to John Welsh, 4 Mar. 1837

Thomas Carlyle

Scottish historian and essayist, 1795–1881

- 1 A well-written Life is almost as rare as a well-spent one.

“Jean Paul Friedrich Richter” (1827)

- 2 The great law of culture is: Let each become all that he was created capable of being.

“Jean Paul Friedrich Richter” (1827)

- 3 A whiff of grapeshot.

History of the French Revolution vol. 1, bk. 5, ch. 3 (1837)

- 4 France was long a despotism tempered by epigrams.

History of the French Revolution vol. 3, bk. 7, ch. 7 (1837)

- 5 History is the essence of innumerable biographies.

Critical and Miscellaneous Essays “On History” (1838)
See Thomas Carlyle 12

- 6 There is no heroic poem in the world but is at bottom a biography, the life of a man; also, it may be said, there is no life of a man, faithfully recorded, but is a heroic poem of its sort, rhymed or unrhymed.

Critical and Miscellaneous Essays “Sir Walter Scott” (1838)

- 7 The three great elements of modern civilization, Gunpowder, Printing, and the Protestant Religion.

Critical and Miscellaneous Essays “The State of German Literature” (1838)

- 8 It were a real increase of human happiness, could all young men from the age of nineteen be covered under barrels, or rendered otherwise invisible; and there left to follow their lawful studies and callings, till they emerged, sadder and wiser, at the age of twenty-five.

Sartor Resartus ch. 4 (1838)

- 9 A witty statesman said, you might prove anything by figures.

Chartism ch. 2 (1839)
See Anonymous 15

- 10 It is not what a man outwardly has or wants that constitutes the happiness or misery of him. Nakedness, hunger, distress of all kinds, death itself have been cheerfully suffered, when the heart was right. It is the feeling of injustice that is insupportable to all men.

Chartism ch. 5 (1839)

- 11 Cash payment has become the sole nexus of man to man.

Chartism ch. 6 (1839)
See Marx and Engels 4

- 12 The history of the world is but the biography of great men.

On Heroes, Hero-Worship, and the Heroic “The Hero as Divinity” (1841)
See Thomas Carlyle 5

- 13 No sadder proof can be given by a man of his own littleness than disbelief in great men.

On Heroes, Hero-Worship, and the Heroic “The Hero as Divinity” (1841)

- 14 Burke said there were Three Estates in Parliament; but, in the Reporters’ Gallery yonder, there sat a Fourth Estate, more important far than they all.

On Heroes, Hero-Worship, and the Heroic “The Hero as Man of Letters” (1841). Carlyle’s attribution to Burke has never been verified.
See Hazlitt 4; Thomas Macaulay 4; Thackeray 10

- 15 The true University of these days is a collection of books.

On Heroes, Hero-Worship, and the Heroic “The Hero as Man of Letters” (1841)

- 16 All that mankind has done, thought, gained or been: it is lying as in magic preservation in the pages of books.

On Heroes, Hero-Worship, and the Heroic “The Hero as Man of Letters” (1841)

- 17 Captains of Industry.

Past and Present title of bk. 4, ch. 4 (1843)

- 18 [Economics is] not a “gay science,” I should say, like some we have heard of; no, a dreary, desolate, and, indeed, quite abject and distressing one: what we might call, by way of eminence, the dismal science.

“Occasional Discourse on the Negro Question” (1849). Viewed in context, this remark should actually be a point of pride for economists, since Carlyle was criticizing them for being opposed to slavery.

- 19 “Genius” (which means transcendent capacity of taking trouble, first of all).

History of Friedrich II. of Prussia vol. 1, bk. 4, ch. 3 (1858). Often quoted as “Genius is an infinite capacity for taking pains.”
See Buffon 2; Edison 2; Jane Ellice Hopkins 1

- 20 [Commenting on Margaret Fuller’s remark, “I accept the universe,” ca. 1843:] Gad! she’d better.

Quoted in William James, The Varieties of Religious Experience (1902). The earliest account of this remark was in Evert Duyckinck, Letter to George Duyckinck, 28 Jan. 1848. Duyckinck reported that Henry James, Sr., had said to Thomas Carlyle, “When I last saw Margaret Fuller she told me that she had got to this conclusion—to accept the Universe.” Carlyle replied, “God, [deleted] Accept the Universe. Margaret Fuller accept the universe! [with a loud guffaw] Why perhaps upon the whole it is the best thing she could do—it is very kind of Margaret Fuller!”

Andrew Carnegie

Scottish-born U.S. industrialist and philanthropist, 1835–1919

- 1 “Don’t put all your eggs in one basket” is all wrong. We tell you “put all your eggs in one basket, and then watch that basket.”

Address to students at Curry Commercial College, Pittsburgh, Pa., 23 June 1885. This address was quoted in the Yonkers Statesman, 19 Aug. 1885. The quotation is almost universally attributed to Mark Twain, but Twain’s usage was later, and in his notebook he credited Carnegie for it.
See Proverbs 84

- 2 Surplus wealth is a sacred trust which its possessor is bound to administer in his lifetime for the good of the community.

“Wealth,” North American Review, June 1889

- 3 A man who dies rich dies disgraced.

Quoted in Nonconformist and Independent (London), 14 July 1887

Dale Carnegie

U.S. writer and lecturer, 1888–1955

- 1 How to Win Friends and Influence People.

Title of book (1936)

Julia Fletcher Carney

U.S. poet, 1823–1908

- 1 Little drops of water,
Little grains of sand,

Make the mighty ocean
And the pleasant land.
“Little Things” l. 1 (1845)

Betty Carpenter

U.S. politician, fl. 1985

- 1 Politicians, like diapers, should be changed regularly.
Quoted in Cincinnati Enquirer, 25 Oct. 1987

Ralph Carpenter

U.S. sports publicist, ca. 1932–1995

- 1 The opera ain't over until the fat lady sings.
Quoted in Dallas Morning News, 10 Mar. 1976.
Carpenter was sports information director at Texas Tech University when he uttered this line during a basketball game with Texas A&M. The expression was popularized in 1978 by San Antonio sportscaster Dan Cook and Washington Bullets basketball coach Dick Motta. However, a 1976 booklet, Southern Words and Sayings by Fabia Rue Smith and Charles Rayford Smith, includes the saying “Church ain't out 'till the fat lady sings,” suggesting an ultimate origin in Southern proverbial lore. “Church is never out till the people get through singing” appeared in the Fort Worth Daily Gazette, 17 Aug. 1894.
See Berra 14

Scott Carpenter

U.S. astronaut, 1925–2013

- 1 [Comment upon the launching of Friendship 7 space flight, 20 Feb. 1962:] Godspeed, John Glenn.
Quoted in People, 30 Oct. 1983

Lewis Carroll (Charles L. Dodgson)

English writer and mathematician, 1832–1898

- 1 Down the Rabbit-Hole.
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland title of ch. 1 (1865)
- 2 “And what is the use of a book,” thought Alice, “without pictures or conversations?”

- 7 You're enough to try the patience of an oyster!
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 3 (1865)
- 8 Oh my fur and whiskers!
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 4 (1865)
- 9 “You are old, Father William,” the young man said,
“And your hair has become very white;
And yet you incessantly stand on your head—
Do you think, at your age, it is right?”
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 5 (1865)
See Southey 2
- 10 “In my youth,” said his father, “I took to the law,
And argued each case with my wife;
And the muscular strength, which it gave to my jaw
Has lasted the rest of my life.”
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 5 (1865)

- 11 One side will make you grow taller, and the other side will make you grow shorter.
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 5 (1865)
See Slick 1
- 12 Speak roughly to your little boy,
And beat him when he sneezes:
He only does it to annoy,
Because he knows it teases.
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 6 (1865)
- 13 [Of the Cheshire Cat:] "Well! I've often seen a cat without a grin," thought Alice; "but a grin without a cat! It's the most curious thing I ever saw in all my life!"
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 6 (1865)
- 14 Why is a raven like a writing-desk?
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 7 (1865). Carroll wrote in the preface to the 1896 edition: "Enquiries have been so often addressed to me, as to whether any answer to the Hatter's Riddle can be imagined, that I may as well put on record here what seems to me to be a fairly appropriate answer, viz: 'Because it can produce a few notes, tho they are very flat; and it is never put with the wrong end in front!' This, however, is merely an afterthought; the Riddle, as originally invented, had no answer at all." Others have subsequently suggested more satisfying answers, such as "Because Poe wrote on both" (Sam Loyd).
- 15 "Then you should say what you mean," the March Hare went on. "I do," Alice hastily replied; "at least—at least I mean what I say—that's the same thing, you know." "Not the same thing a bit!" said the Hatter. "Why, you might just as well say that 'I see what I eat' is the same thing as 'I eat what I see!'"
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 7 (1865)
- 16 Twinkle, twinkle, little bat!
How I wonder what you're at! . . .
Up above the world you fly,
Like a tea-tray in the sky.
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 7 (1865)
See Ann Taylor 2
- 17 "Take some more tea," the March Hare said to Alice, very earnestly. "I've had nothing yet," Alice replied in an offended tone, "so I can't take more." "You mean you can't take less," said the Hatter: "it's very easy to take more than nothing."
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 7 (1865)
- 18 [The Queen of Hearts speaking:] Off with her head!
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 8 (1865)
- 19 "I only took the regular course." "What was that?" inquired Alice. "Reeling and Writhing, of course, to begin with," the Mock Turtle replied; "and then the different branches of Arithmetic—Ambition, Distraction, Uglification, and Derision."
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 9 (1865)
- 20 "Will you walk a little faster?" said a whiting to a snail,
"There's a porpoise close behind us, and he's treading on my tail."
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 10 (1865)
- 21 Will you, won't you, will you, won't you, will you join the dance?
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 10 (1865)
- 22 I could tell you my adventures—beginning from this morning . . . but it's no use going back to yesterday, because I was a different person then.
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 10 (1865)
- 23 "Where shall I begin, please your Majesty?" he asked. "Begin at the beginning," the King said, very gravely, "and go on till you come to the end: then stop."
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 12 (1865)
- 24 Sentence first—verdict afterwards.
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 12 (1865)
See Molière 5; Walter Scott 11
- 25 You're nothing but a pack of cards!
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland ch. 12 (1865)
- 26 Who can tell whether the parallelogram, which in our ignorance we have defined and drawn, and the whole of whose properties we profess to know, may not be all the while panting for exterior angles, sympathetic with the interior, or sullenly repining at the fact that it cannot be inscribed in a circle?
The Dynamics of a Parti-cle (1865)
- 27 "The horror of that moment," the King went on, "I shall never, never forget!" "You will, though," the Queen said, "if you don't make a memorandum of it."
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 1 (1872)

- 28 'Twas brillig, and the slithy toves
Did gyre and gimble in the wabe;
All mimsy were the borogoves,
And the mome raths outgrabe.
Beware the Jabberwock, my son!
The jaws that bite, the claws that catch!
Beware the Jubjub bird, and shun
The frumious Bandersnatch!
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 1 (1872)
- 29 "And hast thou slain the Jabberwock?
Come to my arms, my beamish boy!
O frabjous day! Callooh! Callay!"
He chortled in his joy.
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 1 (1872). Coinage of the word chortle.
- 30 Now, here you see, it takes all the running you can do, to keep in the same place. If you want to get somewhere else, you must run at least twice as fast as that!
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 2 (1872)
- 31 If it was so, it might be; and if it were so, it would be; but as it isn't, it ain't. That's logic.
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 4 (1872)
- 32 The sun was shining on the sea,
Shining with all his might:
He did his very best to make
The billows smooth and bright—
And this was odd, because it was
The middle of the night.
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 4 (1872)
- 33 But four young oysters hurried up,
All eager for the treat:
Their coats were brushed, their faces washed,
Their shoes were clean and neat—
And this was odd, because, you know,
They hadn't any feet.
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 4 (1872)
- 34 "The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things:
Of shoes—and ships—and sealing-wax—
Of cabbages—and kings—
And why the sea is boiling hot—
And whether pigs have wings."
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 4 (1872)
- 35 "O oysters," said the Carpenter.
"You've had a pleasant run!
Shall we be trotting home again?"
But answer came there none—
And this was scarcely odd, because They'd eaten every one.
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 4 (1872). "But answer came there none" appeared in Walter Scott, The Bridal of Triermain canto 3, st. 10 (1813).
- 36 The rule is, jam to-morrow and jam yesterday—
but never jam to-day.
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 5 (1872)
- 37 It's a poor sort of memory that only works backwards.
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 5 (1872)
- 38 Why, sometimes I've believed as many as six impossible things before breakfast.
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 5 (1872)
- 39 They gave it me,—for an un-birthday present.
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 6 (1872)
- 40 "When I use a word," Humpty Dumpty said, in rather a scornful tone, "it means just what I choose it to mean—neither more nor less."
"The question is," said Alice, "whether you can make words mean so many different things."
"The question is," said Humpty Dumpty,
"which is to be master—that's all."
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 6 (1872)
- 41 "Slithy" means "lithe and slimy." . . . You see it's like a portmanteau—there are two meanings packed up into one word.
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 6 (1872)
- 42 It's as large as life, and twice as natural!
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 7 (1872). A play on the expression "as large as life and quite as natural."
See Haliburton 1
- 43 I don't like belonging to another person's dream.
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 8 (1872)
- 44 Life, what is it but a dream?
Through the Looking-Glass ch. 12 (1872)
*See Calderón de la Barca 1; Folk and Anonymous Songs
67; Li Po 1; Proverbs 169*
- 45 For the Snark was a Boojum, you see.
The Hunting of the Snark "Fit the Eighth: The Vanishing" (1876)
- 46 I am fond of children (except boys).

Rachel Carson

U.S. naturalist and writer, 1907–1964

- I Over increasingly large areas of the United States, spring now comes unheralded by the return of the birds, and the early mornings are strangely silent where once they were filled with the beauty of bird song.
Silent Spring ch. 8 (1962)
- 2 As crude a weapon as the cave man's club, the chemical barrage has been hurled against the fabric of life.
Silent Spring ch. 17 (1962)

Sonny Carson

U.S. civil rights activist, 1936–2002

- I No justice, no peace.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 6 July 1987

A. P. Carter

U.S. country singer, 1891–1960

- I Can the circle be unbroken
Bye and bye, Lord, bye and bye
There's a better home a-waiting
In the sky, Lord, in the sky.
"Can the Circle Be Unbroken" (song) (1935). Later versions of this song usually had the title "Will the Circle Be Unbroken."

Angela Carter (Angela Olive Carter-Pearce)

English writer, 1940–1992

- I I'm interested in the division that Judeo-Christianity has made between human nature and animal nature. None of the other great faiths in the world have got quite that division between us and them. . . . I think it's one of the scars in our culture that we have too high an opinion of ourselves. We align ourselves with the angels instead of the higher primates.
Quoted in Marxism Today, Jan. 1985

Howard Carter

English archaeologist, 1873–1939

- I As my eyes grew accustomed to the light, details of the room within emerged slowly from the mist, strange animals, statues, and gold—everywhere the glint of gold. . . . When Lord Carnarvon, unable to stand the suspense any longer, inquired anxiously, "Can you see anything?" it was all I could do to get out the words, "Yes, wonderful things."
The Tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen vol. 1, ch. 5 (1923)

James Earl "Jimmy" Carter

U.S. president, 1924–

- I It is now time to stop and to ask ourselves the question which my last commanding officer, Admiral Hyman Rickover, asked me and every other young naval officer in the atomic submarine program.
Why not the best?
Why Not the Best? ch. 1 (1975). Carter explained that Admiral Rickover responded to Carter's telling him that Carter had not always done his best at the Naval Academy by asking, "Why not?"

- 2 We believe that the first time we're born, as children, it's human life given to us; and when we accept Jesus as our Savior, it's a new life. That's what "born again" means.

- 6 We have the heaviest concentration of lawyers on Earth—I for every 500 Americans, three times as many as are in England, four times as many as are in West Germany, twenty-one times as many as there are in Japan. We have more litigation, but I am not sure that we have more justice. No resources of talent and training in our own society, even including the medical care, is more wastefully or unfairly distributed than legal skills. Ninety percent of our lawyers serve 10 percent of our people. We are over-lawyered and under-represented.

Remarks at 100th Anniversary Banquet of the Los Angeles County Bar Association, Los Angeles, Calif., 4 May 1978

- 7 I thought a lot about our Nation and what I should do as President. And Sunday night before last, I made a speech about two problems of our country—energy and malaise. Remarks at town meeting, Bardstown, Ky., 31 July 1979, referring to a speech on energy and national goals broadcast 15 July 1979. The word malaise does not appear in the 15 July speech.

June Carter

U.S. country singer and songwriter, 1929–2003

Quoted in Herbert L. Matthews, Castro: A Political Biography (1969)

Willa Cather

U.S. novelist, 1873–1947

- 1 The history of every country begins in the heart of a man or a woman.
O Pioneers! pt. 1, ch. 5 (1913)
- 2 There are only two or three human stories, and they go on repeating themselves as fiercely as if they had never happened before.
O Pioneers! pt. 2, ch. 4 (1913)
- 3 I like trees because they seem more resigned to the way they have to live than other things do. I feel as if this tree knows everything I ever think of when I sit here. When I come back to it, I never have to remind it of anything; I begin just where I left off.
O Pioneers! pt. 2, ch. 8 (1913)
- 4 I tell you there is such a thing as creative hate!
The Song of the Lark pt. 1 (1915)
- 5 Her secret? It is every artist's secret . . . passion. That is all. It is an open secret, and perfectly safe. Like heroism, it is inimitable in cheap materials.
The Song of the Lark pt. 6, ch. 11 (1915)
- 6 Whatever we had missed, we possessed together the precious, the incommunicable past.
My Antonia bk. 5, ch. 3 (1918)
- 7 When kindness has left people, even for a few moments, we become afraid of them, as if their reason had left them.
My Mortal Enemy pt. 1, ch. 6 (1926)
- 8 I shall not die of a cold. I shall die of having lived.
Death Comes for the Archbishop bk. 9 (1927)
- 9 Give the people a new word and they think they have a new fact.
"Four Letters: Escapism" (1936)
- 10 Religion and art spring from the same root and are close kin. Economics and art are strangers.
Commonweal, 17 Apr. 1936

Cato the Elder

Roman statesman and writer, 234 B.C.–149 B.C.

- 1 Rem tene; verba sequentur.
Grasp the subject, the words will follow.
Quoted in Caius Julius Victor, Ars Rhetorica
- 2 [Habitual ending of his speeches in the Senate:]
Delenda est Carthago.
Carthage must be destroyed.
Quoted in Pliny the Elder, Naturalis Historia

Quoted in Plutarch, Parallel Lives

Catullus

Roman poet, ca. 84 B.C.–ca. 54 B.C.

- 1 *Lugete, O Veneres Cupidinesque,
Et quantum est hominum venustiorum.
Passer mortuus est meae puellae,
Passer, deliciae meae puellae.*
Mourn, you powers of Charm and Desire, and all you who are endowed with charm. My lady's sparrow is dead, the sparrow which was my lady's darling.
Carmina no. 3
- 2 *Vivamus, mea Lesbia, atque amemus . . .
Soles occidere et redire possunt:
Nobis cum semel occidit brevis lux
Nox est perpetua una dormienda.
Da mi basia mille.*
Let us live and love, my Lesbia . . . Suns may set and rise again: for us, when our brief light has set, there's the sleep of perpetual night. Give me a thousand kisses.
Carmina no. 5
- 3 Per caputque pedesque.
Over head and heels.
Carmina no. 20

- 4 *Odi et amo: quare id faciam, fortasse requiris.
Nescio, sed fieri sentio et excrucior.*
I hate and I love: why I do so you may well ask.
I do not know, but I feel it happen and am in agony.
Carmina no. 85

- 5 Atque in perpetuum, frater, ave atque vale.
And forever, O my brother, hail and farewell!
Carmina no. 101

Constantine Cavafy

Egyptian-born Greek poet, 1863–1933

- 1 What are we waiting for, gathered in the market-place?
The barbarians are to arrive today.
“Waiting for the Barbarians” (1904) (translation by Edmund Keeley and Philip Sherrard)
- 2 And now, what will come of us without any barbarians?
Those people were a kind of solution.
“Waiting for the Barbarians” (1904) (translation by Edmund Keeley and Philip Sherrard)
- 3 When you set out for Ithaka
ask that your way be long.
“Ithaka” (1911) (translation by Edmund Keeley and Philip Sherrard)

Edith Cavell

English nurse, 1865–1915

- 1 [On the eve of her execution by Germany for helping British soldiers escape from Belgium:] I realize that patriotism is not enough. I must have no hatred or bitterness towards anyone.
Quoted in Times (London), 23 Oct. 1915

“Death Fugue” (1952)

Louis-Ferdinand Céline (Louis Ferdinand Auguste Destouches)

French novelist, 1894–1961

- 1 Those who talk about the future are scoundrels.
It is the present that matters. To evoke one’s posterity is to make a speech to maggots.
Voyage au Bout de la Nuit (Journey to the End of the Night) (1932)

- 2 Almost every desire a poor man has is a punishable offense.
Voyage au Bout de la Nuit (Journey to the End of the Night) (1932)

Benvenuto Cellini

Italian artist, 1500–1571

- 1 Painting, in fact, is nothing else much than a tree, a man, or any other object, reflected in the water. The distinction between sculpture and painting, is as great as between the shadow and the substance.
Letter to Benedetto Varchi, 28 Jan. 1546 (translation
by Thomas Nugent)

Susannah Centlivre

English actress and playwright, ca. 1667–1723

Internet.

Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra

Spanish novelist, 1547–1616

- 1 In a village of La Mancha, the name of which I won’t try to recall, there lived, not long ago, one of those gentlemen, who usually keep a lance upon a rack, an old shield, a lean horse, and a

Aimé Fernand Césaire

Martinican poet and political leader, 1913–2008

- 1 My mouth shall be the mouth of misfortunes which have no mouth, my voice the freedoms of those freedoms which break down in the prison-cell of despair.
Cahier d'un Retour au Pays Natal (1939)
- 2 I see several Africas and one vertical in the tumultuous event with its screens and nodules, a little separated, but within the century, like a heart in reserve.

- 1 Treat nature in terms of the cylinder, the sphere, the cone, all in perspective.
Letter to Émile Bernard, 15 Apr. 1904

- 2 The day was not far off when one solitary, original carrot [depicted in a painting] might be pregnant with revolution!
Quoted in Émile Zola, L'Oeuvre (1886) (translation by Thomas Walton). In Zola's novel, uttered by a character based on Cézanne.
- 3 [Remark to Ambroise Vollard.:] Monet is only an

Quoted in Douglas Cooper, Claude Monet: An Exhibition of Paintings (1957)

Zechariah Chafee, Jr.

U.S. legal scholar, 1885–1957

- 1 Each side takes the position of the man who was arrested for swinging his arms and hitting another in the nose, and asked the judge if he did not have a right to swing his arms in a free country. "Your right to swing your arms ends just where the other man's nose begins."
Harvard Law Review, June 1919. "Your right to swing your arm leaves off where my right not to have my nose struck begins" appeared in a speech by John B.
Finch, Iowa City, Iowa, 7 May 1882.

Neville Chamberlain

British prime minister, 1869–1940

- 1 [On Germany's annexing the Sudetenland.:] How horrible, fantastic, incredible it is that we should be digging trenches and trying on gas-masks here because of a quarrel in a far away country between people of whom we know nothing.
Radio broadcast, 27 Sept. 1938
- 2 [After returning from the Munich Conference.:]
This is the second time in our history that there has come back from Germany to Downing Street peace with honor. I believe it is peace for our time.
Speech at 10 Downing Street, London, 30 Sept. 1938
See Disraeli 27; John Russell 1

3 This morning, the British Ambassador in Berlin handed the German government a final Note stating that, unless we heard from them by eleven o'clock that they were prepared at once to withdraw their troops from Poland, a state of war would exist between us. I have to tell you now that no such undertaking has been received, and that consequently this country is at war with Germany.

Radio broadcast, 3 Sept. 1939

4 Whatever may be the reason—whether it was that Hitler thought he might get away with what he had got without fighting for it, or whether it was that after all the preparations were not sufficiently complete—however, one thing is certain—he missed the bus.

Speech at Central Hall, Westminster, England, 4 Apr. 1940

Quoted in P. R. Anguis, Oeuvres Complètes de Chamfort (1824)

Raymond Chandler

U.S. detective fiction writer, 1888–1959

I I don't mind if you don't like my manners. They're pretty bad. I grieve over them on the long winter evenings.

The Big Sleep ch. 3 (1939)

2 What did it matter where you lay once you were dead? . . . You were dead, you were sleeping the big sleep, you were not bothered by things like that.

The Big Sleep ch. 32 (1939)

3 You just slept the big sleep, not caring about the nastiness of how you died or where you fell.

The Big Sleep ch. 32 (1939)

4 [Credo of fictional detective Philip Marlowe:] Trouble Is My Business.

Title of article, Dime Detective Magazine, Aug. 1939. Mary Roberts Rinehart used the expression “Trouble is my business too” in her 1934 detective story “The Inside Story.”

“Solidarity Forever” (song) (1915)

Arthur Chapman

U.S. poet, 1873–1935

- 1 Out where the hand-clasp’s a little stronger,
Out where the smile dwells a little longer,
That’s where the West begins.
“Out Where the West Begins” l. 1 (1916)

George Chapman

English playwright, ca. 1559–1634

- 1 Young men think old men are fools; but old men know young men are fools.
All Fools act 5, sc. 1 (1605)
- 2 I will neither yield to the song of the siren nor the voice of the hyena, the tears of the crocodile nor the howling of the wolf.
Eastward Ho act 5, sc. 1 (1605). The Oxford English Dictionary documents the term crocodile tears as early as 1563.
- 3 And let a scholar all Earth’s volumes carry,
He will be but a walking dictionary.
The Tears of Peace l. 530 (1609)
- 4 Danger, the spur of all great minds.
The Revenge of Bussy D’Ambois act 5, sc. 1 (1613)

John Jay Chapman

U.S. writer, 1862–1933

- 1 The New Testament, and to a very large extent the Old, is the soul of man. You cannot criticize it. It criticizes you.
Letter to Elizabeth Chanler, 26 Mar. 1898

Tracy Chapman

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1964–

- 1 You got a fast car
I want a ticket to anywhere
Maybe we can make a deal
Maybe together we can get somewhere
Anyplace is better
Starting from zero, got nothing to lose.
“Fast Car” (song) (1988)

Charles I

British king, 1600–1649

- 1 [Of five members of Parliament he had tried to arrest:] I see all the birds are flown.
House of Commons, 4 Jan. 1642

Charles II

British king, 1630–1685

- 1 [On his deathbed, referring to his former mistress, Nell Gwyn.] Let not poor Nelly starve.
Quoted in Gilbert Burnet, Bishop Burnet’s History of His Own Time (1724)

- 2 [Report of “last words”:] He had been, he said, an unconscionable time dying; but he hoped they would excuse it.

Reported in Thomas Babington Macaulay, History of England (1849)

Charles V

Spanish king and Holy Roman Emperor, 1500–1558

- 1 Le Grand Empereur, Charle-quin, disoit que s’il vouloit parler à Dieu, il luy parleroit en Espagnole; s’il vouloit parler à son Cheval, ce seroit en Allemand; s’il vouloit parler à sa Maitresse ce seroit en Italien; mais que s’il vouloit parler aux hommes ce seroit en François.

The Great Emperor Charles V said that to God he would speak Spanish, to his horse he would speak German, to his mistress he would speak Italian, but to men he would speak French.

Reported in Lord Chesterfield, Letter to Philip Stanhope, 19 July 1762

Larry Charles

U.S. screenwriter, 1956–

Seinfeld (television show), 11 Feb. 1993

Charles, Prince of Wales

British prince, 1948–

- 1 [Responding to being asked, after his engagement to Diana Spencer was announced, if he was “in love”:] Yes . . . whatever that may mean.
Interview, 24 Feb. 1981
- 2 [On the proposed design for a new wing of the National Gallery:] What is proposed is like a monstrous carbuncle on the face of a much-loved and elegant friend.
Speech to Royal Institute of British Architects, 30 May 1984. Charles’s stepmother-in-law, Countess Spencer, had written in her 1983 book The Spencers on Spas (with Earl Spencer): “Alas, for our towns and cities. Monstrous carbuncles of concrete have erupted in gentle Georgian squares.”
- 3 I just come and talk to the plants, really—very important to talk to them, they respond I find.
Television interview, 21 Sept. 1986

- 4 You have to give this much to the Luftwaffe: when it knocked down our buildings it did not replace them with anything more offensive than rubble. We did that.

Speech at Mansion House, London, 1 Dec. 1987

- 5 [Replying to Camilla Parker-Bowles’s remark, “Oh, you’re going to come back as a pair of knickers” (so that he could live inside her trousers):] Or, God forbid, a Tampax.

Intercepted telephone conversation, 18 Dec. 1989

Martin Charnin

U.S. songwriter, 1934–2019

- 1 It’s the hard-knock life for us!
It’s the hard-knock life for us!
’Steady treated,
We get tricked!
’Steady kisses,
We get kicked!
“It’s the Hard Knock Life” (song) (1977)
- 2 Tomorrow, tomorrow, I love ya tomorrow,
You’re always a day away!
“Tomorrow” (song) (1977)

Pierre Charron

See Pope 21

Mary Chase

U.S. playwright, 1907–1981

- 1 Doctor, I wrestled with reality for forty years, and I am happy to state that I finally won out over it.
Harvey act 2, sc. 2 (1944)
- 2 Dr. Chumley, my mother used to say to me, “In this world, Elwood”—she always called me Elwood—she’d say, “In this world, Elwood, you must be oh, so smart or oh, so pleasant.” For years I was smart. I recommend pleasant.
Harvey act 3 (1944)

Salmon P. Chase

U.S. political leader and judge, 1808–1873

1 In God we trust.

Letter to James Pollock, 9 Dec. 1863. In the 1863 letter to Director of the Mint Pollock, Chase, then secretary of the treasury, proposed this as a motto on U.S. coins, a proposal implemented on the two-cent coin in 1864. Chase may have taken the words from a Civil War (1862) battle cry of the Fifth Pennsylvania Volunteers. In 1956 a Joint Resolution of Congress declared “In God we trust” the national motto of the United States. “In God we trust” was mentioned in the Pennsylvania Gazette, 12 Jan. 1748, as one of a list of “Devices and Mottoes painted on some of the Silk Colours of the Regiments of Associators, in and near Philadelphia.” See Francis Scott Key 3

2 The Constitution, in all its provisions, looks to an indestructible Union, composed of indestructible States.

Texas v. White (1869)

François René de Chateaubriand

French author, 1768–1848

1 The original writer is not he who refrains from imitating others, but he who can be imitated by none.

Le Génie de Christianisme pt. 2, bk. 1, ch. 3 (1802)

2 Achilles exists only through Homer. Take away the art of writing from this world, and you will probably take away its glory.

Les Natchez preface (1826)

Geoffrey Chaucer

English poet, ca. 1343–1400

1 Oon ere it herde, at tother out it wente.

Long live the strike.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 25 Mar. 1966

John Cheever

U.S. writer, 1912–1982

- 1 Wear dark clothes after 6 p.m. Eat fresh fish for breakfast when available. Avoid kneeling in unheated stone churches. Ecclesiastical dampness causes prematurely gray hair. Fear tastes like a rusty knife and do not let her into your house. Courage tastes of blood. Stand up straight. Admire the world. Relish the love of a gentle woman. Trust in the Lord.
The Wapshot Chronicle ch. 36 (1957)
- 2 It was at the highest point in the arc of a bridge that I became aware suddenly of the depth and bitterness of my feelings about modern life, and of the profoundness of my yearning for a more vivid, simple, and peaceable world.
Stories "The Angel of the Bridge" (1978)

Susan Cheever

U.S. writer, 1943–

Anton Chekhov

Russian playwright and short story writer, 1860–1904

- 1 I feel more confident and more satisfied when I reflect that I have two professions and not one. Medicine is my lawful wife and literature is my mistress. When I get tired of one I spend the night with the other. Though it's disorderly, it's not so dull, and besides, neither really loses anything through my infidelity.
Letter to A. S. Suvorin, 11 Sept. 1888
- 2 Brevity is the sister of talent.
Letter to Alexander Chekhov, 11 Apr. 1889
- 3 One must not put a loaded rifle on the stage if no one is thinking of firing it.
Letter to A. S. Lazarev, 1 Nov. 1889. Ilia Gurliand, in "Reminiscences of A. P. Chekhov," Teatr i Iskusstvo, 11 July 1904, states that Chekhov had told him the following in conversation at Yalta in the summer of 1889: "If in the first act you have hung a pistol on the wall, then in the following one it should be fired. Otherwise don't put it there."
- 4 I'm in mourning for my life, I'm unhappy.
The Seagull act 1 (1896)
- 5 I'm a seagull. No, that's wrong. Remember you shot a seagull? A man happened to come along, saw it and killed it, just to pass the time.
The Seagull act 4 (1896)
- 6 When a woman isn't beautiful, people always say, "You have lovely eyes, you have lovely hair."
Uncle Vanya act 3 (1897)

Richard B. Cheney

U.S. government official, 1941–

- 1 [Of the Iraq War:] My belief is we will, in fact, be greeted as liberators.
Interview by NBC Meet the Press television program, 16 Mar. 2003

Television interview, "Larry King Live," 30 May 2005

- 3 [Of his five draft deferments during the Vietnam War:] I had other priorities in the '60s than military service.

Quoted in interview in Wash. Post, 5 Apr. 1989

Cher (Cherilyn Sarkisian LaPierre)

U.S. singer and actress, 1946–

- 1 Mother told me a couple of years ago, “Sweetheart, settle down and marry a rich man.” I said, “Mom, I am a rich man.”

Quoted in Observer (London), 26 Nov. 1995

N. G. Chernyshevsky

Russian journalist and politician, 1828–1889

- 1 What Is to Be Done?

Title of book (1863)

Apsley Cherry-Garrard

English explorer, 1886–1959

- 1 [Of Antarctic explorers:] For a joint scientific and geographical piece of organization, give me Scott; for a Winter Journey, Wilson; for a dash to the Pole and nothing else, Amundsen: and if I am in the devil of a hole and want to get out of it, give me Shackleton every time.

The Worst Journey in the World vol. 1, preface (1922)

Philip Dormer Stanhope, Earl of Chesterfield

English writer and politician, 1694–1773

- 1 I have opposed measures not men.
Letter to Richard Chevenix, 6 Mar. 1742
- 2 Whatever is worth doing at all, is worth doing well.
Letters to His Son, 10 Mar. 1746
- 3 An injury is much sooner forgotten than an insult.
Letters to His Son, 9 Oct. 1746
- 4 Do as you would be done by is the surest method that I know of pleasing.
Letters to His Son, 16 Oct. 1747
See Aristotle 12; Bible 225; Confucius 9; Hillel 2
- 5 I knew, once, a very covetous, sordid fellow [William Lowndes], who used frequently to say, “Take care of the pence; for the pounds will take care of themselves.”
Letters to His Son, 6 Nov. 1747

- 6 The chapter of knowledge is a very short, but the chapter of accidents is a very long one.

Letter to Solomon Dayrolles, 16 Feb. 1753

- 7 [Of sex:] The pleasure is momentary, the position is ridiculous, and the expense is damnable.

Attributed in W. Somerset Maugham, Christmas Holiday (1939). George Bernard Shaw, in a letter to St. John Ervine, 12 Mar. 1928, attributed “the position is ridiculous, the pleasure but momentary, and the expense damnable” to an unnamed “Aberdonian.” “The pleasure is momentary, the attitudes ridiculous, and the expense _____” appeared, attributed to “a certain American,” in the Western Daily Press (Bristol, England), 20 Nov. 1902.

G. K. Chesterton

English writer, 1874–1936

- 1 The person who is really in revolt is the optimist, who generally lives and dies in a desperate and suicidal effort to persuade all the other people how good they are.
The Defendant introduction (1901)
- 2 The act of defending any of the cardinal virtues has to-day all the exhilaration of a vice.
The Defendant “A Defence of Humility” (1901)
- 3 “My country, right or wrong,” is a thing that no patriot would think of saying except in a desperate case. It is like saying “My mother, drunk or sober.”
The Defendant “A Defence of Patriotism” (1901)
See Decatur 1; Schurz 1; Twain 14
- 4 They have invented a phrase, a phrase that is a black and white contradiction in two words—“free-love”—as if a lover ever had been, or ever could be, free. It is the nature of love to bind itself, and the institution of marriage merely paid the average man the compliment of taking him at his word.
The Defendant “A Defence of Rash Vows” (1902)
- 5 When you break the big laws, you do not get liberty; you do not even get anarchy. You get the small laws.
Daily News (London), 29 July 1905
- 6 Truth must of necessity be stranger than fiction . . . For fiction is the creation of the human mind, and therefore is congenial to it.

- 7 It has often been said, very truly, that religion is the thing that makes the ordinary man feel extraordinary; it is an equally important truth that religion is the thing that makes the extraordinary man feel ordinary.
Charles Dickens: The Last of the Great Men ch. 1 (1906)
- 8 Creeds must disagree: it is the whole fun of the thing. If I think the universe is triangular, and you think it is square, there cannot be room for two universes. We may argue politely, we may argue humanely, we may argue with great mutual benefit: but, obviously, we must argue. Modern toleration is really a tyranny. It is a tyranny because it is a silence. To say that I must not deny my opponent's faith is to say I must not discuss it.

- 10 Poets do not go mad; but chess-players do. Mathematicians go mad, and cashiers; but creative artists very seldom. I am not, as will be seen, in any sense attacking logic: I only say that this danger does lie in logic, not in imagination.
Orthodoxy ch. 2 (1908)
- 11 Tradition means giving votes to the most obscure of all classes, our ancestors. It is the democracy of the dead. Tradition refuses to submit to the small and arrogant oligarchy of those who merely happen to be walking about. All democrats object to men being disqualified by the accident of birth; tradition objects to their being disqualified by the accident of death.

- 13 You will hear everlastingly, in all discussions about newspapers, companies, aristocracies, or party politics, this argument that the rich man cannot be bribed. The fact is, of course, that the rich man is bribed; he has been bribed already. That is why he is a rich man.
Orthodoxy ch. 7 (1908)
- 14 Fairy-tales do not give a child his first idea of boggy. What fairy-tales give the child is his first clear idea of the possible defeat of boggy. The baby has known the dragon intimately ever since he had an imagination. What the fairy-tale provides for him is a St. George to kill the dragon.
Tremendous Trifles "The Red Angel" (1909)
- 15 Our civilization has decided, and very justly decided, that determining the guilt or innocence of men is a thing too important to be trusted to trained men. . . . When it wants a library catalogued, or the solar system discovered, or any trifle of that kind, it uses up its specialists. But when it wishes anything done which is really serious, it collects twelve of the ordinary men standing round. The same thing was done, if I remember right, by the Founder of Christianity.
Tremendous Trifles "The Twelve Men" (1909)
- 16 This diseased pride [of artistic individualists] was not even conscious of a public interest, and would have found all political terms utterly tasteless and insignificant. It was no longer a question of one man one vote, but of one man one universe.

- 19 The mystic does not bring doubts or riddles: the doubts and riddles exist already. We all feel the riddle of the earth without anyone to point it out. The mystery of life is the plainest part of it. The clouds and curtains of darkness, the confounding vapors, these are the daily weather of this world.

- 25 The first effect of not believing in God is to believe in anything.
 Attributed in Emile Cammaerts, The Laughing Prophet (1937). This quotation has not been traced in Chesterton’s own writings. It may be a blend of two of his statements in the Father Brown stories: “It’s the first effect of not believing in God that you lose your common sense” (“The Oracle of the Dog” [1923]) and “You hard-shelled materialists were all balanced on the very edge of belief—of belief in almost anything” (“The Miracle of Moon Crescent” [1924]).

U.S. lawyer and diplomat, 1832–1917

- 1 You cannot live without the lawyers, and certainly you cannot die without them.
 “The Bench and the Bar” (speech), New York, N.Y., 13 May 1879

2 America, the paradise of lawyers.
Lecture at Philosophical Institution of Edinburgh,
Edinburgh, Scotland, 13 Nov. 1900

3 At a certain drawing room in London . . . a guest approached Mr. Choate, who was in the conventional dress of the English waiter, and said, "Call me a cab." "All right," said Mr.
Choate, "if you wish it. You're a cab."
Reported in N.Y. Times, 17 Nov. 1901

U.S. writer, 1850–1904

1 Mrs. Pontellier was beginning to realize her position in the universe as a human being, and to recognize her relations as an individual to the world within and about her.

The Awakening ch. 6 (1899)

2 The years that are gone seem like dreams—if one might go on sleeping and dreaming—but to wake up and find—oh! well! Perhaps it is better to wake up after all, even to suffer, rather than to remain a dupe to illusions all one's life.

The Awakening ch. 38 (1899)

3 For the first time in her life she stood naked in the open air, at the mercy of the sun, the breeze that beat upon her, and the waves that invited her.

Agatha Christie

English detective fiction writer, 1890–1976

1 [Fictional detective Hercule] Poirot was an extraordinary-looking little man. He was hardly more than five feet four inches, but carried himself with great dignity. His head was exactly the shape of an egg, and he always perched it a little on one side. His moustache was very stiff and military. The neatness of his attire was almost incredible; I believe a speck of dust would have caused him more pain than a bullet wound.

The Mysterious Affair at Styles ch. 2 (1920)

2 He [Hercule Poirot] tapped his forehead.
"These little grey cells. It is 'up to them.'"

Church was responding to a letter from eight-year-old Virginia O'Hanlon, asking "Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says 'If you see it in The Sun it's so.' Please tell me the truth; is there a Santa Claus?"

- 33 A shadow has fallen upon the scenes so lately lighted by the Allied victory. . . . From Stettin in the Baltic to Trieste in the Adriatic, an iron curtain has descended across the Continent. Address at Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., 5 Mar. 1946. Churchill's speech popularized the term iron curtain in reference to the political divide between the Soviet Union, and the nations dominated by that country, and the rest of the world. Iron curtain had been used in this sense as early as 1920 in Ethel Snowden, Through Bolshevik Russia. Churchill himself used the term in a telegram to President Harry S. Truman, 12 May 1945.

Quoted in Violet Bonham-Carter, Winston Churchill as I Knew Him (1965)
- 51 [On the Chiefs of Staff system.:] You may take the most gallant sailor, the most intrepid airman, or the most audacious soldier, put them at a table together—what do you get? The sum of their fears.
Quoted in Harold Macmillan, The Blast of War: 1939–45 (1968) (entry for 16 Nov. 1943)
- 52 [On his portrait, painted by Graham Sutherland.:] I look as if I was having a difficult stool.
Quoted in The Lyttelton Hart-Davis Letters, ed. Rupert Hart-Davis (1978) (letter of 20 Nov. 1955)
- 53 [To Anthony Eden about a long report from the latter.:] As far as I can see you have used every cliché except “God is Love” and “Please adjust your dress before leaving.”
Attributed in Life, 9 Dec. 1940. The Oxford Dictionary of 20th Century Quotations notes that “when this story was repeated in the Daily Mirror, Churchill denied that it was true.”
- 54 This is the kind of pedantic nonsense up with which I will not put!
Attributed in Washington Post, 30 Sept. 1946. Supposedly Churchill's marginal note in response to a civil servant's objection to his having ended a sentence with a preposition. However, the following appeared in Strand Magazine, May 1942: “When a memorandum passed round a certain Government department, one young pedant scribbled a postscript drawing attention to the fact that the sentence ended with a preposition, which caused the original writer to circulate another memorandum complaining that the anonymous postscript was ‘offensive impertinence, up with which I will not put.’”
- 55 [Replying to Nancy Astor's saying “If I were your wife I would put poison in your coffee!”.:] And if I were your husband I would drink it.
Attributed in Consuelo Vanderbilt Balsan, Glitter and Gold (1952). George Thayer, who had worked as research assistant to Randolph Churchill on the latter's biography of Winston Churchill, wrote in 1971 that this anecdote was false. In fact, the joke appears to be an old one. The Gazette-Telegraph (Colorado Springs, Colo.), 19 Nov. 1899, printed the following: “‘If you were my husband, sir, I'd give you a dose of poison!’ The man looked at her. ‘If I were your husband,’ said he, ‘I'd take it.’”
- 56 If you're going through hell, keep going.
Attributed in Herald & Review (Decatur, Ill.), 20 Oct. 1995. This attribution is undoubtedly apocryphal.

Count Galeazzo Ciano

Italian politician, 1903–1944

- 1 La vittoria trova cento padri, e nessuno vuole riconoscerne l'insuccesso.
Victory has a hundred fathers, but no one wants to recognize defeat as his own.
Diary, 9 Sept. 1942. Often quoted with the words “but defeat is an orphan.”

E. M. Cioran

Romanian-born French philosopher, 1911–1995

1 Without the possibility of suicide, I would have killed myself long ago.

Quoted in Independent (London), 2 Dec. 1989

Sandra Cisneros

U.S. writer, 1954–

1 You can never have too much sky. You can fall asleep and wake up drunk on sky and sky can keep you safe when you are sad. Here there is too much sadness and not enough sky.
Butterflies too are few and so are flowers and most things that are beautiful. Still, we take what we can get and make the best of it.

The House on Mango Street (1984)

2 No, this isn't my house I say and shake my head as if shaking could undo the year I've lived here. I don't belong. I don't ever want to come from here.

The House on Mango Street (1984)

Henry Clapp, Jr.

U.S. journalist, 1814–1875

1 Horace Greeley is a self made man, and worships his creator.

Quoted in Springfield (Mass.) Republican, 12 Mar.
1868

Eric Clapton (Eric Clapp)

English rock musician, 1945–

1 Would you know my name

If I saw you in heaven?

Would it be the same

If I saw you in heaven?

“Tears in Heaven” (song) (1992). Cowritten with Will Jennings.

Sidney Clare

U.S. songwriter, 1892–1972

- I On the good ship
Lollipop
It's a sweet trip
To a candy shop
Where bon-bons play
On the sunny beach of Peppermint Bay.
"On the Good Ship Lollipop" (song) (1934)

Kenneth B. Clark

U.S. psychologist, 1917–1983

- I Negroes will not break out of the barriers of the ghetto unless whites transcend the barriers of their own minds, for the ghetto is to the Negro a reflection of the ghetto in which the white lives imprisoned. The poetic irony of American race relations is that the rejected Negro must somehow also find the strength to free the privileged white.
Dark Ghetto ch. 9 (1965)

Ramsey Clark

U.S. government official and political activist, 1927–

- I There are few better measures of the concern a society has for its individual members and its own well being than the way it handles criminals.
Keynote address to American Correctional Association conference, Miami Beach, Fla., Aug. 1967
See Pearl S. Buck 3; Dostoyevski 1; Humphrey 3; Samuel Johnson 69; Helen Keller 4

Susanna Clark

U.S. songwriter and painter, 1939–2012

- I You've got to sing like you don't need the money
Love like you'll never get hurt
You've got to dance like nobody's watchin'
It's gotta come from the heart if you want it to work.
"Come from the Heart" (song) (1987). Cowritten with Richard Leigh.

Arthur C. Clarke

English science fiction writer, 1917–2008

- I Overhead, without any fuss, the stars were going out.
"The Nine Billion Names of God" (1953)
- 2 When a distinguished but elderly scientist states that something is possible, he is almost certainly right. When he states that something is impossible, he is very probably wrong. . . . the only way to discover the limits of the possible is to go beyond them to the impossible.
Profiles of the Future ch. 2 (1962). These are "Clarke's First Law" and "Clarke's Second Law."
- 3 David Bowman had time for just one broken sentence which the waiting men in Mission Control, nine hundred million miles away and eighty minutes in the future, were never to forget: "The thing's hollow—it goes on forever—and—oh my God!—it's full of stars!"
2001: A Space Odyssey ch. 39 (1968)
- 4 Then he [the Star Child] waited, marshaling his thoughts and brooding over his still untested powers. For though he was master of the world, he was not quite sure what to do next.
But he would think of something.
2001: A Space Odyssey ch. 47 (1968)
- 5 Any sufficiently advanced technology is indistinguishable from magic.
Letter to the editor, Science, 19 Jan. 1968. This is "Clarke's Third Law."
- 6 How inappropriate to call this planet Earth, when clearly it is Ocean.
Quoted in James E. Lovelock, Gaia (1979)
- 7 Two possibilities exist: Either we are alone in the Universe or we are not. Both are equally terrifying.
Quoted in Michio Kaku, Visions: How Science Will Revolutionize the Twenty-First Century (1999)

Grant Clarke

U.S. songwriter, 1891–1931

- I Ev'ryone knows
That I'm just second hand Rose
From Second Avenue.
"Second Hand Rose" (song) (1921)

Richard Clarke

U.S. government official, 1950–

- 1 [Apology to families of victims of 11 Sept. 2001 terrorist attacks:] Your government failed you, those entrusted with protecting you failed you, and I failed you.
 Testimony Before National Commission on Terrorist Attacks upon the United States, Washington, D.C., 24 Mar. 2004

Karl von Clausewitz

German soldier and military theorist, 1780–1831

- 1 War is the realm of uncertainty; three-quarters of the factors on which action is based are wrapped in a fog of greater or lesser uncertainty.
On War bk. 1, ch. 3 (1833). Perhaps the closest Clausewitz comes to using the expression “the fog of war,” which is often attributed to him. Jay M. Shafritz, Words on War, quotes Chevalier Floard, Nouvelles Découvertes sur la Guerre (1724): “The coup d’oeuil is a gift of God and cannot be acquired; but if professional knowledge does not perfect it, one only sees things imperfectly and in a fog.”
- 2 War is regarded as nothing but the continuation of state policy with other means.
On War author’s note (1833) (translation by O. J. Matthijs Jolles). The most common English-language version is “War is the continuation of politics by other means.”

Rudolf Clausius

German physicist and mathematician, 1822–1888

- 1 In all cases where work is produced by heat, a quantity of heat proportional to the work done is expended; and inversely, by the expenditure of a like quantity of work, the same amount of heat may be produced.
 “On the Moving Force of Heat, and the Laws Regarding the Nature of Heat Itself Which Are Deducible Therefrom” (1851)
- 2 Heat can never pass from a colder to a warmer body without some other change, connected therewith, occurring at the same time.
 “On a Modified Form of the Second Fundamental Theorem in the Mechanical Theory of Heat” (1856)

- 3 1. The energy of the universe is constant.
 2. The entropy of the universe tends toward a maximum.

“Ueber Verschiedene für die Anwendung Bequeme Formen der Hauptgleichungen der Mechanischen Warmtheorie” (1865). These are formulations of the “First Law of Thermodynamics” and “Second Law of Thermodynamics.”

Henry Clay

U.S. politician, 1777–1852

- 1 I had rather be right than be President.
 Quoted in Niles’ Register, 23 Mar. 1839

Eldridge Cleaver

U.S. political activist, 1935–1998

- 1 Rape was an insurrectionary act. . . . I wanted to send waves of consternation throughout the white race.
Soul on Ice pt. 1 (1968)
- 2 You’re either part of the solution or you’re part of the problem.
 Speech to San Francisco Barristers’ Club, San Francisco, Calif., Sept. 1968. An earlier example of a similar formulation in the Guthrie (Guthrie Center, Iowa), 24 Jan. 1961: “Every person is either part of the problem, or part of the solution.” An even earlier precursor was U.S. Senate Chaplain Peter Marshall’s prayer printed in the Congressional Record for 10 Jan. 1947: “May we resolve, God helping us, to be part of the answer, and not part of the problem.”

Sarah N. Cleghorn

U.S. poet and reformer, 1876–1959

- 1 The golf links lie so near the mill
 That almost every day
 The laboring children can look out
 And watch the men at play.
 “The Golf Links Lie So Near the Mill” l. 1 (1915)

Georges Clemenceau

French prime minister, 1841–1929

- 1 My home policy: I wage war; my foreign policy: I wage war. All the time I wage war.
 Speech to French Chamber of Deputies, 8 Mar. 1918
- 2 It is easier to make war than to make peace.
 Speech, Verdun, France, 20 July 1919
- 3 The Germans may take Paris, but that will not prevent me from going on with the war.

We will fight on the Loire, we will fight on the Garonne, we will fight even on the Pyrenees. And if at last we are driven off the Pyrenees, we will continue the war at sea.

Quoted in J. Hampden Jackson, Clemenceau and the Third Republic (1946)

See Winston Churchill 14

- 4 War is too serious a matter to entrust to military men.

Attributed in Georges Suarez, Soixante Années d'Histoire Française (1932)

See Briand 2; de Gaulle 10

- 5 [Upon being told that his son had joined the Communist Party:] My son is 22 years old. If he had not become a Communist at 22, I would have disowned him. If he is still a Communist at 30, I will do it then.

Attributed in Bennett Cerf, Try and Stop Me (1944)

See John Adams 19; Batbie 1; George Bernard Shaw 48

- 6 America is the only nation in history which miraculously has gone directly from barbarism to degeneration without the usual interval of civilization.

Attributed in Saturday Review of Literature, 1 Dec. 1945. "Americans are the only race which passed directly from barbarism to decadence without knowing civilization" appeared in the Washington Post, 16 July 1932, translating the French newspaper La Liberté.

- 7 [Remark during Paris Peace Conference, 1919, about Woodrow Wilson's "Fourteen Points":] The Good Lord had only ten.

Attributed in J. Hampden Jackson, Clemenceau and the Third Republic (1946)

- 8 Military justice is to justice as military music is to music.

Attributed in Herve Lauwick, Les Français Sont Droles (1966). This quotation, usually credited to Clemenceau, was ascribed as "the bon mot of a French minister after listening to bitter criticism of certain recent trials . . . Journal du Dimanche, Paris," in the Hays (Kan.) Daily News, 22 Jan. 1961.

Grover Cleveland

U.S. president, 1837–1908

- 1 A man had never yet been hung for breaking the spirit of a law.

Attributed in James Ford Rhodes, History of the United States (1919). Although this quotation is associated with Cleveland, Rhodes asserts: "It is impossible, I think, that Cleveland should have made the defence attributed by Ostrogorski to a certain high official that 'a man had never yet been hung for breaking of the spirit of a law.'" The reference is probably to Moisei Ostrogorski, Democracy and the Organization of Political Parties (1902).

Harlan Cleveland

U.S. government official, 1918–2008

- 1 The Revolution of Rising Expectations.
Title of speech at Colgate University, Hamilton, N.Y., 1949
- 2 Coalitions of the willing.
Quoted in Lincoln Bloomfield, Testimony Before House Subcommittee on International Organizations and Movements, Oct. 1971. Bloomfield had written in 1960 of "a protocol among the like-minded" and in July 1971 of a "coalition of the law-abiding."

Jimmy Cliff (James Chambers)

Jamaican reggae singer and songwriter, 1948–

- 1 Many rivers to cross
But I can't seem to find my way over.
"Many Rivers to Cross" (song) (1970)
- 2 As sure as the sun will shine
I'm going to get my share now, what's mine
And then the harder they come, the harder they fall
One and all.
"The Harder They Come" (song) (1971)
See Fitzsimmons 1

George Clinton

U.S. rhythm and blues musician, 1941–

- 1 Free Your Mind and Your Ass Will Follow.
Title of song (1971)

Hillary Rodham Clinton

U.S. politician, 1947–

- 1 [Of her support of her husband Bill Clinton:] You know, I'm not sitting here some little woman standing by my man like Tammy Wynette, I'm sitting here because I love him and I respect him and I honor what he's been through and what we've been through together.
Interview, Sixty Minutes, 26 Jan. 1992
See Wynette 4
- 2 I could have stayed home and baked cookies and had teas. But what I decided was to fulfill

- my profession, which I entered before my husband was in public life.
Campaign remarks, Chicago, Ill., 16 Mar. 1992
- 3 We lack meaning in our individual lives and meaning collectively. We lack a sense that our lives are part of some greater effort, that we are connected to one another. We need a new politics of meaning. We need a new ethos of individual responsibility and caring. We need a new definition of civil society . . . that makes us feel that we are part of something bigger than ourselves.
Speech at University of Texas, Austin, Tex., 6 Apr. 1993
- 4 Human rights are women’s rights and women’s rights are human rights.
Speech at United Nations Fourth World Conference on Women, Beijing, 5 Sept. 1995
- 5 You know, we’ve been married for 22 years . . . and I have learned a long time ago that the only people who count in any marriage are the two that are in it.
Interview, NBC Today Show, 27 Jan. 1998
- 6 The great story here . . . is this vast right-wing conspiracy that has been conspiring against my husband since the day he announced for president.
Interview, NBC Today Show, 27 Jan. 1998
- 7 Although we weren’t able to shatter that highest, hardest glass ceiling this time, thanks to you, it’s got about 18 million cracks in it, and the light is shining through like never before.
Concession speech ending candidacy for 2008 Democratic presidential nomination, Washington, D.C., 7 June 2008
- 8 [Of President Bill Clinton and herself:] We came out of the White House not only dead broke, but in debt.
ABC News interview, 9 June 2014
- 9 A man you can bait with a tweet is not a man we can trust with nuclear weapons.
Presidential nomination acceptance speech, Democratic National Convention, Philadelphia, Pa., 28 July 2016
- 10 You could put half of Trump’s supporters into what I call the “basket of deplorables.”
Remarks at fundraiser, New York, N.Y., 9 Sept. 2016
- 11 [In politics] you need both a public and a private position.
Speech to National Multi-Housing Council, Dallas, Tex., 24 Apr. 2013. This private speech was released in a WikiLeaks email dump, 7 Oct. 2016.
- William Jefferson “Bill” Clinton (William Jefferson Blythe III)
U.S. president, 1946–
- 1 [Description of himself:] The comeback kid.
Statement to supporters on night of New Hampshire primary, Concord, N.H., 18 Feb. 1992
- 2 [Addressed to an AIDS activist accusing him of avoiding that issue:] I feel your pain.
Remark at campaign reception, New York, N.Y., 26 Mar. 1992
- 3 There is nothing wrong with America that cannot be cured by what is right with America.
Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1993
- 4 This ceremony is held in the depth of winter. But, by the words we speak and the faces we show the world, we force the spring.
Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1993
- 5 [Of veterans of the D-Day invasion in World War II:] They may walk with a little less spring in their step, and their ranks are growing thinner, but let us never forget, when they were young, these men saved the world.
Remarks on the 50th anniversary of D-Day at the United States Cemetery, Colleville-sur-Mer, France, 6 June 1994
- 6 The era of big government is over.
State of the Union Address, 23 Jan. 1996
- 7 We do not need to build a bridge to the past, we need to build a bridge to the future, and that is what I commit to you to do! So tonight, let us resolve to build that bridge to the 21st century.
Nomination acceptance speech at Democratic National Convention, Chicago, Ill., 29 Aug. 1996. Clinton had earlier said, “We have to build a bridge to the 21st century,” at a ceremony honoring teachers, 23 Apr. 1996.
- 8 I did not have sexual relations with that woman, Miss Lewinsky.
Comment during remarks on after-school child-care initiative, 26 Jan. 1998
- 9 [Characterizing the truthfulness of his lawyer’s statement, “There is absolutely no sex of any kind in any manner, shape, or form":] It depends on what the meaning of the word "is" is.

Grand jury testimony, Washington, D.C., 17 Aug. 1998. Clinton went on to say, "If the—if he—if 'is' means is and never has been, that is not—that is one thing. If it means there is none, that was a completely true statement."

- 10 I did have a relationship with Ms. Lewinsky that was not appropriate. In fact, it was wrong. Address to the nation on testimony before the independent counsel's grand jury, 17 Aug. 1998
- 11 [Explaining his affair with Monica Lewinsky]: I did something for the worst possible reason—just because I could.
Interview on CBS News, 16 June 2004
- 12 Strength and wisdom are not opposing values. Address to Democratic National Convention, Boston, Mass., 26 July 2004
- 13 The American people . . . [are] tired of the politics of personal destruction.
Quoted in St. Louis Post-Dispatch, 13 Mar. 1992
- 14 I experimented with marijuana a time or two. And I didn't like it, and I didn't inhale.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 30 Mar. 1992
See Richler 2

Robert Clive, Baron Clive of Plassey

British general and government official, 1725–1774

- 1 [Remark during Parliamentary cross-examination, 1773]: By God, Mr. Chairman, at this moment I stand astonished at my own moderation!
Quoted in G. R. Gleig, The Life of Robert, First Lord Clive (1848)

Arthur Hugh Clough

English poet, 1819–1861

- 1 Say not the struggle nought availeth,
The labor and the wounds are vain,
The enemy faints not, nor faileth,
And as things have been, they remain.
"Say Not the Struggle Nought Availeth" l. 1 (1855)
- 2 In front the sun climbs slow, how slowly,
But westward, look, the land is bright.
"Say Not the Struggle Nought Availeth" l. 15 (1855)
- 3 No graven images may be Worshipped, except the currency.
"The Latest Decalogue" l. 3 (1862)

4 Thou shalt not kill; but need'st not strive Officiously to keep alive.

"The Latest Decalogue" l. 11 (1862)

5 Thou shalt not steal; an empty feat,
When it's so lucrative to cheat.

"The Latest Decalogue" l. 15 (1862)

6 Thou shalt not covet; but tradition
Approves all forms of competition.

"The Latest Decalogue" l. 19 (1862)

Manfred Clynes

Austrian-born Australian neuroscientist,
1925–2020

- 1 For the exogenously extended organizational complex functioning as an integrated homeostatic system unconsciously, we propose the term "Cyborg." The Cyborg deliberately incorporates exogenous components extending the self-regulatory control function of the organism in order to adapt it to new environments.

Astronautics, Sept. 1960

Ronald Coase

English economist, 1910–2013

- 1 If you torture the data long enough, it will confess.

Quoted in American Statistician, June 1972

Kurt Cobain

U.S. rock musician and songwriter, 1967–1994

- 1 Here we are now, entertain us.
"Smells like Teen Spirit" (song) (1991)
- 2 I found it hard, it was hard to find,
Oh well, whatever, never mind.
"Smells like Teen Spirit" (song) (1991)
- 3 I'd rather be dead than cool.
"Stay Away" (song) (1991)

Irvin S. Cobb

U.S. novelist and playwright, 1876–1944

- 1 It is the private opinion of this court that not only is the late defendant sane but that he is the sanest man in this entire jurisdiction.
"Boys Will Be Boys" (1917)
See Film Lines 121

Will D. Cobb

U.S. songwriter, 1876–1930

- 1 School-days, school-days, dear old golden rule days,
 Readin' and 'ritin' and 'rithmetic,
 Taught to the tune of a hick'ry stick.
 "School-Days" (song) (1907)

Johnnie Cochran, Jr.

U.S. lawyer, 1937–2005

- 1 If it does not fit, then you must acquit.
 Closing argument for defense in trial of O. J. Simpson, Los Angeles, Calif., 27 Sept. 1995.
 Referring to a leather glove that was alleged to have belonged to Simpson, and more broadly to the entire prosecution case against Simpson.

Claud Cockburn

British author and journalist, 1904–1981

- 1 [Suggested dull headline for Times (London), ca. 1929:] Small earthquake in Chile. Not many dead.
 Claud Cockburn, A Discord of Trumpets (1956)

Jean Cocteau

French writer, artist, and film director, 1889–1963

- 1 Je suis un mensonge qui dit toujours la vérité.
 I am a lie who always speaks the truth.
 "Le Paquet Rouge" (1925)
 See Cocteau 3
- 2 Victor Hugo was a madman who thought he was Victor Hugo.
Opium: The Diary of a Cure (1930)

The Alchemist pt. 1 (1988)

J. M. Coetzee

South African novelist, 1940–

- 1 The barbarians come out at night. Before darkness falls the last goat must be brought in, the gates barred, a watch set in every lookout to call the hours. All night, it is said, the barbarians prowl about bent on murder and rapine. Children in their dreams see the shutters part and fierce barbarian faces leer through. "The barbarians are here!" the children scream, and cannot be comforted.
Waiting for the Barbarians ch. 5 (1980)
- 2 This is not the scene I dreamed of. Like much else nowadays I leave it feeling stupid, like a man who lost his way long ago but presses on along a road that may lead nowhere.
Waiting for the Barbarians ch. 6 (1980)

William Sloane Coffin

U.S. clergyman and activist, 1924–2006

- 1 Even if you win a rat race, you're still a rat.
Life, 30 Apr. 1965. In this Life magazine article, Coffin appears to have been quoting an anonymous student, but the line may have been something he himself had used earlier in the 1950s or 1960s. The Boston Herald, 11 Aug. 1956, quoted an unnamed person as saying "You can win the rat race, but you're still a rat."

George M. Cohan

U.S. actor and playwright, 1878–1942

- 1 I'm a Yankee Doodle dandy,
 A Yankee Doodle, do or die;
 A real live nephew of my Uncle Sam's,
 Born on the Fourth of July.
 "The Yankee Doodle Boy" (song) (1901)
- 2 Always Leave Them Laughing When You Say Good-Bye.
 Title of song (1903)

- 3 Give my regards to Broadway,
Remember me to Herald Square.
Tell all the gang at Forty-second Street
That I will soon be there.
“Give My Regards to Broadway” (song) (1904)
- 4 You’re a grand old flag,
You’re a high-flying flag,
And forever in peace may you wave.
You’re the emblem of
The land I love,
The home of the free and the brave.
Ev’ry heart beats true
Under Red, White, and Blue,
Where there’s never a boast or brag.
“You’re a Grand Old Flag” (song) (1906)
- 5 Over there, over there,
Send the word, send the word over there,
That the Yanks are coming, the Yanks are coming,
The drums rum-tumming ev’rywhere.
“Over There” (song) (1917)
- 6 We’ll be over, we’re coming over,
And we won’t come back till it’s over over there.
“Over There” (song) (1917)
- 7 My father thanks you, my mother thanks you, my sister thanks you, I thank you.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 2 Oct. 1921
- 8 Never let that ——— in this office again, unless we need him.
Quoted in Alva Johnston, The Great Goldwyn (1937)
- 9 [To a reporter in 1912:] I don’t care what you say about me, as long as you say something about me, and as long as you spell my name right.
Quoted in John McCabe, George M. Cohan (1973)

Leonard Cohen

Canadian singer and writer, 1934–2016

- 1 And when He knew for certain only drowning men could see Him
He said “All men shall be sailors, then, until the sea shall free them,”
But He Himself was broken long before the sky would open.
Forsaken, almost human, He sank beneath your wisdom like a stone.

- “Suzanne” (song) (1966). The lyrics for this song first appeared as the poem “Suzanne Takes You Down” in Cohen’s book Parasites of Heaven (1966).
- 2 And you want to travel with her,
And you want to travel blind;
And you know that you can trust her,
For she’s touched your perfect body with her mind.
“Suzanne” (song) (1966)
- 3 Now I’ve heard there was a secret chord
That David played, and it pleased the Lord
But you don’t really care for music, do you?
It goes like this the fourth, the fifth
The minor fall, the major lift
The baffled king composing Hallelujah.
“Hallelujah” (song) (1984)
- 4 Everybody knows that the dice are loaded
Everybody rolls with their fingers crossed
Everybody knows that the war is over
Everybody knows the good guys lost
Everybody knows the fight was fixed
The poor stay poor, the rich get rich
That’s how it goes
Everybody knows.
“Everybody Knows” (song) (1988). Cowritten with Sharon Robinson.
- 5 Ring the bells that still can ring.
Forget your perfect offering.
There is a crack in everything.
That’s how the light gets in.
“Anthem” (song) (1992)

U.S. lawyer, 1966–

- 1 In coordination with, and at the direction of, a candidate for federal office [Donald Trump], I and the CEO of a media company at the request of the candidate worked together to keep an individual with information that would be harmful to the candidate and to the campaign from publicly disclosing this information. . . .
I participated in this conduct, which on my part took place in Manhattan, for the principal purpose of influencing the election.

Edward Coke

English judge and lawyer, 1552–1634

- 1 The house of every one is to him as his castle and fortress, as well for his defence against injury and violence, as for his repose.
Semayne's Case (1603)
See Coke 8; Otis 2; William Pitt, Earl of Chatham 2
- 2 In many cases, the common law will control Acts of Parliament, and sometimes adjudge them to be utterly void: for when an Act of Parliament is against common right and reason, or repugnant, or impossible to be performed, the common law will control it, and adjudge such Act to be void.
Bonham's Case (1610)
- 3 How long soever it hath continued, if it be against reason, it is of no force in law.
The First Part of the Institutes of the Laws of England bk. 1, ch. 10 (1628). Derives from a gloss to Justinian's Digest (to Dig. 35, 1, 72, sec. 6) in Corpus Iuris Civilis, vol. 2 (1559), that reads: "cessante cesset legatum, secus autem est in ratione legis."

Nat King Cole (Nathaniel Adams Coles)

U.S. singer and musician, 1919–1965

- 1 Straighten Up and Fly Right.
Title of song (1943). Cowritten with Irving Mills.

Paula Cole

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1968–

- 1 Where is my John Wayne?
Where is my prairie song?
Where is my happy ending?
Where have all the cowboys gone?
"Where Have All the Cowboys Gone?" (song) (1996)

Samuel Taylor Coleridge

English poet, critic, and philosopher, 1772–1834

- 1 It is an ancient Mariner,
And he stoppeth one of three.
"By thy long grey beard and glittering eye,
Now wherefore stopp'st thou me?"
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 1 (1798)
- 2 The ice was here, the ice was there,
The ice was all around:
It crack'd and growl'd, and roar'd and howl'd,
Like noises in a swound!
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 59 (1798)
- 3 "God save thee, ancient Mariner!
From the fiends that plague thee thus!—
Why look'st thou so?"—With my cross-bow
I shot the Albatross.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 79 (1798)

- 4 We were the first that ever burst
Into that silent sea.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 105 (1798)
- 5 As idle as a painted ship
Upon a painted ocean.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 117 (1798)
- 6 Water, water, everywhere,
And all the boards did shrink;
Water, water, everywhere,
Nor any drop to drink.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 119 (1798).
Popularly quoted as "Water, water, everywhere, and not a drop to drink."
- 7 The very deep did rot: O Christ!
That ever this should be!
Yea, slimy things did crawl with legs
Upon the slimy sea.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 123 (1798)
- 8 Her lips were red, her looks were free,
Her locks were yellow as gold:
Her skin was white as leprosy,
The nightmare Life-in-Death was she,
Who thicks man's blood with cold.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 190 (1798)
- 9 I fear thee, ancient Mariner!
I fear thy skinny hand!
And thou art long, and lank, and brown,
As is the ribbed sea-sand.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 225 (1798)
- 10 Alone, alone, all, all alone,
Alone on a wide wide sea!
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 233 (1798)
- 11 Oh sleep! it is a gentle thing,
Beloved from pole to pole.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 293 (1798)
- 12 I pass, like night, from land to land;
I have strange power of speech;
That moment that his face I see,
I know the man that must hear me;
To him my tale I teach.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 587 (1798)
- 13 He prayeth well, who loveth well
Both man and bird and beast.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 613 (1798)
- 14 He prayeth best, who loveth best
All things both great and small;
For the dear God who loveth us,
He made and loveth all.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 615 (1798)
- 15 A sadder and a wiser man,
He rose the morrow morn.
"The Rime of the Ancient Mariner" l. 625 (1798)
- 16 Poetry is not the proper antithesis to prose, but to science. Poetry is opposed to science, and prose to metre. The proper and immediate object of science is the acquirement, or communication, of truth; the proper and immediate object of poetry is the communication of immediate pleasure.
"Definitions of Poetry" (1811)
- 17 Reviewers are usually people who would have been poets, historians, biographers, &c., if they could; they have tried their talents at one or the other, and have failed; therefore they turn critics.

- 18 On awaking he . . . instantly and eagerly wrote down the lines that are here preserved. At this moment he was unfortunately called out by a person on business from Porlock.
"Kubla Khan" preliminary note (1816)

- 19 In Xanadu did Kubla Khan
A stately pleasure dome decree:
Where Alph, the sacred river, ran Through caverns measureless to man
Down to a sunless sea.
"Kubla Khan" l. 1 (1816)
- 20 But oh! that deep romantic chasm which slanted
Down the green hill athwart a cedarn cover!
A savage place! as holy and enchanted
As e'er beneath a waning moon was haunted
By woman wailing for her demon-lover!
"Kubla Khan" l. 12 (1816)
- 21 And 'mid this tumult Kubla heard from afar Ancestral voices prophesying war!
"Kubla Khan" l. 29 (1816)
- 22 It was a miracle of rare device,
A sunny pleasure-dome with caves of ice.
"Kubla Khan" l. 35 (1816)
- 23 And all who heard should see them there,
And all should cry, Beware! Beware!
His flashing eyes, his floating hair!
Weave a circle round him thrice,
And close your eyes with holy dread,
For he on honey-dew hath fed,
And drunk the milk of Paradise.
"Kubla Khan" l. 51 (1816)

A very similar formulation appeared, attributed to Ralph Waldo Emerson, in Education Times, 2 Dec. 1907 (“Education is that which remains behind when all we have learned at school is forgotten”).

- 2 There is only one proved method of assisting the advancement of pure science—that of picking men of genius, backing them heavily, and leaving them to direct themselves.

Letter to the Editor, N.Y. Times, 13 Aug. 1945

- 3 He who enters a university walks on hallowed ground.

Quoted in Notes on the Harvard Tercentenary, ed. David McCord (1936)

- 4 Behold the turtle. He only makes progress when he sticks his neck out.

Quoted in The American Treasury: 1455–1955, ed. Clifton Fadiman (1955)

Confucius

Chinese philosopher, 551 B.C.–479 B.C.

- 1 Is it not a pleasure to learn and to repeat or practice from time to time what has been learned? Is it not delightful to have friends coming from afar? Is one not a superior man if he does not feel hurt even though he does not feel recognized?

Analects ch. 1, v. 1 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)

- 2 A ruler who governs his state by virtue is like the north polar star, which remains in its place while all the other stars revolve around it.

Analects ch. 2, v. 1 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)

- 3 A man who reviews the old so as to find out the new is qualified to teach others.

Analects ch. 2, v. 11 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)

4 A superior man in dealing with the world is not for anything or against anything. He follows righteousness as the standard.

Analects ch. 4, v. 10 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)

5 The Way of our Master is none other than conscientiousness of altruism.

Analects ch. 4, v. 15 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)

6 Man is born with uprightness. If one loses it he will be lucky if he escapes with his life.

Analects ch. 6, v. 17 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)

7 If we are not yet able to serve man, how can we serve spiritual beings? . . . If we do not yet know about life how can we know about death?

Analects ch. 11, v. 11 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)

8 To go too far is the same as not to go far enough.

Analects ch. 11, v. 15 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)

9 Do not do to others what you do not want them to do to you.

Analects ch. 15, v. 23 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan). The negative version of "The Golden Rule." Similar formulations appear in many religious traditions, such as in the Buddhist Udanavarga, the Hindu Mahabharata, and the Zoroastrian Dadistan-I Dinik. See Aristotle 12; Bible 225; Chesterfield 4; Hillel 2 10 By nature men are alike. Through practice they have become far apart.

Analects ch. 17, v. 2 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)

William Congreve

English playwright, 1670–1729

1 Married in haste, we may repent at leisure.

The Old Bachelor act 5, sc. 1 (1693)

2 No mask like open truth to cover lies,
As to go naked is the best disguise.

The Double Dealer act 5, sc. 6 (1694)

3 O fie Miss, you must not kiss and tell.

Love for Love act 2, sc. 10 (1695)

4 I confess freely to you, I could never look long upon a monkey, without very mortifying reflections.

Letter to John Dennis, 10 July 1695

5 Music has charms to sooth a savage breast.

The Mourning Bride act 1, sc. 1 (1697)

6 Heaven has no rage, like love to hatred turned,
Nor Hell a fury, like a woman scorned.

The Mourning Bride act 3, sc. 8 (1697). Often misquoted as "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned."

7 Say what you will, 'tis better to be left than never to have been loved.

The Way of the World act 2, sc. 1 (1700)

See Tennyson 29

Roscoe Conkling

U.S. politician, 1829–1888

1 I have noticed there are three classes of people who always say "we" instead of "I." They are emperors, editors, and men with a tape worm.

Atlanta Daily Constitution, 23 Oct. 1877

Nellie Connally

U.S. wife of governor of Texas, 1919–2006

1 [Remark to President John Kennedy immediately before his shooting in Dallas, 22 Nov. 1963:] You can't say Dallas doesn't love you, Mr. President.

Quoted in Chicago Tribune, 25 Nov. 1963

Cyril Connolly

English writer, 1903–1974

1 I shall christen this style the Mandarin, since it is beloved by literary pundits, by those who would make the written word as unlike as possible to the spoken one. It is the style of all those writers whose tendency is to make their language convey more than they mean or more than they feel, it is the style of most artists and all humbugs.

Enemies of Promise ch. 2 (1938)

2 Whom the gods wish to destroy they first call promising.

Enemies of Promise ch. 13 (1938)

See Proverbs 123

3 Imprisoned in every fat man a thin one is wildly signalling to be let out.

The Unquiet Grave pt. 2 (1944)

4 It is closing time in the gardens of the West and from now on an artist will be judged only by the resonance of his solitude or the quality of his despair.

Horizon, Dec. 1949–Jan. 1950

5 [Of George Orwell:] He could not blow his nose without moralising on conditions in the handkerchief industry.

The Evening Colonnade pt. 3 (1973)

James Connolly

Irish nationalist and labor leader, 1868–1916

1 The worker is the slave of capitalist society, the female worker is the slave of that slave.

The Re-conquest of Ireland (1915)

James Scott “Jimmy” Connors

U.S. tennis player, 1952–

1 New Yorkers love it when you spill your guts out there. You spill your guts at Wimbledon, they make you stop and clean it up.

Quoted in Sports Illustrated, 17 Sept. 1984

Joseph Conrad (Teodor Josef Konrad Korzeniowski)

Polish-born English novelist, 1857–1924

1 It's only those who do nothing that make no mistakes, I suppose.

Outcast of the Islands pt. 3, ch. 2 (1896)

2 A work that aspires, however humbly, to the condition of art should carry its justification in every line.

The Nigger of the Narcissus preface (1897)

3 But the artist appeals to that part of our being which is not dependent on wisdom; to that in us which is a gift and not an acquisition—and, therefore, more permanently enduring. He speaks to our capacity for delight and wonder, to the sense of mystery surrounding our lives: to our sense of pity, and beauty, and pain.

The Nigger of the Narcissus preface (1897)

4 My task which I am trying to achieve is by the power of the written word, to make you hear, to make you feel—it is, before all, to make you see. That—and no more, and it is everything.

The Nigger of the Narcissus preface (1897)

5 The problem of life seemed too voluminous for the narrow limits of human speech, and by common consent it was abandoned to the great sea that had from the beginning enfolded it in its immense grip; to the sea that knew all, and would in time infallibly unveil to each the wisdom hidden in all the errors, the certitude that lurks in doubts, the realm of safety and peace beyond the frontiers of sorrow and fear.

The Nigger of the Narcissus ch. 5 (1897)

6 One writes only half the book; the other half is with the reader.

Letter to Cunninghame Graham (1897)

7 There is a weird power in a spoken word. . . . And a word carries far—very far—deals destruction through time as the bullets go flying through space.

Lord Jim ch. 15 (1900)

8 That faculty of beholding at a hint the face of his desire and the shape of his dream, without which the earth would know no lover and no adventurer.

Lord Jim ch. 16 (1900)

9 A man that is born falls into a dream like a man who falls into the sea. If he tries to climb out into the air as inexperienced people endeavor to do, he drowns . . . and with the exertions of your hands and feet in the water make the deep, deep sea keep you up.

Lord Jim ch. 20 (1900)

10 To the destructive element submit yourself.

Lord Jim ch. 20 (1900)

11 The conquest of the earth, which mostly means the taking it away from those who have a different complexion or slightly flatter noses

- than ourselves, is not a pretty thing when you look into it.
Heart of Darkness ch. 1 (1902)
- 12 We live, as we dream—alone.
Heart of Darkness ch. 1 (1902)
- 13 I don't like work—no man does—but I like what is in work—the chance to find yourself. Your own reality—for yourself, not for others—what no other man can ever know.
Heart of Darkness ch. 1 (1902)
- 14 No fear can stand up to hunger, no patience can wear it out, disgust simply does not exist where hunger is; and as to superstition, beliefs, and what you may call principles, they are less than chaff in a breeze.
Heart of Darkness ch. 2 (1902)
- 15 Exterminate all the brutes!

- 17 Mistah Kurtz—he dead.
Heart of Darkness ch. 3 (1902)
- 18 The offing was barred by a black bank of clouds, and the tranquil waterway leading to the uttermost ends of the earth flowed sombre under an overcast sky—seemed to lead into the heart of an immense darkness.
Heart of Darkness ch. 3 (1902)
- 19 Only a moment; a moment of strength, of romance, of glamour—of youth! . . . A flick of sunshine upon a strange shore, the time to remember, the time for a sigh, and—good-bye!—Night—Good-bye . . . !”
“Youth” (1902). Ellipses in the original.
- 20 I remember my youth and the feeling that will never come back any more—the feeling that I could last for ever, outlast the sea, the earth, and all men; the deceitful feeling that lures us on to joys, to perils, to love, to vain effort—to death; the triumphant conviction of strength, the heat of life in the handful of dust, the glow in the heart that with every year grows dim, grows cold, grows small, and expires—and expires, too soon, too soon—before life itself.
“Youth” (1902)
See T. S. Eliot 43
- 21 The terrorist and the policeman both come from the same basket. Revolution, legality—counter-moves in the same game; forms of idleness at bottom identical.
The Secret Agent ch. 4 (1907)
- 22 A man's real life is that accorded to him in the thoughts of other men by reason of respect or natural love.
Under Western Eyes pt. 1, ch. 1 (1911)
- 23 The scrupulous and the just, the noble, humane, and devoted natures; the unselfish and the intelligent may begin a movement—but it passes away from them. They are not the leaders of a revolution. They are its victims.
Under Western Eyes pt. 2, ch. 3 (1911)
- 24 A belief in a supernatural source of evil is not necessary; men alone are quite capable of every wickedness.
Under Western Eyes pt. 2, ch. 4 (1911)
- 25 The perfect delight of writing tales where so many lives come and go at the cost of one which slips imperceptibly away.
A Personal Record ch. 5 (1912)
- 26 Only in men's imagination does every truth find an effective and undeniable existence. Imagination, not invention, is the supreme master of art, as of life.
Some Reminiscences ch. 1 (1912)
- 27 [On wartime:] Reality, as usual, beats fiction out of sight.
Letter, 11 Aug. 1915

Shirley Conran

English designer and journalist, 1932–

- 1 Life is too short to stuff a mushroom.
Superwoman epigraph (1975)

Pat Conroy

U.S. novelist, 1945–2016

- 1 It is the secret life that sustains me now, and as I reach the top of that bridge I say it in a whisper, I say it as a prayer, as regret, and as praise. I can't tell you why I do it or what it means, but each night when I drive toward my southern home and my southern life, I whisper these words: “Lowenstein, Lowenstein.”
The Prince of Tides epilogue (1986)

John Constable

English painter, 1776–1837

- I There is nothing ugly; I never saw an ugly thing in my life: for let the form of an object be what it may,—light, shade, and perspective will always make it beautiful.

Quoted in Charles Robert Leslie, Memoirs of the Life of John Constable (1843)

Benjamin Constant de Rebecque

French writer and politician, 1767–1834

- I L'art pour l'art.

Art for art's sake.

Constantine the Great

Roman emperor, ca. 288–337

- I By this, conquer.

Quoted in Eusebius, Life of Constantine. Supposedly the words of Constantine's vision before the battle of Saxa Rubra, 312.

Constitution of the United States

- I We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, ensure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.
Preamble (1787)
See Barbara Jordan 1
- 2 Representatives and direct Taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective Numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole Number of free Persons, including those bound to Service for a Term of Years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other Persons.
Article 1, Section 2 (1787)
- 3 The Congress shall have Power . . . To make all Laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution the foregoing Powers, and all other Powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any Department or Officer thereof.
Article 1, Section 8 (1787)
- 4 Before he [the President] enter on the Execution of his Office, he shall take the following Oath of Affirmation:—"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my Ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States."
Article 2, Section 1 (1787)
- 5 He [the President] shall have Power, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, to make Treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, shall appoint Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, Judges of the supreme Court, and all other Officers of the United States.
Article 2, Section 2 (1787)
- 6 He [the President] shall from time to time give to the Congress Information of the State of the Union.
Article 2, Section 3 (1787)
- 7 The President, Vice President, and all civil Officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors.
Article 2, Section 4 (1787)
- 8 Treason against the United States, shall consist only in levying War against them, or in adhering to their Enemies, giving them Aid and Comfort. No Person shall be convicted of Treason unless on the Testimony of two Witnesses to the same overt Act, or on Confession in open Court.
Article 3, Section 3 (1787)
- 9 Full Faith and Credit shall be given in each State to the public Acts, Records, and judicial Proceedings of every other State.
Article 4, Section 1 (1787)
- 10 This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof, and all Treaties made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States, shall be the supreme Law of the Land; and the Judges in every State shall be bound

- thereby, any Thing in the Constitution or Laws of any State to the Contrary notwithstanding.
Article 6 (1787)
- 11 Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or of the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.
First Amendment (1791)
- 12 A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.
Second Amendment (1791)
- 13 The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.
Fourth Amendment (1791)
- 14 Nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.
Fifth Amendment (1791)
- 15 In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining Witnesses in his favor, and to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defence.
Sixth Amendment (1791)
- 16 In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury, shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.
Seventh Amendment (1791)
- 17 Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.
Eighth Amendment (1791)
- 18 The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.
Ninth Amendment (1791)
- 19 The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.
Tenth Amendment (1791)
- 20 Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.
Thirteenth Amendment, Section 1 (1865)
- 21 No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.
Fourteenth Amendment, Section 1 (1868)
- 22 The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.
Fifteenth Amendment, Section 1 (1870)
- 23 The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.
Nineteenth Amendment (1920)
- Kellyanne Conway
U.S. political operative, 1967–

Robin Cook

British politician, 1946–2005

- 1 Why is it now so urgent that we should take military action [against Iraq] to disarm a military capacity that has been there for twenty years, and which we helped to create?
Speech in House of Commons, 17 Mar. 2003

Sam Cooke

U.S. soul singer, 1931–1964

- 1 Don't know much about history
Don't know much biology.
"Wonderful World" (song) (1960)
- 2 It's been a long, long time coming
But I know a change is gonna come.
"A Change Is Gonna Come" (song) (1964)

Calvin Coolidge

U.S. president, 1872–1933

- 1 There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, any time.
Telegram to Samuel Gompers, 14 Sept. 1919
- 2 One with the law is a majority.
Speech accepting Republican vice-presidential nomination, Northampton, Mass., 27 July 1920
See Douglass 7; Andrew Jackson 7; John Knox 1; Wendell Phillips 3; Thoreau 9
- 3 After all, the chief business of the American people is business.
Address before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, Washington, D.C., 17 Jan. 1925. Usually misquoted as "The business of America is business" or "The chief business of America is business."
- 4 I do not choose to run.
Statement to press regarding 1928 presidential election, Rapid City, S.D., 2 Aug. 1927

- 5 I won't pass the buck.

Quoted in Michael Hennessy, From a Green Mountain Farm to the White House (1924). Coolidge said these words (1920) after jitney operators threatened to "crucify" him politically in reaction to his intervention in a dispute between jitney and streetcar operators. He was governor of Massachusetts at the time.
See Truman 11

- 6 [When asked by his wife what the minister had said in a sermon about sin:] He was against it.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 7 Dec. 1925.

- 7 [On war debts owed by foreign nations to the United States, 1925:] They hired the money, didn't they?
Attributed in Wash. Post, 31 May 1925. Coolidge's biographer, Claud M. Fuess, was unable to discover any evidence that Coolidge said this. Coolidge's wife stated, "I don't know whether he said it, but it is just what he might have said." This attribution appeared in a column by Will Rogers and strengthens the case for Coolidge having said this remark.

- 8 You lose.

Attributed in Gamaliel Bradford, The Quick and the Dead (1931). Supposedly Coolidge's response to a Washington matron's telling him, "I made a bet with someone that I could get more than two words out of you." The New York Times, 23 Apr. 1924, has the "you lose" response but without the "two words" part of the buildup.

- 9 When a great many people are unable to find work, unemployment results.
Attributed in Stanley Walker, City Editor (1934)

Coolio (Artis Ivey)

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1963–

- 1 As I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I take a look at my life and realize there's not much left.
"Gangsta's Paradise" (song) (1995)
See Bible 109
- 2 Been spending most their lives, living in the gangsta's paradise.
"Gangsta's Paradise" (song) (1995)

Anna Julia Cooper

U.S. educator and writer, 1858–1964

- 1 Only the BLACK WOMAN can say "when and where I enter, in the quiet, undisputed dignity of my womanhood, without violence and without suing or special patronage, then and there the whole Negro race enters with me."

A Voice from the South pt. 1 (1892)

- 2 The cause of freedom is not the cause of a race or a sect, a party or a class,—it is the cause of human kind, the very birthright of humanity.

A Voice from the South pt. 1 (1892)

James Fenimore Cooper

U.S. novelist, 1789–1851

- 1 I am on the hilltop, and must go down into the valley; and when Uncas follows in my footsteps, there will no longer be any of the blood of the Sagamores, for my boy is the last of the Mohicans.

The Last of the Mohicans ch. 3 (1826)

- 2 It is a besetting vice of democracies to substitute public opinion for law. This is the usual form in which masses of men exhibit their tyranny.

The American Democrat (1838)

- 3 The press, like fire, is an excellent servant, but a terrible master.

The American Democrat (1838)

Wendy Cope

English poet, 1945–

- 1 Making Cocoa for Kingsley Amis.

Title of poem (1986)

- 2 Bloody men are like bloody buses—

You wait for about a year

And as soon as one approaches your stop

Two or three others appear.

"Bloody Men" l. 1 (1992)

Nicolaus Copernicus

Polish astronomer, 1473–1543

- 1 The center of the earth is not the center of the universe, but only of gravity and of the lunar sphere. All the spheres revolve about the sun as their mid-point, and therefore the sun is the center of the universe.

"The Commentariolus" (ca. 1510) (translation by Edward Rosen)

Aaron Copland

U.S. composer, 1900–1990

- 1 This whole problem can be stated quite simply by asking, "Is there a meaning to music?" My answer to that would be "Yes." And "Can you state in so many words what the meaning is?"

My answer to that would be "No."

What to Listen for in Music ch. 2 (1939)

Irwin Corey

U.S. comedian, 1914–2017

- 1 You can get more with a kind word and a gun than with just a kind word.

Quoted in Variety, 29 July 1953. Corey later comically attributed the wisecrack to Al Capone, who is now usually credited with it.

Bob Corker

U.S. politician, 1952–

- 1 [Of the Trump administration.] It's a shame the White House has become an adult day care center.

Tweet, 8 Oct. 2017

Avery Corman

U.S. novelist, 1935–

- 1 I don't do miracles. . . . The last miracle I did was the 1969 Mets . . . and before that I think you have to go back to the Red Sea.

Oh, God! ch. 2 (1977)

Pierre Corneille

French playwright, 1606–1684

- 1 Va, cours, vole et nous venge.

Go, run, fly and avenge us.

Le Cid act 1, sc. 5 (1637)

- 2 Va, je ne te hais point.

Go, I hate you not.

Le Cid act 3, sc. 4 (1637)

- 3 [Reply upon being asked "What could he have done when it was one against three?":] Qu'il mourût.

He should have died!

Horace act 3, sc. 6 (1641)

Frances Cornford

English poet, 1886–1960

- 1 O fat white woman whom nobody loves,
Why do you walk through the fields in gloves
When the grass is as soft as the breast of doves
And shivering sweet to the touch?
“To a Fat Lady Seen from the Train” l. 3 (1910)

Francis M. Cornford

English classical scholar, 1874–1943

- 1 Every public action, which is not customary, either is wrong, or, if it is right, is a dangerous precedent. It follows that nothing should ever be done for the first time.
Microcosmographia Academica ch. 7 (1908)

Anne-Marie Bigot de Cornuel

French society hostess, 1605–1694

- 1 No man is a hero to his valet.
Quoted in Lettres de Mlle. Aissé à Madame C. Letter 13
“De Paris, 1728” (1787)

Antonio Allegri Correggio

Italian painter, ca. 1489–1534

- 1 I, too, am a painter!
Attributed in Luigi Pungileoni, Memorie Istoriche di Antonio Allegri Detto il Correggio (1817). Said to be Correggio’s exclamation upon first seeing Raphael’s painting St. Cecilia at Bologna, Italy, ca. 1525.

Gregory Corso

U.S. poet, 1930–2001

- 1 O God, and the wedding! All her family and her friends
and only a handful of mine all scroungy and bearded
just wait to get at the drinks and food—.
“Marriage” l. 24 (1960)
- 2 It’s just that I see love as odd as wearing shoes—
I never wanted to marry a girl who was like my mother
And Ingrid Bergman was always impossible.
“Marriage” l. 100 (1960)

- 2 What if I’m 60 years old and not married, all alone in a furnished room with pee stains on my underwear
and everybody else is married!
“Marriage” l. 106 (1960)
- 3 Ah, yet well I know that were a woman possible
as I am possible
then marriage would be possible—
Like SHE in her lonely alien gaud waiting her Egyptian lover
so I wait—bereft of 2,000 years and the bath of life.
“Marriage” l. 109 (1960)

Bob Costas

U.S. sportscaster, 1952–

- 1 It brings to mind a story Mickey liked to tell on himself. He pictured himself at the pearly gates, met by St. Peter, who shook his head and said, “Mick, we checked the record. We know some of what went on. Sorry, we can’t let you in, but before you go, God wants to know if you’d sign these six dozen baseballs.”
Eulogy for Mickey Mantle, Dallas, Tex., 15 Aug. 1995

Elvis Costello (Declan MacManus)

English singer and songwriter, 1954–

- 1 Oh I used to be disgusted
And now I try to be amused.
“(The Angels Wanna Wear My) Red Shoes” (song)
(1977)
- 2 Less Than Zero.
Title of song (1977). This inspired the title of Bret Easton Ellis’s 1985 novel.

Pierre de Coubertin

French sportsman and educator, 1863–1937

- 1 L’important dans ces olympiades, c’est moins d’y gagner que d’y prendre part. . . . L’important dans la vie ce n’est point le triomphe mais le combat; l’essentiel ce n’est pas d’avoir vaincu mais de s’être bien battu.
The important thing in these Olympics is less to win than to take part. . . . The important thing in life is not the victory but the contest;
the essential thing is not to have won but to have fought well.
Speech to Olympic officials, London, 24 July 1908

Émile Coué

French psychologist, 1857–1926

- 1 [Therapeutic formula to be said repeatedly each morning and evening:] Every day, in every way, I am getting better and better.
De la Suggestion et de Ses Applications (1915)

Douglas Coupland

Canadian author, 1961–

- 1 Generation X: Tales for an Accelerated Culture. Title of book (1991). The Oxford English Dictionary documents earlier uses of the term Generation X back to 1952, but Coupland popularized it.
- 2 Dag . . . was bored and cranky after eight hours of working his McJob (“Low pay, low prestige, low benefits, low future”).
Generation X ch. 1 (1991). Earliest documented usage of McJob appeared in the Washington Post, 24 Aug. 1986: “The Fast-Food Factories: McJobs Are Bad for Kids.”

Victor Cousin

French philosopher, 1792–1867

- 1 Il faut de la religion pour la religion, de la morale pour la morale, de l'art pour l'art.
We must have religion for religion's sake, morality for morality's sake, as with art for art's sake.
“Du Vrai, du Beau, et du Bien” (1818)
See Constant de Rebecque 1; Dietz 2

Jacques-Yves Cousteau

French marine explorer, 1910–1997

- 1 [Description of nitrogen narcosis:] L'ivresse des grandes profondeurs.
The rapture of the deep.
Silent World ch. 2 (1953)
- 2 Il faut aller voir.
We must go and see for ourselves.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 26 June 1997

Robert M. Cover

U.S. legal scholar, 1943–1986

- 1 No set of legal institutions or prescriptions exists apart from the narratives that locate it and give it meaning. For every constitution there is an epic, for each decalogue a scripture.

Once understood in the context of the narratives that give it meaning, law becomes not merely a system of rules to be observed, but a world in which we live.

“The Supreme Court, 1982 Term—Foreword: Nomos and Narrative,” Harvard Law Review, Nov. 1983

Noël Coward

English playwright, actor, and composer, 1899–1973

- 1 I have never been able to take anything seriously after eleven o'clock in the morning.
The Young Idea act 1 (1921)
- 2 Poor little rich girl,
You're a bewitched girl,
Better beware!
“Poor Little Rich Girl” (song) (1925)
See Eleanor Gates 1
- 3 But I believe that since my life began
The most I've had is just
A talent to amuse.
“If Love Were All” (song) (1929)
- 4 I'll see you again,
Whenever Spring breaks through again.
“I'll See You Again” (song) (1929)
- 5 Very flat, Norfolk.
Private Lives act 1 (1930)
- 6 Certain women should be struck regularly, like gongs.
Private Lives act 3 (1930)
- 7 [To T. E. Lawrence when the latter was a corporal in the Royal Air Force:] Dear 338171 (May I call you 338?).
Letter to T. E. Lawrence, 25 Aug. 1930
- 8 Englishmen detest a siesta.
“Mad Dogs and Englishmen” (song) (1931)
- 9 In Bengal, to move at all
Is seldom, if ever, done,
But mad dogs and Englishmen
Go out in the midday sun.
“Mad Dogs and Englishmen” (song) (1931). Cole Lesley, in The Life of Noël Coward, notes earlier versions of this quotation. In 1835 Lovell Badcock wrote in Rough Leaves from a Journal: “The heat of the day, when dogs and English alone are seen to move.” In 1874 G. N. Goodwin wrote, “Only newly arrived Englishmen and mad dogs expose themselves to it" (Guide to Malta). An earlier version found for this book is, "It is a common saying at Rome, 'None but dogs, ideots, and Frenchmen walk the streets in day-time'" (John George Keysler, Travels Through Germany, Bohemia, Hungary, Switzerland, Italy and Lorrain [1757]).

- 10 People are wrong when they say that the opera isn't what it used to be. It is what it used to be—that's what's wrong with it!

Design for Living act 3, sc. 1 (1932)

- 11 The Party's Over Now.

Title of song (1932)

See Comden and Green 4

- 12 Don't put your daughter on the stage, Mrs. Worthington,

Don't put your daughter on the stage.

"Don't Put Your Daughter on the Stage, Mrs. Worthington" (song) (1935)

- 13 I have noticed . . . a certain tendency . . . to class me with the generation that was "ineradically scarred by the war." . . . I was not in the least scarred by the war. . . . The reasons for my warped disenchantment with life must be sought elsewhere.

Present Indicative pt. 3 (1937)

- 14 [Advice on acting:] Just say the lines and don't trip over the furniture.

Quoted in Dick Richards, The Wit of Noël Coward (1968). According to Richards, Coward said this during the run of his play Nude with Violin (1956–1957).

Archibald Cox

U.S. legal scholar and government official,
1912–2004

- 1 Whether ours shall continue to be a Government of laws and not of men is now for Congress and ultimately the American people
[to decide].

Statement, 20 Oct. 1973. Cox had just been dismissed by President Richard M. Nixon because he refused to drop his lawsuit to obtain Watergate-related White House tapes.

U.S. songwriter, 1882–1925

- 1 Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out.

Title of song (1923)

Dinah Mulock Craik

British novelist and poet, 1826–1887

- 1 Oh, the comfort—the inexpressible comfort of feeling safe with a person—having neither to weigh thoughts nor measure words, but pouring them all right out, just as they are, chaff and grain together; certain that a faithful hand will take and sift them, keep what is worth keeping, and then with the breath of kindness blow the rest away.

A Life for a Life ch. 16 (1859)

- 2 O, my son's my son till he gets him a wife,
But my daughter's my daughter all her life.

Hart Crane

U.S. poet, 1899–1932

- 1 And yet this great wink of eternity,
Of rimless floods, unfettered leewardings,
Samite sheeted and processioned where
Her undinal vast belly moonward bends,
Laughing the wrapt inflections of love.

“Voyages II” l. 1 (1926)

- 2 How many dawns, chill from his rippling rest
The seagull's wings shall dip and pivot him,
Shedding white rings of tumult, building high
Over the chained bay waters Liberty.

The Bridge “Proem: To Brooklyn Bridge” l. 1 (1930)

- 3 O Sleepless as the river under thee,
Vaulting the sea, the prairies' dreaming sod,
Unto us lowliest sometimes sweep, descend
And of the curveship lend a myth to God.

The Bridge “Proem: To Brooklyn Bridge” l. 41 (1930)

Stephen Crane

U.S. writer, 1871–1900

- 1 In the desert

I saw a creature, naked, bestial,
Who, squatting upon the ground,
Held his heart in his hands,
And ate of it.

I said, “Is it good, friend?”

“It is bitter—bitter,” he answered;

“But I like it

“Because it is bitter,

“And because it is my heart.”

The Black Riders and Other Lines “In the Desert” l. 1
(1895)

- 2 At times he regarded the wounded soldiers in an envious way. He conceived persons with torn bodies to be peculiarly happy. He wished that he, too, had a wound, a red badge of courage.

The Red Badge of Courage ch. 9 (1895)

- 3 The red sun was pasted in the sky like a wafer.

The Red Badge of Courage ch. 9 (1895)

- 4 A man said to the universe:

“Sir, I exist!”

“However,” replied the universe,

“The fact has not created in me

“A sense of obligation.”

Thomas Cranmer

English religious leader, 1489–1556

- 1 [Remark as he was being burned at the stake, Oxford, England, 21 Mar. 1556:] This was the hand that wrote it [his recantations of his faith], therefore it shall suffer first punishment.

Quoted in John Richard Green, A Short History of the English People (1874)

Adelaide Crapsey

U.S. poet, 1878–1914

- I These be
Three silent things:
The Falling snow . . . the hour
Before the dawn . . . the mouth of one
Just dead.
“Cinquain: Triad” l. 1 (1915)

Richard Crashaw

English poet, ca. 1612–1649

- I Love, thou art absolute sole Lord
Of life and death.
“Hymn to the Name and Honor of the Admirable Saint Teresa” l. 1 (1652)

Cristina Crawford

U.S. writer, 1939–

- 2 We live in fame or go down in flame.
Nothing’ll stop the Army Air Corps!
“The Air Force Song” (song) (1938)

Crazy Horse (Ta-Sunko-Witko)

Native American leader, ca. 1849–1877

- I One does not sell the earth upon which the people walk.
Quoted in Dee Brown, *Bury My Heart at Wounded
Knee* (1970)

Robert Creeley

U.S. poet, 1926–2005

- I It is hard going to the door cut so small in the wall where the vision which echoes loneliness brings a scent of wild flowers in the wood.
“The Door” l. 1 (1959)
- 2 I will go to the garden.
I will be a romantic. I will sell myself in hell,
in heaven also I will be.
“The Door” l. 77 (1959)

Guillaume Jean de Crèvecoeur)
French-born U.S. essayist, 1735–1813
- I Here individuals of all nations are melted into a new race of men, whose labors and posterity will one day cause great changes in the world.
Letters from an American Farmer Letter 3 (1782)
See Baudouin 1; Jimmy Carter 3; Ralph Ellison 2;
Victoria Hayward 1; Jesse Jackson 1; Zangwill 2
- 2 What then is the American, this new man? He is either an European, or the descendant of an European, hence that strange mixture of blood, which you will find in no other country.
Letters from an American Farmer Letter 3 (1782)
- 3 [Lawyers] are plants that will grow in any soil that is cultivated by the hands of others;
and when once they have taken root they will extinguish every other vegetable that grows around them. . . . The most ignorant, the most bungling member of that profession, will, if placed in the most obscure part of the country, promote litigiousness, and amass more wealth without labor, than the most opulent farmer, with all his toils.

Letters from an American Farmer Letter 7 (1782)

Michael Crichton

U.S. writer, 1942–2008

- 1 The history of evolution is that life escapes all barriers. Life breaks free. Life expands to new territories. Painfully, perhaps even dangerously. But life finds a way.

Jurassic Park “Third Iteration” (1990)

Francis Crick

English biophysicist, 1916–2004

- 1 We have built a model for the structure of [DNA] . . . we think we have found the basic copying mechanism by which life comes from life.
Letter to Michael Crick, 15 Mar. 1953
- 2 This [double helix] structure [of DNA] has novel features which are of considerable biological interest. . . . It has not escaped our notice that the specific pairing we have postulated immediately suggests a possible copying mechanism for the genetic material.
“Molecular Structure of Nucleic Acids,” Nature, 25 Apr. 1953. Coauthored with James D. Watson.

- 3 [Response to being asked by a U.S. immigration officer whether he was a “practising homosexual”:]
Practising? Certainly not. I’m perfect.

Quoted in Sunday Times (London), 20 Jan. 1982

Jim Croce

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1943–1973

- 1 You don’t tug on Superman’s cape.
“You Don’t Mess Around with Jim” (song) (1972)

Davy Crockett

U.S. frontiersman and politician, 1786–1836

- 1 I leave this rule for others when I’m dead,
Be always sure you’re right—THEN GO AHEAD!
A Narrative of the Life of David Crockett epigraph (1834)

Oliver Cromwell

English statesman and soldier, 1599–1658

- 1 I beseech you, in the bowels of Christ, think it possible you may be mistaken.
Letter to General Assembly of the Kirk of Scotland, 3 Aug. 1650
See Hand 10
- 2 You have sat too long here for any good you have been doing. Depart, I say, and let us have done with you. In the name of God, go!
Remarks to Rump Parliament, 20 Apr. 1653. The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations describes this as “oral tradition.” Bulstrode Whitlocke, Memorials of the English Affairs (1682), describes Cromwell as telling the House that “they has sate long enough, unles they had done more good.”
- 3 [Instructions to the court painter:] Mr. Lely, I desire you would use all your skill to paint my picture truly like me, and not flatter me at all; but remark all these roughnesses, pimples, warts, and everything as you see me; otherwise I will never pay a farthing for it.
Quoted in Horace Walpole, Anecdotes of Painting in England (1763). Usually misquoted as “warts and all.”
- 4 My boys trust in the Lord, and keep your powder dry.
Quoted in House of Lords Hansard Sessional Papers, 28 Feb. 1832

Walter Cronkite

U.S. broadcaster, 1916–2009

- I To say that we are closer to victory today is to believe, in the face of the evidence, the optimists who have been wrong in the past. To suggest that we are on the edge of defeat is to yield to unreasonable pessimism. To say that we are mired in stalemate seems the only realistic, yet unsatisfactory, conclusion.
Televised report on Vietnam War, 27 Feb. 1968

Harry “Bing” Crosby

U.S. singer and actor, 1903–1977

- I [Proposed epitaph for himself:] He was an average guy who could carry a tune.
Quoted in Newsweek, 24 Oct. 1977

Norm Crosby

U.S. comedian, 1927–2020

- I There’s so much lunacy in the world . . . look at courtrooms. Where else would you place yourself in the hands of 12 people who weren’t smart enough to get out of jury duty?
Quoted in Sun-Star (Merced, Calif.), 4 Aug. 1978

Douglas Cross

U.S. songwriter, 1920–1975

- I I left my heart in San Francisco
High on a hill it calls to me.
To be where little cable cars climb half-way to the stars.
“I Left My Heart in San Francisco” (song) (1954)

Aleister Crowley

English occultist, 1875–1947

- I Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law.
Book of the Law (1909)

Tom Cruise (Thomas Cruise Mapother IV)

U.S. actor, 1962–

- I Psychiatry is a pseudoscience. . . . You don’t know the history of psychiatry. I do. . . . Matt, Matt, Matt, Matt, Matt, Matt, you don’t even—you’re glib. You don’t even know what Ritalin is.
Remarks to Matt Lauer on NBC-TV “Today” show, 24 June 2005

Countee Cullen

U.S. poet, 1903–1946

Title of cartoon series, Life, 9 Apr. 1925–22 Mar. 1928

Henry Frederick, Duke of Cumberland

English nobleman, 1745–1790

- I [Addressing Edward Gibbon, who had presented to him the second volume of The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, 1781:] I suppose you are at the old trade again—scribble, scribble, scribble.
Quoted in Miss Sayer, Letter to Madame Huber, 27 Jan. 1789. This letter is printed in Journal and Correspondence of William, Lord Auckland vol. 2 (1861). The quotation is usually attributed to Cumberland’s brother, William Henry, Duke of Gloucester, in the form “Another damned, thick, square book! Always scribble, scribble, scribble! Eh! Mr. Gibbon?” However, the Gloucester version is not attested until 1829.

Richard Cumberland

English clergyman, 1631–1718

- I A man had better wear out, than rust out.
Quoted in Joseph Cornish, The Life of Mr. Thomas Firmin, Citizen of London (1780)

at once.
“The Time Professor” (1921)

Mario Cuomo

U.S. politician, 1932–2015

- 1 We campaign in poetry, but when we’re elected we’re forced to govern in prose.
Speech at Yale University, New Haven, Conn., 15 Feb.
1985

Marie Curie (Manya Skłodowska)

Polish-born French chemist, 1867–1934

- 1 The various reasons which we have enumerated lead us to believe that the new radio-active substance contains a new element to which we propose to give the name of radium.
“Sur une Nouvelle Substance Fortement Radio-Active, Contenue dans la Pechblende” (1898). Coauthored with Pierre Curie and Gustave Bémont.

- 2 [Remark, ca. 1904]: In science we must be interested in things, not in persons.
Quoted in Eve Curie, Madame Curie (1938)

John Philpot Curran

Irish judge, 1750–1817

- 1 The condition upon which God hath given liberty to man is eternal vigilance; which condition if he break, servitude is at once the consequence of his crime, and the punishment of his guilt.

Speech on the right of election of the Lord Mayor of Dublin, 10 July 1790. Usually quoted as “Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty,” which has been attributed to Thomas Jefferson, but no one has ever found this in his writings. The Cabinet (Schenectady, N.Y.), 30 Oct. 1816, has “Eternal vigilance is justly said to be the price of liberty.”

Harry Dacre

English songwriter, 1860–1922

- 1 Daisy, Daisy, give me your answer do!
I'm half crazy, all for the love of you;
It won't be a stylish marriage,
I can't afford a carriage
But you'll look sweet upon the seat,
Of a bicycle built for two!
"Daisy Bell" (song) (1892)

Roald Dahl

Welsh-born English writer, 1916–1990

- 1 It's a funny thing about mothers and fathers.
Even when their own child is the most disgusting little blister you could ever imagine, they still think that he or she is wonderful.
Matilda (1988)

Edouard Daladier

French prime minister, 1884–1970

- 1 A phrase has spread from civilians to soldiers

Speech to French Chamber of Deputies, 22 Dec. 1939

Dalai Lama (Tenzin Gyatso)

Tibetan religious and political leader, 1935–

- 1 We know our cause is just. Because violence can only breed more violence and suffering, our struggle must remain nonviolent and free of hatred. We are trying to end the suffering of our people, not to inflict suffering on others.
Speech accepting Nobel Peace Prize, Stockholm, 10
Dec. 1989

Richard J. Daley

U.S. politician, 1902–1976

- 1 [Remark to press about riots during the Democratic National Convention in Chicago, Ill., 1968:] The U.S. film director, 1928–2008

- 1 Deep Throat.
Title of motion picture (1972)

Charles A. Dana

U.S. newspaper editor, 1819–1897

- 1 You may see a dog bite a man. That would not be news . . . but should you see a man biting a dog . . . it would be "news."
Quoted in Atchison (Kan.) Daily Champion, 4 Mar.
1899. Often ascribed to John B. Bogart.

Rodney Dangerfield (Jacob Cohen)

U.S. comedian, 1921–2004

- 1 [Catchphrase:] I don't get no respect.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 14 June 1970
- 2 I went to a fight last night and a hockey game broke out.
Quoted in Toronto Star, 27 Sept. 1978.
- 3 If it weren't for pickpockets I'd have no sex life
at all.
Quoted in Robert Byrne, *The 637 Best Things Anybody
Ever Said* (1982)

Georges Jacques Danton

French revolutionary leader, 1759–1794

- 1 De l’audace, et encore de l’audace, et toujours de l’audace!
Boldness, and again boldness, and always boldness!
Speech to Legislative Committee of General Defence, 2 Sept. 1792

- 2 [To his executioner, 5 Apr. 1794:] Thou wilt show my head to the people: it is worth showing.
Quoted in Thomas Carlyle, History of the French Revolution (1837)

Lorenzo Da Ponte (Emmanuele

Conegliano)

Italian librettist, 1749–1838

- 1 Così fan tutte le belle.

That's what all beautiful women do.

Le Nozze di Figaro (opera with music by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart), act 1 (1778). Così Fan Tutte (That's What All Women Do) was the title of a Mozart/Da Ponte opera in 1790.

- 2 Madamina, il catalogo è questo delle belle che ama il padron mio. In Italia sei cento e quaranta, in Almagna due cento e trent' una. Cento in Francia, in Turchia novant' una, ma in Ispagne, ma in Ispagna son già mille e tre!

Dear my lady, this is the list of the beauties that my master has loved. Of Italians six hundred and forty, and in Germany two hundred thirty. Hundred in France and in Turkey 'twas ninety, Ah! but in Spain, ah! but in Spain were a thousand and three!

Don Giovanni (opera with music by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart), act 1 (1787)

Hugh Antoine d'Arcy

French-born U.S. writer, 1843–1925

- 1 "Say, boys! if you give me just another whiskey I'll be glad,
And I'll draw right here a picture of the face that drove me mad.

Give me that piece of chalk with which you mark the baseball score,

You shall see the lovely Madeleine upon the bar-room floor."

"The Face upon the Floor" l. 61 (1887)

- 2 The vagabond began
To sketch a face that well might buy the soul of any man.

Then, as he placed another lock upon the shapely head,

With a fearful shriek, he leaped and fell across the picture—dead.

"The Face upon the Floor" l. 65 (1887)

Joe Darion

U.S. songwriter, 1917–2001

- 1 To dream the impossible dream,
To fight the unbeatable foe,
To bear with unbearable sorrow,
To run where the brave dare not go.

"The Impossible Dream (The Quest)" (song) (1965).

This song was featured in the musical Man of La Mancha, book by Dale Wasserman. Wasserman had earlier included "To dream the impossible dream. To fight the unbeatable foe" in dialogue in his nonmusical teleplay I, Don Quixote (1959). It seems likely that Wasserman derived these key lines, perhaps unconsciously, from publicity matter appearing in a 1930 printing of Paul Kesler's play Don Quixote: A Dramatization of Cervantes' Novel. The publicity matter included: "To dream the impossible dream; to fight the unbeatable foe . . . these things are only for the quixotic few."

Byron Darnton

U.S. journalist, 1897–1942

- 1 No man who hates dogs and children can be all bad.

Quoted in Harper's Magazine, Nov. 1937. Usually attributed to Leo Rosten or W. C. Fields, but the Darnton remark predates these. In the Harper's article by Cedric Worth, "Dog Food for Thought," Worth recounts: "One afternoon a dog monopolized a small cocktail party on a penthouse roof. A dozen adults, instead of shifting pleasantly from business to evening gear, heard the symptoms of and remedies for mange recited and watched a small animal chase a ball round the floor. Several of us left at the same time. There was silence in the elevator for a few floors and then Mr. Byron Darnton relieved himself of a deathless truth. 'No man who hates dogs and children,' he said, 'can be all bad.'"

Charles B. Darrow

U.S. inventor, 1889–1967

- 1 Go to jail. Go directly to jail. Do not pass go. Do not collect $200.

Instruction in Monopoly board game (1933)

Clarence S. Darrow

U.S. lawyer, 1857–1938

- 1 I do not believe there is any sort of distinction between the real moral conditions of the people in and out of jail. One is just as good as the other. . . . I do not believe that people are in jail because they deserve to be. They are in jail

- simply because they cannot avoid it on account of circumstances which are entirely beyond their control and for which they are in no way responsible.
Address to prisoners in Cook County Jail, Chicago, Ill. (1902)
- 2 You might as well hang a man because he is ill as because he is a criminal.
Crime: Its Cause and Treatment (1922)
- 3 Your Honor stands between the past and the future. You may hang these boys; you may hang them by the neck until they are dead. But in doing it you will turn your face toward the past. In doing it you are making it harder for every other boy who, in ignorance and darkness, must grope his way through the mazes which only childhood knows.
Closing argument in Leopold-Loeb trial, Chicago, Ill., 22 Aug. 1924
- 4 I am pleading for the future. I am pleading for a time when hatred and cruelty will not control the hearts of men, when we can learn by reason and judgment and understanding and faith that all life is worth saving, and that mercy is the highest attribute of man.
Closing argument in Leopold-Loeb trial, Chicago, Ill., 22 Aug. 1924
- 5 I do not consider it an insult, but rather a compliment to be called an agnostic. I do not pretend to know where many ignorant men are sure; that is all that agnosticism means.
Speech at Scopes trial, Dayton, Tenn., 15 July 1925
- 6 We are all murderers at heart. . . . I never killed anybody, but I often read an obituary notice with great satisfaction.
Testimony before House of Representatives Subcommittee on Judiciary, 1 Feb. 1926. Darrow had made a similar statement in a 13 Nov. 1922 speech printed in The Institution Quarterly, Sept.–Dec. 1922.
- 7 I don't believe in God because I don't believe in Mother Goose.
Speech, Toronto, Canada, 1930
- 8 Whenever I hear people discussing birth-control I always remember that I was the fifth.
The Story of My Life ch. 2 (1932)
- 9 There is no such thing as justice—in or out of court.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 19 Apr. 1936
- 10 When I was a boy I was told that anybody could become President. I'm beginning to believe it.
Quoted in Irving Stone, Clarence Darrow for the Defense (1941)

Charles Darwin

English naturalist, 1809–1882

- 1 Origin of man now proved.—Metaphysics must flourish.—He who understands baboon would do more towards metaphysics than Locke.
Notebook, 16 Aug. 1838
- 2 I never saw a more striking coincidence. If [Alfred Russel] Wallace had my M.S. sketch written out in 1842 he could not have made a better short abstract! Even his terms now stand as Heads of my Chapters.
Letter to Charles Lyell, 18 June 1858
- 3 Owing to this struggle for life, any variation, however slight and from whatever cause proceeding, if it be in any degree profitable to an individual of any species, in its infinitely complex relations to other organic beings and to external nature, will tend to the preservation of that individual, and will generally be inherited by its offspring. The offspring, also, will thus have a better chance of surviving.
On the Origin of Species ch. 3 (1859)
- 4 I have called this principle, by which each slight variation, if useful, is preserved, by the term of Natural Selection, in order to mark its relation to man's power of selection.
On the Origin of Species ch. 3 (1859)
- 5 We will now discuss in a little more detail the Struggle for Existence.
On the Origin of Species ch. 3 (1859)
See Malthus 2
- 6 Thus, from the war of nature, from famine and death, the most exalted object which we are capable of conceiving, namely, the production of the higher animals, directly follows. There is grandeur in this view of life, with its several powers, having been originally breathed into a few forms or into one; and that, whilst this planet has gone cycling on according to the fixed law of gravity, from so simple a beginning endless forms most beautiful and most wonderful have been, and are being, evolved.

On the Origin of Species ch. 14 (1859)

- 7 But the expression often used by Mr. Herbert Spencer of the Survival of the Fittest is more accurate, and is sometimes equally convenient.

On the Origin of Species, 5th ed., ch. 3 (1869)

See Philander Johnson 1; Herbert Spencer 5; Herbert Spencer 6

- 8 I cannot look at the universe as the result of blind chance, yet I can see no evidence of beneficent design or indeed of design of any kind, in the details.

Letter to J. D. Hooker, 12 July 1870

- 9 The Simiadae then branched off into two great stems, the New World and Old World monkeys; and from the latter at a remote period, Man, the wonder and the glory of the universe, proceeded.

The Descent of Man ch. 6 (1871)

- 10 False facts are highly injurious to the progress of science, for they often long endure; but false views, if supported by some evidence, do little harm, as everyone takes a salutary pleasure in proving their falseness; and when this is done, one path towards error is closed and the road to truth is often at the same time opened.

The Descent of Man ch. 21 (1871)

- 11 We thus learn that man is descended from a hairy quadruped, furnished with a tail and pointed ears, probably arboreal in its habits, and an inhabitant of the Old World.

The Descent of Man ch. 21 (1871)

- 12 For my own part I would as soon be descended from that heroic little monkey, who braved his dreaded enemy in order to save the life of his keeper; or from that old baboon, who, descending from the mountains, carried away in triumph his young comrade from a crowd of astonished dogs—as from a savage who delights to torture his enemies, offers up bloody sacrifices, practices infanticide without remorse, treats his wives like slaves, knows no decency, and is haunted by the grossest superstitions.

The Descent of Man ch. 21 (1871)

- 13 Man with all his noble qualities . . . with his god-like intellect which has penetrated into the movements and constitution of the solar system . . . still bears in his bodily frame the indelible stamp of his lowly origin.

The Descent of Man ch. 21 (1871)

Erasmus Darwin

English scientist and poet, 1731–1802

- 1 Would it be too bold to imagine, that all warm-blooded animals have arisen from one living filament, which THE GREAT FIRST CAUSE endued with animality, with the power of acquiring new parts . . . and of delivering down those improvements by generation to its posterity, world without end!

Zoonomia vol. 1 (1794)

Francis Darwin

English botanist, 1848–1925

- 1 In science the credit goes to the man who convinces the world, not to the man to whom the idea first occurs.

Eugenics Review, Apr. 1914

Jules Dassin

U.S.-born French film director, 1911–2008

- 1 Pote tin Kyriaki.

Never on Sunday.

Title of motion picture (1960)

Harry M. Daugherty

U.S. politician, 1860–1941

- 1 [Remarks by General Leonard Wood in a speech, Toledo, Ohio, 1 Apr. 1920:] What a distinguished political leader [Daugherty] recently said in Washington would be done in the 1920 Presidential nomination, namely, that about 2:11 A.M. the nomination would be settled by fifteen or twenty tired men sitting around a table in a smoke-filled room behind locked doors.

Reported in N.Y. Times, 2 Apr. 1920. Safire's New Political Dictionary gives a detailed account of Associated Press reporter Kirke Simpson suggesting the phrase smoke-filled room to Warren G. Harding's supporter, Daugherty, during the Republican National Convention in June 1920. However, the

Apr. 1920 speech above proves that smoke-filled room was used earlier in the year. It appears that Wood meant Daugherty as the “distinguished political leader,” since an article of 21 Feb. 1920 in the same newspaper quoted Daugherty as predicting that “about eleven minutes after 2 o’clock on Friday morning at the convention, when fifteen or twenty men, somewhat weary, are sitting around a table some one of them will say: ‘Who will we nominate?’ At that decisive time the friends of Senator Harding can suggest him.” (Harding was in fact nominated as Daugherty had predicted, including the time, which was approximately 2:00 in the morning.). It is possible, since the 21 Feb. article quoting Daugherty did not include the words “smoke-filled room,” that the phrase was introduced by Wood.

Hugh “Duffy” Daugherty

U.S. football coach, 1915–1987

- 1 Football is not a contact sport; it’s a collision sport. Dancing is a good example of a contact sport.

Quoted in L.A. Times, 5 Oct. 1963

Hal David

U.S. songwriter, 1921–2012

- 1 Why do stars fall down from the sky
Every time you walk by?
Just like me they long to be Close to you.
“(They Long to Be) Close to You” (song) (1963)
- 2 What the world needs now is love, sweet love,
It’s the only thing that there’s just too little of.
“What the World Needs Now Is Love” (song) (1965)
- 3 What’s it all about Alfie?
Is it just for the moment we live?
“Alfie” (song) (1966)
- 4 The moment I wake up
Before I put on my make-up
I say a little prayer for you.
“I Say a Little Prayer” (song) (1966)
- 5 Raindrops keep fallin’ on my head,
But that doesn’t mean my eyes will soon be turnin’ red.
Cryin’s not for me
’Cause I’m never gonna stop the rain by complainin’.
“Raindrops Keep Fallin’ on My Head” (song) (1969)

Larry David

U.S. television producer, 1947–

- 1 It’s about nothing, everything else is about something; this, it’s about nothing.
Seinfeld (television show), 16 Sept. 1992

Ray Davies

English rock singer and songwriter, 1944–

- 1 Well I’m not dumb but I can’t understand
Why she walked like a woman and talked like a man.
“Lola” (song) (1970)
- 2 Girls will be boys and boys will be girls
It’s a mixed up muddled up shook up world.
“Lola” (song) (1970)
- 3 Everybody’s a dreamer and everybody’s a star,
And everybody’s in movies, it doesn’t matter who you are.
There are stars in every city,
In every house and every street,
And if you walk down Hollywood Boulevard
Their names are written in concrete!
“Celluloid Heroes” (song) (1972)
- 4 If you covered him with garbage,
George Sanders would still have style,
And if you stamped on Mickey Rooney
He would still turn round and smile,
But please don’t tread on dearest Marilyn
’Cos she’s not very tough,
She should have been made of iron or steel,
But she was only made of flesh and blood.
“Celluloid Heroes” (song) (1972)

Robertson Davies

Canadian novelist, 1913–1995

- 1 Canada is not really a place where you are encouraged to have large spiritual adventures.
The Enthusiasms of Robertson Davies (1990)
- 2 About 60 years ago, I said to my father, “Old Mr. Senex is showing his age; he sometimes talks quite stupidly.” My father replied, “That isn’t age. He’s always been stupid. He is just losing his ability to conceal it.”
N.Y. Times Book Review, 12 May 1991

W. H. (William Henry) Davies

Welsh poet, 1871–1940

- 1 What is this life if, full of care,
We have no time to stand and stare?
“Leisure” l. 1 (1911)

Angela Y. Davis

U.S. political activist, 1944–

- 1 Jails and prisons are designed to break human beings, to convert the population into specimens in a zoo—obedient to our keepers, but dangerous to each other.
Angela Davis: An Autobiography ch. 1 (1974)
- 2 It is both humiliating and humbling to discover that a single generation after the events that constructed me as a public personality, I am remembered as a hairdo.
“Afro Images: Politics, Fashion, and Nostalgia” (1994)

Bette Davis

U.S. actress, 1908–1989

- 1 [“Situation wanted” advertisement placed in Hollywood trade papers after Davis’s career had declined.] MOTHER OF THREE . . . DIVORCÉE.
AMERICAN. THIRTY YEARS EXPERIENCE AS AN ACTRESS IN MOTION PICTURES. MOBILE STILL AND MORE AFFABLE THAN RUMOR WOULD HAVE
IT. WANTS STEADY EMPLOYMENT IN HOLLYWOOD.
(HAS HAD BROADWAY.) . . . REFERENCES UPON REQUEST.
Hollywood Reporter, 21 Sept. 1962
- 2 [Of a starlet.] There, standing at the piano, was the original good time who had been had by all.
Attributed in Leslie Halliwell, The Filmgoer’s Book of Quotes (1973). Although Davis is now associated with this remark, “There goes the original good time that’s been had by all” was credited to actress Leonora
Corbett in Earl Wilson, Pikes Peak or Bust (1946).

David Davis

U.S. judge and political leader, 1815–1886

- 1 The Constitution of the United States is a law for rulers and people, equally in war and in peace, and covers with the shield of its protection all classes of men, at all times, and under all circumstances. No doctrine, involving more pernicious consequences, was ever invented by the wit of man than that any of its provisions can be suspended during any of the great exigencies of government.

Ex parte Milligan (1867)Gussie L. Davis

U.S. songwriter, 1863–1899

- 1 Irene, goodnight,
Irene, goodnight,
Goodnight, Irene,
Goodnight, Irene,
I’ll see you in my dreams.
“Irene, Good Night” (song) (1886)

Jefferson Davis

U.S. Confederate president, 1808–1889

- 1 If the Confederacy falls, there should be written on its tombstone, “Died of a theory.”
The Rise and Fall of the Confederate Government ch. 14 (1881). Davis was quoting a remark he had made in 1864.

Jimmie Davis

U.S. politician and songwriter, 1899–2000

- 1 You are my sunshine, my only sunshine,
You make me happy when skies are gray.
You’ll never know, dear, how much I love you.
Please don’t take my sunshine away.
“You Are My Sunshine” (song) (1930). Cowritten with Charles Mitchell.

John W. Davis

U.S. lawyer and political leader, 1873–1955

- 1 True, we [lawyers] build no bridges. We raise no towers. We construct no engines. We paint no pictures—unless as amateurs for our own principal amusement. There is little of all that we do which the eye of man can see. But we smooth out difficulties; we relieve stress;
we correct mistakes; we take up other men’s burdens and by our efforts we make possible
the peaceful life of men in a peaceful state.
Address, New York, N.Y., 16 Mar. 1946

2 Somewhere, sometime to every principle comes a moment of repose when it has been so often announced, so confidently relied upon, so long continued, that it passes the limits of judicial discretion and disturbance.

Argument before the U.S. Supreme Court, Brown v. Board of Education, Dec. 1953

Miles Davis

U.S. jazz musician, 1926–1991

- 1 A legend is an old man with a cane known for what he used to do. I'm still doing it.
Quoted in International Herald Tribune, 17 July 1991
- 2 If you understood everything I said, you'd be me.
Quoted in Independent (London), 6 Oct. 1991

Ossie Davis

U.S. actor and writer, 1917–2005

- 1 We shall know him . . . for what he was and is—a Prince, our own black shining Prince, who didn't hesitate to die, because he loved us so.
Eulogy at funeral of Malcolm X, New York, N.Y., 27 Feb. 1965

Sammy Davis, Jr.

U.S. entertainer, 1925–1990

- 1 Being a star has made it possible for me to get insulted in places where the average Negro could never hope to go and get insulted.
Yes I Can pt. 3, ch. 23 (1965)

Richard Dawkins

English biologist, 1941–

- 1 Let us understand what our own selfish genes are up to, because we may then at least have the chance to upset their designs.
The Selfish Gene ch. 1 (1976)
- 2 Much as we might wish to believe otherwise, universal love and the welfare of the species as a whole are concepts which simply do not make evolutionary sense.
The Selfish Gene ch. 1 (1976)
- 3 They are in you and in me; they created us, body and mind; and their preservation is the ultimate rationale for our existence . . . they go by the name of genes, and we are their survival machines.

The Selfish Gene ch. 2 (1976)

- 4 Natural selection, the blind, unconscious, automatic process which Darwin discovered, and which we now know is the explanation for the existence and apparently purposeful form of all life, has no purpose in mind. It has no mind and no mind's eye. It does not plan for the future. It has no vision, no foresight, no sight at all. If it can be said to play the role of watchmaker in nature, it is the blind watchmaker.

The Blind Watchmaker ch. 1 (1986)
See William Paley 3

- 5 The universe we obey has precisely the properties we should expect if there is, at bottom, no design, no purpose, no evil, and no good, nothing but blind, pitiless indifference. . . . DNA neither cares nor knows. DNA just is. And we dance to its music.

River Out of Eden ch. 4 (1995)

- 6 We are going to die, and that makes us the lucky ones. Most people are never going to die because they are never going to be born.

Unweaving the Rainbow ch. 1 (1998)

- 7 We are all atheists about most of the gods that humanity has ever believed in. Some of us just go one god further.

Forbes ASAP, 4 Oct. 1999

Clarence S. Day

U.S. writer, 1874–1935

- 1 If you don't go to other men's funerals . . . they won't go to yours.
Life with Father "Father Plans to Get Out" (1920). Although this quip is strongly associated with Day, Barry Popik has found "If I don't attend other people's funerals they won't come to mine" in James Frederick Shaw Kennedy, The Youth of the Period (1876).
- 2 The world of books is the most remarkable creation of man. Nothing else that he builds ever lasts. Monuments fall; nations perish; civilizations grow old and die out; and, after an era of darkness, new races build others. But in the world of books are volumes that have seen this happen again and again, and yet live on, still young, still as fresh as the day they were written, still telling men's hearts of the hearts of men centuries dead.

And even the books that do not last long, penetrate their own times at last, sailing farther than Ulysses even dreamed of, like ships on the seas. It is the author's part to call into being their cargoes and passengers,—living thoughts and rich bales of study and jeweled ideas. And as for the publishers, it is they who build the fleet, plan the voyage, and sail on, facing wreck, till they find every possible harbor that will value their burden.

The Story of the Yale University Press Told by a Friend (1920)

- 3 What fairy story, what tale from the Arabian Nights of the jinns, is a hundredth part as wonderful as this true fairy story of simians! It is so much more heartening, too, than the tales we invent. A universe capable of giving birth to many such accidents is—blind or not—a good world to live in, a promising universe. . . . We once thought we lived on God's footstool; it may be a throne.

This Simian World ch. 19 (1920)

Moshe Dayan

Israeli military leader and politician, 1915–1981

- 1 If you want to make peace, you don't talk to your friends. You talk to your enemies.
Quoted in Barbara Rowes, The Book of Quotes (1979)

Howard Dean

U.S. politician, 1948–

- 1 Not only are we going to New Hampshire, Tom Harkin, we're going to South Carolina and Oklahoma and Arizona and North Dakota and New Mexico, and we're going to California and Texas and New York. And we're going to South Dakota and Oregon and Washington and Michigan. And then we're going to Washington, D.C. To take back the White House. Yeah.
Remarks after Iowa caucuses, Des Moines, Iowa, 19 Jan. 2004. The "Yeah" at the end of these comments was perceived as a scream and contributed substantially to the decline of his presidential candidacy.

Jay Hanna "Dizzy" Dean

U.S. baseball player, 1910–1974

- 1 You can stick a fork in him folks—he's done.
Quoted in Berkshire Evening Eagle (Pittsfield, Mass.), 25 July 1944
2 It ain't braggin' if you can do it.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 3 Feb. 1983

John W. Dean

U.S. government official, 1938–

- 1 We have a cancer within, close to the Presidency, that is growing.
Nixon Presidential Transcripts, 21 Mar. 1973

Simone de Beauvoir

French novelist and feminist, 1908–1986

- 1 She appears essentially to the male as a sexual being. . . . She is defined and differentiated with reference to man and not he with reference to her; she is the incidental, the inessential as opposed to the essential. He is the Subject, he is the Absolute—she is the Other.
The Second Sex vol. 1, introduction (1949) (translation by H. M. Parshley)
2 On ne naît pas femme, on le devient.
One is not born, but rather becomes, a woman.
The Second Sex vol. 2, pt. 1, ch. 1 (1949) (translation by H. M. Parshley)
3 Few tasks are more like the torture of Sisyphus than housework, with its endless repetition. . . . The housewife wears herself out marking time: she makes nothing, simply perpetuates the present.
The Second Sex vol. 2, pt. 2, ch 1 (1949) (translation by H. M. Parshley)

Edward De Bono

Maltese-born English psychologist, 1933–

- 1 Some people are aware of another sort of thinking which . . . leads to those simple ideas that are obvious only after they have been thought of. . . . The term "lateral thinking" has been coined to describe this other sort of thinking; “vertical thinking” is used to denote the conventional logical process.

The Use of Lateral Thinking foreword (1967)

Guy Debord

French philosopher, 1931–1994

- 1 Quotations are useful in periods of ignorance or obscurantist beliefs.

Panegyric pt. 1 (1989)

Régis Debray

French philosopher and journalist, 1940–

- 1 International life is right-wing, like nature. The social contract is left-wing, like humanity.

Charles de Gaulle ch. 7 (1994)

Eugene V. Debs

U.S. socialist, 1855–1926

- 1 When great changes occur in history, when great principles are involved, as a rule the majority are wrong. The minority are right.

Speech at trial, Cleveland, Ohio, 12 Sept. 1918
See Ibsen 16; Sydney Smith 6

- 2 While there is a lower class, I am in it; while there is a criminal element, I am of it; while there is a soul in prison, I am not free.

Speech at trial, Cleveland, Ohio, 14 Sept. 1918

Stephen Decatur

U.S. naval officer, 1779–1820

- 1 Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations, may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong.

Toast at dinner, Norfolk, Va., Apr. 1816. This wording is quoted in Alexander Slidell Mackenzie, Life of Stephen Decatur (1848). According to Respectfully Quoted, ed. Suzy Platt, “Niles’ Weekly Register, published in Baltimore, Maryland, gave a slightly different version in its April 20, 1816, issue (p. 136). A number of the toasts at the dinner for Decatur were included, probably reprinted from a Virginia newspaper, and Decatur’s appeared as ‘*Our country—*In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right, and always successful, right or wrong.”

See Chesterton 3; Schurz 1; Twain 114

Midge Decter

U.S. author, 1927–

- 1 Women’s Liberation calls it enslavement but the real truth about the sexual revolution is that it has made of sex an almost chaotically limitless and therefore unmanageable realm in the life of women.

The New Chastity and Other Arguments Against Women’s Liberation ch. 2 (1972)

Daniel Defoe

English novelist and journalist, 1660–1731

- 1 Why then should women be denied the benefits of instruction? If knowledge and understanding had been useless additions to the sex, God almighty would never have given them capacities.

An Essay upon Projects “Of Academies: An Academy for Women” (1697)

- 2 Nature has left this tincture in the blood, That all men wou’d be tyrants if they cou’d.

See Abigail Adams 1

- 3 It happened one day, about noon, going towards my boat, I was exceedingly surprised with the print of a man’s naked foot on the shore, which was very plain to be seen in the sand. I stood like one thunderstruck, or as if I had seen an apparition.

Robinson Crusoe (1719)

- 4 My man Friday.

Robinson Crusoe (1719)

John William De Forest

U.S. writer, 1826–1906

- 1 The Great American Novel.

Title of article, Nation, 9 Jan. 1868

Edgar Degas

French artist, 1834–1917

- 1 Art is vice. You don’t marry it legitimately, you rape it.

Quoted in Paul Lafond, Degas (1918)

- 2 Everybody has talent at twenty-five. The difficult thing is to have it at fifty.

Quoted in R. H. Ives Gammell, The Shop-Talk of Edgar Degas (1961)

Charles de Gaulle

French general and president, 1890–1970

- 1 France has lost a battle. But France has not lost the war!
Proclamation, 18 June 1940
- 2 Faced by the bewilderment of my countrymen, by the disintegration of a government in thrall to the enemy, by the fact that the institutions of my country are incapable, at the moment, of functioning, I General de Gaulle, a French soldier and military leader, realize that I now speak for France.
Speech, London, 19 June 1940
- 3 Since they whose duty it was to wield the sword of France have let it fall shattered to the ground, I have taken up the broken blade.
Radio address, 13 July 1940
- 4 All my life, I have had a certain idea of France.
Les Mémoires de Guerre vol. 1 (1954)
- 5 France cannot be France without greatness.
Les Mémoires de Guerre vol. 1 (1954)
- 6 Je vous ai compris.
I have understood you.
Speech to French colonists, Algiers, 4 June 1958
- 7 Treaties, you see, are like girls and roses: they last while they last.
Speech at Elysée Palace, 2 July 1963
- 8 Vive le Québec! Vive le Québec libre! Vive le Canada français! Vive la France!
Long live Quebec! Long live Free Quebec! Long live French Canada! Long live France!
Address to crowd before City Hall, Montreal, Canada, 24 July 1967
- 9 [Responding to being compared to Robespierre:]
I always thought I was Jeanne d'Arc and Bonaparte—how little one knows oneself.
Quoted in Figaro Littéraire (1958)
- 10 Politics are too serious a matter to be left to the politicians.
Quoted in Clement Attlee, A Prime Minister Remembers (1961). "Politics has become too serious a matter to be left to politicians" appeared in an article by T. S. Eliot in the Monthly Criterion, Nov. 1927.
See Briand 2; Clemenceau 4
- 11 Comment voulez-vous gouverner un pays qui a deux cent quarante-six variétés de fromage?

How can anyone govern a nation that has two hundred and forty-six different kinds of cheese?

Quoted in Ernest Mignon, Les Mots du Général (1962). De Gaulle had earlier been quoted in the N.Y. Times Magazine, 29 June 1958, as saying, "How can one conceive of a one-party system in a country that has over two hundred varieties of cheeses?"

- 12 [Remark at funeral of his disabled daughter, 1948:]
Maintenant elle est comme les autres.
Now she is like everybody else.
Quoted in Jean Lacouture, De Gaulle (1965)
- 13 [Of Jean-Paul Sartre's political agitation:] One does not arrest Voltaire.
Quoted in Encounter, June 1975

F. W. (Frederik Willem) de Klerk

South African statesman, 1936–

- 1 [Of the results of a South African constitutional referendum:] Today we have closed the book on apartheid.
Speech, Cape Town, South Africa, 18 Mar. 1992

Willem de Kooning

Dutch-born U.S. painter, 1904–1997

- 1 Flesh was the reason why oil painting was invented.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 14 Oct. 1974

Walter de la Mare

English poet and novelist, 1873–1956

- 1 "Is there anybody there?" said the Traveller, Knocking on the moonlit door.
"The Listeners" l. 1 (1912)
- 2 "Tell them I came, and no one answered, That I kept my word," he said.
"The Listeners" l. 27 (1912)

Raphael De Leon

Trinidadian calypso singer and songwriter, 1908–1999

- 1 If you want to be happy living a king's life
Never make a pretty woman your wife.
"Ugly Woman" (song) (1934)
- 2 That's from a logical point of view
To always love a woman uglier than you.
"Ugly Woman" (song) (1934)

Jacques Delille

French poet, 1738–1813

- 1 Le sort fait les parents, le choix fait les amis.
Fate chooses our relatives, we choose our friends.
Malheur et Pitié canto 1 (1803)

Don DeLillo

U.S. novelist, 1936–

- 1 This was worse than a retched nightmare. It was the nightmare of real things, the fallen wonder of the world.
The Names ch. 14 (1982)
- 2 Everything we need that is not food or love is here in the tabloid racks. The tales of the supernatural and the extraterrestrial. The miracle vitamins, the cures for cancer, the remedies for obesity. The cults of the famous and the dead.
White Noise ch. 40 (1985)
- 3 A conspiracy is everything that ordinary life is not. It's the inside game, cold, sure, undistracted, forever closed off to us. We are the flawed ones, the innocents, trying to make some rough sense of the daily jostle. Conspirators have a logic and a daring beyond our reach.
Libra pt. 2 (1988)

Paul De Man

Belgian-born U.S. literary critic, 1919–1983

- 1 Death is a displaced name for a linguistic predicament.
Quoted in David Lehman, Signs of the Times (1991)

W. Edwards Deming

U.S. management theorist, 1900–1993

- 1 There is no substitute for knowledge.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 29 May 1988

Democritus

Greek philosopher, ca. 460 B.C.–ca. 370 B.C.

- 1 By convention there is color, by convention sweetness, by convention bitterness, but in reality there are atoms and space.
Fragment 125

- 2 The first principles of the universe are atoms and empty space. . . . The atoms are unlimited in size and number, and they are borne along in the whole universe in a vortex, and thereby generate all composite things—fire, water, air, earth. For even these are conglomerations of given atoms.

Quoted in Diogenes Laertius, Lives of Eminent Philosophers

Jack Dempsey

U.S. boxer, 1895–1983

- 1 I forgot to duck.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 20 Feb. 1927. Said to his wife after losing the world heavyweight boxing championship to Gene Tunney, 23 Sept. 1926. President Ronald W. Reagan joked to his wife, “Honey, I forgot to duck!” after John Hinckley tried to assassinate him 30 Mar. 1981.

Deng Xiaoping

Chinese political leader, 1904–1997

- 1 There are no fundamental contradictions between a socialist system and a market economy.
Interview, Time, 4 Nov. 1985
- 2 It doesn't matter whether a cat is black or white as long as it catches mice.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 12 Aug. 1973. According to Gucheng Li, A Glossary of Political Terms of the People's Republic of China, at a June 1962 meeting of the Secretariat of the Central Committee Deng quoted a farmer about the boundary between communism and capitalism: “We don't care if it is a black cat or yellow cat; as long as it catches mice, it's a good cat.” During the Cultural Revolution the People's Daily, 3 Dec. 1967, ran an article subtitled “Repudiate the Reactionary Fallacy of ‘Black Cat, White Cat, as Long as It Catches Mice, It's a Good Cat’” (translation of Chinese original). The yellow/black saying appears to be a Chinese proverb dating back to the seventeenth century or earlier.
- 3 To get rich is glorious.
Attributed in Adweek, 16 Sept. 1985. Widely attributed to Deng, but there is no evidence that he ever used it. It was popularized by Orville Schell's 1984 book, To Get Rich Is Glorious: China in the '80s. Schell has stated that he probably encountered the phrase in Chinese media reports.

Thomas Denman, First Baron Denman

English judge, 1779–1854

- 1 Trial by jury, instead of being a security to persons who are accused, will be a delusion, a mockery, and a snare.
O'Connell v. The Queen (1844)

Daniel Dennett

U.S. philosopher, 1942–

- 1 The juvenile sea squirt wanders through the sea searching for a suitable rock or hunk of coral to cling to and make its home for life. For this task, it has a rudimentary nervous system. When it finds its spot and takes root, it doesn't need its brain anymore so it eats it! (It's rather like getting tenure.)
Consciousness Explained ch. 7 (1991)

John Dennis

English writer, 1657–1734

- 1 The man that will make such an execrable pun as that . . . will pick my pocket.
Quoted in Benjamin Victor, An Epistle to Sir Richard Steele 2nd ed. (1722)
- 2 [Upon hearing thunder sound effects invented by him used in a performance of Macbeth, after his own play featuring the effects had closed following a short run at the same theater, 1709:] They will not let my Play run, but steal my Thunder.
Quoted in Thomas Whincop, Scanderbeg (1747).
Alexander Pope, The Dunciad (note to book 2) (1729), quotes Dennis: "S'death! that is my thunder!"

John Denver (Henry John Deutschendorf, Jr.)

U.S. singer, 1943–1997

- 1 All my bags are packed, I'm ready to go
I'm standing here outside your door . . .
I'm leavin' on a jet plane
Don't know when I'll be back again.
"Leaving on a Jet Plane" (song) (1967)

Chauncey M. Depew

U.S. lawyer and politician, 1834–1928

- 1 I get my exercise serving as a pallbearer to my friends who take exercise.
Quoted in L.A. Times, 4 May 1954. Depew lived to be ninety-four years old.

Thomas De Quincey

English essayist and critic, 1785–1859

- 1 If once a man indulges himself in murder, very soon he comes to think little of robbing; and from robbing he comes next to drinking and sabbath-breaking, and from that to incivility and procrastination.
"On Murder, Considered as One of the Fine Arts" (1839)

Jacques Derrida

Algerian-born French philosopher and critic, 1930–2004

- 1 Il n'y a pas de hors-texte.
There is nothing outside of the text.
Of Grammatology pt. 2, sec. 2 (1967)

Indian novelist, 1937–

- 1 Do you know anyone who would—secretly, sincerely, in his innermost self—really prefer to return to childhood?
The Clear Light of Day ch. 1 (1980)

René Descartes

French philosopher and mathematician, 1596–1650

- 1 Good sense is the best distributed thing in the world: for everyone thinks himself so well endowed with it that even those who are the hardest to please in everything else do not usually desire more of it than they possess.
Le Discours de la Méthode pt. 1 (1637)
- 2 While I was returning to the army from the coronation of the Emperor, the onset of winter detained me in quarters where, finding no conversation to divert me and fortunately having no cares or passions to trouble me, I stayed all day shut up alone in a stove-heated room, where I was completely free to converse with myself about my own thoughts.
Le Discours de la Méthode pt. 1 (1637)
- 3 The first [rule] was never to accept anything as true if I did not have evident knowledge of its truth: that is, carefully to avoid precipitate conclusions and preconceptions, and to include nothing more in my judgements than what presented itself to my mind so clearly and so distinctly that I had no occasion to call it into doubt.

Le Discours de la Méthode pt. 1 (1637)

4 Je pense, donc je suis.

I think, therefore I am.

Le Discours de la Méthode pt. 4 (1637). Also famous in the form “Cogito, ergo sum,” from the Latin edition (1641) of this book.

See Bierce 22

- 5 Some years ago I was struck by the large number of falsehoods that I had accepted as true in my childhood, and by the highly doubtful nature of the whole edifice that I had subsequently based on them. I realized that it was necessary, once in the course of my life, to demolish everything completely and start again right from the foundations if I wanted to establish anything at all in the sciences that was stable and likely to last.

Meditations “Meditation I” (1641)

- 6 But there is a deceiver of supreme power and cunning who is deliberately and constantly deceiving me. In that case I too undoubtedly exist, if he is deceiving me; and let him deceive me as much as he can, he will never bring it about that I am nothing so long as I think that I am something.

Meditations “Meditation II” (1641)

- 7 It is quite evident that existence can no more be separated from the essence of God than the fact that its three angles equal two right angles can be separated from the idea of a triangle, or than the idea of a mountain can be separated from the idea of a valley. Hence it is just as much of a contradiction to think of God (that is, a supremely perfect being) lacking existence (that is, lacking a perfection), as it is to think of a mountain without a valley.

Meditations “Meditation V” (1641)

- 8 It is contrary to reason to say that there is a vacuum or space in which there is absolutely nothing.

Principia Philosophiae pt. 2, sec. 16 (1644)

Philippe Néricault Destouches

French playwright, 1680–1754

Title of song (1928). Coauthored with Lew Brown.

Eamonn de Valera

U.S.-born Irish president, 1882–1975

- 1 I was reared in a laborer's cottage here in Ireland. I have not lived solely among the intellectuals. The first fifteen years of my life that formed my character were lived among the Irish people down in Limerick; therefore I know what I am talking about, and whenever I wanted to know what the Irish people wanted, I had only to examine my own heart and it told me straight off what the Irish people wanted.
Speech in Dáil Éireann, 6 Jan. 1922

- 2 Soldiers of the Republic, Legion of the Rearguard: The Republic can no longer be defended successfully by your arms. Further sacrifice of life would now be in vain, and continuance of the struggle in arms unwise in the national interest and prejudicial to the future of our cause. Military victory must be allowed to rest for the moment with those who have destroyed the Republic. Other means must be sought to safeguard the Nation's right.
Message to Republican armed forces, 24 May 1923

3 That Ireland which we dreamed of would be the home of a people who valued material wealth only as a basis of right living, of a people who were satisfied with frugal comfort and devoted their leisure to the things of the spirit; a land whose countryside would be bright with cosy homesteads, whose fields and villages would be joyous with sounds of industry, the romping of sturdy children, the contests of athletic youths, the laughter of comely maidens; whose firesides would be the forums of the wisdom of serene old age.

Broadcast, 17 Mar. 1943

Peter De Vries

U.S. novelist, 1910–1993

1 It is the final proof of God's omnipotence that he need not exist in order to save us.

Campaign speech, San Francisco, Calif., 21 Sept. 1944

John DeWitt

U.S. army officer, 1880–1962

1 There are indications that these [Japanese-Americans] are organized and ready for concerted action at a favorable opportunity. The very fact that no sabotage has taken place to date is a disturbing and confirming indication that such action will be taken.

Final Recommendation of the Commanding General, Western Defense Command and Fourth Army, Submitted to the Secretary of War, 14 Feb. 1942

Sergei Diaghilev

Russian ballet impresario, 1872–1929

1 [To Jean Cocteau.] Étonne-moi.

David Copperfield ch. 5 (1850)
- 58 I have known him [Mr. Micawber] to come home to supper with a flood of tears, and a declaration that nothing was now left but a jail; and go to bed making a calculation of the expense of putting bow-windows to the house, "in case anything turned up," which was his favorite expression.
David Copperfield ch. 11 (1850)
- 59 "My other piece of advice, Copperfield," said Mr. Micawber, "you know. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure nineteen nineteen six, result happiness. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure twenty pounds nought and six, result misery."
David Copperfield ch. 12 (1850)
- 60 I never will desert Mr. Micawber.
David Copperfield ch. 12 (1850)
- 61 It's a mad world. Mad as Bedlam.
David Copperfield ch. 14 (1850)
- 62 [Uriah Heep speaking:] I'm a very umble person.
David Copperfield ch. 16 (1850)

David Copperfield ch. 51 (1850)
- 74 Trifles make the sum of life.
David Copperfield ch. 53 (1850)
- 75 There is another well-known suit in Chancery, not yet decided, which was commenced before the close of the last century, and in which more than double the amount of seventy thousand pounds has been swallowed up in costs.
Bleak House preface (1853)
- 76 Fog everywhere. . . . The raw afternoon is rawest, and the dense fog is densest, and the muddy streets are muddiest, near that leaden-headed old obstruction, appropriate ornament for the threshold of a leaden-headed old corporation: Temple Bar. And hard by Temple Bar, in Lincoln's Inn Hall, at the very heart of the fog, sits the Lord High Chancellor in his High Court of Chancery.
Bleak House ch. 1 (1853)
- 77 Never can there come fog too thick, never can there come mud and mire too deep, to assort with the groping and floundering condition which this High Court of Chancery, most pestilent of hoary sinners, holds, this day, in the sight of heaven and earth.
Bleak House ch. 1 (1853)
- 78 Suffer any wrong that can be done you, rather than come here [to the Court of Chancery]!
Bleak House ch. 1 (1853)
- 79 Jarndyce and Jarndyce drones on. This scarecrow of a suit has, in course of time, become so complicated that no man alive knows what it means. The parties to it understand it least, but it has been observed that no two Chancery lawyers can talk about it for five minutes, without coming to a total disagreement as to all the premises.
Bleak House ch. 1 (1853)
- 80 Innumerable children have been born into the cause; innumerable young people have married into it; innumerable old people have died out of it. . . . The little plaintiff or defendant, who was promised a new rocking-horse when Jarndyce and Jarndyce should be settled, has grown up, possessed himself of a real horse, and trotted away into the other world.
Bleak House ch. 1 (1853)
- 81 Jarndyce and Jarndyce still drags its dreary length before the Court, perennially hopeless.
Bleak House ch. 1 (1853)
- 82 This is a London particular. . . . A fog, miss.
Bleak House ch. 3 (1853)
- 83 "She is the child of the universe." "The universe makes rather an indifferent parent, I am afraid."
Bleak House ch. 6 (1853)
- 84 I only ask to be free. The butterflies are free. Mankind will surely not deny to Harold Skimpole what it concedes to the butterflies!

- 86 I expect a Judgment. On the day of Judgment.
Bleak House ch. 14 (1853)
- 87 It is a melancholy truth that even great men have their poor relations.
Bleak House ch. 28 (1853)
- 88 The one great principle of the English law is, to make business for itself.
Bleak House ch. 39 (1853)
- 89 I call them [Miss Flite's birds] the Wards in Jarndyce. They are caged up with all the others. With Hope, Joy, Youth, Peace, Rest, Life, Dust, Ashes, Waste, Want, Ruin, Despair, Madness, Death, Cunning, Folly, Words, Wigs, Rags, Sheepskin, Plunder, Precedent, Jargon, Gammon, and Spinach!
Bleak House ch. 60 (1853)
- 90 Now, what I want is, Facts. . . . Facts alone are wanted in life.
Hard Times bk. 1, ch. 1 (1854)
- 91 There is a wisdom of the Head, and . . . a wisdom of the Heart.
Hard Times bk. 3, ch. 1 (1854)
- 92 I am the only child of parents who weighed, measured, and priced everything; for whom what could not be weighed, measured, and priced had no existence.
Little Dorrit bk. 1, ch. 2 (1857)

- 93 Whatever was required to be done, the Circumlocution Office was beforehand with all the public departments in the art of perceiving—HOW NOT TO DO IT.

- 94 There's milestones on the Dover Road!
Little Dorrit bk. I, ch. 23 (1857)
- 95 You know, in a general way, what being a reference means. A person who can't pay, gets another person who can't pay, to guarantee that he can pay. Like a person with two wooden legs getting another person with two wooden legs, to guarantee that he has got two natural legs.
Little Dorrit bk. I, ch. 23 (1857)
- 96 Papa, potatoes, poultry, prunes, and prism, are all very good words for the lips: especially prunes and prism.
Little Dorrit bk. 2, ch. 5 (1857)
- 97 It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity, it was the season of Light, it was the season of Darkness, it was the spring of hope, it was the winter of despair, we had everything before us, we had nothing before us, we were all going direct to Heaven, we were all going direct the other way—in short, the period was so far like the present period, that some of its noblest authorities insisted on its being received, for good or for evil, in the superlative degree of comparison only.
A Tale of Two Cities bk. I, ch. 1 (1859)
- 98 A wonderful fact to reflect upon, that every human creature is constituted to be that profound secret and mystery to every other.
A Tale of Two Cities bk. I, ch. 3 (1859)
- 99 [Sydney Carton's thoughts on the scaffold:] It is a far, far better thing that I do, than I have ever done; it is a far, far better rest that I go to, than I have ever known.
A Tale of Two Cities bk. 3, ch. 15 (1859)
- 100 In the little world in which children have their existence, whosoever brings them up, there is nothing so finely perceived and so finely felt, as injustice.
Great Expectations ch. 8 (1861)
- 101 Now, I return to this young fellow. And the communication I have got to make is, that he has great expectations.
Great Expectations ch. 18 (1861)
- 102 What larks.
Great Expectations ch. 27 (1861)
- 103 Take nothing on its looks; take everything on evidence. There's no better rule.
Great Expectations ch. 40 (1861)
- 104 You have been in every prospect I have ever seen since—on the river, on the sails of the ships, on the marshes, in the clouds, in the light, in the darkness, in the wind, in the woods, in the sea, in the streets. You have been the embodiment of every graceful fancy that my mind has ever become acquainted with.
Great Expectations ch. 44 (1861)
- 105 I took her hand in mine, and we went out of the ruined place; and as the morning mists had risen long ago when I first left the forge, so the evening mists were rising now, and in all the broad expanse of tranquil light they showed to me, I saw no shadow of another parting from her.
Great Expectations ch. 59 (1862 ed.)
- 106 I want to be something so much worthier than the doll in the doll's house.
Our Mutual Friend bk. I, ch. 5 (1865)

- 4 Inebriate of air am I,
And debauchee of dew;—
Reeling through endless summer days,
From inns of molten blue.
"I taste a liquor never brewed" l. 5 (ca. 1861)
- 5 I'm Nobody! Who are you?
Are you—Nobody—too?
Then there's a pair of us!
Don't tell! they'd banish us—you know!
"I'm nobody! Who are you?" l. 1 (ca. 1861)
- 6 There's a certain Slant of light,
Winter Afternoons—
That oppresses like the Heft
Of Cathedral Tunes.

Mary Channing Higginson, 16 Aug. 1870

John Dickinson

U.S. statesman, 1732–1808

- 1 Then join Hand in Hand brave Americans all,
By uniting we stand, by dividing we fall.
“The Liberty Song” (song) (1768). “United we stand, divided we fall!” became a slogan of the American Revolution.

- 1 Rowe’s Rule: the odds are five to six that the light at the end of the tunnel is the headlight of an oncoming train.
Washingtonian, Nov. 1978. Robert Lowell wrote in his 1977 poem “Since 1939”: “If we see a light at the end of the tunnel, / it’s the light of an oncoming train.”
“If you see the light at the end of the tunnel, don’t forget that it may just be a train coming in the other direction” appeared in ICC Practitioners’ Journal,

Run River ch. 4 (1963)

- 2 Writers are always selling someone out.
Slouching Towards Bethlehem preface (1968)

- 3 It was the United States of America in the cold late spring of 1967, and the market was steady and the G.N.P. high and a great many articulate people seemed to have a sense of high social purpose and it might have been a spring of brave hopes and national promise, but it was not, and more and more people had the uneasy apprehension that it was not.

Slouching Towards Bethlehem (1968)

- 4 I think we are well advised to keep on nodding terms with the people we used to be, whether we find them attractive company or not.

Otherwise they turn up unannounced and surprise us, come hammering on the mind's door at 4 a.m. of a bad night and demand to know who deserted them, who betrayed them, who is going to make amends.

Everett M. Dirksen

U.S. politician, 1896–1969

- 1 A billion here, a billion there, pretty soon it begins to add up to real money.

Attributed in N.Y. Times, 28 Aug. 1975. The Dirksen Congressional Center has conducted an extensive search of audiotapes, newspaper clippings, Dirksen’s own speech notes, transcripts of his speeches and media appearances, and other sources and found no concrete evidence of the senator’s having uttered these words. The principal evidence for the quotation’s authenticity consists of claims by various people that they heard Dirksen say it, but these claims remain uncorroborated. An earlier version appeared in the N.Y. Times, 10 Jan. 1938: “Well, now, about this new budget. It’s a billion here and a billion there, and by and by it begins to mount up into money.”

Walt Disney

U.S. animator and businessman, 1901–1966

- 1 I only hope that we never lose sight of one thing—that it was all started by a mouse. “What Is Disneyland?” (television program), 27 Oct. 1954
- 2 Girls bored me—they still do. I love Mickey Mouse more than any woman I’ve ever known. Quoted in Walter Wagner, You Must Remember This (1975)

Benjamin Disraeli, First Earl of Beaconsfield

British prime minister and novelist, 1804–1881

- 1 The microcosm of a public school. Vivian Grey bk. I, ch. 2 (1826)
- 2 To be a great lawyer, I must give up my chance of being a great man. Vivian Grey bk. I, ch. 9 (1826)
- 3 Experience is the child of Thought, and Thought is the child of Action. We cannot learn men from books. Vivian Grey bk. 5, ch. 1 (1826)
- 4 A good eater must be a good man; for a good eater must have a good digestion, and a good digestion depends upon a good conscience. The Young Duke bk. I, ch. 14 (1831)

- 5 A dark horse, which had never been thought of, and which the careless St James had never even observed in the list, rushed past the grand stand in sweeping triumph.

The Young Duke bk. 2, ch. 5 (1831). The Oxford English Dictionary has this as its earliest citation for the term dark horse, and Disraeli is frequently considered to be the coiner. However, an earlier usage is in the Edinburgh Advertiser, 24 Sept. 1822: “What is termed an outside or a dark horse always tells well for heavy betters.”

- 6 Read no history: nothing but biography, for that is life without theory.

Contarini Fleming pt. 1, ch. 23 (1832)
See Ralph Waldo Emerson 11

- 7 What we anticipate seldom occurs; what we least expected generally happens.

- 8 Though I sit down now, the time will come when you will hear me.

Maiden speech in House of Commons, 7 Dec. 1837

- 9 “A sound Conservative government,” said Taper, musingly. “I understand: Tory men and Whig measures.”

Coningsby bk. 2, ch. 6 (1844)

- 10 In England when a new character appears in our circles, the first question always is, “Who is he?” In France it is, “What is he?” In England,

- “How much a year?” In France, “What has he done?”
Coningsby bk. 5, ch. 7 (1844)
 See Twain 80
- 11 Let me see property acknowledging as in the old days of faith, that labor is his twin brother.
Coningsby bk. 8, ch. 3 (1844)
- 12 If you wish to be great, you must give men new ideas, you must teach them new words, you must modify their manners, you must change their laws, you must root out prejudices, subvert convictions. Greatness no longer depends on rentals: the world is too rich; nor on pedigrees: the world is too knowing.
Coningsby bk. 9, ch. 4 (1844)
- 13 To be conscious that you are ignorant is a great step to knowledge.
Sybil bk. 1, ch. 5 (1845)
- 14 “Two nations; between whom there is no intercourse and no sympathy; who are as ignorant of each other’s habits, thoughts, and feelings, as if they were dwellers in different zones, or inhabitants of different planets; who are formed by a different breeding, are fed by a different food, are ordered by different manners, and are not governed by the same laws.” “You speak of—” said Egremont, hesitatingly, “THE RICH AND THE POOR.”
Sybil bk. 2, ch. 5 (1845)
 See Kerner 1
- 15 Christianity is completed Judaism, or it is nothing. Christianity is incomprehensible without Judaism, as Judaism is incomplete without Christianity.
Sybil bk. 2, ch. 12 (1845)
- 16 Tobacco is the tomb of love.
Sybil bk. 2, ch. 16 (1845)
- 17 Mr Kremlin himself was distinguished for ignorance, for he had only one idea,—and that was wrong.
Sybil bk. 4, ch. 5 (1845)
 See Samuel Johnson 66
- 18 A Conservative Government is an organized hypocrisy.
 Speech in House of Commons, 17 Mar. 1845
- 19 All the great things have been done by little nations. It is the Jordan and the Ilyssus which have civilized the modern races.
Tancred bk. 3, ch. 7 (1847)
- 20 Finality is not the language of politics.
 Speech in House of Commons, 28 Feb. 1859
- 21 Is man an ape or an angel? My Lord, I am on the side of the angels.
 Speech at Diocesan Conference, Oxford, England, 25 Nov. 1864
- 22 Assassination has never changed the history of the world.
 Speech in House of Commons, 1 May 1865
- 23 When a man fell into his anecdotage it was a sign for him to retire.
Lothair ch. 28 (1870). The Oxford English Dictionary documents the use of anecdotage as far back as 1835 and notes that it is attributed to John Wilkes.
- 24 You know who the critics are? The men who have failed in literature and art.
Lothair ch. 35 (1870)
 See Coleridge 17
- 25 “My idea of an agreeable person,” said Hugo Bohun, “is a person who agrees with me.”
Lothair ch. 41 (1870)
- 26 [Of the Treasury Bench.] You behold a range of exhausted volcanoes.
 Speech, Manchester, England, 3 Apr. 1872
- 27 Lord Salisbury and myself have brought you back peace—but a peace I hope with honor.
 Speech on return from Congress of Berlin, 16 July 1878. Burton E. Stevenson, Home Book of Quotations, notes earlier examples of the phrase “peace with honor” going back to a letter from Theobald, Count of Champagne, to Louis the Great (ca. 1125).
 See Chamberlain 2; John Russell 1
- 28 [Of William E. Gladstone.] A sophistical rhetorician, inebriated with the exuberance of his own verbosity, and gifted with an egotistical imagination that can at all times command an interminable and inconsistent series of arguments to malign an opponent and to glorify himself.
 Speech, Knightsbridge, England, 27 July 1878
- 29 His Christianity was muscular.
Endymion ch. 14 (1880). The term muscular Christianity can be traced as far back as 1853 (National Magazine, June).

- 30 [On becoming prime minister in 1868:] I have climbed to the top of the greasy pole.
Quoted in William Fraser, Disraeli and His Day (1891)
- 31 [Remark to Matthew Arnold, ca. 1880:] Every one likes flattery; and when you come to Royalty you should lay it on with a trowel.
Quoted in G. W. E. Russell, Collections and Recollections (1898)
- 32 [Of attacks in Parliament:] Never complain and never explain.
Quoted in John Morley, Life of William Ewart Gladstone (1903). In Cornhill Magazine, Dec. 1893, Benjamin Jowett was quoted as having said, "Never retract, never explain, never apologise."
See John Arbuthnot Fisher 1; Elbert Hubbard 2
- 33 When I want to read a novel, I write one.
Quoted in Wilfred Meynell, Benjamin Disraeli: An Unconventional Biography (1903). "When I want to read a book, I write one" was ascribed to Disraeli by Fraser's Magazine, May 1868.
- 34 [To an author who had sent him an unsolicited manuscript:] Many thanks; I shall lose no time in reading it.
Quoted in Wilfrid Meynell, Benjamin Disraeli: An Unconventional Biography (1903). Although this line is associated with Disraeli, it appeared without attribution to him as early as 1871 ("I have received your book, and shall lose no time in reading it," British Quarterly Review, October).
- 35 [On his deathbed, declining a visit from Queen Victoria:] No it is better not. She would only ask me to take a message to Albert.
Quoted in Robert Blake, Disraeli (1966)
- 36 [Correcting proofs of his last parliamentary speech, 31 Mar. 1881:] I will not go down to posterity talking bad grammar.
Quoted in Robert Blake, Disraeli (1966)
- 37 [Replying to anti-Semitic taunting in the House of Commons:] Yes, I am a Jew! When the ancestors of the honorable gentleman were brutal savages in an unknown island, mine were priests in the temple!
Attributed in Atlanta Constitution, 14 Feb. 1892. Often said to have been addressed to Irish Member of Parliament Daniel O'Connell. An earlier Disraeli attribution appeared in Phrenological Journal and Life Illustrated, Mar. 1868: "My ancestors were lords of the tabernacle and princes of Israel when his were naked savages in the woods of Northern Germany." A very similar response to anti-Semitism is sometimes attributed to U.S. Senator Judah P. Benjamin; the earliest record of the Benjamin attribution that has been found occurs in Benjamin P. Poore, Perley's Reminiscences of Sixty Years in the National Metropolis (1886).

- 38 [To Edward Bulwer-Lytton:] Damn your principles! Stick to your party.
Attributed in Edward Latham, Famous Sayings and Their Authors (1904)

Dorothy Dix (Elizabeth Meriwether Gilmer)

U.S. journalist, 1870–1951

- 1 So many persons think divorce a panacea for every ill, who find out, when they try it, that the remedy is worse than the disease.
Dorothy Dix—Her Book (1926)

Tahar Djaout

Algerian writer, 1954–1993

- 1 Silence is death
And if you say nothing you die,
And if you speak you die.
So speak and die.
Quoted in New Statesman & Society, 19 Aug. 1994

Milovan Djilas

Yugoslavian political leader and writer, 1911–1995

- 1 The capitalist and other classes of ancient origin had in fact been destroyed, but a new class, previously unknown to history, had been formed. . . . This new class [is] the bureaucracy, or more accurately the political bureaucracy.

Did, till we loved, were we not weaned till then?
But sucked on country pleasures, childishly?
Or snorted we in the seven sleepers den?
Songs and Sonnets “The Good-Morrow” (published 1633)
- 11 Go, and catch a falling star,
Get with child a mandrake root,
Tell me, where all past years are,
Or who cleft the Devil's foot,
Teach me to hear mermaids singing.
Songs and Sonnets “Song: Go and catch a falling star” (published 1633)
- 12 Busy old fool, unruly sun,
Why dost thou thus,
Through windows, and through curtains call on us?
Must to thy motions lovers' seasons run?
Songs and Sonnets “The Sun Rising” (published 1633)

- 13 I have done one braver thing
Than all the Worthies did,
And yet a braver thence doth spring,
Which is, to keep that hid.
Songs and Sonnets “The Undertaking” (published 1633)
- 14 [Letter to his wife, after being dismissed from the service of his father-in-law:] John Donne, Anne Donne, Un-done.
Quoted in Izaak Walton, The Life of Dr. Donne (1640)

T. A. Dorgan

U.S. cartoonist and sportswriter, 1877–1929

- 1 Quick, Watson, the needle.
New Orleans Item, 24 Apr. 1911. This citation was discovered by Ben Zimmer. The phrase is often said to have originated in Henry Blossom’s libretto for the operetta The Red Mill (1906), but the sole existing copy of that libretto, at the New York Public Library, does not include “Quick, Watson, the needle.”
- 2 See what the boys in the back room will have.
New York Evening Journal, 2 May 1914
- 3 Yes . . . we have no bananas.
Wisconsin News, 18 July 1922. Became famous as the title of a 1923 song by Frank Silver and Irving Cohn.

Michael Dorris

U.S. writer, 1945–1997

- 1 My son will forever travel through a moonless night with only the roar of wind for company. . . . A drowning man is not separated from the lust for air by a bridge of thought—he is one with it—and my son, conceived and grown in an ethanol bath, lives each day in the act of drowning. For him there is no shore.
The Broken Cord ch. 14 (1989)

Thomas A. Dorsey

U.S. gospel musician, 1901–1960

- 1 Precious Lord, take my hand,
Lead me on, let me stand,
I am tired, I am weak, I am worn;
Thru the storm, thru the night,
Lead me on to the light,
Take my hand, precious Lord, lead me home.
“Take My Hand, Precious Lord” (song) (1938)

John Dos Passos

U.S. writer, 1896–1970

- 1 all right we are two nations.
The Big Money “The Camera Eye (50)” (1936)

Fyodor Dostoyevski

Russian novelist, 1821–1881

- 1 The degree of civilization in a society can be judged by entering its prisons.
The House of the Dead (1862) (translation by Constance Garnett)
See Pearl S. Buck 3; Ramsey Clark 1; Humphrey 3; Samuel Johnson 69; Helen Keller 4
- 2 I agree that two times two is four is an excellent thing; but if we’re going to start praising everything, then two times two is five is sometimes also a most charming little thing.
Notes from Underground pt. 1, ch. 9 (1864) (translation by Richard Pevear and Larissa Volokhonsky)
- 3 The world will be saved by beauty.
The Idiot pt. 3, ch. 5 (1868) (translation by Alan Myers)
- 4 If you were to destroy in mankind the belief in immortality, not only love but every living force maintaining the life of the world would at once be dried up. Moreover, nothing then would be immoral, everything would be lawful.
The Brothers Karamazov bk. 2, ch. 6 (1879–1880) (translation by Constance Garnett). This is one of several passages in the book that are famously paraphrased as “If God does not exist, then everything is permitted.”
- 5 Imagine that you are creating a fabric of human destiny with the object of making men happy in the end, giving them peace and rest at least, but that it was essential and inevitable to torture to death only one tiny creature . . . and to found that edifice on its unavenged tears, would you consent to be the architect on those conditions?
The Brothers Karamazov bk. 5, ch. 4 (1879–1880) (translation by Constance Garnett)
- 6 We have corrected Thy work and have founded it upon miracle, mystery, and authority. And men rejoiced that they were again led like sheep, and that the terrible gift that brought them such suffering, was, at last, lifted from their hearts.
The Brothers Karamazov bk. 5, ch. 5 (1879–1880) (translation by Constance Garnett)

- 7 Who doesn't desire his father's death?
The Brothers Karamazov bk. 12, ch. 5 (1879–1880)
(translation by Constance Garnett)
- 8 They have their Hamlets, but we still have our Karamazovs!
The Brothers Karamazov bk. 12, ch. 9 (1879–1880)
(translation by Constance Garnett)
- 9 We have all come out of Gogol's Overcoat.
Attributed in Eugène Melchior, Le Roman Russe
(1886). This statement about Gogol's influence on Russian writers is reported by Melchior without an attribution, but it is generally assigned to Dostoyevski.

Mark Doty

U.S. poet, 1953–

- I And I swear sometimes when I put my head to his chest
I can hear the virus humming like a refrigerator.
"Faith" l. 40 (1995)

Lord Alfred Douglas

English poet, 1870–1945

- I I am the Love that dare not speak its name.
"Two Loves" (1894). Refers to homosexual love.
See Wilde 82; Wilde 83

Anselm Douglas

Trinidadian musician, 1964–

- I Who Let the Dogs Out?
Title of song (1997)

Norman Douglas

Scottish novelist and essayist, 1868–1952

- I You can tell the ideals of a nation by its advertisements.
South Wind ch. 7 (1917)

William O. Douglas

U.S. judge, 1898–1980

- I A people who climb the ridges and sleep
under the stars in high mountain meadows, who enter the forest and scale the peaks, who explore glaciers and walk ridges buried deep in snow—these people will give the country some of the indomitable spirit of the mountains.
Of Men and Mountains ch. 22 (1950)

- 2 We are a religious people whose institutions presuppose a Supreme Being. . . . We sponsor an attitude on the part of government that shows no partiality to any one group and that lets each flourish according to the zeal of its adherents and the appeal of its dogma.
Zorach v. Clauston (1952)
- 3 The Fifth Amendment is an old friend and a good friend. It is one of the great landmarks in man's struggle to be free of tyranny, to be decent and civilized. It is our way of escape from the use of torture.
An Almanac of Liberty (1954)
- 4 The conception of political equality from the Declaration of Independence, to Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, to the Fifteenth, Seventeenth, and Nineteenth Amendments can mean only one thing—one person, one vote.
Gray v. Sanders (1963)
See Cartwright 1; Chesterton 16
- 5 In other words, the First Amendment has a penumbra where privacy is protected from government intrusion.
Griswold v. Connecticut (1965)
See Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr. 1
- 6 The foregoing cases suggest that specific guarantees in the Bill of Rights have penumbras, formed by emanations from those guarantees that help give them life and substance. . . . Various guarantees create zones of privacy.
Griswold v. Connecticut (1965)
- 7 We deal with a right of privacy older than the Bill of Rights—older than our political parties, older than our school system. Marriage is a coming together for better or for worse, hopefully enduring, and intimate to the degree of being sacred. It is an association that promotes a way of life, not causes; a harmony in living, not political faiths; a bilateral loyalty, not commercial or social projects. Yet it is an association for as noble a purpose as any involved in our prior decisions.
Griswold v. Connecticut (1965)

Frederick Douglass

U.S. civil rights leader, ca. 1818–1895

- 1 [Of slave songs:] Every tone was a testimony against slavery, and a prayer to God for deliverance from chains.
Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass ch. 2 (1845)
- 2 You have seen how a man was made a slave; you shall see how a slave was made a man.
Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass ch. 10 (1845)
- 3 No, I make no pretension to patriotism. So long as my voice can be heard on this or the other side of the Atlantic, I will hold up America to the lightning scorn of moral indignation. In doing this, I shall feel myself discharging the duty of a true patriot; for he is a lover of his country who rebukes and does not excuse its sins.
Speech at Market Hall, New York, N.Y., 22 Oct. 1847
- 4 [On the proposal to send American blacks to colonize Liberia:] Our minds are made up to live here if we can, or die here if we must; so every attempt to remove us will be, as it ought to be, labor lost. Here we are, and here we shall remain.
The North Star, 26 Jan. 1849
- 5 It is not light that is needed, but fire; it is not the gentle shower, but thunder. We need the storm, the whirlwind, and the earthquake. The feeling of the nation must be quickened; the conscience of the nation must be roused; the propriety of the nation must be startled; the hypocrisy of the nation must be exposed;
- and its crimes against God and man must be proclaimed and denounced.
Speech, Rochester, N.Y., 5 July 1852
- 6 What, to the American slave, is your 4th of July? I answer; a day that reveals to him, more than all other days in the year, the gross injustice and cruelty to which he is the constant victim. To him, your celebration is a sham.
Speech, Rochester, N.Y., 5 July 1852
- 7 The man who is right is a majority. He who has God and conscience on his side, has a majority against the universe. Though he does not represent the present state, he represents the future state. If he does not represent what we are, he represents what we ought to be.
Speech to National Free Soil Convention, Pittsburgh, Pa., 11 Aug. 1852
See Coolidge 2; Andrew Jackson 7; John Knox 1; Wendell Phillips 3; Thoreau 9
- 8 Power concedes nothing without a demand. It never did and it never will.
Speech, Canandaigua, N.Y., 4 Aug. 1857
- 9 If there is no struggle, there is no progress. Those who profess to favor freedom and yet deprecate agitation, are men who want crops without plowing up the ground, they want rain without thunder and lightning. They want the ocean without the awful roar of its many waters.
Speech, Canandaigua, N.Y., 4 Aug. 1857
- 10 The destiny of the colored American . . . is the destiny of America.
Speech at Emancipation League, Boston, Mass., 12 Feb. 1862
- 11 The relation subsisting between the white and colored people of this country is the great, paramount, imperative, and all-commanding question for this age and nation to solve.
Speech at the Church of the Puritans, New York, N.Y., May 1863
- 12 The story of our inferiority is an old dodge, as I have said; for wherever men oppress their fellows, wherever they enslave them, they will endeavor to find the needed apology for such enslavement and oppression in the character of the people oppressed and enslaved.
Speech at annual meeting of Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society, Boston, Mass., Apr. 1865

13 In all the relations of life and death, we are met by the color line.

Speech at the Convention of Colored Men, Louisville, Ky., 24 Sept. 1883

14 No man can put a chain about the ankle of his fellow man without at last finding the other end fastened about his own neck.

Speech at Civil Rights Mass Meeting, Washington, D.C., 22 Oct. 1883

15 The life of the nation is secure only while the nation is honest, truthful, and virtuous.

Speech on the twenty-third anniversary of emancipation in the District of Columbia, Washington, D.C., Apr. 1885

16 Where justice is denied, where poverty is enforced, where ignorance prevails, and where any one class is made to feel that society is an organized conspiracy to oppress, rob, and degrade them, neither persons nor property will be safe.

Speech on the twenty-fourth anniversary of emancipation in the District of Columbia, Washington, D.C., Apr. 1886

Rita Dove

U.S. poet, 1952–

1 Billie Holiday's burned voice had as many shadows as lights, a mournful candelabra against a sleek piano, the gardenia her signature under that ruined face. . . .

If you can't be free, be a mystery.

"Canary" l. 1, 11 (1989)

2 Poetry seems to exist in a parallel universe outside daily life in America. . . . We tend to be so bombarded with information, and we move so quickly, that there's a tendency to treat everything on the surface level and process things quickly. This is antithetical to the kind of openness and perception you have to have to be receptive to poetry.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 20 June 1993

Lorenzo Dow

U.S. evangelist, 1777–1834

1 [Of Calvinism.] You will be damned if you do— And you will be damned if you don't.

Reflections on the Love of God ch. 6 (1836)

Maureen Dowd

U.S. journalist, 1952–

1 The Princess of Wales [Diana] was the queen of surfaces, ruling over a kingdom where fame was the highest value and glamour the most cherished attribute.

N.Y. Times, 3 Sept. 1997

2 [Of the war in Iraq.] Why is all this a surprise again? I know our hawks avoided serving in Vietnam, but didn't they, like, read about it?

N.Y. Times, 30 Mar. 2003

English poet, 1867–1900

1 I have been faithful to thee, Cynara! in my fashion.

Arthur Conan Doyle

British writer and physician, 1859–1930

1 [The first encounter between Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson.] "You have been in Afghanistan, I perceive."

"How on earth did you know that?"

A Study in Scarlet ch. 1 (1888)

2 London, that great cesspool into which all the loungers and idlers of the Empire are irresistibly drained.

A Study in Scarlet ch. 1 (1888)

3 Depend upon it there comes a time when for every addition of knowledge you forget something that you knew before. It is of the highest importance, therefore, not to have useless facts elbowing out the useful ones.

A Study in Scarlet ch. 2 (1888)

4 You say that we go round the sun. If we went round the moon it would not make a pennyworth of difference to me or to my work.

A Study in Scarlet ch. 2 (1888)

- 5 “Wonderful!” I ejaculated.
“Commonplace,” said Holmes.
A Study in Scarlet ch. 3 (1888)
- 6 There’s the scarlet thread of murder running through the colorless skein of life, and our duty is to unravel it, and isolate it, and expose every inch of it.
A Study in Scarlet ch. 4 (1888)
- 7 It is cocaine . . . a seven per cent solution.
Would you care to try it?
The Sign of the Four ch. 1 (1890)
- 8 The only unofficial consulting detective. I am the last and highest court of appeal in detection.
The Sign of the Four ch. 1 (1890)
- 9 Detection is, or ought to be, an exact science, and should be treated in the same cold and unemotional manner. You have attempted to tinge it with romanticism, which produces much the same effect as if you worked a love-story or an elopement into the fifth proposition of Euclid.
The Sign of the Four ch. 1 (1890)
- 10 How often have I said to you that when you have eliminated the impossible, whatever remains, however improbable, must be the truth?
The Sign of the Four ch. 6 (1890)
See Boucher 1
- 11 The unofficial force—the Baker Street irregulars.
The Sign of the Four ch. 8 (1890)
- 12 Singularity is almost invariably a clue. The more featureless and commonplace a crime is, the more difficult it is to bring it home.
“The Boscombe Valley Mystery” (1891)
- 13 Beyond the obvious facts that he has at some time done manual labor, that he takes snuff, that he is a Freemason, that he has been to China, and that he has done a considerable amount of writing lately, I can deduce nothing else.
“The Red-Headed League” (1891)
- 14 It is quite a three-pipe problem.
“The Red-Headed League” (1891)
- 15 To Sherlock Holmes she [Irene Adler] is always the woman. I have seldom heard him mention her under any other name. In his eyes she eclipses and predominates the whole of her sex.
“A Scandal in Bohemia” (1891)
- 16 You see, but you do not observe.
“A Scandal in Bohemia” (1891)
- 17 I have no data yet. It is a capital mistake to theorize before one has data. Insensibly one begins to twist facts to suit theories, instead of theories to suit facts.
“A Scandal in Bohemia” (1891)
- 18 My name is Sherlock Holmes. It is my business to know what other people don’t know.
“The Adventure of the Blue Carbuncle” (1892)
- 19 It is my belief, Watson, founded upon my experience, that the lowest and vilest alleys in London do not present a more dreadful record of sin than does the smiling and beautiful countryside.
“The Adventure of the Copper Beeches” (1892)
- 20 Your conversation is most entertaining. When you go out close the door, for there is a decided draught.
“The Adventure of the Speckled Band” (1892)
- 21 “Is there any other point to which you would wish to draw my attention?”
“To the curious incident of the dog in the night-time.”

- “The dog did nothing in the night-time.”
 “That was the curious incident,” remarked
 Sherlock Holmes.
 “Silver Blaze” (1892)
- 22 I should prefer that you do not mention my name at all in connection with the case, as I choose to be only associated with those crimes which present some difficulty in their solution.
 “The Adventure of the Cardboard Box” (1893)
- 23 “Excellent,” I cried. “Elementary,” said he.
 “The Adventure of the Crooked Man” (1893)
 See Arthur Conan Doyle 39
- 24 You know my methods, Watson.
 “The Adventure of the Crooked Man” (1893)
- 25 He [Professor Moriarty] is the Napoleon of crime, Watson. He is the organizer of half that is evil and of nearly all that is undetected in this great city. He is a genius, a philosopher, an abstract thinker. He has a brain of the first order.
 “The Final Problem” (1893)
- 26 Then we rushed on into the captain’s cabin . . .
 and there he lay . . . while the chaplain stood,
 with a smoking pistol in his hand.
 “The Adventure of the Gloria Scott” (1893). Earliest known usage of smoking gun or smoking pistol.
- 27 There is nothing in which deduction is so necessary as in religion. It can be built up as an exact science by the reasoner. Our highest assurance of the goodness of Providence seems to me to rest in the flowers. All other things, our powers, our desires, our food, are all really necessary for our existence in the first instance.
 But this rose is an extra. Its smell and its color are an embellishment of life, not a condition of
 it. It is only goodness which gives extras, and so I say again that we have much to hope from the flowers.
 “The Adventure of the Naval Treaty” (1893)
- 28 Like all Holmes’s reasoning the thing seemed simplicity itself when it was once explained.
 “The Adventure of the Stockbroker’s Clerk” (1893)
- 29 Mr. Holmes, they were the footprints of a gigantic hound!
The Hound of the Baskervilles ch. 2 (1902)
- 30 Come, Watson, come! The game is afoot.
 “The Adventure of the Abbey Grange” (1904)
- 31 [Sherlock Holmes to Dr. Watson.] The fair sex is your department.
 “The Adventure of the Second Stain” (1904)
- 32 You will remember, Watson, how the dreadful business of the Abernethy family was first brought to my notice by the depth to which the parsley had sunk into the butter upon a hot day.
 “The Adventure of the Six Napoleons” (1904)
- 33 It is fortunate for this community that I am not a criminal.
 “The Adventure of the Bruce-Partington Plans” (1908)
- 34 I play the game for the game’s own sake.
 “The Adventure of the Bruce-Partington Plans” (1908)
- 35 Besides, on general principles it is best that I should not leave the country. Scotland Yard feels lonely without me, and it causes an unhealthy excitement among the criminal classes.
 “The Disappearance of Lady Frances Carfax” (1911)
- 36 Mediocrity knows nothing higher than itself, but talent instantly recognizes genius.
The Valley of Fear ch. 1 (1915)
- 37 Good old Watson! You are the one fixed point in a changing age.
 “His Last Bow” (1917)
- 38 The giant rat of Sumatra, a story for which the world is not yet prepared.
 “The Adventure of the Sussex Vampire” (1924)
- 39 Elementary, my dear Watson.
 Attributed in Richmond Times-Dispatch, 24 Aug.
 1909. This phrase is popularly attributed to Sherlock Holmes but does not appear in any of the Holmes stories by Arthur Conan Doyle. The Northampton (England) Mercury, 15 Nov. 1901, ran a humorous article in which “Dr. Potson” was told by “Shylock Combs”: “Elementary, my dear Potson.” Although the narrator’s name was parodically altered to “Potson,” clearly an existing phrase of “Elementary, my dear Watson” was being played upon. Even earlier, in the 22 Sept. 1893 issue of English Mechanic and World of Science, a letter to the editor included the words “All this is quite elementary, my dear ‘Fellow of the Chemical Society.’” That may have been a coincidental expression unrelated to Sherlock Holmes, but it seems that it may have been an allusion to an early form, “Elementary, my dear fellow.”

English novelist, 1939–

- 1 Sometimes it seems the only accomplishment my education ever bestowed on me was the ability to think in quotations.
A Summer Birdcage ch. 1 (1963)
- 2 Lord knows what incommunicable small terrors infants go through, unknown to all. We disregard them, we say they forget, because they have not the words to make us remember.
. . . By the time they learn to speak they have forgotten the details of their complaints, and so we never know. They forget so quickly, we say, because we cannot contemplate the fact that they never forget.
The Millstone (1965)
- 3 Human contact seemed to her so frail a thing that the hope that two people might want each other in the same way, at the same time and with the possibility of doing something about it, seemed infinitely remote.

English poet, 1563–1631

- 1 Since there's no help, come let us kiss and part,
Nay, I have done: you get no more of me,
And I am glad, yea glad with all my heart,
That thus so cleanly, I myself can free,
Shake hands for ever, cancel all our vows.

Theodore Dreiser

U.S. novelist and editor, 1871–1945

- 1 Oh, the moonlight's fair tonight along the Wabash,
From the fields there comes the breath of new-
mown hay;
Through the sycamores the candle lights are gleaming
On the banks of the Wabash, far away.
"On the Banks of the Wabash" (song) (1898).
Credited to Dreiser's brother, Paul Dresser, but Dreiser is believed to have written the lyrics to this chorus.
- 2 Our civilization is still in a middle stage, scarcely beast, in that it is no longer wholly guided by instinct; scarcely human, in that it is not yet wholly guided by reason.

- 1 [Saluting a new flag hoisted on his ship, 10 Aug. 1831]: I name thee Old Glory.

Attributed in L.A. Times, 31 July 1951. According to Bartlett's Familiar Quotations: "On August 10, 1831, a large American flag was presented to Captain William Driver of the brig Charles Doggett by a band of women, in recognition of his humane service in bringing back the British mutineers of the ship Bounty from Tahiti to their former home, Pitcairn Island. As the flag was hoisted to the masthead, Captain Driver proclaimed, 'I name thee Old Glory.' The flag is now in the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C."

English poet and playwright, 1631–1700

- 1 The famous rules, which the French call Des Trois Unitez, or, the Three Unities, which ought to be observed in every regular play; namely, of Time, Place, and Action.

An Essay of Dramatic Poesy (1668)

- 2 I am as free as nature first made man,
Ere the base laws of servitude began,
When wild in woods the noble savage ran.
The Conquest of Granada pt. 1, act 1, sc. 1 (1670)
- 3 Men are but children of a larger growth;
Our appetites as apt to change as theirs,
And full as craving too, and full as vain.
All for Love act 4, sc. 1 (1678)
- 4 Great wits are sure to madness near allied.
Absalom and Achitophel pt. 1, l. 163 (1681)

- 5 In friendship false, implacable in hate:
Resolved to ruin or to rule the state.

W. E. B. Du Bois

U.S. reformer, educator, and writer, 1868–1963

- 1 The Negro is a sort of seventh son, born with a veil, and gifted with second-sight in this American world,—a world which yields him no self-consciousness, but only lets him see himself through the revelation of the other world. It is a peculiar sensation, this double-consciousness, this sense of always looking at one's self through the eyes of others, of measuring one's soul by the tape of a world that looks on in amused contempt and pity.
 "Strivings of the Negro People" (1897)
- 2 One ever feels his two-ness,—an American, a Negro; two souls, two thoughts, two unreconciled strivings; two warring ideals in one dark body, whose dogged strength alone keeps it from being torn asunder. The history of the American Negro is the history of this strife,—this longing to attain self-conscious manhood, to merge his double self into a better and truer self. In this merging he wishes neither of the older selves to be lost.
 "Strivings of the Negro People" (1897)
- 3 The Negro race, like all races, is going to be saved by its exceptional men. The problem of education, then, among Negroes must first of all deal with the Talented Tenth.
 "The Talented Tenth" (1903)
- 4 To be a poor man is hard, but to be a poor race in a land of dollars is the very bottom of hardships.
The Souls of Black Folk ch. 1 (1903)
- 5 The problem of the twentieth century is the problem of the color-line,—the relation of the darker to the lighter races of men in Asia and Africa, in America and the islands of the sea.
The Souls of Black Folk ch. 2 (1903)
- 6 Herein lies the tragedy of the age: not that men are poor,—all men know something of poverty; not that men are wicked—who is good? not that men are ignorant—what is Truth? Nay, but that men know so little of men.
The Souls of Black Folk ch. 12 (1903)
- 7 The cost of liberty is less than the price of repression, even though that cost be blood.
John Brown ch. 13 (1909)
- 8 Is a civilization naturally backward because it is different? Outside of cannibalism, which can be matched in this country, at least, by lynching, there is no vice and no degradation in native African customs which can begin to touch the horrors thrust upon them by white masters. Drunkenness, terrible diseases, immorality, all these things have been gifts of European civilization.
 "Reconstruction and Africa" (1919)
- 9 What, then, is this dark world thinking? It is thinking that as wild and awful as this shameful war was, it is nothing to compare with that fight for freedom which black and brown and yellow men must and will make unless their oppression and humiliation and insult at the hands of the White World cease.
Darkwater ch. 2 (1920)
- 10 The Dark World is going to submit to its present treatment just as long as it must and not one moment longer.
Darkwater ch. 2 (1920)
- 11 Not even a Harvard School of Business can make greed into a science.
In Battle for Peace ch. 14 (1952)

René Dubos

French-born U.S. biologist and environmentalist, 1901–1982

- 1 In most human affairs, the idea is to think globally and act locally.
 "The Despairing Optimist," American Scholar, Spring 1977. The motto "Think Globally, Act Locally" was the title of an interview with Dubos in EPA Journal, Apr. 1978. "We must think globally, but first act locally" appeared in Safety Education, May 1942, where it was said to be quoted from Edgar Dale in the Feb. 1942 issue of the newsletter of the Bureau of Educational Research, Ohio State University. In addition, the Vidette Messenger (Valparaiso, Ind.), 27 Mar. 1947, quoted a letter from Jane Sense referring to "the objective and slogan of the right worthy grand matron and the general grand chapter [of the Indiana Order of the Eastern Star]: 'World Friendship' and 'think globally, act locally.'"

Madame Du Deffand (Marie de Vichy-Chamrond)

French literary hostess, 1697–1780

- 1 [On the legend that St. Denis, carrying his own head, walked two leagues:] La distance n'y fait rien; il n'y a que le premier pas qui coûte.
The distance is nothing; it is only the first step that is difficult.
Letter to Jean Le Rond d'Alembert, 7 July 1763

James S. Duesenberry

U.S. economist, 1918–2009

- 1 Economics is all about how people make choices. Sociology is all about why they don't have any choices to make.
Quoted in National Bureau of Economic Research, Demographic and Economic Change in Developed Countries (1960)

Du Fu

Chinese poet, 712–770

- 1 The nation is ruined, but mountains and rivers remain.
“Spring View” (755) (translation by Gary Snyder)
- 2 I am about to scream madly in the office, Especially when they bring more papers to pile high on my desk.
Poem 109, quoted in William Hung, Tu Fu: China's Greatest Poet (1952)
- 3 Sundered by peaks unscalable, Tomorrow shall we strangers be.
“Visiting an Old Friend,” quoted in John A. Turner, A Golden Treasury of Chinese Poetry (1976)

Allen W. Dulles

U.S. government official, 1893–1969

- 1 When the fate of a nation and the lives of its soldiers are at stake, gentlemen do read each other's mail—if they can get their hands on it.
The Craft of Intelligence ch. 6 (1963)
See Stimson 1

John Foster Dulles

U.S. diplomat and lawyer, 1888–1959

- 1 If . . . the European Defense Community should not become effective; if France and Germany remain apart . . . That would compel an agonizing reappraisal of basic United States policy.

Speech to NATO Council, Paris, 14 Dec. 1953

- 2 Local defense must be reinforced by the further deterrent of massive retaliatory power.
Speech to Council on Foreign Relations, New York, N.Y., 12 Jan. 1954
- 3 The ability to get to the verge without getting into the war is the necessary art. . . . We walked to the brink and we looked it in the face.
Quoted in Life, 16 Jan. 1956
See Adlai Stevenson 9
- 4 [In response to being asked whether he had ever been wrong:] Yes, once . . . many, many years ago. I thought I had made a wrong decision. Of course, it turned out that I had been right all along. But I was wrong to have thought I was wrong.
Quoted in Henri Temianka, Facing the Music (1973)

Alexandre Dumas the Elder

French novelist and playwright, 1802–1870

- 1 She resisted me, so I killed her.
Antony act 5, sc. 4 (1831)
- 2 Les Trois Mousquetaires.
The Three Musketeers.
Title of book (1844)
- 3 Tous pour un, un pour tous.
All for one, one for all.
Les Trois Mousquetaires (The Three Musketeers) ch. 9 (1844)
- 4 Until the day when God will deign to reveal the future to man, all human wisdom is contained in these two words, Wait and hope.
The Count of Monte Cristo ch. 117 (1845)
- 5 Cherchons la femme.
Let us look for the woman.
Les Mohicans de Paris vol. 3, ch. 10 (1854–1855). Also attributed to Joseph Fouché in the form Cherchez la femme.

Alexandre Dumas the Younger

French writer, 1824–1895

- 1 Le Demi-Monde.
Title of play (1855). Trésor de la Langue Française records a somewhat different sense of the word demi-monde (“world of equivocal morals”) as far back as 1789, but the modern usage derives from Dumas.

Daphne du Maurier

English novelist, 1907–1989

- 1 Last night I dreamt I went to Manderley again.
Rebecca ch. 1 (1938)
- 2 You thought I loved Rebecca? . . . I hated her.
Rebecca ch. 20 (1938)
- 3 And the ashes blew towards us with the salt wind from the sea.
Rebecca ch. 27 (1938)

Charles François Dumouriez

French general, 1739–1823

- 1 [Of Louis XVIII:] The courtiers who surround him have forgotten nothing and learnt nothing.
Examen Impartial d'un écrit Intitulé Déclaration de Louis XVIII (1795). Frequently attributed to Talleyrand, speaking of the Bourbon exiles and in the form "Ils n'ont rien appris, ni rien oublié" (They have learnt nothing, and forgotten nothing).

Paul Laurence Dunbar

U.S. poet, 1872–1906

- 1 We wear the mask that grins and lies,
It hides our cheeks and shades our eyes,—
This debt we pay to human guile . . .
But let the world dream otherwise,
We wear the mask!
"We Wear the Mask" l. 1, 14 (1895)
- 2 I know why the caged bird sings!
"Sympathy" l. 21 (1899)
See John Webster 2

Isadora Duncan

U.S. dancer, 1878–1927

- 1 Any intelligent woman who reads the marriage contract and then goes into it, deserves all the consequences.
My Life ch. 19 (1927)
- 2 ["Last words," before breaking her neck when her scarf became entangled in a car wheel:]
Adieu, mes amis. Je vais à la gloire.
Farewell, my friends. I go to glory.
Quoted in Mary Desti, Isadora Duncan's End (1929)

Irina Dunn

Australian educator, journalist, and politician, 1948–

- 1 A woman without a man is like a fish without a bicycle.
Quoted in Sydney (Australia) Morning Herald, 25 Jan. 1975. The newspaper stated: "We found this anonymous contribution . . . on a wall at Forest Lodge." This is the earliest printed documentation that has been found for the saying. Gloria Steinem, who is often said to be the originator, has credited Dunn as coiner. Dunn says she wrote "A woman needs a man like a fish needs a bicycle" on two toilet doors in Sydney, Australia, in 1970, paraphrasing "A man needs God like a fish needs a bicycle."

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 26 Nov. 1980

Henry S. Durand

U.S. physician and songwriter, 1861–1929

- 1 For God, for Country, and for Yale!
"Bright College Years" (song) (1881). Cowritten with Carl Wilhelm.

Jimmy Durante

U.S. comedian, 1893–1980

- 1 [Catchphrase:] I've got a million of 'em!
Quoted in Winnipeg Free Press, 5 Oct. 1929

Marguerite Duras

French writer, 1914–1996

- 1 Tu n'as rien vu à Hiroshima. Rien.
You saw nothing in Hiroshima, nothing.
Hiroshima, Mon Amour (1960)

Adam Duritz

U.S. rock musician, 1964–

- 1 We all want something beautiful
Man, I wish I was beautiful.
“Mr. Jones” (song) (1993)

Émile Durkheim

French sociologist, 1858–1917

- 1 Our excessive tolerance with regard to suicide is due to the fact that, since the state of mind from which it springs is a general one, we cannot condemn it without condemning ourselves; we are too saturated with it not partly to excuse it.

Suicide: A Study in Sociology bk. 3, ch. 3 (1897)
(translation by John A. Spaulding and George Simpson)

Leo Durocher

U.S. baseball manager, 1906–1991

- 1 I never questioned the integrity of an umpire.
Their eyesight, yes.
Nice Guys Finish Last bk. 1 (1975)
- 2 [Remark about New York Giants baseball team, 6 July 1946:] The nice guys are all over there, in seventh place.
Quoted in N.Y. Journal-American, 7 July 1946.
Ralph Keyes reports in “Nice Guys Finish Seventh” that, when this newspaper column “was reprinted in Baseball Digest that fall, Durocher’s reference to nice guys finishing in ‘seventh place’ had been changed to ‘last place.’ . . . Before long Leo’s credo was bumper-stickered into ‘Nice guys finish last.’”
The shift may have taken place even earlier, given an article in Sporting News, 17 July 1946, headlined, “‘Nice Guys’ Wind Up in Last Place, Scoffs Lippy.”
The earliest occurrence of the exact famous quotation may have been Durocher’s article, titled “Nice Guys Finish Last,” in the Apr. 1948 issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

Lawrence Durrell

Indian-born English writer, 1912–1990

- 1 There are only three things to be done with a woman. You can love her, suffer for her, or turn her into literature.
Justine pt. 1 (1957)

Friedrich Dürrenmatt

Swiss playwright and novelist, 1921–1990

- 1 What was once thought can never be unthought.
The Physicists act 2 (1962) (translation by James Kirkup)

Ian Dury

English rock singer and songwriter, 1942–2000

- 1 Sex and Drugs and Rock 'n' Roll.
Title of song (1976). Cowritten with Chaz Jankel.

Andrea Dworkin

U.S. feminist and writer, 1946–2005

- 1 Seduction is often difficult to distinguish from rape. In seduction, the rapist bothers to buy a bottle of wine.
“Sexual Economics: The Terrible Truth” (1976)
- 2 No woman needs intercourse; few women escape it.
Right-Wing Women ch. 3 (1978)
- 3 The power of money is a distinctly male power. Money speaks, but it speaks with a male voice. In the hands of women, money stays literal; count it out, it buys what it is worth or less. In the hands of men, money buys women, sex, status, dignity, esteem, recognition, loyalty, all manner of possibility.
Pornography: Men Possessing Women ch. 1 (1981)
- 4 Women, for centuries not having access to pornography and now unable to bear looking at the muck on the supermarket shelves, are astonished. Women do not believe that men believe what pornography says about women. But they do. From the worst to the best of them, they do.
Pornography: Men Possessing Women ch. 5 (1981)

- 5 One of the differences between marriage and prostitution is that in marriage you only have to make a deal with one man.

Letters from a War Zone: Writings 1976–1989
 “Feminism: An Agenda” (1988). This essay was originally a speech at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., 8 Apr. 1983, then published in the college literary magazine, The ABC’s of Reading, in 1984.

Bob Dylan (Robert Zimmerman)

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1941–

- 1 How many roads must a man walk down
 Before you call him a man?
 “Blowin’ in the Wind” (song) (1962)
- 2 The answer, my friend, is blowin’ in the wind,
 The answer is blowin’ in the wind.
 “Blowin’ in the Wind” (song) (1962)
- 3 How many deaths will it take till he knows
 That too many people have died?
 “Blowin’ in the Wind” (song) (1962)
- 4 How many times can a man turn his head,
 Pretending he just doesn’t see?
 “Blowin’ in the Wind” (song) (1962)
- 5 I saw ten thousand talkers whose tongues were all broken,
 I saw guns and sharp swords in the hands of young children,
 And . . . it’s a hard rain’s a-gonna fall.
 “A Hard Rain’s A-Gonna Fall” (song) (1963)
- 6 Come senators, congressmen
 Please heed the call
 Don’t stand in the doorway
 Don’t block up the hall.
 “The Times They Are A-Changin’” (1963)
- 7 The order is Rapidly fadin’.
 And the first one now
 Will later be last
 For the times they are a-changin’.
 “The Times They Are A-Changin’” (song) (1963)
- 8 Hey! Mr. Tambourine Man, play a song for me,
 I’m not sleepy and there is no place I’m going to.
 Hey! Mr. Tambourine Man, play a song for me,
 In the jingle jangle morning I’ll come followin’
 you.
 “Mr. Tambourine Man” (song) (1964)
- 9 Yes, to dance beneath the diamond sky with one hand waving free,
 Silhouetted by the sea, circled by the circus
 sands,
 With all memory and fate driven deep beneath the waves,
 Let me forget about today until tomorrow.
 “Mr. Tambourine Man” (song) (1964)
- 10 Ah, but I was so much older then,
 I’m younger than that now.
 “My Back Pages” (song) (1964)
- 11 Something is happening here
 But you don’t know what it is
 Do you, Mister Jones?
 “Ballad of a Thin Man” (song) (1965)
- 12 Yonder stands your orphan with his gun,
 Crying like a fire in the sun.
 Look out the saints are comin’ through
 And it’s all over now, Baby Blue.
 “It’s All Over Now, Baby Blue” (song) (1965)
- 13 He not busy being born
 Is busy dying.
 “It’s Alright, Ma (I’m Only Bleeding)” (song) (1965)
- 14 Even the president of the United States
 Sometimes must have
 To stand naked.
 “It’s Alright, Ma (I’m Only Bleeding)” (song) (1965)
- 15 Money doesn’t talk, it swears.
 “It’s Alright, Ma (I’m Only Bleeding)” (song) (1965)
- 16 Once upon a time you dressed so fine
 You threw the bums a dime in your prime, didn’t you?
 “Like a Rolling Stone” (song) (1965)

- 17 How does it feel
 To be on your own
 With no direction home
 Like a complete unknown
 Like a rolling stone?
 "Like a Rolling Stone" (song) (1965)
See Proverbs 257; Muddy Waters 1
- 18 You don't need a weather man
 To know which way the wind blows.
 "Subterranean Homesick Blues" (song) (1965). The revolutionary group the Weathermen, formed in 1969, took their name from this passage.
- 19 Don't follow leaders
 Watch the parkin' meters.
 "Subterranean Homesick Blues" (song) (1965)
- 20 But to live outside the law, you must be honest.
 "Absolutely Sweet Marie" (song) (1966). According to Robert Andrews, New Penguin Dictionary of Modern Quotations, "a similar line appears in Don Siegel's film The Line-Up (1958)."
- 21 "There must be some way out of here," said the joker to the thief,
 "There's too much confusion, I can't get no relief.
 Businessmen, they drink my wine, plowmen
 dig my earth,
 None of them along the line know what any of
 it is worth."
 "All Along the Watchtower" (song) (1968)
- 22 Lay, lady, lay, lay across my big brass bed.
 "Lay, Lady, Lay" (song) (1969)
- 23 Mama, take this badge off of me
 I can't use it anymore.
 It's getting dark, too dark for me to see
 I feel like I'm knockin' on heaven's door.
 "Knockin' on Heaven's Door" (song) (1973)
- 24 In a little hilltop village, they gambled for my clothes
 I bargained for salvation an' they gave me a lethal dose.
 "Shelter from the Storm" (song) (1974)

- 25 If I could only turn back the clock to when God and her were born.
 "Come in," she said,
 "I'll give you shelter from the storm."
 "Shelter from the Storm" (song) (1974)
- 26 Here comes the story of the Hurricane,
 The man the authorities came to blame
 For somethin' that he never done.
 Put in a prison cell, but one time he could-a been
 The champion of the world.
 "Hurricane" (song) (1975)
- 27 Now all the criminals in their coats and their ties
 Are free to drink martinis and watch the sun rise
 While Rubin sits like Buddha in a ten-foot cell
 An innocent man in a living hell.
 "Hurricane" (song) (1975)

Freeman Dyson

English-born U.S. physicist and mathematician, 1923–2020

- I Most of the papers which are submitted to the Physical Review are rejected, not because it is impossible to understand them, but because it is possible. Those which are impossible to understand are usually published.
Scientific American, Sept. 1958

Will Dyson

Australian-born English cartoonist, 1880–1938

- I Curious! I seem to hear a child weeping!
 Cartoon caption, Daily Herald (London), 13 May 1919.
 The cartoon depicted Georges Clemenceau leaving the Palais de Versailles with Woodrow Wilson, David Lloyd George, and Vittorio Orlando after they had signed the peace treaty with Germany. The child represented the generation of 1940.

Amelia Earhart

U.S. aviator, 1897–1937

- 1 [Letter left with her husband as she began her final flying journey:] Please know I am quite aware of the hazards. I want to do it because I want to do it. Women must try to do things as men have tried. When they fail their failure must be but a challenge to others.

Letter to George Putnam, 1937

Max Eastman

U.S. editor and writer, 1883–1969

- 1 I don't know why it is we are in such a hurry to get up when we fall down. You might think we would lie there and rest a while.

The Enjoyment of Laughter pt. 3, ch. 4 (1935)

Abba Eban

South African–born Israeli statesman, 1915–2002

- 1 Nations do behave wisely once they have exhausted all other alternatives.
Quoted in Evening Times (Trenton, N.J.), 7 June 1967
- 2 [John Foster] Dulles often wrestled with his conscience and always won.
Personal Witness: Israel Through My Eyes ch. 14 (1992)
- 3 The P.L.O. [Palestine Liberation Organization] has never missed an opportunity to miss an opportunity.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 18 Dec. 1988
See George Bernard Shaw 56

Fred Ebb

U.S. songwriter, 1935–2004

- 1 What good is sitting alone in your room?
Come hear the music play;
Life is a cabaret, old chum,
Come to the cabaret.
“Cabaret” (song) (1966)
- 2 Money makes the world go around.
“Money, Money” (song) (1966). As a proverb, “money makes the world go round” is found as early as Beecher's Magazine, Dec. 1870.
- 3 Meine Damen und Herren, Mesdames et Messieurs,
Ladies und Gentlemen—comment ça va?
Do you feel good? . . . I am your host . . .
Wilkommen! Bienvenue! Welcome!
Im Cabaret! Au Cabaret! To Cabaret!
“Wilkommen” (song) (1966)
- 4 We have no troubles here! Here life is beautiful.
The girls are beautiful.
Even the orchestra is beautiful!
“Wilkommen” (song) (1966)
- 5 These vagabond shoes
Are longing to stray
And make a brand new start of it
New York, New York
I want to wake up in the city that never sleeps.
“New York, New York” (song) (1977)
- 6 If I can make it there
I'll make it anywhere
It's up to you, New York, New York.
“New York, New York” (song) (1977). The New York Times, 8 Feb. 1959, quoted actress Julie Newmar:
“That's why I came to New York. Because if you make it here, you make it anywhere.”

Hermann Ebbinghaus

German psychologist, 1850–1909

- 1 What is true [in psychology] is alas not new, the new not true.
Über die Hartmannsche Philosophie des Unbewussten (1873). Earlier, “What is new is not good; and what is good is not new” appeared in Martin Sherlock, Letters on Several Subjects (1781).

Marie von Ebner-Eschenbach

Austrian novelist, 1830–1916

- 1 Be the first to say something obvious and achieve immortality.

Aphorisms (1905)

Umberto Eco

Italian historian and novelist, 1932–2016

- 1 I have never doubted the truth of signs, Adso; they are the only things man has with which to orient himself in the world. What I did not understand was the relation among signs. . . . I behaved stubbornly, pursuing a semblance of order, when I should have known well that there is no order in the universe.

The Name of the Rose “Seventh Day, Night” (1980)

Arthur S. Eddington

English physicist, 1882–1944

- 1 I shall use the phrase “time’s arrow” to express this one-way property of time which has no analogue in space.

The Nature of the Physical World ch. 4 (1928)

- 2 If I let my fingers wander idly over the keys of a typewriter it might happen that my screed made an intelligible sentence. If an army of monkeys were strumming on typewriters they might write all the books in the British Museum.

The Nature of the Physical World ch. 4 (1928)

See Borel 1; Wilensky 1

- 3 Science is an edged tool, with which men play like children, and cut their own fingers.

Attributed in Robert L. Weber, More Random Walks in Science (1982)

Mary Baker Eddy

U.S. religious leader, 1821–1910

- 1 Our Father-Mother God, all-harmonious.

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures 16:24 (1875)

- 2 Health is not a condition of matter, but of Mind; nor can the material senses bear reliable testimony on the subject of health.

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures 120:15 (1875)

- 3 Jesus of Nazareth was the most scientific man that ever trod the globe. He plunged beneath the material surface of things, and found the spiritual cause.

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures 313:23 (1875)

- 4 Spirit is the real and eternal; matter is the unreal and temporal.

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures 468:9 (1875)

- 5 Then comes the question, how do drugs, hygiene, and animal magnetism heal? It may be affirmed that they do not heal, but only relieve suffering temporarily, exchanging one disease for another.

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures 483:1 (1875)

- 6 Disease is an experience of so-called mortal mind. It is fear made manifest on the body.

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures 493:17 (1875)

Marian Wright Edelman

U.S. lawyer and activist, 1939–

- 1 The question is not whether we can afford to invest in every child; it is whether we can afford not to.

The Measure of Our Success pt. 5 (1992)

Clarissa Eden

English spouse of prime minister, 1920–

- 1 [Of the Suez crisis in October–November 1956:]

For the past few weeks I have really felt as if the Suez Canal was flowing through my drawing-room.

Speech, Gateshead, England, 20 Nov. 1956

Maria Edgeworth

English-born Irish novelist, 1768–1849

- 1 Well! Some people talk of morality, and some of religion, but give me a little snug property.

The Absentee ch. 2 (1812)

Thomas Alva Edison

U.S. inventor and businessman, 1847–1931

- 1 [Suggesting “hello” as a standard telephone greeting:] I do not think we shall need a call bell as Hello! can be heard 10 to 20 feet away.

Letter to T. B. A. David, 15 Aug. 1877

- 2 Genius is 1 per cent inspiration and 99 per cent perspiration.

Quoted in Idaho Daily Statesman, 6 May 1901. The Ladies' Home Journal, Apr. 1898, printed: "Once, when asked to give his definition of genius, Mr. Edison replied: 'Two per cent. is genius and ninety-eight per cent. is hard work.' At another time, when the argument that genius was inspiration was brought before him, he said: 'Bah! Genius is not inspired. Inspiration is perspiration.'"

See Buffon 2; Thomas Carlyle 19; Jane Ellice Hopkins 1

- 3 Opportunity is missed by most people because it comes dressed in overalls looking like hard work.

Attributed in News Journal (Mansfield, Ohio), 20 Feb. 1971. The popular attribution to Edison is undoubtedly apocryphal, as Barry Popik has found the following: "The reason most people do not recognize an opportunity when they meet it is because it usually goes around wearing overalls and looking like Hard Work," which was printed in the Logansport (Ind.) Pharos-Tribune, 18 May 1921, fifty years before the earliest known crediting to the famous inventor.

Jerry Edmonton (Gerald McCrohan)

Canadian rock musician, 1946–1993

- 1 Born to Be Wild.
Title of song (1968)

Edward VIII

British king, 1894–1972

- 1 I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as King as I would wish to do without the help and support of the woman I love.
Radio broadcast after his abdication, 11 Dec. 1936

Herman Edwards

U.S. football player and coach, 1954–

- 1 You play to win the game.
News conference, Hempstead, N.Y., 30 Oct. 2002. Edwards was responding to a question as to whether his New York Jets team might give up during a difficult season.

John Edwards

U.S. politician, 1953–

- 1 There are two Americas—one for the powerful and the privileged and one for everybody else.
Quoted in Baltimore Sun, 9 Jan. 2004

Jonathan Edwards

Colonial American theologian and philosopher, 1703–1758

- 1 The God that holds you over the pit of hell, much as one holds a spider . . . abhors you, and is dreadfully provoked: his wrath towards you burns like fire; he looks upon you as worthy of nothing else, but to be cast into the fire.
"Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God" (sermon), Enfield, Conn., 8 July 1741

Oliver Edwards

English lawyer, 1711–1791

- 1 I have tried too in my time to be a philosopher; but, I don't know how, cheerfulness was always breaking in.

Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 17 Apr. 1778)

Dave Eggers

U.S. writer, 1970–

- 1 A Heartbreaking Work of Staggering Genius.
Title of book (2000)

Barbara Ehrenreich

U.S. author and columnist, 1941–

- 1 Exercise is the yuppie version of bulimia.
N.Y. Times, 17 Jan. 1985
- 2 Take motherhood: nobody ever thought of putting it on a moral pedestal until some brash feminists pointed out, about a century ago, that the pay is lousy and the career ladder nonexistent.
Ms., Oct. 1986
- 3 Consider the standard two-person married couple. . . . They will share a VCR, a microwave, etc. This is not a matter of ideology or even personal inclination. It is practically the definition of marriage. Marriage is socialism among two people.
"Socialism in the Household" (1987)

Paul Ehrlich

U.S. ecologist, 1932–

- 1 The mother of the year should be a sterilized woman with two adopted children.
Quoted in Art Spiegelman and Bob Schneider, Whole Grains: A Book of Quotations (1973)

John Ehrlichman

U.S. government official, 1925–1999

- 1 [Of Attorney General John Mitchell:] He's the Big Enchilada.
Taped conversation, 27 Mar. 1973
- 2 [Explaining a political move criticized in Washington, D.C.:] It'll play in Peoria.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 3 Aug. 1969
- 3 [Of Patrick Gray, nominee for director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in telephone conversation with John Dean, Mar. 1973:] I think we ought to let him hang there. Let him twist slowly, slowly in the wind.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 27 July 1973

Max Ehrmann

U.S. poet, 1872–1945

- 1 Go placidly amid the noise and the haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible, without surrender, be on good terms with all persons.
“Desiderata” (1927). The origins of this poem have become confused in the popular mind. Because it was distributed in 1956 by the rector of St. Paul's Church in Baltimore, Maryland, the poem was widely believed to have been written in 1692 and found later in that church. The 1692 date represents the founding of St. Paul's Church and is irrelevant to “Desiderata.”
- 2 You are a child of the universe no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should.
“Desiderata” (1927)

Albert Einstein

German-born U.S. physicist, 1879–1955

- 1 According to the assumption considered here, in the propagation of a light ray emitted from a point source, the energy is not distributed continuously over ever-increasing volumes of space, but consists of a finite number of energy quanta localized at points of space that move without dividing and can be absorbed or generated only as complete units.
“On a Heuristic Point of View Concerning the Production and Transformation of Light” (1905)

- 2  $E = mc^2$
“Manuscript on the Special Theory of Relativity” (1912). Einstein's original formulation of the equivalence of mass and energy, in his 1905 paper on relativity in Annalen der Physik, was “If a body emits the energy  $L$  in the form of radiation, its mass decreases by  $L/V^2$ ” (translation). The familiar equation (energy equals mass times the square of the speed of light) came into being when Einstein substituted  $E$  for  $L$  in his 1912 manuscript.
- 3 I am by heritage a Jew, by citizenship a Swiss, and by make-up a human being, and only a human being, without any special attachment to any state or national entity whatsoever.
Letter to Alfred Kneser, 7 June 1918
- 4 To-day in Germany I am called a German man of science, and in England I am represented as a Swiss Jew. If I come to be regarded as a bête noire, the descriptions will be reversed, and I shall become a Swiss Jew for the Germans and a German man of science for the English!
Times (London), 28 Nov. 1919
See Einstein 6
- 5 As far as the laws of mathematics refer to reality, they are not certain; and as far as they are certain, they do not refer to reality.
Address to Prussian Academy of Sciences, Berlin, 27 Jan. 1921
- 6 If my theory of relativity is proven successful, Germany will claim me as a German and

- France will declare that I am a citizen of the world. Should my theory prove untrue, France will say that I am a German and Germany will declare that I am a Jew.
Address to French Philosophical Society, Paris, 6 Apr. 1922
See Einstein 4
- 7 I find the idea quite intolerable that an electron exposed to radiation should choose of its own free will, not only its moment to jump off, but also its direction. In that case I would rather be a cobbler, or even an employee in a gaming-house, than a physicist.
Letter to Max Born, 29 Apr. 1924
- 8 Quantum mechanics is very worthy of regard. But an inner voice tells me that this is not yet the right track. The theory yields much, but it hardly brings us closer to the Old One's secrets. I, in any case, am convinced that He does not play dice.
Letter to Max Born, 4 Dec. 1926. Usually quoted as "God does not play dice with the universe."
See Einstein 16
- 9 Should we be unable to find a way to honest cooperation and honest pacts with the Arabs, then we shall have learned nothing from our 2,000 years of suffering and will deserve our fate.
Letter to Chaim Weizmann, 25 Nov. 1929
- 10 Nature conceals her secrets because she is sublime, not because she is a trickster.
Letter to Oscar Veblen, 30 Apr. 1930
- 11 We know nothing about it [God and the world] at all. All our knowledge is but the knowledge of schoolchildren. Possibly we shall know a little more than we do now. But the real nature of things, that we shall never know, never.
Interview, The Jewish Sentinel, Sept. 1931
- 12 As a human being, one has been endowed with just enough intelligence to be able to see clearly how utterly inadequate that intelligence is when confronted with what exists.
Letter to Queen Elisabeth of Belgium, 19 Sept. 1932
- 13 The eternal mystery of the world is its comprehensibility. . . . The fact that it is comprehensible is a miracle.
"Physics and Reality," Journal of the Franklin Institute, Mar. 1936. Often quoted as "The most incomprehensible thing about the universe is that it is comprehensible."
- 14 Some recent work by E. Fermi and L. Szilard, which has been communicated to me in manuscript, leads me to expect that the element uranium may be turned into a new and important source of energy in the immediate future. Certain aspects of the situation which has arisen seem to call for watchfulness and, if necessary, quick action on the part of the Administration. . . .
This new phenomenon would also lead to the construction of bombs, and it is conceivable—though much less certain—that extremely powerful bombs of a new type may thus be constructed. A single bomb of this type, carried by boat or exploded in a port, might very well destroy the whole port together with some of the surrounding territory. However, such bombs might very well prove to be too heavy for transportation by air.
Letter to Franklin D. Roosevelt, 2 Aug. 1939 [delivered 11 Oct. 1939]. Drafted by Leo Szilard.
- 15 Science without religion is lame, religion without science is blind.
"Science, Philosophy, and Religion" (1940). According to The Expanded Quotable Einstein, ed. Alice Calaprice, "This may be a play on Kant's 'Notion without intuition is empty, intuition without notion is blind.'"
- 16 [On quantum theory:] It is hard to sneak a look at God's cards. But that he would choose to play dice with the world . . . is something I cannot believe for a single moment.
Letter to Cornel Lanczos, 21 Mar. 1942
See Einstein 8
- 17 The unleashed power of the atom has changed everything except our modes of thinking and we thus drift toward unparalleled catastrophe.
Telegram to prominent Americans, 24 May 1946
- 18 I do not know [how the Third World War will be fought]. But I can tell you what they'll use in the fourth—rocks!
Interview, Liberal Judaism, Apr.–May 1949. Usually credited to Einstein, but an army lieutenant was quoted as saying "in the war after the next war, sure as Hell, they'll be using spears!" in a Walter Winchell column in the Wisconsin State Journal, 23 Sept. 1946.

- 19 Every intellectual who is called before one of the committees ought to refuse to testify. . . . This kind of inquisition violates the spirit of the Constitution. If enough people are ready to take this grave step they will be successful. If not, then the intellectuals of this country deserve nothing better than the slavery which is intended for them.
Letter to William Frauenglass, 16 May 1953
- 20 It is true that my parents were worried because I began to speak fairly late, so that they even consulted a doctor. I can't say how old I was—but surely not less than three.
Letter to Sybille Blinoff, 21 May 1954
- 21 The most important aspect of our [Israel's] policy must be our ever-present, manifest desire to institute complete equality for the Arab citizens living in our midst. . . . The attitude we adopt toward the Arab minority will provide the real test of our moral standards as a people.
Letter to Zvi Lurie, 5 Jan. 1955
- 22 Why do people speak of great men in terms of nationality? Great Germans, great Englishmen? Goethe always protested against being called a German poet. Great men are simply men and are not to be considered from the point of view of nationality, nor should the environment in which they were brought up be taken into account.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 18 Apr. 1926
- 23 I believe in Spinoza's God who reveals Himself in the orderly harmony of what exists, not in a God who concerns himself with fates and actions of human beings.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 25 Apr. 1929
- 24 The Lord God is subtle, but malicious he is not.
Quoted in Philipp Frank, Einstein: His Life and Times (1947). The Expanded Quotable Einstein, ed. Alice Calaprice, notes: "Originally said to Princeton University mathematics professor Oscar Veblen, May 1921, while Einstein was in Princeton for a series of lectures, upon hearing that an experimental result by Dayton C. Miller of Cleveland, if true, would contradict his theory of gravitation. But the result turned out to be false. Some say by this remark Einstein meant that Nature hides her secrets by being subtle, while others say he meant that Nature is mischievous but not bent on trickery. Permanently inscribed in stone above the fireplace in the faculty lounge, 202 Jones Hall [at Princeton], in the original German: 'Raffiniert ist der Herr Gott, aber boshaft ist Er nicht.'" See Einstein 34
- 25 If  $A$  is a success in life, then  $A$  equals  $x$  plus  $y$  plus  $z$ . Work is  $x$ ;  $y$  is play; and  $z$  is keeping your mouth shut.
Quoted in Observer, 15 Jan. 1950
- 26 Common sense is nothing more than a deposit of prejudices laid down in the mind before you reach eighteen.
Quoted in Lincoln Barnett, The Universe and Dr. Einstein (1950)
- 27 If I would be a young man again and had to decide how to make my living, I would not try to become a scientist or scholar or teacher. I would rather choose to be a plumber or a peddler in the hope to find that modest degree of independence still available under present circumstances.
Quoted in Reporter, 18 Nov. 1954
- 28 [Response to being asked why people could discover atoms but not the means to control them:] That is simple, my friend: because politics is more difficult than physics.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 22 Apr. 1955
- 29 When you sit with a nice girl for two hours you think it's only a minute, but when you sit on a hot stove for a minute you think it's two hours. That's relativity.
Quoted in New York Times, 15 Mar. 1929.
- 30 [From an autobiographical handwritten note:] Something deeply hidden had to be behind things.
Quoted in N.Y. Times Magazine, 2 Aug. 1964
- 31 Then I would feel sorry for the good Lord. The theory is correct anyway.
Quoted in Ilse Rosenthal-Schneider, Reality and Scientific Truth (1974). This was Einstein's response (1919) to doctoral student Ilse Rosenthal-Schneider's question about how he would have reacted had his general theory of relativity not been experimentally confirmed.

32 [Remark to Philippe Halsman:] When I was young, I found out that the big toe always ends up making a hole in a sock. So I stopped wearing socks.

Quoted in A. P. French, Einstein: A Centenary Volume (1979)

33 Nationalism is an infantile sickness. It is the measles of the human race.

Quoted in Helen Dukas and Banesh Hoffman, Albert Einstein, the Human Side (1979)

34 I have second thoughts. Maybe God is malicious.

Quoted in Jamie Sayen, Einstein in America (1985). Said to Vladimir Bargmann, with the meaning that God leads people to believe they understand things that they actually are far from understanding. See Einstein 24

35 The hardest thing in the world to understand is income taxes.

Attributed in Time, 22 Feb. 1963. Although this sounds like a classic apocryphal Einsteinism, it was said to be authentic by the scientist's tax preparer.

36 Everything should be made as simple as possible, but not simpler.

Attributed in Zanesville (Ohio) Times Recorder, 22 June 1972. A very similar attribution to Einstein appeared in the New York Times, 8 Jan. 1950. The actual source for the remark may be a statement in Einstein's 1933 lecture "On the Method of Theoretical Physics": "The supreme goal of all theory is to make the irreducible basic elements as simple and as few as possible without having to surrender the adequate representation of a single datum of experience."

37 The greatest invention of mankind is compound interest.

Attributed in USA Today, 2 Aug. 1991. An earlier version of this attribution appeared in the Wall Street Journal, 25 Aug. 1976.

38 Only two things are infinite, the universe and human stupidity, and I'm not sure about the former.

Attributed in Robert Byrne, The Fourth . . . 637 Best Things Anybody Ever Said (1990). Frederick S. Pearls, In and Out the Garbage Pail (1969), quoted Einstein as saying, "Two things are infinite, the universe and human stupidity, and I am not yet completely sure about the universe."

Loren Eiseley

U.S. writer and educator, 1907–1977

1 If there is magic in this planet, it is contained in water.

The Immense Journey "The Flow of the River" (1957)

Dwight D. Eisenhower

U.S. president and military leader, 1890–1969

1 I doubt whether any of these people [pacifists], with their academic or dogmatic hatred of war, detest it as much as I do. They probably have not seen bodies rotting on the ground and smelled the stench of decaying human flesh. . . . What separates me from the pacifists is that I hate the Nazis more than I hate war.

Letter to Arthur Eisenhower, 18 June 1943

2 Soldiers, Sailors, and Airmen of the Allied Expeditionary Force: You are about to embark upon the Great Crusade, toward which we have striven these many months. The eyes of the world are upon you.

Order of the Day, 2 June 1944

3 In war there is no substitute for victory.

Letter to Mamie Eisenhower, 2 Aug. 1944. A note in Letters to Mamie states, "The same aphorism was made famous by General Douglas MacArthur in 1951. It was probably a standard saying in the Army."

4 I shall go to Korea.

Campaign speech, Detroit, Mich., 24 Oct. 1952

5 Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies, in the final sense, a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed. The world in arms is not spending money alone. It is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children.

Speech to American Society of Newspaper Editors, Washington, D.C., 16 Apr. 1953

6 Don't join the book burners. Don't think you're going to conceal faults by concealing evidence that they ever existed. Don't be afraid to go in your library and read every book.

Remarks at Dartmouth College Commencement, Hanover, N.H., 14 June 1953

7 [On the strategic importance of Indochina:] You have the broader considerations that might

- follow what you would call the “falling domino” principle. You have a row of dominoes set up, you knock over the first one, and what will happen to the last one is the certainty that it will go over very quickly. So you could have a beginning of a disintegration that would have the most profound influences.
News conference, 7 Apr. 1954
- 8 I think that people want peace so much that one of these days governments had better get out of the way and let them have it.
Broadcast discussion, 31 Aug. 1959
- 9 [Response to a question asking him to name a “major idea” that Vice-President Nixon had initiated in the Eisenhower administration:] If you give me a week, I might think of one.
News conference, 25 Aug. 1960
- 10 This conjunction of an immense military establishment and a large arms industry is new in the American experience. The total influence—economic, political, even spiritual—is felt in every city, every statehouse, every office of the federal government.
Farewell radio and television address to the American people, 17 Jan. 1961
- 11 In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist.
Farewell radio and television address to the American people, 17 Jan. 1961
- 12 I am convinced that the French could not win the war because the internal political situation in Vietnam, weak and confused, badly weakened their military position. I have never talked or corresponded with a person knowledgeable in Indochinese affairs who did not agree that had elections been held as of the time of the fighting, possibly 80 per cent of the population would have voted for the Communist Ho Chi Minh as their leader rather than Chief of State Bao Dai.
The White House Years vol. 1, ch. 14 (1963)
- 13 Plans are worthless, but planning is everything.
Speech to National Defense Executive Reserve Conference, Washington, D.C., 14 Nov. 1957. Eisenhower had written in a letter to Hamilton Fish Armstrong, 31 Dec. 1950: “I always remember the observation of a very successful soldier who said, ‘Peace-time plans are of no particular value, but peace-time planning is indispensable.’”
- 14 [Of Douglas MacArthur:] Oh yes, I studied dramatics under him for 12 years.
Quoted in Quentin Reynolds, By Quentin Reynolds (1963)
- 15 [When asked if he had made any mistakes while he had been president:] Yes, two, and they are both sitting on the Supreme Court.
Attributed in Henry J. Abraham, Justices and Presidents (1974). Probably apocryphal. Elmo Richardson, in his book The Presidency of Dwight D. Eisenhower (1979), states that a similar remark has been “ascribed to several other presidents.” The generic joke may have combined with actual statements by Eisenhower about his disappointment with appointee Earl Warren to inspire an apocryphal story about Eisenhower’s disappointment with two justices (usually said to be Warren and William J. Brennan, Jr.).
- Edward Elgar
English composer, 1857–1934
- 1 My idea is that there is music in the air, music all around us, the world is full of it and you simply take as much as you require.
Quoted in Robert J. Buckley, Sir Edward Elgar (1905)
- Charles W. Eliot
U.S. university president, 1834–1926
- 1 Enter to grow in wisdom.
Depart to serve better thy country and thy kind.
Inscriptions on Dexter Gate to Harvard Yard, Cambridge, Mass. (1880)
- 2 To the Fifty-fourth Regiment of Massachusetts Infantry:
The white officers . . . cast in their lot with men of a despised race unproved in war, and risked death as inciters of servile insurrection if taken prisoners, besides encountering all the common perils of camp march and battle.
The black rank and file volunteered when disaster clouded the Union cause, served without pay for eighteen months till given that of white troops, faced threatened enslavement if captured, were brave in action, patient under heavy and dangerous labors, and cheerful amid hardships and privations.

Together they gave to the nation and the world undying proof that Americans of African descent possess the pride, courage, and devotion of the patriot soldier. One hundred and eighty thousand such Americans enlisted under the Union flag in 1863–65.

Inscription on Robert Gould Shaw Monument, Boston, Mass. (1897)

George Eliot (Mary Ann Evans)

English novelist, 1819–1880

- 1 The first condition of human goodness is something to love; the second, something to reverence.
Scenes of Clerical Life “Jane’s Repentance” ch. 10 (1858)
- 2 Anger and jealousy can no more bear to lose sight of their objects than love.
The Mill on the Floss bk. 1, ch. 10 (1860)
- 3 The dead level of provincial existence.
The Mill on the Floss bk. 5, ch. 3 (1860)
- 4 The happiest women, like the happiest nations, have no history.
The Mill on the Floss bk. 6, ch. 3 (1860)
See Montesquieu 6; Proverbs 54

- 5 I should like to know what is the proper function of women, if it is not to make reasons for husbands to stay at home, and still stronger reasons for bachelors to go out.
The Mill on the Floss bk. 6, ch. 6 (1860)
- 6 “Character,” says Novalis, in one of his questionable aphorisms—“character is destiny.”
The Mill on the Floss bk. 6, ch. 6 (1860)
See Heraclitus 2; Novalis 2
- 7 There’s allays two ‘pinions; there’s the ‘pinion a man has of himself, and there’s the ‘pinion other folks have on him. There’d be two ‘pinions about a cracked bell, if the bell could hear itself.
Silas Marner ch. 6 (1861)
- 8 An election is coming. Universal peace is declared, and the foxes have a sincere interest in prolonging the lives of the poultry.
Felix Holt ch. 5 (1866)
- 9 A woman can hardly ever choose . . . she is dependent on what happens to her. She must take meaner things, because only meaner things are within her reach.
Felix Holt ch. 27 (1866)
- 10 Oh may I join the choir invisible
Of those immortal dead who live again
In minds made better by their presence.
“Oh May I Join the Choir Invisible” l. 1 (1867)
- 11 He said he should prefer not to know the sources of the Nile, and that there should be some unknown regions preserved as hunting-grounds for the poetic imagination.
Middlemarch bk. 1, ch. 9 (1871–1872)
- 12 Correct English is the slang of prigs.
Middlemarch bk. 1, ch. 11 (1871–1872)
- 13 Fred’s studies are not very deep . . . he is only reading a novel.
Middlemarch bk. 1, ch. 11 (1871–1872)
- 14 Might, could, would—they are contemptible auxiliaries.
Middlemarch bk. 2, ch. 14 (1871–1872)
- 15 If we had a keen vision and feeling of all ordinary human life, it would be like hearing the grass grow and the squirrel’s heart beat, and we should die of that roar which lies on the other side of silence.
Middlemarch bk. 2, ch. 20 (1871–1872)

16 The growing good of the world is partly dependent on unhistoric acts; and that things are not so ill with you and me as they might have been, is half owing to the number who have lived faithfully a hidden life, and rest in unvisited tombs.

Middlemarch Finale (1871–1872)

17 A difference of taste in jokes is a great strain on the affections.

Daniel Deronda bk. 2, ch. 15 (1876)

18 The Jews are among the aristocracy of every land—if a literature is called rich in the possession of a few classic tragedies, what shall we say to a National Tragedy lasting for fifteen hundred years, in which the poets and the actors were also the heroes?

Daniel Deronda bk. 6, ch. 42 (1876)

19 Blessed is the man who, having nothing to say, abstains from giving us wordy evidence of the fact.

The Impressions of Theophrastus Such “A Man Surprised at His Own Originality” (1879)

20 Debasing the Moral Currency.

The Impressions of Theophrastus Such title of essay (1879)

U.S.-born English poet and man of letters, 1888–1965

1 The readers of the Boston Evening Transcript Sway in the wind like a field of ripe corn.

“The Boston Evening Transcript” l. 1 (1917)

2 Weave, weave the sunlight in your hair.

“La Figlia Che Piange” l. 3 (1917)

3 Let us go then, you and I,
When the evening is spread out against the sky
Like a patient etherized upon a table.

“The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock” l. 1 (1917)

4 In the room the women come and go
Talking of Michelangelo.

“The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock” l. 13 (1917)

5 Do I dare
Disturb the universe?

“The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock” l. 45 (1917)

6 I have measured out my life with coffee spoons.

“The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock” l. 51 (1917)

7 I should have been a pair of ragged claws
Scuttling across the floors of silent seas.

“The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock” l. 73 (1917)

8 I have seen the moment of my greatness flicker,
And I have seen the eternal Footman hold my coat, and snicker,

And in short, I was afraid.

“The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock” l. 84 (1917)

9 No! I am not Prince Hamlet, nor was meant to be.

“The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock” l. 111 (1917)

10 I grow old . . . I grow old . . .

I shall wear the bottoms of my trousers rolled.

“The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock” l. 120 (1917).
Ellipses in the original.

11 Shall I part my hair behind? Do I dare to eat a peach?

I shall wear white flannel trousers, and walk upon the beach.

I have heard the mermaids singing, each to each.

I do not think that they will sing to me.

“The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock” l. 122 (1917)

12 We have lingered in the chambers of the sea
By sea-girls wreathed with seaweed red and brown

Till human voices wake us, and we drown.

“The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock” l. 129 (1917)

- 13 He laughed like an irresponsible fetus.
"Mr. Apollinax" l. 7 (1917)
- 14 The winter evening settles down
With smell of steak in passageways.
Six o'clock.
The burnt-out ends of smoky days.
"Preludes" l. 1 (1917)
- 15 I am moved by fancies that are curled
Around these images, and cling:
The notion of some infinitely gentle
Infinitely suffering thing.
"Preludes" l. 48 (1917)
- 16 The worlds revolve like ancient women
Gathering fuel in vacant lots.
"Preludes" l. 53 (1917)
- 17 The nightingales are singing near
The Convent of the Sacred Heart,
And sang within the bloody wood
When Agamemnon cried aloud
And let their liquid siftings fall
To stain the stiff dishonored shroud.
"Sweeney Among the Nightingales" l. 35 (1919)
- 18 Webster was much possessed by death
And saw the skull beneath the skin;
And breastless creatures under ground
Leaned backward with a lipless grin.
"Whispers of Immortality" l. 1 (1919)
- 19 Grishkin is nice: her Russian eye
Is underlined for emphasis;
Uncorseted, her friendly bust
Gives promise of pneumatic bliss.
"Whispers of Immortality" l. 17 (1919)
- 20 And even the Abstract Entities
Circumambulate her charm;
But our lot crawls between dry ribs
To keep our metaphysics warm.
"Whispers of Immortality" l. 29 (1919)
- 21 Here I am, an old man in a dry month,
Being read to by a boy, waiting for rain.
"Gerontion" l. 1 (1920)
- 22 Signs are taken for wonders. "We would see a sign!"
The word within a word, unable to speak a word, Swaddled with darkness. In the juvescence of the year
- Came Christ the tiger.
"Gerontion" l. 17 (1920)
- 23 After such knowledge, what forgiveness? Think now
History has many cunning passages, contrived corridors
And issues.
"Gerontion" l. 33 (1920)
- 24 Tenants of the house,
Thoughts of a dry brain in a dry season.
"Gerontion" l. 74 (1920)
- 25 The broad-backed hippopotamus
Rests on his belly in the mud;
Although he seems so firm to us
He is merely flesh and blood.
"The Hippopotamus" l. 1 (1920)
- 26 He shall be washed as white as snow,
By all the martyr'd virgins kist,
While the True Church remains below
Wrapt in the old miasmal mist.
"The Hippopotamus" l. 33 (1920)
- 27 The only way of expressing emotion in the form of art is by finding an "objective correlative";
in other words, a set of objects, a situation,
a chain of events which shall be the formula of that particular emotion; such that when the external facts, which must terminate in sensory experience, are given, the emotion is immediately evoked.
The Sacred Wood "Hamlet and His Problems" (1920).
The Oxford English Dictionary traces the term objective correlative as far back as Washington Allston, Lectures on Art, and Poems (1850).
See Hemingway 14
- 28 Immature poets imitate; mature poets steal.
The Sacred Wood "Philip Massinger" (1920)
- 29 It [tradition] cannot be inherited, and if you want it you must obtain it by great labor.
The Sacred Wood "Tradition and the Individual Talent" (1920)
- 30 Some one said: "The dead writers are remote from us because we know so much more than they did." Precisely, and they are that which we know.
The Sacred Wood "Tradition and the Individual Talent" (1920)

- 31 The progress of an artist is a continual self-sacrifice, a continual extinction of personality.
The Sacred Wood "Tradition and the Individual Talent" (1920)
- 32 The more perfect the artist, the more completely separate in him will be the man who suffers and the mind which creates; the more perfectly will the mind digest and translate the passions which are its material.
The Sacred Wood "Tradition and the Individual Talent" (1920)
- 33 Poetry is not a turning loose of emotion, but an escape from emotion; it is not the expression of personality, but an escape from personality. But, of course, only those who have personality and emotions know what it means to want to escape from these things.
The Sacred Wood "Tradition and the Individual Talent" (1920)
- 34 In the seventeenth century a dissociation of sensibility set in, from which we have never recovered; and this dissociation, as is natural, was due to the influence of the two most powerful poets of the century, Milton and Dryden.
"The Metaphysical Poets" (1921)
- 35 Poets in our civilization, as it exists at present, must be difficult. . . . The poet must become more and more comprehensive, more allusive, more indirect, in order to force, to dislocate if necessary, language into its meaning.
"The Metaphysical Poets" (1921)
- 36 In using the myth, in manipulating a continuous parallel between contemporaneity and antiquity, Mr. Joyce is pursuing a method which others must pursue after him. . . . It is simply a way of controlling, of ordering, of giving a shape and a significance to the immense panorama of futility and anarchy which is contemporary history. . . . It is, I seriously believe, a step toward making the modern world possible in art.
"Ulysses, Order and Myth" (1922)

- 39 April is the cruellest month, breeding
Lilacs out of the dead land, mixing
Memory and desire, stirring
Dull roots with spring rain.
The Waste Land l. 1 (1922)
- 40 Winter kept us warm, covering
Earth in forgetful snow, feeding
A little life with dried tubers.
The Waste Land l. 5 (1922)
- 41 In the mountains, there you feel free.
I read, much of the night, and go south in the winter.
The Waste Land l. 17 (1922)
- 42 You know only
A heap of broken images, where the sun beats,
And the dead tree gives no shelter, the cricket
no relief,
And the dry stone no sound of water.
The Waste Land l. 21 (1922)
- 43 There is shadow under this red rock,
(Come in under the shadow of this red rock),
And I will show you something different from either
Your shadow at morning striding behind you
Or your shadow at evening rising to meet you;
I will show you fear in a handful of dust.

- 99 The Naming of Cats is a difficult matter,
It isn't just one of your holiday games;
You may think at first I'm as mad as a hatter
When I tell you, a cat must have THREE DIFFERENT NAMES.
Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats "The Naming of Cats" l. 1 (1939)
- 100 When you notice a cat in profound meditation,
The reason, I tell you, is always the same:
His mind is engaged in a rapt contemplation
Of the thought, of the thought, of the thought of his name:
His ineffable effable
Effanineffable
Deep and inscrutable singular Name.

older
The world becomes stranger, the pattern more complicated
Of dead and living. Not the intense moment Isolated, with no before and after,
But a lifetime burning in every moment
And not the lifetime of one man only
But of old stones that cannot be deciphered.

Into another intensity
For a further union, a deeper communion
Through the dark cold and the empty desolation,
The wave cry, the wind cry, the vast waters
Of the petrel and the porpoise. In my end is my beginning.

120 First, the cold friction of expiring sense
Without enchantment, offering no promise
But bitter tastelessness of shadow fruit
As body and soul begin to fall asunder.
Second, the conscious impotence of rage
At human folly.

Four Quartets "Little Gidding" pt. 2 (1942)

121 Who then devised the torment? Love.
Love is the unfamiliar Name
Behind the hands that wove
The intolerable shirt of flame
Which human power cannot remove.

We only live, only breathe
Consumed by either fire or fire.

Four Quartets "Little Gidding" pt. 4 (1942)

122 What we call the beginning is often the end
And to make an end is to make a beginning.
The end is where we start from.

127 [On The Waste Land:] Various critics have done me the honor to interpret the poem in terms of criticism of the contemporary world, have considered it, indeed, as an important bit of social criticism. To me it was only the relief of a personal and wholly insignificant grouse against life; it is just a piece of rhythmical grumbling.

Quoted in The Waste Land, ed. Valerie Eliot (1971)

Elizabeth I

English queen, 1533–1603

1 I am your anointed Queen. I will never be by violence constrained to do anything. I thank God that I am endued with such qualities that if I were turned out of the Realm in my petticoat, I were able to live in any place in Christendom.

Speech to Members of Parliament, 5 Nov. 1566

2 [Upon the approach of the Spanish Armada.:]
I know I have the body of a weak and feeble woman, but I have the heart and stomach of a king, and of a king of England too; and think foul scorn that Parma or Spain, or any prince of Europe, should dare to invade the borders of my realm.

Speech to troops at Tilbury, England (1588).

The authenticity of these words is open to question, since they are not included in the only contemporary account of the speech.

3 [Remark to Edward de Vere, Earl of Oxford, after he had returned from a seven-year voluntary exile because of embarrassing flatulence he had experienced in the queen's presence.:] My Lord, I had forgot the fart.

Quoted in John Aubrey, Brief Lives (1690)

4 [Remark to Robert Cecil shortly before her death, when he told her she must go to bed.:] Must!—is
"must" a word to be addressed to princes?
Little man, little man, thy father, if he had been alive, durst not have used that word.

Quoted in Christian Review, Oct. 1846

5 ["Last words".:] All my possessions for a moment of time.

Attributed in Littell's Living Age, 8 Nov. 1856.

Undoubtedly an apocryphal remark.

Elizabeth II

British queen, 1926–

- 1 My husband and I . . .
Christmas Message (1953). The standard opening of the queen's speeches.
- 2 In the words of one of my more sympathetic correspondents, it has turned out to be an “annus horribilis.”
Speech at Guildhall, London, 24 Nov. 1992
- 3 Nothing that can be said can begin to take away the anguish and pain of these moments. Grief is the price we pay for love.

- 4 Think what we would have missed if we had never . . . used a mobile phone or surfed the Net—or, to be honest, listened to other people talking about surfing the Net.
Quoted in Daily Telegraph (London), 21 Nov. 1997

Elizabeth the Queen Mother

British queen consort, 1900–2002

- 1 [After being asked whether the princesses would leave England after the bombing of Buckingham Palace, 1940:] The princesses could never leave without me—and I could not leave without the king—and, of course, the king will never leave.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 28 May 1948
- 2 [Remark to a London policeman, 13 Sept. 1940:] I'm glad we've been bombed too. It makes me feel I can look those East End mothers in the face.
Quoted in Jennifer Ellis, Elizabeth the Queen Mother (1953)

Edward Kennedy “Duke” Ellington

U.S. jazz bandleader and composer, 1899–1974

- 1 Music is my mistress, and she plays second fiddle to no one.
Music Is My Mistress act 8 “Pedestrian Minstrel” (1973)
- 2 Playing “Bop” is like Scrabble with all the vowels missing.
Quoted in Look, 10 Aug. 1954

- 3 [Responding to being turned down for a special Pulitzer Prize citation:] Fate is being kind to me. Fate doesn't want me to be famous too young.
Quoted in N.Y. Times Magazine, 12 Sept. 1965
- 4 Jazz was like the kind of man you wouldn't want your daughter to associate with.
Quoted in N.Y. Times Magazine, 12 Sept. 1965

Jane Elliot

Scottish poet, 1727–1805

- 1 The flowers of the forest are a' wede away.
“Lament for Flodden” l. 4 (1776)

Ebenezer Elliott

English poet, 1781–1849

- 1 What is a communist? One who has yearnings
For equal division of unequal earnings.
“Epigram” (1850)

Bret Easton Ellis

U.S. writer, 1964–

- 1 I've gotta return some videotapes.
American Psycho (1991)
- 2 There is an idea of a Patrick Bateman, some kind of abstraction, but there is no real me, only an entity, something illusory, and though I can hide my cold gaze and you can shake my hand and feel flesh gripping yours and maybe you can even sense our lifestyles are probably comparable: I simply am not there.
American Psycho (1991)

Havelock Ellis

English sexologist, 1859–1939

- 1 The sanitary and mechanical age we are now entering makes up for the mercy it grants to our sense of smell by the ferocity with which it assails our sense of hearing.
Impressions and Comments (1914)
- 2 The greatest task before civilization at present is to make machines what they ought to be, the slaves, instead of the masters of men; and if civilization fails at the task, then without doubt it and its makers will go down to a common destination.

Harlan Ellison

U.S. science fiction writer, 1934–2018

- 1 I Have No Mouth, and I Must Scream.
Title of book (1967)
- 2 Apart from hydrogen, the most common thing in the universe is stupidity.
An Edge in My Voice (1985). Usually quoted as “The two most common elements in the universe are hydrogen and stupidity.”

Ralph Ellison

U.S. novelist, 1914–1994

- 1 I am an invisible man. . . . I am a man of substance, of flesh and bone, fiber and liquids—and I might even be said to possess a mind. I am invisible, understand, simply because people refuse to see me.
Invisible Man prologue (1952)
- 2 America is woven of many strands; I would recognize them and let it so remain. . . . Our fate is to become one, and yet many—This is not prophecy, but description.
Invisible Man epilogue (1952)
See Baudouin 1; Jimmy Carter 3; Crèvecoeur 1; Victoria Hayward 1; Jesse Jackson 1; Zangwill 2

- 4 While one can do nothing about choosing one’s relatives, one can, as artist, choose one’s “ancestors.”
Shadow and Act “The World and the Jug” (1964)

Henry L. Ellsworth

U.S. government official, 1791–1858

- 1 The advancement of the arts from year to year taxes our credulity, and seems to presage the arrival of that period when human improvement must end.
Annual Report of the Commissioner of Patents (1843).
Ellsworth was U.S. commissioner of patents.

This statement is the closest that has been found to an official source of the popular story that a commissioner of patents in the late nineteenth century resigned or advocated closing the Patent Office because there was nothing left to be invented. According to the folklorist David P. Mikkelsen in the New York Times, 15 Oct. 1995: “The origins of this quotation were researched by Dr. Eber Jeffery more than 50 years ago as part of a project conducted under the aegis of the District of Columbia Historical Records Survey. He found no evidence that any official of the United States Patent Office (including Charles H. Duell, to whom the quotation is most often attributed) had ever resigned his post or recommended that the office be closed because he thought there was nothing left to invent.” There was a joke in the English magazine Punch, 27 Dec. 1899, that may have given rise to the anecdote. A “genius” seeking a “clerk who can examine patents” is told at a publisher’s office, “Everything that can be invented has been invented.”

Paul Éluard (Eugène Grindel)

French poet, 1895–1952

- 1 La Terre est Bleue Comme une Orange.
The Earth Is Blue like an Orange.
Title of poem (1929)
- 2 Adieu tristesse
Bonjour tristesse.
Farewell sadness
Good-day sadness.

Ralph Waldo Emerson

U.S. writer, 1803–1882

- 1 When a whole nation is roaring Patriotism at the top of its voice, I am fain to explore the cleanness of its hands and purity of its heart.
Journal, 10 Dec. 1824
- 2 ’Tis a queer life, and the only humor proper to it seems quiet astonishment. Others laugh, weep, sell, or proselyte. I admire.
Letter to Mary Moody Emerson, 1 Aug. 1826
- 3 A man is a god in ruins. When men are innocent, life shall be longer, and shall pass into the immortal, as gently as we awake from dreams.
Nature ch. 8 (1836). Hitch Your Wagon to a Star, ed. Keith W. Frome, notes: “Emerson says that a ‘certain poet’ sang this to him. Gay Wilson Allen and others have speculated that this poet could have been Bronson Alcott, Plotinus, or Emerson himself.”

- 4 Meek young men grow up in libraries, believing it their duty to accept the views, which Cicero, which Locke, which Bacon, have given, forgetful that Cicero, Locke, and Bacon were only young men in libraries, when they wrote these books.

Essays “Self-Reliance” (1841)
- 19 The lesson which these observations convey is, Be, and not seem. Let us acquiesce. Let us take our bloated nothingness out of the path of the divine circuits. Let us unlearn our wisdom of the world. Let us lie low in the Lord’s power, and learn that truth alone makes rich and great.

Essays, Second Series "The Poet" (1844)
- 26 The wise know that foolish legislation is a rope of sand which perishes in the twisting; that the State must follow and not lead the character and progress of the citizen; . . . that the form of government which prevails is the expression of what cultivation exists in the population which permits it. The law is only a memorandum.

- 28 On the other side, the conservative party, composed of the most moderate, able, and cultivated part of the population, is timid, and merely defensive of property. It vindicates no right, it aspires to no real good, it brands no rime, it proposes no generous policy, it does not build, nor write, nor cherish the arts, nor foster religion, nor establish schools, nor encourage science, nor emancipate the slave, nor befriend the poor, or the Indian, or the immigrant.

- 49 People go out to look at sunrises and sunsets who do not recognize their own, quietly and happily, but know that it is foreign to them. As they do by books, so they quote the sunset and the star, and do not make them theirs. Worse yet, they live as foreigners in the world of truth, and quote thoughts, and thus disown them.
Quotation confesses inferiority.
Letters and Social Aims "Quotation and Originality" (1876)
- 50 Hitch your wagon to a star.
Quoted in Moncare D. Conway, The Golden Hour (1862)
- 51 If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon or make a better mouse trap than his neighbors, though he builds his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door.
Quoted in Detroit Free Press, 7 May 1882. Robert Andrews notes in Famous Lines: "Ascribed to Emerson by Sarah Yule in the anthology Borrowings (1889), later said by her to originate in a lecture given by Emerson in 1871 [in San Francisco or Oakland]. A similar passage appears in Emerson's Journals (1909–1914), which provided material for many of his lectures and writings. The remark's authorship was also claimed by Elbert Hubbard in A Thousand and One Epigrams (1911)." The 1882 citation above is the earliest "mouse-trap" version found to date. Hubbard's claim is unlikely in view of the fact that he was born in 1859.

Eminem (Marshall Mathers)

U.S. rap musician, 1972–

- 1 My name is . . . Slim Shady!
Ahem . . . excuse me!
Can I have the attention of the class for one second?
Hi kids! Do you like violence?
Wanna see me stick Nine Inch Nails through each one of my eyelids?
Wanna copy me and do exactly like I did?
Try 'cid and get fucked up worse than my life is?
"My Name Is" (song) (1999)
- 2 I'm Slim Shady, yes I'm the real Shady
All you other Slim Shadys are just imitating
So won't the real Slim Shady please stand up, please stand up, please stand up?
"The Real Slim Shady" (song) (2000)

- 3 When a dude's gettin' bullied and shoots up his school
And they blame it on Marilyn [Manson], and the heroin
Where were the parents at? and look where it's at Middle America, now it's a tragedy
Now it's so sad to see, an upper class city
Havin' this happenin'
Then attack Eminem 'cause I rap this way
But I'm glad cause they feed me the fuel that I need for the fire
To burn and it's burnin' and I have returned.
"The Way I Am" (song) (2000)

Robert Emmet

Irish nationalist, 1778–1803

- 1 Let no man write my epitaph. . . . When my country takes her place among the nations of the earth, then, and not till then, let my epitaph be written.
Speech at trial after being sentenced to death, 19 Sept. 1803

Daniel Decatur Emmett

U.S. entertainer, 1815–1904

- 1 I wish I was in de land ob cotton,
Old times dar am not forgotten,
Look away! Look away! Look away! Dixie Land.
"Dixie's Land" (song) st. 1 (1859). According to The Book of World-Famous Music, "the first line is traditional."
2 In Dixie's land, we'll took our stand,
To lib and die in Dixie!
Away, away, away down South in Dixie!
"Dixie's Land" (song) st. 1 (1859)

William Empson

English poet and critic, 1906–1984

- 1 Seven Types of Ambiguity.
Title of book (1930)

Friedrich Engels

German socialist, 1820–1895

- 1 The State is not "abolished," it withers away.
Anti-Dühring pt. 3, ch. 2 (1878)

- 2 [The stock exchange is the] highest vocation for a capitalist, where property merges directly with theft.

Letter to Eduard Bernstein, 10 Feb. 1883

- 3 The modern individual family is based on the open or disguised domestic enslavement of the woman. . . . Today, in the great majority of cases, the man has to be the earner, the breadwinner of the family, at least among the propertied classes, and this gives him a dominating position which requires no special legal privileges. In the family, he is the bourgeois; the wife represents the proletariat.
The Origin of the Family, Private Property and the State ch. 2, pt. 4 (1884)

- 4 Naturally, the workers are perfectly free; the manufacturer does not force them to take his materials and his cards, but he says to them . . . "If you don't like to be frizzled in my frying-pan, you can take a walk into the fire."
The Condition of the Working Class in England in 1844 ch. 7 (1892)

H. C. Englebrecht

U.S. author, 1895–1939

- 1 Merchants of Death.
Title of book (1934). Coauthored with F. C. Hanighen.

Eve Ensler

U.S. playwright, 1953–

- 1 The Vagina Monologues.
Title of play (1996)

Nora Ephron

U.S. writer and director, 1941–2012

- 1 If pregnancy were a book, they would cut the last two chapters.
Heartburn ch. 4 (1983)
2 [A successful parent is someone] who raises a child who grows up and is able to pay for his or her own psychoanalysis.
Quoted in People, 10 Nov. 1986

Epimenides

Cretan poet and priest, Sixth cent. B.C.

- 1 All Cretans are liars.
Attributed in Callimachus, Hymn to Zeus

Oludah Equiano (Gustavus Vassa)

Nigerian abolitionist, ca. 1745–1797

- 1 When I recovered a little I found some black people about me . . . I asked them if we were not to be eaten by those white men with horrible looks, red faces, and loose hair.
Narrative of the Life of Oludah Equiano ch. 3 (1789)

Desiderius Erasmus

Dutch scholar, ca. 1466–1536

- 1 In regione caecorum rex est luscus.
In the country of the blind the one-eyed man is king.
Adagia bk. 3, century 4, no. 96 (1500)
- 2 The first thing I shall do, as soon as the money arrives, is to buy some Greek authors; after that, I shall buy clothes.
Letter to Jacob Batt, 12 Apr. 1500. This is often paraphrased as “When I get a little money, I buy books; and, if any is left, I buy food and clothes.”
- 3 [Of Thomas More:] Omnium horarum hominem.
A man of all hours.
In Praise of Folly prefatory letter (1509)
See Whittington 1
- 4 He calls figs figs and a spade a spade.
Adagia bk. 2, century 3, no. 5 (1515). Erasmus mistranslated “trough” in ancient Greek sources as “spade,” thus creating the modern expression “to call a spade a spade.” “Call a trough a trough” appears in Demosthenes’ oration “Olynthus,” quoting Philip of Macedon, and in a fragment by Menander.

Paul Erdős

Hungarian mathematician, 1913–1996

- 1 A mathematician is a machine for turning coffee into theorems.
Quoted in Atlantic, Nov. 1987. Sometimes credited to other mathematicians before Erdős, such as Paul Turan or Alfred Renyi.

Louise Erdrich

U.S. writer, 1954–

- 1 I was in love with the whole world and all that lived in its rainy arms.
Love Medicine ch. 15 (1984)
- 2 We started dying before the snow, and like the snow, we continued to fall.
Tracks ch. 1 (1988)
- 3 Life will break you. Nobody can protect you from that, and living alone won’t either, for solitude will also break you with its yearning. You have to love. You have to feel. It is the reason you are here on earth. You are here to risk your heart. You are here to be swallowed up. And when it happens that you are broken, or betrayed, or left, or hurt, or death brushes near, let yourself sit by an apple tree and listen to the apples falling all around you in heaps, wasting their sweetness. Tell yourself you tasted as many as you could.

The Painted Drum pt. 4 (2005)

Erik Erikson

German-born U.S. psychologist, 1902–1994

- 1 The identity crisis . . . occurs in that period of the life cycle when each youth must forge for himself some central perspective and direction, some working unity, out of the effective remnants of his childhood and the hopes of his anticipated adulthood.
Young Man Luther ch. 1 (1958)

Thomas Erskine

Scottish lawyer and government official, 1750–1823

- 1 There should be a solemn pause before we rush to judgment.
Speech for the defense in treason trial of James Hadfield (1800)

Susan Ertz

U.S. writer, 1894–1985

- 1 Millions long for immortality who don’t know what to do with themselves on a rainy Sunday afternoon.
Anger in the Sky ch. 5 (1943)
See France 4

Henri Estienne

French printer and publisher, 1531–1598

- 1 Si jeunesse savait; si vieillesse pouvait.
If youth knew; if age could.
Les Premices bk. 4, epigram 4 (1594)

Euclid

Greek mathematician, fl. 300 B.C.

- 1 Quod erat demonstrandum.
Which was to be proved.
Elementa bk. 1, proposition 5. Latin translation from the original Greek, often abbreviated QED.

2 In right-angled triangles the square on the side opposite the right angle equals the sum of the squares on the sides containing the right angle.
Elementa bk. 1, proposition 47

3 [Addressing Ptolemy I:] There is no “royal road” to geometry.

Quoted in Proclus, Commentary on the First Book of Euclid's Elementa

Jeffrey Eugenides

U.S. writer, 1960–

1 It didn't matter in the end how old they had been, or that they were girls, but only that we had loved them, and that they hadn't heard us calling, still do not hear us, up here in the tree house, with our thinning hair and soft bellies, calling them out of those rooms where they went to be alone for all time, alone in suicide, which is deeper than death, and where we will never find the pieces to put them back together.
The Virgin Suicides ch. 5 (1993)

2 I was born twice: first, as a baby girl, on a remarkably smogless Detroit day in January of 1960; and then again, as a teenage boy, in an emergency room near Petoskey, Michigan, in August of 1974.
Middlesex bk. 1 (2002)

Leonhard Euler

Swiss mathematician and physicist, 1707–1783

1 [Of his loss of the sight of one eye, 1735:] Now I will have less distraction.

Quoted in Howard Eves, Mathematical Circles (1969)

Euripides

Greek playwright, ca. 485 B.C.–ca. 406 B.C.

1 Should I have left any stone unturned.
Heracidae (translation by David Kovacs)

2 My tongue swore, but my mind is not on oath.
Hippolytus l. 612 (translation by David Kovacs)

3 Every man is like the company he is wont to keep.
Phoenix fragment 812 (translation by Morris Hickey Morgan). The modern proverb is “A man is known by the company he keeps.”
See Proverbs 50

Linda Evangelista

Canadian fashion model, 1965–

1 [Of supermodels.:] We don't wake up for less than $10,000 a day.
Quoted in Vogue, Oct. 1990

Dale Evans

U.S. actress and country singer, 1912–2001

1 Happy trails to you, until we meet again
Happy trails to you, keep smilin' until then.
“Happy Trails” (song) (1950)

Edith Evans

English actress, 1888–1976

1 When you leave the theater, if you don't walk several blocks in the wrong direction, the performance has been a failure.
Quoted in Garson Kanin, Tracy and Hepburn (1970)

William M. Evarts

U.S. politician, 1818–1901

1 The pious ones of Plymouth who, reaching the Rock, first fell upon their knees and then upon the aborigines.
Quoted in Louisville Courier-Journal, 4 July 1913.
According to Robert Andrews, Famous Lines, this has also been attributed to Oliver Wendell Holmes, Sr., and Bill Nye.
See William Bradford 1

Gavin Ewart

English poet, 1916–1995

1 My life may be much happier to-morrow,
Hunger and love that press against the body,
The two eternal needs we recognize,—
Desires that so relentlessly pursue one,—
May get me down or raise me to the skies
And make me a Don Bradman or Don Juan.
“Days of Contempt” l. 3 (1939)

2 Miss Twye was soaping her breasts in her bath
When she heard behind her a meaning laugh
And to her amazement she discovered
A wicked man in the bathroom cupboard.
“Miss Twye” l. 1 (1939)

3 Everything was twice repeated,
Sometimes more than twice repeated,
As they worked through the agenda

(It seemed elastic, that agenda, Becoming longer, never shorter),
 Their utterances grew long, not shorter,
 It was just like spreading butter.
 "The Meeting" l. 11 (1982)

William Norman Ewer

British writer, 1885–1976

1 How odd
 Of God
 To choose
 The Jews.

Quoted in The Week-End Book (1924). Cecil Browne is said to have responded as follows: "But not so odd / As those who choose / A Jewish God / Yet spurn the Jews."

Winifred Ewing

Scottish politician, 1929–

1 The Scottish Parliament adjourned on the 25th day of March 1707 is hereby reconvened.
 Speech at opening of new Scottish Parliament, Edinburgh, Scotland, 12 May 1999

James Eyre

English judge, 1734–1799

1 A man must come into a court of equity with clean hands.

Deering v. Earl of Winchelsea (1787)

Anne Fadiman

U.S. writer and editor, 1953–

- 1 [On the travails of combining personal libraries with a spouse:] Sharing a bed and a future was child's play compared to sharing my copy of The Complete Poems of W. B. Yeats.
Ex Libris: Confessions of a Common Reader "Marrying Libraries" (1998)

Clifton Fadiman

U.S. author and broadcast host, 1904–1999

- 1 Cheese, milk's leap toward immortality.
Introduction to Bob Brown, The Complete Book of Cheese (1955)
- 2 [Of Gertrude Stein:] I encountered the mama of dada again . . . and as usual withdrew worsted.
Party of One "Gertrude Stein" (1955)
- 3 When you reread a classic you do not see more in the book than you did before; you see more in you than there was before.
Any Number Can Play "War and Peace, Fifteen Years After" (1957)

Richard Fairbrass

English singer, 1953–

- 1 I'm too sexy for my love too sexy for my love
Love's going to leave me
I'm too sexy for my shirt too sexy for my shirt
So sexy it hurts.
"I'm Too Sexy" (song) (1991). Cowritten with Fred Fairbrass.

Henry Fairlie

English journalist, 1924–1990

- 1 I have several times suggested that what I call the "Establishment" in this country is today more powerful than ever before. By the "Establishment" I do not mean only the center of official power—though they are certainly part of it—but rather the whole matrix of official and social relations within which power is exercised.

The Spectator, 23 Sept. 1955. The Oxford English Dictionary traces as far back as 1923 the use of the Establishment in the sense of "a social group exercising power generally, or within a given field or institution, by virtue of its traditional superiority, and by the use esp. of tacit understandings and often a common mode of speech, and having as a general interest the maintenance of the status quo." Even earlier evidence is found, however, in the quotation of Ralph Waldo Emerson cross-referenced here.
See Ralph Waldo Emerson 44

Jerry Falwell

U.S. religious leader and broadcaster, 1933–2007

- 1 [Of homosexuality:] God didn't create Adam and Steve, but Adam and Eve.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 15 Oct. 1979. Although this line was popularized by Falwell, it appeared as early as 1977, when the New York Times (19 Nov.) quoted a protest sign reading "God Made Adam and Eve, Not Adam and Steve."

Frantz Fanon

French West Indian writer, 1925–1961

- 1 National liberation, national renaissance, the restoration of nationhood to the people, commonwealth: whatever may be the headings used or the new formulas introduced, decolonization is always a violent phenomenon.
The Wretched of the Earth "Concerning Violence" (1961) (translation by Constance Farrington)
- 2 Leave this Europe where they are never done talking of Man, yet murder men everywhere they find them.
The Wretched of the Earth conclusion (1961) (translation by Constance Farrington)
- 3 When I search for Man in the technique and the style of Europe, I see only a succession of negations of man, and an avalanche of murders.
The Wretched of the Earth conclusion (1961) (translation by Constance Farrington)

Michael Faraday

English physicist and chemist, 1791–1867

- 1 I propose to distinguish these bodies by calling those anions which go to the anode of the decomposing body; and those passing to the cathode, cations; and when I have occasion to speak of these together, I shall call them ions.
Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society of London (1834)

- 2 [To William E. Gladstone, who asked what the usefulness of electricity was:] Why, sir, there is every probability that you will soon be able to tax it!
Attributed in R. A. Gregory, Discovery, Or the Spirit and Service of Science (1916). This anecdote was not mentioned until well after Faraday's death and is most likely apocryphal. In the earliest known version, in William E. H. Lecky, Democracy and Liberty (1899), the reference is to "an important new discovery in science" rather than specifically to electricity.

Wallace Fard

U.S. founder of Nation of Islam, ca. 1891–1934

- 1 The blue-eyed devil white man.
Quoted in Malcolm X, The Autobiography of Malcolm X (1965)

Richard Fariña

U.S. writer and folk singer, 1937–1966

- 1 Been Down So Long It Looks Like Up to Me.
Title of book (1966)

Eleanor Farjeon

English writer, 1881–1965

- 1 Morning has broken, like the first morning,
Blackbird has spoken, like the first bird.
"Morning Has Broken" (hymn) (1931)

Herbert Farjeon

English writer, 1887–1945

- 1 I'm the luckiest of females!
For I've danced with a man
Who's danced with a girl
Who's danced with the Prince of Wales!
"I've Danced With a Man Who's Danced With a Girl"
(song) (1927)

James Farley

U.S. politician, 1888–1976

- 1 [Of Franklin Roosevelt's 1936 reelection, carrying all states but two:] As Maine goes, so goes Vermont.
Statement to press, 4 Nov. 1936
See Political Slogans 4

Philip José Farmer

U.S. science fiction writer, 1918–2009

- 1 THERE ARE UNIVERSES BEGGING FOR GODS
yet He hangs around this one looking for work.
"Riders of the Purple Wage" (1967)
- 2 Confucius once said that a bear could not fart at the North Pole without causing a big wind in Chicago.
"Riders of the Purple Wage" (1967)
See Gleick 1; Edward Lorenz 1

Farouk I

Egyptian king, 1920–1965

- 1 [Remark to Lord Boyd-Orr, Cairo, 1948:] The whole world is in revolt. Soon there will be only five Kings left—the King of England, the King of Spades, the King of Clubs, the King of Hearts, and the King of Diamonds.
Quoted in Life, 10 Apr. 1950

George Farquhar

Irish playwright, 1678–1707

- 1 My Lady Bountiful.
The Beaux' Stratagem act I, sc. 1 (1707)

David G. Farragut

U.S. admiral, 1801–1870

- 1 [Remark at the Battle of Mobile Bay, 5 Aug. 1864:]
Damn the torpedoes!
Attributed in Foxhall A. Parker, The Battle of Mobile Bay (1878). Parker's full quotation is "Damn the torpedoes! Jouett, full speed!" Later sources usually quote Farragut as saying "Damn the torpedoes! Full speed ahead!" In fact, reports of the battle filed by the participants do not mention any version of "Damn the torpedoes!"; these words were probably never uttered.

Mia Farrow

U.S. actress, 1945–

- I [Of Woody Allen.:] He had polyester sheets and I wanted to get cotton sheets. He discussed it with his shrink many times before he made the switch.

Quoted in Independent, 8 Feb. 1997

Ronan Farrow (Satchel Ronan O’Sullivan Farrow)

U.S. activist and journalist, 1987–

- I [Of suspicious that his biological father was Frank Sinatra rather than Woody Allen.:] We’re all possibly Frank Sinatra’s son.

Tweet, 2 Oct. 2013

Howard Fast

U.S. novelist, 1914–2003

- I I will return and I will be millions.

Spartacus pt. 1 (1952). In Fast’s novel these words are spoken by a crucified slave. Eva Perón’s tomb in Buenos Aires, Argentina, bears the words, “Volvere y seré millones!” (“I will come again and I will be millions”). Nigel Rees notes in The Quote . . . Unquote Newsletter, Jan. 2003: “According to Nicholas Fraser, co-author of Eva Perón (1980), ‘She never said this last, but that doesn’t keep it from being true,’ though some sources give it as from a speech she made towards the end of her life.” Perón died in 1952, but the tomb inscription is dated 1982.

William Faulkner

U.S. novelist, 1897–1962

- I Because no battle is ever won he said. They are not even fought. The field only reveals to man his own folly and despair, and victory is an illusion of philosophers and fools.

The Sound and the Fury pt. 2 (1929)

- 2 They [the Negroes] will endure. They are better than we are. Stronger than we are. Their vices are vices aped from white men or that white men and bondage have taught them: improvidence and intemperance and evasion—not laziness: evasion: of what white men had set them to, not for their aggrandizement or even comfort but his own.

The Bear pt. 4 (1932)

- 3 Too much happens. . . . Man performs, engenders, so much more than he can or should have to bear. That’s how he finds that he can bear anything. . . . That’s what’s so terrible.

Light in August ch. 13 (1932)

- 4 Why do you hate the South?

I dont hate it. . . . I dont hate it. . . . I dont hate it he thought, panting in the cold air, the iron New England dark; I dont. I dont! I dont hate it! I dont hate it!

Absalom, Absalom! ch. 9 (1936). Ellipses in the original.

- 5 You cant understand it [the South]. You would have to be born there.

Absalom, Absalom! ch. 9 (1936)

- 6 JEFFERSON, YOKNAPATAWPHA CO., Mississippi. Area, 2400 Square Miles. Population, Whites, 6298; Negroes, 9313. WILLIAM FAULKNER, Sole Owner & Proprietor.

Absalom, Absalom! inscription on endpaper map (1936)

- 7 Between grief and nothing I will take grief.

If I Forget Thee, Jerusalem “The Wild Palms” (1939)

- 8 There are no longer problems of the spirit. There is only one question: When will I be blown up? Because of this, the young man or woman writing today has forgotten the problems of the human heart in conflict with itself which alone can make good writing because only that is worth writing about, worth the agony and the sweat.

Nobel Prize acceptance speech, Stockholm, 10 Dec. 1950

- 9 He [the writer] must teach himself that the basest of all things is to be afraid; and, teaching himself that, forget it forever, leaving no room in his workshop for anything but the old verities and truths of the heart, the old universal truths lacking which any story is ephemeral and doomed—love and honor and pity and pride and compassion and sacrifice.

Nobel Prize acceptance speech, Stockholm, 10 Dec. 1950

- 10 I decline to accept the end of man.

Nobel Prize acceptance speech, Stockholm, 10 Dec. 1950

11 I believe that man will not merely endure: he will prevail. He is immortal, not because he alone among creatures has an inexhaustible voice, but because he has a soul, a spirit capable of compassion and sacrifice and endurance. Nobel Prize acceptance speech, Stockholm, 10 Dec. 1950

12 The poet's, the writer's duty is to write about these things. It is his privilege to help man endure by lifting his heart, by reminding him of the courage and honor and hope and pride and compassion and pity and sacrifice which have been the glory of his past. The poet's voice need not merely be the record of man, it can be one of the props, the pillars to help him endure and prevail. Nobel Prize acceptance speech, Stockholm, 10 Dec. 1950

13 The past is never dead. It's not even past. Requiem for a Nun act I (1951)

14 Oh yes, he will survive it because he has that in him which will endure even beyond the ultimate worthless tideless rock freezing slowly in the last red and heatless sunset, because already the next star in the blue immensity of space will be already clamorous with the uproar of his debarkation, his puny and inexhaustible voice still talking, still planning. A Fable (1954)

15 The Long Hot Summer. Title of motion picture (1958). Although listed here under Faulkner as the author, this film was actually written by Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank, Jr., based on Faulkner's novel The Hamlet (1940). Book 3 of The Hamlet is titled "The Long Summer."

16 The writer's only responsibility is to his art. He will be completely ruthless if he is a good one. He has a dream. It anguishes him so much he must get rid of it. He has no peace until then. Everything goes by the board. . . . If a writer has to rob his mother, he will not hesitate; the Ode on a Grecian Urn is worth any number of old ladies. Quoted in Paris Review, Spring 1956

17 Really the writer doesn't want success. . . . He knows he has a short span of life, that the day will come when he must pass through the wall of oblivion, and he wants to leave a scratch on that wall—Kilroy was here—that somebody a hundred, or a thousand years later will see. Quoted in Faulkner in the University, ed. Frederick L. Gwynn and Joseph L. Blotner (1959)

18 The ideal woman which is in every man's mind is evoked by a word or phrase or the shape of her wrist, her hand. The most beautiful description of a woman is by understatement. Remember, all Tolstoy ever said to describe Anna Karenina was that she was beautiful and could see in the dark like a cat. Every man has a different idea of what's beautiful, and it's best to take the gesture, the shadow of the branch, and let the mind create the tree. Quoted in Reader's Digest, Mar. 1973

Kenneth Fearing

U.S. poet and novelist, 1902–1961

1 The big clock was running as usual. . . . Sometimes the hands of the clock actually raced, and at other times they hardly moved at all. But that made no difference to the big clock. The hands could move backward, and the time it told would be right just the same. It would still be running as usual, because all other watches have to be set by the big one. The Big Clock ch. 1 (1946)

Lucien Febvre

French historian, 1878–1956

1 It is never a waste of time to study the history of a word. "Civilisation: Evolution of a Word and a Group of Ideas" (1930)

James K. Feibleman

U.S. philosopher and writer, 1904–1987

1 A myth is a religion in which no-one any longer believes. Understanding Philosophy ch. 3 (1973)
See Tom Wolfe 4

Jules Feiffer

U.S. cartoonist, 1929–

1 I used to think I was poor. Then they told me I wasn't poor, I was needy. Then they told me it was self-defeating to think of myself as needy, I was culturally deprived. Then they told me deprived was a bad image, that I was underprivileged. Then they told me underprivileged was overused, that I was disadvantaged. I still don't have a dime, but I do have a great vocabulary.

Cartoon caption, quoted in Leonard L. Levinson, Bartlett's Unfamiliar Quotations (1971). Originally appeared in 1965.

Bruce Feirstein

U.S. writer, 1953–

- 1 Real Men Don't Eat Quiche.
Title of book (1982)

Federico Fellini

Italian director and screenwriter, 1920–1993

- 1 La Dolce Vita.
The Sweet Life.
Title of motion picture (1960)

Edna Ferber

U.S. writer, 1887–1968

- 1 Miss Ferber, never known for honeyed talk, clashed slightly with Noel Coward one day when they both turned up at the [Algonquin] Round Table sporting new double-breasted suits. “You look almost like a man,” Mr. Coward told Miss Ferber. “So,” Miss Ferber replied lightly, “do you.”
Reported in Margaret Case Harriman, The Vicious Circle: The Story of the Algonquin Round Table (1951)

Ferdinand I

Holy Roman Emperor, 1503–1564

- 1 [Motto:] Fiat justitia et pereat mundus.
Let justice be done, though the world perish.
Quoted in Johannes Manlius, Locorum Communium Collectanea (1563)
See Lord Mansfield 1; William Watson 1

Lawrence Ferlinghetti

U.S. writer, 1919–2021

- 1 Constantly risking absurdity and death whenever he performs above the heads of his audience

the poet like an acrobat climbs on rime.

“Constantly risking absurdity” l. 1 (1958)

- 2 Beauty stands and waits with gravity
to start her death-defying leap.
“Constantly risking absurdity” l. 26 (1958)
- 3 In Goya's greatest scenes we seem to see the people of the world exactly at the moment when they first attained the title of “suffering humanity.”
“In Goya's greatest scenes we seem to see” l. 1 (1958)

Pierre de Fermat

French mathematician, 1601–1665

- 1 Cuius rei demonstrationem mirabilem sane detexi hanc marginis exiguitas non caperet.
I have a truly marvelous demonstration of this proposition which this margin is too narrow to contain.
Quoted in Diophanti Alexandrini Arithmeticonum, ed. Clement-Samuel de Fermat (1670). Fermat wrote this comment about what has become known as “Fermat's last theorem.” That theorem was written in the margin of Fermat's copy of Diophantus' Arithmetica and was later published in a 1670 edition of Diophantus that included Fermat's annotations.
See Gauss 1

Enrico Fermi

Italian-born U.S. physicist, 1901–1954

- 1 [Announcement during first controlled nuclear chain reaction, Chicago, Ill., 2 Dec. 1942:] The reaction is self-sustaining.
Quoted in Corbin Allardice and Edward R. Trapnell, The First Pile (1949)
- 2 [Commenting on the possibility of intelligent life on other planets:] Where is everybody?
Quoted in Ralph E. Lapp, Man and Space (1961)
- 3 If I could remember the names of these particles, I would have been a botanist.
Quoted in Leon Lederman, Lecture at Brookhaven National Laboratory, Brookhaven, N.Y., 9 Jan. 1963

Macedonio Fernández

Argentinian philosopher and writer, 1874–1952

- 1 Everything has been written, everything has been said, everything has been made: that's what God heard before creating the world, when there was nothing yet. I have also heard that one, he may have answered from the old, split Nothingness. And then he began.

Museo de la Novela de la Eterna (The Museum of Eternity's Novel) prologue (1967)

Will Ferrell

U.S. comedian, 1967–

- 1 [Word coined to mock George W. Bush's communication skills:] Strategy.
Saturday Night Live (television show), 7 Oct. 2000

Kathleen Ferrier

English opera singer, 1912–1953

- 1 ["Last words," 1953:] Now I'll have eine kleine Pause.
Quoted in Gerald Moore, Am I Too Loud? (1962)

Ludwig Feuerbach

German philosopher, 1804–1872

- 1 Der Mensch ist, was er isst.
Man is what he eats.
Quoted in Jacob Moleschott, Lehre der Nahrungsmittel: Für das Volk (1850)
See Brillat-Savarin 1

Richard P. Feynman

U.S. physicist, 1918–1988

- 1 To those who do not know mathematics it is difficult to get across a real feeling as to the beauty, the deepest beauty, of nature. . . . If you want to learn about nature, to appreciate nature, it is necessary to understand the language that she speaks in.
The Character of Physical Law ch. 2 (1965)
- 2 I think I can safely say that nobody understands quantum mechanics.
The Character of Physical Law ch. 6 (1965)
- 3 For a successful technology, reality must take precedence over public relations, for nature cannot be fooled.
Rogers Commission Report on the Space Shuttle Challenger Accident appendix (1986)
- 4 What I cannot create I do not understand.
Quoted in James Gleick, Genius: The Life and Science of Richard Feynman (1992)

Eugene Field

U.S. poet and journalist, 1850–1895

- 1 Wynken, Blynken, and Nod one night
Sailed off in a wooden shoe—
Sailed on a river of crystal light,
Into a sea of dew.
"Wynken, Blynken, and Nod" l. 1 (1889)
- 2 Wynken and Blynken are two little eyes,
And Nod is a little head,
And the wooden ship that sailed the skies
Is a wee one's trundle-bed.
"Wynken, Blynken, and Nod" l. 37 (1889)

Marshall Field

U.S. merchant, 1834–1906

- 1 [Instruction to manager of his department store, Chicago, Ill.] Give the lady what she wants!
Quoted in Lloyd Wendt, Give the Lady What She Wants! (1952)

Sally Field

U.S. actress, 1946–

- 1 You like me. Right now! You like me!
Speech accepting Academy Award for Best Actress, Hollywood, Calif., 25 Mar. 1985. Field's words are usually misquoted as "You like me! You really like me!"

Helen Fielding

English writer, 1958–

- 1 Exes should never, never go out with or marry other people but should remain celibate to the end of their days in order to provide you with a mental fallback position.
Bridget Jones's Diary "August" (1996)
- 2 It's amazing how much time and money can be saved in the world of dating by close attention to detail. A white sock here, a pair of red braces there, a gray slip-on shoe, a swastika, are as often as not all one needs to tell you there's no point in writing down phone numbers and forking out for expensive lunches because it's never going to be a runner.
Bridget Jones's Diary "January" (1996)
- 3 I will not
Drink more than fourteen alcohol units a week.
Bridget Jones's Diary "New Year's Resolutions" (1996)

- 4 [I will not] sulk about having no boyfriend, but develop inner poise and authority and sense of self as woman of substance, complete without boyfriend, as best way to obtain boyfriend.
Bridget Jones's Diary "New Year's Resolutions" (1996)

Henry Fielding

English novelist and playwright, 1707–1754

- 1 The dusky night rides down the sky,
And ushers in the morn;
The hounds all join in glorious cry,
The huntsman winds his horn:
And a-hunting we will go.
Don Quixote in England act 2, sc. 5 (1733). "A-hunting they did go" was a line in an old ballad, "The Three Jovial Huntsmen."
- 2 I am as sober as a judge.
Don Quixote in England act 3, sc. 14 (1733)
- 3 To whom nothing is given, of him can nothing be required.
Joseph Andrews bk. 2, ch. 8 (1742)
- 4 He in a few minutes ravished this fair creature, or at least would have ravished her, if she had not, by a timely compliance, prevented him.
Nathan Wild bk. 3, ch. 7 (1743)
- 5 Distinction without a difference.
Tom Jones bk. 6, ch. 13 (1749)
- 6 There are a set of religious, or rather moral writers, who teach that virtue is the certain road to happiness, and vice to misery, in this world. A very wholesome and comfortable doctrine, and to which we have but one objection, namely, that it is not true.
Tom Jones bk. 15, ch. 1 (1749)
- 7 It hath been often said, that it is not death, but dying, which is terrible.
Amelia bk. 3, ch. 4 (1751)
- 8 If we regard this world only, it is the interest of every man to be either perfectly good or completely bad. He had better destroy his conscience than gently wound it.
Amelia bk. 4, ch. 2 (1751)
- 9 A true Christian can never be disappointed if he doth not receive his reward in this world; the laborer might as well complain that he is not paid his hire in the middle of the day.
Amelia bk. 9, ch. 8 (1751)

Dorothy Fields

U.S. songwriter, 1905–1974

- 1 Grab your coat, and get your hat,
Leave your worry on the doorstep.
Just direct your feet
To the sunny side of the street.
"On the Sunny Side of the Street" (song) (1930)
- 2 I'm in the mood for love
Simply because you're near me.
Funny, but when you're near me,
I'm in the mood for love.
"I'm in the Mood for Love" (song) (1935)
- 3 The minute you walked in the joint,
I could see you were a man of distinction,
A real big spender.
"Big Spender" (song) (1966)
- 4 So, let me get right to the point,
I don't pop my cork for ev'ry guy I see.
Hey, big spender, spend
A little time with me.
"Big Spender" (song) (1966)
- 5 If My Friends Could See Me Now!
Title of song (1966)

James T. Fields

U.S. publisher, 1817–1881

- 1 Rally round the flag, boys—
Give it to the breeze!
That's the banner that we bore
On the land and seas.
"The Stars and Stripes" (song) (1862)
See George Frederick Root 2

W. C. Fields (William Claude Dukenfield)

U.S. comedian, 1880–1946

Lines uttered by Fields in his motion pictures have been listed under his name regardless of whether he was credited as a screenwriter for the film in question.

- 1 [J. Effingham Bellweather, played by W. C. Fields, speaking:] Godfrey Daniel!
The Golf Specialist (motion picture) (1930). Fields derived this euphemism for "goddamn" from the name of his uncle, Godfrey Dukenfield.
- 2 [Rollo La Rue, played by W. C. Fields, speaking:] My little chickadee.
If I Had a Million (motion picture) (1932)

- 3 [Professor Quail, played by W. C. Fields, speaking:] Now that I'm here, I shall dally in the valley—and believe me, I can dally.
International House (motion picture) (1932). The writers credited for this film were Walter DeLeon and Francis Martin.
- 4 [Mr. Snavelly, played by W. C. Fields, speaking:] It ain't a fit night out for man or beast.
The Fatal Glass of Beer (motion picture) (1933). Fields stated in a letter of 8 Feb. 1944, printed in W. C. Fields by Himself (1974), that he first used this in a sketch in Earl Carroll's Vanities. However, Fields wrote, "I do not claim to be the originator of this line as it was probably used long before I was born in some old melodrama."
- 5 [Harold Bissonette, played by W. C. Fields, replying to a real estate agent who said "You're drunk":] Yeah, and you're crazy. I'll be sober tomorrow, but you'll be crazy the rest of your life.
It's a Gift (motion picture) (1934). The writers credited for this film were Jack Cunningham and Fields. In Augustus J. C. Hare's diary entry of 16 July 1882, a similar exchange is recorded, with the punch line "I shall be sober to-morrow morning; but you're a damned fool tonight, and you'll be a damned fool to-morrow morning."
- 6 [Sam Bisbee, played by W. C. Fields, speaking:] It's a funny old world—a man's lucky if he gets out of it alive.
You're Telling Me (motion picture) (1934). The writers credited for this film were Walter DeLeon and Paul M. Jones.
- 7 Now don't say you can't swear off drinking; it's easy. I've done it a thousand times.
"The Temperance Lecture" (radio broadcast) (1938)
- 8 You Can't Cheat an Honest Man.
Title of motion picture (1939). Fields is supposed to have said this also in the stage musical Poppy (1923).
- 9 [Larsen E. Whipsnade, played by W. C. Fields, speaking:] You kids are disgusting, skulking around here all day, reeking of popcorn and lollipops.
You Can't Cheat an Honest Man (motion picture) (1939). The writers credited for this film were Fields, Everett Freeman, Richard Mack, and George Marion, Jr.
- 10 [Larsen E. Whipsnade, played by W. C. Fields, speaking:] Some weasel took the cork out of my lunch.
You Can't Cheat an Honest Man (motion picture) (1939). The writers credited for this film were Fields, Everett Freeman, Richard Mack, and George Marion, Jr.
- 11 I'd rather have two girls at 21 each, than one girl at 42.
You Can't Cheat an Honest Man (motion picture) (1939). The writers credited for this film were Fields, Everett Freeman, Richard Mack, and George Marion, Jr. Garson O'Toole has found an analogous joke, with the ages "17" and "34," in the Seattle Daily Times, 23 Feb. 1915.
- 12 [When asked whether he liked children.:] I do if they're properly cooked!
Fields for President ch. 7 (1940)
- 13 [Cuthbert J. Twillie, played by W. C. Fields, responding to the question, "Is this a game of chance?":] Not the way I play it.
My Little Chickadee (motion picture) (1940). The writers credited for this film were Fields and Mae West.
- 14 [Cuthbert J. Twillie, played by W. C. Fields, speaking:] A thing worth having is worth cheating for.
My Little Chickadee (motion picture) (1940). The writers credited for this film were Fields and Mae West.
- 15 [Cuthbert J. Twillie, played by W. C. Fields, speaking:] During one of our trips through Afghanistan, we lost our corkscrew. We had to live on food and water for several days.
My Little Chickadee (motion picture) (1940). The writers credited for this film were Fields and Mae West.
- 16 [The Great Man, played by W. C. Fields, speaking:] I was in love with a beautiful blonde

- once. She drove me to drink. 'Tis the one thing I'm indebted to her for.
Never Give a Sucker an Even Break (motion picture) (1941). The writers credited for this film were Prescott Chaplin, Fields, and John T. Neville.
- 17 [The Great Man, played by W. C. Fields, speaking:] Drown in a vat of liquor? Death, where is thy sting?
Never Give a Sucker an Even Break (motion picture) (1941). The writers credited for this film were Prescott Chaplin, Fields, and John T. Neville.
 See Bible 359
- 18 [Suggested epitaph for himself:] Here lies W. C. Fields. I would rather be living in Philadelphia. Quoted in Vanity Fair, June 1925. Frequently quoted as "On the whole, I'd rather be in Philadelphia." It did not ultimately appear on the vault holding his ashes, which reads "W. C. Fields, 1880–1946."
- 19 Never give a sucker an even break.
 Quoted in Variety, 12 Apr. 1923. Fields had ad-libbed this saying in the stage musical Poppy (1923).
- 20 If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. Then quit. There's no use being a damn fool about it.
 Quoted in Reader's Digest, Oct. 1949
 See Hickson 1
- 21 Hell, I never vote for anybody. I always vote against.
 Quoted in R. L. Taylor, W. C. Fields (1949). "It is said that the American people never vote for but just love to vote against" appeared in the New York Times, 26 Dec. 1932.
 See Franklin P. Adams 3
- 22 [Of Charlie Chaplin:] The son of a bitch is a ballet dancer. . . . He's the best ballet dancer that ever lived . . . and if I get a good chance I'll kill him with my bare hands.
 Quoted in Sight and Sound, Feb. 1951
- 23 [Deathbed remark while reading the Bible:] I'm looking for loopholes.
 Quoted in Playboy, Nov. 1960.
- 24 I am free of all prejudice. I hate everyone equally.
 Quoted in Saturday Review, 28 Jan. 1967
- 25 I like to keep a bottle of stimulant handy in case I see a snake—which I also keep handy.
 Quoted in Corey Ford, The Time of Laughter (1967)
- 26 I don't drink water because fish fuck in it.
 Quoted in Robert Reisner, Graffiti (1971)
- 27 Last week, I went to Philadelphia, but it was closed.
 Quoted in "Godfrey Daniels!," ed. Richard J. Anobile (1975)
- 28 I've been drunk only once in my life. But that lasted for twenty-three years.
 Quoted in The Quotations of W. C. Fields, ed. Martin Lewis (1976)

Edward A. Filene

U.S. business executive, 1860–1937

- 1 Why shouldn't the American people take half my money from me? I took all of it from them.
 Attributed in Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., The Coming of the New Deal (1959)

Film Lines

See also Woody Allen, Mel Brooks, W. C. The Bridge on the River Kwai (1957). Screenplay by Carl Foreman.
- 32 [David Huxley, played by Cary Grant, speaking:] I've just gone gay . . . all of a sudden.
Bringing Up Baby (1938). Screenplay by Dudley Nichols and Hagar Wilde, but Grant actually ad-libbed this line. Grant's words are often said to be the first clear documented usage of the term gay to mean "homosexual." (The context in the film is that Grant, in a feather-trimmed dressing gown, is asked whether he always dresses like that.) Linguists, however, have discovered various earlier usages, for example, "a so-called gay party" (Robert McAlmon, Distinguished Air [1925]) and "I'm going gay" (Lew Levenson, Butterfly Man [1934]). Gertrude Stein also used gay, in "Miss Furr and Miss Skeene" (1922), in a way interpreted by some as a source of the modern usage. See Stein 2
- 33 [Annie Savoy, played by Susan Sarandon, speaking:] I believe in the Church of Baseball. I tried all the major religions, and most of the minor ones. . . . I know things. For instance, there are 108 beads in a Catholic rosary and there are 108 stitches in a baseball. When I heard that, I gave Jesus a chance.
Bull Durham (1988). Screenplay by Ron Shelton.
- 34 [Crash Davis, played by Kevin Costner, speaking:] I believe in the soul, the cock, the pussy, the small of a woman's back, the hanging curve ball, high fiber, good Scotch, that the novels of Susan Sontag are self-indulgent, overrated crap. I believe Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone. I believe there ought to be a constitutional amendment outlawing Astroturf and the designated hitter. I believe in the sweet spot, soft-core pornography, opening your presents Christmas morning rather than Christmas Eve and I believe in long, slow, deep, soft, wet kisses that last three days.
Bull Durham (1988). Screenplay by Ron Shelton.
- 35 ["Nuke" LaLoosh, played by Tim Robbins, speaking:] Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose, sometimes it rains.
Bull Durham (1988). Screenplay by Ron Shelton. See Modern Proverbs 97
- 36 [Butch Cassidy, played by Paul Newman, speaking:] I have vision, and the rest of the world wears bifocals.
Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (1969). Screenplay by William Goldman.
- 37 [The Sundance Kid, played by Robert Redford, speaking to Butch Cassidy, played by Paul Newman:] You just keep thinking, Butch. That's what you're good at.
Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (1969). Screenplay by William Goldman.
- 38 [Butch Cassidy, played by Paul Newman, speaking:] Who are those guys?
Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (1969). Screenplay by William Goldman.
- 39 [Butch Cassidy, played by Paul Newman, speaking:] If he'd just pay me what he's paying them to stop me robbing him, I'd stop robbing him!
Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (1969). Screenplay by William Goldman.

- 40 [Butch Cassidy, played by Paul Newman, speaking to the Sundance Kid, played by Robert Redford, after the latter balked at jumping off a cliff because he couldn't swim:] Why you crazy, the fall will probably kill you.
Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (1969). Screenplay by William Goldman.
- 41 [Madge Norwood, played by Bette Davis, speaking:] I'd love to kiss you, but I just washed my hair.
The Cabin in the Cotton (1932). Screenplay by Paul Green.
- 42 [Ilsa Lund, played by Ingrid Bergman, speaking:] Play it, Sam. Play "As Time Goes By."
Casablanca (1942). Screenplay by Julius J. Epstein, Philip G. Epstein, and Howard Koch. These lines are the closest in the film to the famous paraphrase "Play it again, Sam." Bill Mullins has discovered the following sentence in the San Francisco Chronicle, 12 Aug. 1943: "Dooley 'Play It Again, Sam' Wilson of 'Casablanca' fame has a stellar role in 'Stormy Weather,' the musical cavalcade at the Paramount." Woody Allen cemented the fame of the paraphrase by using Play It Again, Sam as the title of a 1969 play and 1972 motion picture.

- 43 [Rick Blaine, played by Humphrey Bogart, speaking:] Of all the gin joints in all the towns in all the world, she walks into mine.
Casablanca (1942). Screenplay by Julius J. Epstein, Philip G. Epstein, and Howard Koch.
- 44 [Rick Blaine, played by Humphrey Bogart, speaking:] Here's looking at you, kid.
Casablanca (1942). Screenplay by Julius J. Epstein, Philip G. Epstein, and Howard Koch. The toast "Here's looking at you" appears as early as 1881, in a glossary of saloon language in the Washington Post, 30 Nov.
- 45 [Captain Louis Renault, played by Claude Rains, speaking:] I'm shocked, shocked to find that gambling is going on in here!
Casablanca (1942). Screenplay by Julius J. Epstein, Philip G. Epstein, and Howard Koch.
- 46 [Rick Blaine, played by Humphrey Bogart, speaking:] If that plane leaves the ground and you're not with him, you'll regret it. Maybe not today, maybe not tomorrow, but soon and for the rest of your life.
Casablanca (1942). Screenplay by Julius J. Epstein, Philip G. Epstein, and Howard Koch.
- 47 [Rick Blaine, played by Humphrey Bogart, speaking:] We'll always have Paris.
Casablanca (1942). Screenplay by Julius J. Epstein, Philip G. Epstein, and Howard Koch.
- 48 [Rick Blaine, played by Humphrey Bogart, speaking:] Ilsa, I'm no good at being noble, but it doesn't take much to see that the problems of three little people don't amount to a hill of beans in this crazy world.
Casablanca (1942). Screenplay by Julius J. Epstein, Philip G. Epstein, and Howard Koch.
- 49 [Captain Louis Renault, played by Claude Rains, speaking:] Major Strasser has been shot. Round up the usual suspects.
Casablanca (1942). Screenplay by Julius J. Epstein, Philip G. Epstein, and Howard Koch.
- 50 [Rick Blaine, played by Humphrey Bogart, speaking:] Louis, I think this is the beginning of a beautiful friendship.
Casablanca (1942). Screenplay by Julius J. Epstein, Philip G. Epstein, and Howard Koch.

Chinatown (1974). Screenplay by Robert Towne.
- 53 [Charles Foster Kane, played by Orson Welles, uttering his dying words:] Rosebud.
Citizen Kane (1941). Screenplay by Herman J. Mankiewicz and Orson Welles.
- 54 [Mr. Bernstein, played by Everett Sloane, speaking:] It's no trick to make a lot of money if what you want to do is make a lot of money.
Citizen Kane (1941). Screenplay by Herman J. Mankiewicz and Orson Welles.
- 55 [Jerry Thompson, played by William Alland, speaking:] Mr. Kane was a man who got everything he wanted, and then lost it. Maybe Rosebud was something he couldn't get or something he lost. Anyway, it wouldn't have explained anything. I don't think any word can explain a man's life. No, I guess Rosebud is just a piece in a jigsaw puzzle, a missing piece.
Citizen Kane (1941). Screenplay by Herman J. Mankiewicz and Orson Welles.
- 56 [Captain, played by Strother Martin, speaking:] What we've got here is failure to communicate.
Cool Hand Luke (1967). Screenplay by Donn Pearce and Frank R. Pierson.
- 57 [Caption:] Marriage isn't a word—it's a sentence!
The Crowd (1928). Screenplay by King Vidor.

- 58 [The Joker, played by Heath Ledger, speaking:] Why so serious?
The Dark Knight (2008). Screenplay by Jonathan Nolan and Christopher Nolan.
- 59 [Alfred, played by Michael Caine, speaking:] Some men aren't looking for anything logical, like money. They can't be bought, bullied, reasoned, or negotiated with. Some men just want to watch the world burn.
The Dark Knight (2008). Screenplay by Jonathan Nolan and Christopher Nolan.
- 60 [Robert Gold, played by Dirk Bogarde, speaking to Diana Scott, played by Julie Christie:] Your idea of fidelity is not having more than one man in bed at the same time.
Darling (1965). Screenplay by Frederic Raphael.
- 61 [Frank Costello, played by Jack Nicholson, speaking:] I don't want to be a product of my environment. I want my environment to be a product of me.
The Departed (2006). Screenplay by William Monahan.
- 62 [Carlotta Vance, played by Marie Dressler, responding to Jean Harlow's question, "Do you know that the guy said that machinery is going to take the place of every profession?"] Oh my dear, that's something you need never worry about.
Dinner at Eight (1933). Screenplay by Frances Marion and Herman J. Mankiewicz.
- 63 [Harry Callahan, played by Clint Eastwood, speaking while holding a gun to a bank robber's head:] I know what you're thinking. Did he fire six shots or only five? Well, to tell the truth, in all this excitement, I've kind of lost track myself. But being as this is a .44 Magnum, the most powerful handgun in the world, and would blow your head clean off, you've got to ask yourself one question: "Do I feel lucky?" Well, do ya, punk?
Dirty Harry (1971). Screenplay by Harry Julian Fink.
- 64 [Sonny, played by Al Pacino, rallying crowd:] Attica! Attica!
Dog Day Afternoon (1975). Screenplay by Frank Pierson.

Hell's Angels (1930). Screenplay by Howard Estabrook and Harry Behn. Often misquoted as "Do you mind if I put on something more comfortable?" or "Excuse me while I slip into something more comfortable."
- 95 [Scott Carey, played by Grant Williams, speaking:] So close, the Infinitesimal and the Infinite. But suddenly I knew they were really the two ends of the same concept. The unbelievably small and the unbelievably vast eventually meet, like the closing of a gigantic circle.
The Incredible Shrinking Man (1957). Screenplay by Richard Matheson.
- 96 [Scott Carey, played by Grant Williams, speaking:] That Existence begins and ends, is Man's conception, not Nature's. And I felt my body dwindling, melting, becoming nothing. My fears melted away, and in their place came acceptance. All this vast majesty of creation, it had to mean something, and then I meant something, too. Yes, smaller than the smallest, I meant something, too. To God there is no zero. I still exist.
The Incredible Shrinking Man (1957). Screenplay by Richard Matheson.
- 97 [Dr. Moreau, played by Charles Laughton, speaking:] They [the natives] are restless tonight.

Langley, Florence Ryerson, and Edgar Allan Woolf.
- 196 [The Wizard, played by Frank Morgan, speaking to the Tin Woodman, played by Jack Haley:]
As for you, my galvanized friend, you want a heart. You don't know how lucky you are not to have one. Hearts will never be practical until they can be made unbreakable.
The Wizard of Oz (1939). Screenplay by Noel
Langley, Florence Ryerson, and Edgar Allan Woolf.
- 197 [The Wizard, played by Frank Morgan, speaking:] A heart is not judged by how much you love; but by how much you are loved by others.

The Wizard of Oz (1939). Screenplay by Noel Langley, Florence Ryerson, and Edgar Allan Woolf.

- 198 [Dorothy Gale, played by Judy Garland, speaking:] If I ever go looking for my heart's desire again, I won't look any further than my own backyard, because if it isn't there, I never really lost it to begin with.

The Wizard of Oz (1939). Screenplay by Noel Langley, Florence Ryerson, and Edgar Allan Woolf.

- 199 [John Talbot, played by Claude Rains, speaking:] Even a man who is pure in heart and says his prayers by night, may become a wolf when the wolfbane blooms. And the autumn moon is bright.

The Wolf Man (1941). Screenplay by Curt Siodmak.

- 200 [Cathy Linton, played by Merle Oberon, speaking:] Go on, Heathcliff, run away. Bring me back the world!

Wuthering Heights (1939). Screenplay by Ben Hecht.

William "Bill" Finger

U.S. comic book creator, 1917–1974

- I [Bruce Wayne's thoughts:] I must have a disguise. Criminals are a superstitious cowardly lot. So my disguise must be able to strike terror into their hearts. I must be a creature of the night, black, terrible . . . a . . . a— [A huge bat flies in the open window.] A bat! That's it. It's an omen. . . I shall become a BAT!

Detective Comics (comic book), Nov. 1939

James Finlayson

Scottish actor, 1887–1953

- I [Professor Finlayson, played by James Finlayson, speaking:] D-ohhhh!

Pardon Us (motion picture) (1931). Became well-known through the cartoon character Homer Simpson of the television show The Simpsons. Finlayson's usage of the exclamation is slightly different from Homer's in that Finlayson used it to imply that another person has said or done something stupid, whereas Homer uses it to imply that he himself has said or done something stupid. See Groening 5

Louis Fischer

U.S. author and journalist, 1896–1970

- I "An eye for an eye" . . . in the end, would make everybody blind.

Gandhi and Stalin ch. 6 (1947). "An eye for an eye leaves the whole world blind" is frequently attributed to M. K. Gandhi. The Gandhi Institute for Nonviolence states that the Gandhi family believes it is an authentic Gandhi quotation, but no example of its use by the Indian leader has ever been discovered. A similar metaphor about "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" resulting in everyone being blind and toothless appeared in Official Report of the Debates of the House of Commons of the Dominion of Canada, 5 Feb. 1914. See Bible 61

Williston Fish

U.S. lawyer and author, 1858–1939

- I To lovers I devise their imaginary world, with whatever they may need, as the stars of the sky, the red, red roses by the wall, the snow of the hawthorn, the sweet strains of music, or aught else they may desire to figure to each other the lastingness and beauty of their love.

"A Last Will," Harper's Weekly, 3 Sept. 1898

Carrie Fisher

U.S. actress and writer, 1956–2016

- I Here's how men think. . . Sex, work—and those are reversible, depending on age—sex, work, food, sports, and lastly, begrudgingly, relationships. And here's how women think. Relationships, relationships, relationships, work, sex, shopping, weight, food.

Surrender the Pink ch. 9 (1990)

Dorothy Canfield Fisher

U.S. author, 1879–1958

- I A mother is not a person to lean on but a person to make leaning unnecessary.

Her Son's Wife ch. 37 (1926)

H. A. L. Fisher

English historian, 1856–1940

- I Men wiser and more learned than I have discerned in history a plot, a rhythm, a predetermined pattern. These harmonies are concealed from me. I can see only one emergency following upon another as wave follows upon wave.

A History of Europe preface (1935)

- 2 Purity of race does not exist. Europe is a continent of energetic mongrels.

A History of Europe ch. 1 (1935)

Harry C. "Bud" Fisher

U.S. cartoonist, 1885–1954

- 1 Mutt and Jeff.

Title of comic strip (1907)

Irving Fisher

U.S. economist, 1867–1947

- 1 [Statement to Purchasing Agents Association, New York, 15 Oct. 1929, shortly before stock market crash:] [Stock prices have reached] what looks like a permanently high plateau.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 16 Oct. 1929

John Arbuthnot Fisher

British admiral, 1841–1920

- 1 Never contradict. Never explain. Never apologize.

Letter to the Editor, Times (London), 5 Sept. 1919. Littell's Living Age, 30 Dec. 1893, quoted Benjamin Jowett: "Never retreat, never explain, never apologize."

See Disraeli 32; Elbert Hubbard 2

M. F. K. Fisher

U.S. writer, 1908–1992

- 1 When I write of hunger, I am really writing about love and the hunger for it, and warmth and the love of it and the hunger for it . . . and then the warmth and richness and fine reality of hunger satisfied . . . and it is all one.

The Gastronomical Me foreword (1943). Ellipses in the original.

George H. Fitch

U.S. author and journalist, 1877–1915

- 1 A reporter is a young man who blocks out the first draft of history each day on a rheumatic typewriter.

Lincoln (Nebr.) Daily Star, 3 July 1914. "The newspapers are making morning after morning the rough draft of history" appeared in The State (Columbia, S.C.), 5 Dec. 1905.

Edward FitzGerald

English poet and translator, 1809–1883

- 4 Who is the potter, pray, and who the pot?
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám st. 60 (1859)
- 5 Mrs. Browning's death is rather a relief to me,
I must say: no more Aurora Leighs, thank God!
A woman of real genius, I know; but what is the upshot of it all? She and her sex had better mind the kitchen and their children; and perhaps the poor: except in such things as little novels, they only devote themselves to what men do much better, leaving that which men do worse or not at all.
Letter to W. H. Thompson, 15 July 1861
- 6 Indeed the Idols I have loved so long
Have done my credit much wrong in Men's eye
Have drown'd my Glory in a shallow Cup
And sold my Reputation for a Song.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, 2nd ed., st. 101 (1868)
- 7 Taste is the feminine of genius.
Letter to James Russell Lowell, Oct. 1877
- 8 A Book of Verses underneath the Bough,
A Jug of Wine, a Loaf of Bread—and Thou
Beside me singing in the Wilderness—
Oh, Wilderness were Paradise enow!
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, 4th ed., st. 11 (1879).
In the first edition (1859) these words read: "Here with a Loaf of Bread beneath the Bough, / A Flask of Wine, a Book of Verse—and Thou / Beside me singing in the Wilderness— / And Wilderness is Paradise enow."

F. Scott Fitzgerald

U.S. writer, 1896–1940

- 1 "I know myself," he cried, "but that is all."
This Side of Paradise ch. 5 (1920)
- 2 An author ought to write for the youth of his own generation, the critics of the next, and the schoolmasters of ever after.
Letter to Booksellers' Convention, Apr. 1920
- 3 The victor belongs to the spoils.
The Beautiful and Damned epigraph (1922)
- 4 Tales of the Jazz Age.
Title of book (1922)
- 5 This is to tell you about a young man named Ernest Hemingway, who lives in Paris (an American), writes for the Transatlantic Review and has a brilliant future. . . . I'd look him up right away. He's the real thing.
Letter to Maxwell Perkins, Oct. 1924
- 6 Then wear the gold hat, if that will move her;
If you can bounce high, bounce for her too,
Till she cry, "Lover, gold-hatted, high-bouncing lover,
I must have you!"
The Great Gatsby epigraph (1925)
- 7 The intimate revelations of young men, or at least the terms in which they express them, are usually plagiaristic and marred by obvious suppressions.
The Great Gatsby ch. 1 (1925)
- 8 Reserving judgments is a matter of infinite hope.
The Great Gatsby ch. 1 (1925)
- 9 A sense of the fundamental decencies is parcelled out unequally at birth.
The Great Gatsby ch. 1 (1925)
- 10 I wanted no more riotous excursions with privileged glimpses into the human heart.
The Great Gatsby ch. 1 (1925)
- 11 If personality is an unbroken series of successful gestures, then there was something gorgeous about him, some heightened sensitivity to the promises of life, as if he were related to one of those intricate machines that register earthquakes ten thousand miles away.
The Great Gatsby ch. 1 (1925)
- 12 It is what preyed on Gatsby, what foul dust floated in the wake of his dreams that temporarily closed out my interest in the abortive sorrows and short-winded elations of men.
The Great Gatsby ch. 1 (1925)
- 13 Now I was going to bring back all such things into my life and become again that most limited of all specialists, the "well-rounded man." This isn't just an epigram—life is much more successfully looked at from a single window, after all.
The Great Gatsby ch. 1 (1925)
- 14 They had spent a year in France for no particular reason, and then drifted here and there unrestfully wherever people played polo and were rich together.
The Great Gatsby ch. 1 (1925)
- 15 That's the best thing a girl can be in this world, a beautiful little fool.
The Great Gatsby ch. 1 (1925)
- 16 I like large parties. They're so intimate. At small parties there isn't any privacy.
The Great Gatsby ch. 3 (1925)
- 17 Every one suspects himself of at least one of the cardinal virtues, and this is mine: I am one of the few honest people that I have ever known.
The Great Gatsby ch. 3 (1925)
- 18 I remembered, of course, that the World's Series had been fixed in 1919, but if I had thought of it at all I would have thought of it as something that merely happened, the end of an inevitable chain. It never occurred to me that one man could start to play with the faith of fifty million people.

The Great Gatsby ch. 4 (1925)

- 19 His imagination had never really accepted them as his parents at all. The truth was that Jay Gatsby . . . sprang from his Platonic conception of himself. He was a son of God—a phrase which, if it means anything, means just that—and he must be about His Father's business, the service of a vast, vulgar, and meretricious beauty.

The Great Gatsby ch. 6 (1925)

- 20 Gatsby saw that the blocks of the sidewalks really formed a ladder and mounted to a secret place above the trees—he could climb to it, if he climbed alone, and once there he could suck on the pap of life, gulp down the incomparable milk of wonder.

The Great Gatsby ch. 6 (1925)

- 21 He knew that when he kissed this girl, and forever wed his unutterable vision to her perishable breath, his mind would never romp again like the mind of God.

The Great Gatsby ch. 6 (1925)

- 22 Then he kissed her. At his lips' touch she blossomed for him like a flower and the incarnation was complete.

The Great Gatsby ch. 6 (1925)

- 23 What'll we do with ourselves this afternoon . . . and the day after that, and the next thirty years?

The Great Gatsby ch. 7 (1925)

- 24 Her voice is full of money.

The Great Gatsby ch. 7 (1925)

- 25 There was no difference between men, in intelligence or race, so profound as the difference between the sick and the well.

The Great Gatsby ch. 7 (1925)

- 26 Thirty—the promise of a decade of loneliness, a thinning list of single men to know, a thinning brief-case of enthusiasm, thinning hair.

The Great Gatsby ch. 7 (1925)

- 27 [Remark by attendee at Gatsby's funeral:] The poor son-of-a-bitch.

The Great Gatsby ch. 9 (1925). Dorothy Parker made the same comment after Fitzgerald died in 1940.

- 28 That's my Middle West—not the wheat or the prairies or the lost Swede towns, but the thrilling returning trains of my youth, and the street lamps and sleigh bells in the frosty dark and the shadows of holly wreaths thrown by lighted windows on the snow. I am part of that, a little solemn with the feel of those long winters, a little complacent from growing up in the Carraway house in a city where dwellings are still called through decades by a family's name.

The Great Gatsby ch. 9 (1925)

- 29 I see now that this has been a story of the West, after all—Tom and Gatsby, Daisy and Jordan and I, were all Westerners, and perhaps we possessed some deficiency in common which made us subtly unadaptable to Eastern life.

The Great Gatsby ch. 9 (1925)

- 30 "I'm thirty," I said. "I'm five years too old to lie to myself and call it honor."

The Great Gatsby ch. 9 (1925)

- 31 They were careless people, Tom and Daisy—they smashed up things and creatures and then retreated back into their money or their vast carelessness, or whatever it was that kept them together, and let other people clean up the mess they had made.

The Great Gatsby ch. 9 (1925)

- 32 And as the moon rose higher the inessential houses began to melt away until gradually I became aware of the old island here that flowered once for Dutch sailors' eyes—a fresh, green breast of the new world.

The Great Gatsby ch. 9 (1925)

- 33 For a transitory enchanted moment man must have held his breath in the presence of this continent, compelled into an aesthetic contemplation he neither understood nor desired, face to face for the last time in history with something commensurate to his capacity for wonder.

The Great Gatsby ch. 9 (1925)

- 34 And as I sat there brooding on the old, unknown world, I thought of Gatsby's wonder when he first picked out the green light at the end of Daisy's dock. He had come a long way to this blue lawn, and his dream must have seemed so close that he could hardly fail to grasp it. He did not know that it was already behind him, somewhere back in that vast obscurity beyond the city, where the dark fields of the republic rolled on under the night.
The Great Gatsby ch. 9 (1925)
- 35 Gatsby believed in the green light, the orgastic future that year by year recedes before us. It eluded us then, but that's no matter—tomorrow we will run faster, stretch out our arms farther. . . . And one fine morning—
So we beat on, boats against the current, borne back ceaselessly into the past.
The Great Gatsby ch. 9 (1925). Ellipsis in the original. In later editions, the word orgastic was changed to orgiastic, but the former was Fitzgerald's original choice.
- 36 Let me tell you about the very rich. They are different from you and me. They possess and enjoy early, and it does something to them, makes them soft where we are hard, and cynical where we are trustful.
"The Rich Boy" (1926)
See Hemingway 21
- 37 In the spring of '27, something bright and alien flashed across the sky. A young Minnesotan [Charles Lindbergh] who seemed to have had nothing to do with his generation did a heroic thing, and for a moment people set down their glasses in country clubs and speakeasies and thought of their old best dreams.
"Echoes of the Jazz Age" (1931)
- 38 The hangover became a part of the day as well allowed-for as the Spanish siesta.
"My Lost City" (1932)
- 39 One writes of scars healed, a loose parallel to the pathology of the skin, but there is no such thing in the life of an individual. There are open wounds, shrunk sometimes to the size of a pin-prick but wounds still. The marks of suffering are more comparable to the loss of a finger, or of the sight of an eye. We may not miss them, either, for one minute in a year, but if we should there is nothing to be done about it.
Tender Is the Night bk. 2, ch. 11 (1934)
- 40 The test of a first-rate intelligence is the ability to hold two opposed ideas in the mind at the same time, and still retain the ability to function.
"The Crack-Up" (1936)
- 41 In a real dark night of the soul it is always three o'clock in the morning, day after day.
"Handle with Care" (1936)
See St. John of the Cross 1
- 42 It was about then [1920] that I wrote a line which certain people will not let me forget: "She was a faded but still lovely woman of twenty-seven."
"Early Success" (1937)
- 43 When I was your age I lived with a great dream. The dream grew and I learned how to speak of it and make people listen. Then the dream divided one day when I decided to marry your mother after all. . . . I was a man divided—she wanted me to work too much for her and not enough for my dream. She realized too late that work was dignity, and the only dignity, and tried to atone for it by working herself, but it was too late and she broke and is broken forever.
Letter to Frances Scott Fitzgerald, 7 July 1938
- 44 I am not a great man, but sometimes I think the impersonal and objective quality of my talent and the sacrifices of it, in pieces, to preserve its essential value has some sort of epic grandeur.
Letter to Frances Scott Fitzgerald, Spring 1940
- 45 The wise and tragic sense of life. By this I mean . . . the sense that life is essentially a cheat and its conditions are those of defeat, and that the redeeming things are not "happiness and pleasure" but the deeper satisfactions that come out of struggle.
Letter to Frances Scott Fitzgerald, 5 Oct. 1940
- 46 There are no second acts in American lives.
The Last Tycoon "Hollywood, etc." (1941). In his essay "My Lost City" (1932), Fitzgerald had written: "I once thought that there were no second acts in American lives."

- 47 Show me a hero and I will write you a tragedy.
The Crack-Up “Note-Books” (1945)
- 48 No grand idea was ever born in a conference,
but a lot of foolish ideas have died there.
The Crack-Up “Note-Books” (1945)
- 49 Egyptian Proverb: The worst things:
To be in bed and sleep not,
To want for one who comes not,
To try to please and please not.
The Crack-Up “Note-Books” (1945)
- 50 Listen, little Elia: draw your chair up close to the edge of the precipice and I’ll tell you a story.
The Crack-Up “Note-Books” (1945)
- 51 It is in the thirties that we want friends. In the forties we know they won’t save us any more than love did.
The Crack-Up “Note-Books” (1945)
- 52 All good writing is swimming under water and holding your breath.

Zelda Fitzgerald

U.S. writer, 1900–1948

- 1 [On her husband F. Scott Fitzgerald’s use of her diary and letters:] Mr. Fitzgerald—I believe that is how he spells his name—seems to believe that plagiarism begins at home.
Quoted in N.Y. Tribune, 12 Apr. 1922
- 2 Ernest, don’t you think Al Jolson is greater than Jesus?

Robert Fitzsimmons

English-born New Zealand boxer, 1862–1917

- 1 The bigger they are, the further they have to fall.
Quoted in Brooklyn Daily Eagle, 11 Aug. 1900. Garson O’Toole has discovered that “The bigger he is the harder he’ll fall” appeared in a boxing article in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, 12 Aug. 1884. “The larger they are, the harder they fall” was printed in the Denver
Post, 28 Aug. 1899.

Jeff Flake

U.S. politician, 1962–

- 1 [Of the Republican Party:] Never has a party abandoned and fled its principles and deeply held beliefs so quickly as my party did in the face of the nativist juggernaut. We have become strangers to ourselves. . . . if we’re going to cloister ourselves in the alternative truth of an erratic leader . . . then my party might not deserve to lead.
Speech to National Press Club, Washington, D.C., 15
Mar. 2018

Edward J. Flanagan

U.S. priest, 1886–1948

- 1 There are no bad boys.
Quoted in Fulton and Will Ousler, Father Flanagan of Boys Town (1949). In the 1938 film Boys Town, Spencer Tracy, playing Father Flanagan, says “There’s no such thing in the world as a bad boy.”

Gustave Flaubert

French novelist, 1821–1880

- 1 Human speech is like a cracked kettle on which we tap crude rhythms for bears to dance to, while we long to make music that will melt the stars.
Madame Bovary pt. 1, ch. 12 (1857) (translation by Francis Steegmuller)
- 2 Madame Bovary, c’est moi!
I am Madame Bovary.
Quoted in René Descharnes, Flaubert (1909)

Frederick Gard Fleay

English literary scholar, 1831–1909

- 1 In criticism, as in other matters, the test that decides between science and empiricism is this: “Can you say, not only of what kind, but how much? If you cannot weigh, measure, number your results, however you may be convinced yourself, you must not hope to convince others, or claim the position of an investigator; you are merely a guesser, a propounder of hypotheses.”

(1913)

Charles Fleischer

U.S. entertainer, 1950–

- 1 If you remember the '60s, you really weren't there.
Quoted in L.A. Times, 13 June 1982

Alexander Fleming

English bacteriologist, 1881–1955

- 1 It has been demonstrated that a species of penicillium produces in culture a very powerful antibacterial substance which affects different bacteria in different degrees. . . . In addition to its possible use in the treatment of bacterial infections penicillin is certainly useful . . . for its power of inhibiting unwanted microbes in bacterial cultures so that penicillin insensitive bacteria can readily be isolated.
“On the Bacterial Action of Cultures of a Penicillium, with Special Reference to Their Use in the Isolation of B. Influenzae” (1929)

Ian Fleming

English novelist, 1908–1964

- 1 [Said by James Bond in introducing himself]
Bond—James Bond.
Casino Royale ch. 7 (1953)
- 2 Live and Let Die.
Title of book (1954)
- 3 You have a double-o number, I believe—007, if I remember right. The significance of that double-o number, they tell me, is that you have had to kill a man in the course of some assignment.
Live and Let Die ch. 7 (1954)

- 4 From Russia with Love.

Title of book (1957)

- 5 The licence to kill for the Secret Service, the double-o prefix, was a great honor.

Dr. No ch. 2 (1958)

- 6 A medium Vodka dry Martini—with a slice of lemon peel. Shaken and not stirred.

Dr. No ch. 14 (1958). The sentence “The waiter brought the Martinis, shaken and not stirred, as Bond had stipulated” appeared in Fleming’s Diamonds Are Forever (1956).

- 7 They have a saying in Chicago: “Once is happenstance. Twice is coincidence. The third time it’s enemy action.”

Goldfinger ch. 14 (1959)

- 8 You Only Live Twice.

Title of book (1964). The book’s epigraph: “You only live twice: / Once when you are born / And once when you look death in the face,” with the note “after Matsuo Basho, the Japanese poet (1644–1694).”

- 9 [Notebook entry]: Older women are best because they always think they may be doing it for the last time.

Quoted in John Pearson, The Life of Ian Fleming (1966)
See Benjamin Franklin 23

Peter Fleming

English travel writer, 1907–1971

- 1 Long Island represents the American’s idea of what God would have done with Nature if he’d had the money.

Letter to Rupert Fleming, 29 Sept. 1929

Andrew Fletcher of Saltoun

Scottish patriot, 1655–1716

Ed Fletcher

U.S. musician, fl. 1982

- 1 Don’t push me ’cause I’m close to the edge
I’m trying not to lose my head

It's like a jungle sometimes, it makes me wonder
How I keep from going under.
"The Message" (song) (1982)

Curt Flood

U.S. baseball player, 1938–1997

- 1 After twelve years in the major leagues, I do not feel I am a piece of property to be bought and sold irrespective of my wishes.

Letter to Bowie Kuhn, 24 Dec. 1969

Jean-Pierre Claris de Florian

French writer, 1755–1794

- 1 Love's pleasure lasts but a moment;
Love's sorrow lasts all through life.

Célestine (1784)

Errol Flynn

Australian actor, 1909–1959

- 1 My main problem is reconciling my gross habits with my net income.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 6 Mar. 1955

Dario Fo

Italian playwright, 1926–2016

- 1 The worker knows 300 words while the boss knows 1000. That is why he is the boss.

Grande Pantomima (1968)

Ferdinand Foch

French military leader, 1851–1929

- 1 [Of the Treaty of Versailles, 1919:] *Ce n'est pas un
traité de paix, c'est un armistice de vingt ans.*

This is not a peace treaty, it is an armistice for twenty years.

Quoted in Paul Reynaud, Mémoires (1963)

- 2 [Dispatch during first Battle of the Marne, 8 Sept.
1914:] Mon centre cède, ma droite recule, situation excellente. J'attaque!

My center is giving way, my right is retreating, situation excellent, I am attacking.

Attributed in Raymond Recouly, *Foch: Le Vainqueur
de la Guerre* (1919). Othon Guerlac, Les Citations Françaises, labels this as obviously being a legend, citing the Marquis de Vogué's speech to the Académie Française, 5 Feb. 1920. An early English-language version appeared in the Washington Post, 25 July 1915: "My left has been forced back, my right is routed; I shall attack with the center."

Jonathan Safran Foer

U.S. writer, 1977–

- 1 I've thought myself out of happiness one million times, but never once into it.

Extremely Loud and Incredibly Close (2005)

John Fogerty

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1945–

- 1 Some folks are born made to wave the flag,
Ooh, they're red, white, and blue.

And when the band plays "Hail to the Chief,"
Oh, they point the cannon at you, Lord,

It ain't me, it ain't me,

I ain't no senator's son,

It ain't me, it ain't me,

I ain't no fortunate one.

"Fortunate Son" (song) (1969)

J. Foley

British songwriter, 1906–1970

- 1 Old soldiers never die,
They simply fade away.

"Old Soldiers Never Die" (song) (1916). This song was copyrighted by Foley, but he may well not have been the author. The 1916 publication of the song lyrics was in a book by Bruce Bairnsfather, Bullets & Billets.

Prête-moi ta plume
Pour écrire un mot.
By the light of the moon,
My friend Pierrot,
Lend me your pen
To write a word.
"Au Clair de la Lune"
- 5 Be kind to your web-footed friends
For a duck may be somebody's mother,
Be kind to your friends in the swamp
Where the weather is always damp.
"Be Kind to Your Webfooted Friends"
- 6 You may think that this is the end . . .
Well you're right!
"Be Kind to Your Webfooted Friends"
- 7 Blow the man down, to me aye, aye, blow the man down!
Whether he's white man or black man or
brown,
Give me some time to blow the man down.
"Blow the Man Down"
- 8 The pony jump, he run, he pitch,
He threw my master in the ditch,
He died and the jury wondered why,
The verdict was the blue-tail fly.
"The Blue-Tail Fly"
- 9 Jimmy, crack corn, and I don't care,
Old massa's gone away.
"The Blue-Tail Fly"
- 10 O ye'll tak' the high road, and I'll tak' the low
road,
And I'll be in Scotland afore ye,
But me and my true love will never meet again,
On the bonnie, bonnie banks o' Loch Lomon.
"The Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomon"

- 13 As I walked out in the streets of Laredo,
As I walked out in Laredo one day,
I spied a poor cowboy wrapped up in white linen,
Wrapped up in white linen as cold as the clay.
"The Cowboy's Lament"
- 14 Oh, bang the drum slowly and play the fife
lowly,
Play the Dead March as you carry me along;
Take me to the green valley, there lay the sod
o'er me,
For I'm a young cowboy and I know I've done
wrong.
"The Cowboy's Lament"
- 15 For meeting is a pleasure and parting is a grief
And a false-hearted lover's far worse than a thief
A thief will but rob you and take all you've saved
But an inconstant lover will turn you to the grave.

"O Dear, What Can the Matter Be?"
- 58 The old gray mare she ain't what she used to be,
Many long years ago.
"Old Gray Mare"
- 59 Old MacDonald had a farm, E-I-E-I-O.
"Old MacDonald"
- 60 On top of Old Smokey,
All covered with snow,
I lost my true lover,
For courting too slow.
"On Top of Old Smokey"
- 61 Oh, I went down South for to see my Sal,
Singing Polly Wolly Doodle all the day.
"Polly-Wolly-Doodle"
- 62 Pop Goes the Weasel.
Title of song (1853)
- 63 Come and sit by my side if you love me,
Do not hasten to bid me adieu,
But remember the Red River Valley
And the girl that has loved you so true.
"Red River Valley." In later versions the last line quoted became "the cowboy who loved you so true" or
"the cowboy who's waiting for you."
- 64 Rise and shine,
And give God the glory,
For the year of jubilee.
"Rise and Shine"
- 65 There is a house in New Orleans,
They call the Rising Sun,
It's been the ruin of many poor girls,
And me, O Lord, for one.
"The Rising Sun Blues"
- 66 Go tell my baby sister,
Never do like I have done,
Tell her shun that house in New Orleans,
They call the Rising Sun.
"The Rising Sun Blues"
- 67 Row, row, row your boat
Gently down the stream.
Merrily, merrily, merrily, merrily,
Life is but a dream.
"Row, Row, Row Your Boat"
See Calderón de la Barca 1; Carroll 44; Li Po 1;
Proverbs 169
- 68 Where are you going? To Scarborough Fair?
Parsley, sage, rosemary and thyme,
Remember me to a bonny lass there,
For once she was a true lover of mine.
"Scarborough Fair"
- 69 She'll be comin' round the mountain,
When she comes. . . .
She'll be drivin' six white horses,
When she comes.
"She'll Be Comin' Round the Mountain"
- 70 Around her neck she wore a yellow ribbon.
"She Wore a Yellow Ribbon"
See Levine 1
- 71 Mamma's little baby loves shortnin' bread.
"Shortnin' Bread"
- 72 Skip to my Lou, my darling.
"Skip to My Lou"
- 73 Sur le pont d'Avignon l'on y danse, l'on y danse.
On the bridge of Avignon they dance, they dance.
"Sur le Pont d'Avignon"
- 74 Swing low, sweet chariot,
Coming for to carry me home.
"Swing Low, Sweet Chariot"
- 75 There is a tavern in the town,
And there my true love sits him down,
And drinks his wine 'mid laughter free,
And never, never thinks of me.
"There Is a Tavern in the Town"
- 76 This train is bound for glory, this train!
"This Train"
- 77 Hang down your head, Tom Dooley,
Hang down your head and cry,
Hang down your head, Tom Dooley,
Poor boy, you're bound to die.
"Tom Dooley"
- 78 O Paddy dear, an' did ye hear the news that's goin' round?
The shamrock is by law forbid to grow on Irish ground!
No more St. Patrick's Day we'll keep, his color can't be seen,
For there's a cruel law agin the wearin' o' the Green!
"The Wearing o' the Green"

79 For they're hangin' men and women there for wearin' o' the Green.

"The Wearing o' the Green"

80 We're here

Because

We're here.

"We're Here"

81 Just like a tree that's standing by the water,

We shall not be moved.

"We Shall Not Be Moved"

82 Lord, I want to be in that number

When the saints come marchin' in.

"When the Saints Come Marchin' In"

83 Whoopie ti yi yo, git along, little dogies,

It's your misfortune and none of my own,

Whoopie ti yi yo, git along, little dogies,

For you know Wyoming will be your new home.

"Whoopie Ti Yi Yo, Git Along, Little Dogies"

84 Yankee Doodle came to town

Riding on a pony

He stuck a feather in his hat

And called it macaroni.

"Yankee Doodle"

85 Yankee Doodle, keep it up,

Yankee Doodle dandy,

Mind the music and the step,

And with the girls be handy.

"Yankee Doodle"

86 There's a yellow rose in Texas, that I am going to see,

No other darky knows her, no darky only me.

She cried so when I left her it like to broke my heart,

And if I ever find her, we nevermore will part.

"Yellow Rose of Texas." Later versions replaced the word "darky" with "soldier."

Jane Fonda

U.S. actress and businesswoman, 1937–

1 A man has every season while a woman only has the right to spring.

Quoted in Daily Mail (London), 13 Sept. 1989

Lynn Fontanne

English actress, 1887–1983

1 [Definition of acting, 1954:] We move about the stage without bumping into the furniture or each other.

Quoted in Morning Advocate (Baton Rouge, La.), 24
Jan. 1955

See Coward 14

Bernard de Fontenelle

French philosopher, 1657–1757

1 We have already begun to fly; several persons, here and there, have found the secret to fitting wings to themselves, of setting them in motion, so that they are held up in the air and are carried across streams. . . . The art of flying is only just being born; it will be perfected, and some day we will go as far as the moon.

Entretiens sur la Pluralité des Mondes Habités (1686)

2 Il n'y a point d'autres histoires anciennes que les fables.

There are no ancient histories other than
fables.

De l'Origine des Fables (1724)

See Voltaire 13

3 Not long ago he [Fontenelle, as a nonagenarian] said to a young woman, to show her how impressed he was by her beauty, "Ah, would that I were only 80 years old!"

Reported in Friedrich Melchior von Grimm,
Correspondance Littéraire, Philosophique et Critique
(1813). This occurs, in French, in a letter dated 1 Feb.
1757.

4 Du sublime au ridicule il n'y a qu'un pas.

From the sublime to the ridiculous it is only one step.

Attributed in Pensées Nouvelles et Philosophiques (1777)

Samuel Foote

English actor and playwright, 1720–1777

1 He is not only dull himself, but the cause of dullness in others.

Quoted in James Boswell, Life of Samuel Johnson
(1791) (entry for 1783)

See Shakespeare 61

2 "Foote," (said lord Sandwich) "I have often wondered what catastrophe would bring you to your end; but I think, that you must either die of the p-x, or the halter.”—“My lord,” (replied Foote instantaneously) “that will depend upon one of two contingencies;—whether I embrace your lordship’s mistress, or your lordship’s principles.”

Quoted in Percival Stockdale, The Memoirs of the Life and Writings of Percival Stockdale (1809). An earlier, somewhat less punchy version of the same anecdote appeared in Wits Museum, or the New London Jester (ca. 1780). A still earlier version, involving Foote and an unnamed nobleman, was printed in the Derby Mercury, 3 Aug. 1764. The exchange is frequently attributed to Sandwich and John Wilkes, but the earliest evidence linking it to them is in a 1935 book.

- 3 So she went into the garden to cut a cabbage-leaf to make an apple-pie; and at the same time a great she-bear coming up the street, pops its head into the shop. “What! no soap?” So he died, and she very imprudently married the barber; and there were present the Picninnies, and the Joblillies, and the Garyulies, and the grand Panjandrum himself, with the little round button at top; and they all fell to playing the game of catch as catch can, till the gun powder ran out at the heels of their boots. Quoted in Maria Edgeworth, Harry and Lucy (1825). Foote composed this nonsense to test the memory of actor Charles Macklin, who had claimed he could repeat any speech. The passage introduced into the English language the phrases grand Panjandrum (pretentious person) and (perhaps) no soap (no good).

Christine Blasey Ford

U.S. psychologist, 1966–

- 1 [Describing her memory of an alleged sexual assault by Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh:] Indelible in the hippocampus is the laughter. U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee testimony, 27 Sept. 2018

Ford Madox Ford (Ford Madox Hueffer)

English writer, 1873–1939

- 1 This is the saddest story I have ever heard. The Good Soldier pt. 1, sec. 1 (1915)
- 2 Only two classes of books are of universal appeal: the very best and the very worst. Joseph Conrad pt. 3, sec. 1 (1924)
- 3 A fervent young admirer exclaimed: “By Jove, the Good Soldier is the finest novel in the English language!” whereupon my friend John Rodker, who has always had a properly tempered admiration for my work, remarked in his clear, slow drawl: “Ah, yes. It is, but you have left out a word. It is the finest French novel in the English language!”

The Good Soldier dedicatory letter (1927 edition)

Gerald R. Ford (Leslie L. King, Jr.)

U.S. president, 1913–2006

- 1 An impeachable offense is whatever a majority of the House of Representatives considers [it] to be at a given moment in history. Remarks in House of Representatives, 15 Apr. 1970
- 2 I am a Ford, not a Lincoln. Remarks on taking the vice-presidential oath, 6 Dec. 1973
- 3 My fellow Americans, our long national nightmare [the Watergate scandal] is over. Our Constitution works; our great Republic is a government of laws and not of men. Here the people rule. Remarks upon taking oath of office, 9 Aug. 1974 See John Adams 4; Archibald Cox 1; James Harrington 1
- 4 Now, THEREFORE, I, Gerald R. Ford, President of the United States, pursuant to the pardon power conferred upon me by Article II, Section 2, of the Constitution, have granted and by these presents do grant a full, free, and absolute pardon unto Richard Nixon for all offenses against the United States which he, Richard Nixon, has committed or may have committed or taken part in during the period from January 20, 1969 through August 9, 1974. Proclamation 4311, 8 Sept. 1974
- 5 There is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe. Televised presidential debate, 6 Oct. 1976
- 6 If the Government is big enough to give you everything you want, it is big enough to take away everything you have. Quoted in John F. Parker, If Elected, I Promise (1960). Although this is associated with Ford, it appeared as early as 1952: “If your government is big enough to give you everything you want, it is big enough to take away from you everything you have” (Paul Harvey, Remember These Things).

Harrison Ford

U.S. actor, 1942–

- 1 [Remark to George Lucas about Ford's lines in the 1977 motion picture Star Wars:] George, you can type this shit, but you sure as hell can't say it. Quoted in The Guardian, 24 Apr. 1999

Henry Ford

U.S. industrialist, 1863–1947

- 1 [On the Model T Ford, 1909:] Any customer can have a car painted any color that he wants so long as it is black. My Life and Work ch. 2 (1922). Coauthored with Samuel Crowther.
- 2 History is more or less bunk. Quoted in Chicago Tribune, 25 May 1916
- 3 Nothing is particularly hard if you divide it into small jobs. Quoted in Reader's Digest, Mar. 1934
- 4 Whether you believe you can do a thing or not, you are right. Attributed in Reader's Digest, Sept. 1947

John Ford

English playwright, 1586–1639

- 1 Of one so young, so rich in nature's store,
Who could not say, 'tis pity she's a whore?
'Tis Pity She's a Whore act 5, sc. 6 (1633)

Lena Guilbert Ford

English songwriter, 1870–1916

- 1 Keep the Home-fires burning,
While your hearts are yearning,
Though your lads are far away
They dream of Home.
There's a silver lining
Through the dark cloud shining;
Turn the dark cloud inside out,
Till the boys come Home.
"Till the Boys Come Home!" (1914)
See DeSylva 1; Proverbs 49

Richard Ford

U.S. writer, 1944–

- 1 Married life requires shared mystery even when all the facts are known. The Sportswriter ch. 5 (1986)

Rob Ford

Canadian politician, 1969–2016

- 1 Yes, I have smoked crack cocaine . . . Have I tried it? Um, probably in one of my drunken stupors. Remarks to reporters, Toronto, Canada, 5 Nov. 2013

Howell Forgy

U.S. naval chaplain, 1908–1983

- 1 [Remark while moving along a line of sailors passing ammunition by hand to the deck, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, 7 Dec. 1941:] Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition. Quoted in N.Y. Times, 1 Nov. 1942. Often incorrectly attributed to William A. Maguire. The earliest known occurrence in print is in the Tucson Daily Citizen, 3 Feb. 1942; the attribution given there is only to an "unnamed Navy chaplain at Pearl Harbor."

Nathan Bedford Forrest

U.S. Confederate general, 1821–1877

- 1 Well, I got there first with the most men. Quoted in Richard Taylor, Destruction and Reconstruction (1879). Forrest's prescription for success in warfare is frequently quoted as "git thar fustest with the mostest men," but there is no reliable evidence of his using the more colorful formulation.

E. M. Forster

English novelist, 1879–1970

- 1 Railway termini . . . are our gates to the glorious and the unknown. Through them we pass out into adventure and sunshine, to them, alas! we return. Howards End ch. 2 (1910)
- 2 Mature as he was, she might yet be able to help him to the building of the rainbow bridge that should connect the prose in us with the passion. Without it we are meaningless fragments, half monks, half beasts, unconnected arches that have never joined into a man. With it love is born, and alights on the highest curve, glowing against the gray, sober against the fire. Howards End ch. 22 (1910)
- 3 Only connect! That was the whole of her sermon. Only connect the prose and the passion, and both will be exalted, and human love will be seen at its height. Howards End ch. 22 (1910)

- 4 The so-called white races are really pinko-gray.
A Passage to India ch. 7 (1924)
- 5 It is not that the Englishman can't feel—it is that he is afraid to feel. He has been taught at his public school that feeling is bad form. He must not express great joy or sorrow, or even open his mouth too wide when he talks—his pipe might fall out if he did.
Abinger Harvest “Notes on English Character” (1936)
- 6 A poem is true if it hangs together. Information points to something else. A poem points to nothing but itself.
Two Cheers for Democracy “Anonymity: An Enquiry” (1951)
- 7 Two cheers for Democracy: one because it admits variety and two because it permits criticism. Two cheers are quite enough: there is no occasion to give three.
Two Cheers for Democracy “What I Believe” (1951)
- 8 If I had to choose between betraying my country and betraying my friend, I hope I should have the guts to betray my country.
Two Cheers for Democracy “What I Believe” (1951)

Abe Fortas

U.S. lawyer and judge, 1910–1982

- 1 It can hardly be argued that either students or teachers shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate.
Tinker v. Des Moines Indep. Community School Dist. (1969)

John Fortescue

English judge, ca. 1394–ca. 1476

- 1 I should, indeed, prefer twenty guilty men to escape death through mercy, than one innocent to be condemned unjustly.
De Laudibus Legum Angliae ch. 27 (ca. 1470)
See Blackstone 7; Benjamin Franklin 37; Maimonides 1; Voltaire 3

Sam Walter Foss

U.S. poet, 1858–1911

- 1 But let me live by the side of the road
And be a friend to man.
“The House by the Side of the Road” l. 7 (1898)

Stephen Collins Foster

U.S. songwriter, 1826–1864

- 1 O, Susanna! O, don't you cry for me,
I've come from Alabama, with my banjo on my knee.
“O, Susanna” (song) (1848)
- 2 Gwine to run all night!
Gwine to run all day!
I'll bet my money on de bobtail nag—
Somebody bet on de bay.
“Camptown Races” (song) (1850)
- 3 Way down upon the Swanee River,
Far, far away,
There's where my heart is turning ever;
There's where the old folks stay.
“The Old Folks at Home” (song) (1851)
- 4 All the world is sad and dreary
Ev'rywhere I roam,
Oh! darkies, how my heart grows weary,
Far from the old folks at home.
“The Old Folks at Home” (song) (1851)
- 5 The sun shines bright in the old Kentucky home.
“My Old Kentucky Home” (song) (1853)
- 6 I dream of Jeanie with the light brown hair.
“Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair” (song) (1854)
- 7 Beautiful dreamer, wake unto me,
Starlight and dewdrop are waiting for thee.
“Beautiful Dreamer” (song) (1864)

Vince Foster

U.S. government official, 1945–1993

- 1 [Suicide note:] I was not meant for the spotlight of public life in Washington. Here, ruining people is considered a sport.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 13 Aug. 1993

Michel Foucault

French philosopher, 1926–1984

- 1 As the archaeology of our thought easily shows, man is an invention of recent date. And one perhaps nearing its end.
The Order of Things: An Archaeology of the Human Sciences ch. 10 (1966)

- 2 If those arrangements [the fundamental arrangements of knowledge] were to disappear as they appeared . . . then one can certainly wager that man would be erased, like a face drawn in sand at the edge of the sea.

The Order of Things: An Archaeology of the Human Sciences ch. 10 (1966)

- 3 Homosexuality appeared as one of the forms of sexuality when it was transposed from the practice of sodomy into a kind of interior androgyny, a hermaphroditism of the soul. The sodomite had been a temporary aberration; the homosexual was now a species.

The History of Sexuality vol. 1, pt. 2, ch. 2 (1976)
(translation by Robert Hurley)

Joseph Fouché

French statesman, 1759–1820

- 1 [Of the execution of the Duc d'Enghien by Napoleon's troops, 1804:] C'est plus qu'un crime, c'est une faute!

It is more than a crime, it is a blunder.

Quoted in Joseph Fouché, Mémoires (1824)

Charles Fourier

French social scientist, 1772–1837

- 1 The extension of women's rights is the basic principle of all social progress.

Theory of Four Movements vol. 2, ch. 4 (1808)

H. W. Fowler

English lexicographer and grammarian, 1858–1933

- 1 The English speaking world may be divided into (1) those who neither know nor care what a split infinitive is; (2) those who do not know, but care very much; (3) those who know and condemn; (4) those who know and approve; and (5) those who know and distinguish. Those who neither know nor care are the vast majority and are a happy folk, to be envied by most of the minority classes.

A Dictionary of Modern English Usage (1926)

John Fowles

English novelist, 1926–2005

- 1 I was born in 1927, the only child of middle-class parents, both English, and themselves born in the grotesquely elongated shadow . . . of that monstrous dwarf Queen Victoria.

The Magus ch. 1 (1966)

- 2 We all write poems; it is simply that poets are the ones who write in words.

The French Lieutenant's Woman ch. 19 (1969)

Charles James Fox

English statesman, 1749–1806

- 1 [Of the fall of the Bastille:] How much the greatest event it is that ever happened in the world! and how much the best!

Letter to Richard Fitzpatrick, 30 July 1789

Anatole France (Jacques-Anatole-François Thibault)

French novelist and man of letters, 1844–1924

- 1 Man is so made that he can only find relaxation from one kind of labor by taking up another.

The Crime of Sylvestre Bonnard pt. 2, ch. 4 (1881)

- 2 Ils naquirent, ils souffrirent, ils moururent.
They were born, they suffered, they died.

Opinions of Jérôme Coignard ch. 16 (1893)

- 3 The majestic equality of the law, which forbids the rich as well as the poor to sleep under bridges, to beg in the streets, and to steal bread.

Le Lys Rouge ch. 7 (1894)

- 4 The average man, who does not know what to do with his life, wants another one which will last forever.

The Revolt of the Angels ch. 21 (1914)

Francis I

French king, 1494–1547

- 1 [Letter to his mother after his defeat at Pavia, 1525:]
De toutes choses ne m'est demouré que l'honneur et la vie qui est sauve.

Of all I had, only honor and life have been spared.

Quoted in Registres Manuscrits de Parlement, 10 Nov. 1525. Commonly quoted as “Tout est perdu fors l'honneur [All is lost save honor].”

St. Francis of Assisi

Italian friar, ca. 1181–1226

- 1 Praised be You, my Lord, with all your creatures, Especially Sir Brother Sun,
Who is the day and through whom You give us light.
“The Canticle of Brother Sun” (1225)
- 2 Lord, make me an instrument of Your peace!
Where there is hatred, let me sow love.
Where there is injury, pardon.
Where there is doubt, faith.
Where there is despair, hope.
Where there is darkness, light.
Where there is sadness, joy.
Attributed in Helena Independent, 9 Nov. 1935. The attribution to St. Francis is undoubtedly apocryphal. This prayer appears to have first seen light, published anonymously, in a French religious magazine titled La Clochette, Dec. 1912.
- 3 Preach the gospel all the time—if necessary, use words.
Attributed in World Vision, Aug.–Sept. 1989

Francis (Jorge Mario Bergoglio)

Argentinian pope, 1936–

- 1 If someone is gay and is searching for the Lord and has good will, then who am I to judge him?
Press conference during airplane flight, 28 July 2013
- 2 The Earth, our home, is beginning to look more and more like an immense pile of filth.
Laudato Si' (2015)
- 3 We cannot insist only on issues related to abortion, gay marriage, and the use of contraceptive methods . . . it is not necessary to talk about these issues all the time.
Quoted in America, 30 Sept. 2013

Anne Frank

German diarist, 1929–1945

- 1 I want to go on living even after my death! And therefore I am grateful to God for giving me this gift, this possibility of developing myself and of writing, of expressing all that is in me. I can shake off everything if I write; my sorrows disappear, my courage is reborn.
Diary, 4 Apr. 1944

- 2 Is discord going to show itself while we are still fighting, is the Jew once again worth less than another? Oh, it is sad, very sad, that once more, for the umpteenth time, the old truth is confirmed: “What one Christian does is his own responsibility, what one Jew does is thrown back at all Jews.”
Diary, 22 May 1944
- 3 In spite of everything I still believe that people are really good at heart.
Diary, 15 July 1944

Barney Frank

U.S. politician, 1940–

- 1 [Characterizing attitudes of some conservative legislators:] Life begins at conception and ends at birth.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 16 Aug. 1981

Al Franken

U.S. humorist, 1951–

- 1 Rush Limbaugh Is a Big Fat Idiot.
Title of book (1996)

Felix Frankfurter

Austrian-born U.S. judge and legal scholar, 1882–1965

- 1 The history of liberty has largely been the history of observance of procedural safeguards.
McNabb v. United States (1943)
- 2 One who belongs to the most vilified and persecuted minority in history is not likely to be insensible to the freedom guaranteed by our Constitution. . . . But as judges we are neither Jew nor Gentile, neither Catholic nor agnostic.
West Virginia State Bd. of Educ. v. Barnette (dissenting opinion) (1943)
- 3 It is a fair summary of history to say that the safeguards of liberty have frequently been forged in controversies involving not very nice people.
United States v. Rabinowitz (dissenting opinion) (1950)
- 4 This is conduct that shocks the conscience. Illegally breaking into the privacy of the petitioner, the struggle to open his mouth and remove what was there, the forcible extraction of his stomach's contents—this course of proceeding by agents of government to obtain evidence is bound to offend even hardened sensibilities. They are methods too close to the rack and the screw to permit of constitutional differentiation.

Rochin v. California (1952)

Aretha Franklin

U.S. rhythm and blues singer, 1942–2018

I R-E-S-P-E-C-T

Find out what it means to me

R-E-S-P-E-C-T

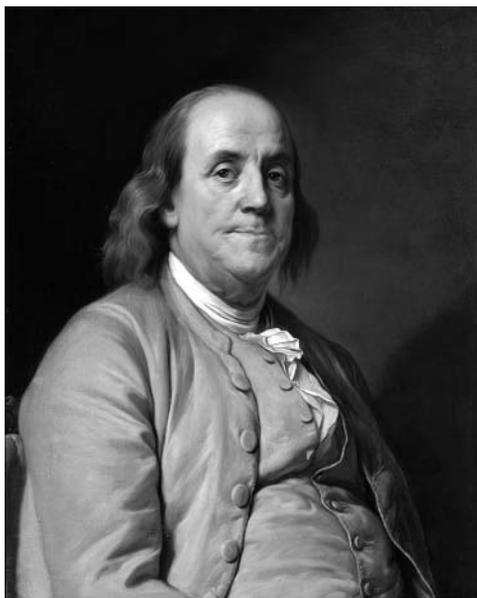

Take care TCB.

“Respect” (song) (1967). Franklin added this refrain to Otis Redding’s 1965 song “Respect.”

Benjamin Franklin

U.S. statesman, scientist, and author, 1706–1790

I The Body of B. Franklin, Printer; like the Cover of an old Book, its Contents torn out, and stript of its Lettering and Gilding, lies here, Food for Worms. But the Work shall not be wholly lost: for it will, as he believ’d, appear once more, in a new & more perfect Edition, corrected and amended by the Author.

“Epitaph” (1728). This did not ultimately appear on Franklin’s tomb.

2 I am about Courting a Girl I have had but little Acquaintance with; how shall I come to a Knowledge of her Fawlt? and whether she has the Virtues I imagine she has?

Ans. Commend her among her Female Acquaintances.

Stella Maria Miles Franklin

Australian novelist, 1879–1954

- 1 MY DEAR FELLOW AUSTRALIANS,

Just a few lines to tell you that this story is all about myself—for no other purpose do I write it.

I make no apologies for being egotistical.

My Brilliant Career preface (1901)

- 2 Weariness! Weariness! This was life—my life—my career, my brilliant career! I was fifteen—fifteen! A few fleeting hours and I would be as old as those around me.

My Brilliant Career ch. 5 (1901)

- 3 I am proud that I am an Australian, a daughter of the Southern Cross, a child of the mighty bush. I am thankful I am a peasant, a part of the bone and muscle of my nation, and earn my bread by the sweat of my brow, as man was meant to do. I rejoice I was not born a parasite, one of the blood-suckers who loll on velvet and satin, crushed from the proceeds of human sweat and blood and souls.

My Brilliant Career ch. 38 (1901)

- 2 The human species was given dominion over the earth and took the opportunity to exterminate other species and warm the atmosphere and generally ruin things in its own image, but it paid this price for its privileges: that the finite and specific animal body of this species contained a brain capable of conceiving the infinite and wishing to be infinite itself.

- 2 An army marches on its stomach.

Quoted in Thomas Carlyle, History of Friedrich II. of Prussia vol. 1, bk. 2, ch. 6 (1858). Carlyle's exact wording was actually "Leaders did not know then, as our little Friend at Berlin came to know, that 'an Army, like a serpent, goes upon its belly.'" Contemporary readers took the last nine words as belonging to Frederick. The proverb is now frequently attributed to Napoleon, but the earliest references to him using it began in 1862, and unambiguous internal evidence in Carlyle's book pointed to Frederick.

- 3 [Exhortation to wavering troops, Kolin, 18 June 1757:] Hunde, wollt ihr ewig leben?

Dogs, would you live forever?

Attributed in Bon Louis Henri Martin, Histoire de France (1865). According to Burton E. Stevenson, Home Book of Quotations, "Carlyle in his Frederick the Great (Bk. xviii, ch. 4) says this 'is to be counted pure myth,' but in his French Revolution (Pt. ii, bk. i, ch. 4) he writes, 'There were certain runaways whom Frederick the Great bullied back into the battle with a: "R——, wollt ihr ewig leben, Unprintable Offscouring of Scoundrels, would ye live forever!" (The 'R——' perhaps for Rindviehe [cattle]) The phrase has been common to all wars."

Arthur Freed

U.S. songwriter and producer, 1894–1973

- 1 Singin' in the rain,
Just singin' in the rain.
What a glorious feeling,
I'm happy again.

Clement Freud

German-born English broadcaster and politician, 1924–2009

- 1 If you resolve to give up smoking, drinking, and loving, you don’t actually live longer; it just seems longer.
Quoted in Observer (London), 27 Dec. 1964. In the motion picture Mr. Moto’s Last Warning (1939), Fabian, a ventriloquist played by Ricardo Cortez, says to his dummy, Alf: “Alf, you shouldn’t belittle matrimony. Married men live longer than single ones.” Alf responds: “Ha ha. It only seems longer.”

Sigmund Freud

Austrian psychiatrist, 1856–1939

- 1 We have seen that hysterical symptoms immediately and permanently disappeared when we had succeeded in bringing clearly to light the memory of the event by which they were provoked and in arousing their accompanying affect, and when the patient had described that event in the greatest possible detail and had put the affect into words. . . . Hysterics suffer mainly from reminiscences.

Studies on Hysteria ch. 3, sec. 4 (1893–1895).
Coauthored with Josef Breuer.

- 2 I am inclined to suppose that children cannot find their way to acts of sexual aggression unless they have been seduced previously. The foundation for a neurosis would accordingly always be laid in childhood by adults.
“Heredity and the Aetiology of the Neuroses” (1896)
- 3 I owe my results to a new method of psychoanalysis, Josef Breuer’s exploratory procedure; it is a little intricate, but irreplaceable, so fertile has it shown itself to be in throwing light upon the obscure unconscious mental processes.
“Heredity and the Aetiology of the Neuroses” (1896).
First published appearance of the term psychoanalysis.
- 4 Being in love with the one parent and hating the other are among the essential constituents of the stock of psychical impulses which is formed at that time and which is of such importance in determining the symptoms of the later neurosis. . . . This discovery is confirmed by a legend that has come down to us from classical antiquity. . . . What I have in mind is the legend of King Oedipus.
The Interpretation of Dreams ch. 5 (1900)
- 5 I am actually not at all a man of science, not an observer, nor an experimenter, not a thinker. I am by temperament nothing but a conquistador—an adventurer . . . with all the curiosity, daring, and tenacity characteristic of a man of this sort.
Letter to Wilhelm Fliess, 1 Feb. 1900
- 6 The interpretation of dreams is the royal road to a knowledge of the unconscious activities of the mind.

- 8 The excremental is all too intimately and inseparably bound up with the sexual; the - position of the genitals—inter urinas et faeces—remains the decisive and unchangeable factor. One might say here, varying a well-known saying of the great Napoleon: “Anatomy is destiny.”

- “On the Universal Tendency to Debasement in the Sphere of Love” (1912). According to Social Science Quotations, ed. David L. Sills and Robert K. Merton, Freud’s reference is “from a 1808 conversation with Goethe, whose report, written in German, was that Napoleon had said ‘Die Politik ist das Schicksal’ (Politics is fate).”

“A Childhood Recollection from Dichtung und Wahrheit” (1917)
- 11 The ego is not master in its own house.
“A Difficulty in the Path of Psycho-Analysis” (1917)
- 12 We know less about the sexual life of little girls than of boys. But we need not feel ashamed of this distinction: after all, the sexual life of adult women is a “dark continent” for psychology.
The Question of Lay Analysis pt. 4 (1926)
- 13 Before the problem of the artist, analysis must, alas, lay down its arms.
“Dostoyevsky and Parricide” (1928)
- 14 The ego’s relation to the id might be compared with that of a rider to his horse. The horse supplies the locomotive energy, while the rider has the privilege of deciding on the goal and of guiding the powerful animal’s movement. But only too often there arises between the ego and the id the not precisely ideal situation of the rider being obliged to guide the horse along the path by which it itself wants to go.
New Introductory Lectures on Psycho-analysis Lecture 31 (1933)
- 15 The poor ego . . . serves three severe masters and does what it can to bring their claims and demands into harmony with one another. . . .
- Its three tyrannical masters are the external world, the super-ego, and the id.
New Introductory Lectures on Psycho-analysis Lecture 31 (1933)
- 16 Where id was, there ego shall be.
New Introductory Lectures on Psycho-analysis Lecture 31 (1933)
- 17 Homosexuality is assuredly no advantage, but it is nothing to be ashamed of, no vice, no degradation; it cannot be classified as an illness; we consider it to be a variation of the sexual function, produced by a certain arrest of sexual development. . . . It is a great injustice to persecute homosexuality as a crime—and a cruelty, too.
Letter to an American mother, 9 Apr. 1935
- 18 Intolerance of groups is often, strangely enough, exhibited more strongly against small differences than against fundamental ones.
Moses and Monotheism ch. 3, pt. 1 (1938)
- 19 Judaism had been a religion of the father; Christianity became a religion of the son. The old God the Father fell back behind Christ; Christ, the Son, took his place, just as every son had hoped to do in primeval times.

- 20 [Remark on the occasion of his seventieth birthday:] The poets and philosophers before me discovered the unconscious. . . . What I discovered was the scientific method by which the unconscious can be studied.
Quoted in Philip R. Lehrman, “Freud’s Contributions to Science,” Harofé Haivri (1940)
- 21 [Remark to Marie Bonaparte, 8 Dec. 1925:] The great question that has never been answered and which I have not yet been able to answer, despite my thirty years of research into the feminine soul, is “What does a woman want?”
Quoted in Ernest Jones, The Life and Work of Sigmund Freud (1955). In a footnote Jones gives the original German, “Was will das Weib?”
- 22 Yes, America is gigantic, but a gigantic mistake.
Quoted in Ernest Jones, Memories of a Psycho-analyst (1959)
- 23 Freud was once asked what he thought a normal person should be able to do well. The questioner probably expected a complicated answer. But Freud, in the curt way of his old days, is reported to have said: “Lieben und arbeiten” (to love and to work).

Reported in Erik Erikson, Childhood and Society (1950). In Civilization and Its Discontents (1930), Freud wrote: “The communal life of human beings had, therefore, a two-fold foundation: the compulsion to work, which was created by external necessity, and the power of love.”

24 Sometimes a cigar is just a cigar.

Attributed in Law and Contemporary Problems, Autumn 1954. In the slightly different form “A cigar is sometimes just a cigar,” this was attributed to Freud in the journal Psychiatry, May 1950.

Betty Friedan

U.S. feminist and author, 1921–2006

- 1 It was a strange stirring, a sense of dissatisfaction, a yearning that women suffered in the middle of the twentieth century in the United States. Each suburban wife struggled with it alone. As she made the beds, shopped for groceries, matched slipcover material, ate peanut butter sandwiches with her children, chauffeured Cub Scouts and Brownies, lay beside her husband at night—she was afraid to ask even of herself the silent question—“Is this all?”

The Feminine Mystique ch. 1 (1963)

- 2 The problem that has no name—which is simply the fact that American women are kept from growing to their full human capacities—is taking a far greater toll on the physical and mental health of our country than any known disease.

The Feminine Mystique ch. 14 (1963)

- 3 I think the energy locked up in . . . obsolete masculine and feminine roles is the social equivalent of the physical energy locked up in the realm of  $e = mc^2$ —the force that unleashed the holocaust of Hiroshima. I believe the locked-up sexual energies have helped to fuel, more than anyone realizes, the terrible violence erupting in the nation and the world during these past ten years. If I am right, the sex-role revolution will liberate these energies from the service of death and will make it really possible for men and women to “make love, not war.”

The Feminine Mystique epilogue (1983 edition)

Milton Friedman

U.S. economist, 1912–2006

- 1 History suggests only that capitalism is a necessary condition for political freedom. Clearly it is not a sufficient condition.
Capitalism and Freedom ch. 1 (1962)
- 2 Freedom in economic arrangements is itself a component of freedom broadly understood, so economic freedom is an end in itself. . . . Economic freedom is also an indispensable means toward the achievement of political freedom.
Capitalism and Freedom ch. 1 (1962)
- 3 A minimum-wage law is, in reality, a law that makes it illegal for an employer to hire a person with limited skills.
Interview, Playboy, Feb. 1973
- 4 Even the most ardent environmentalist doesn't really want to stop pollution. If he thinks about it, and doesn't just talk about it, he wants to have the right amount of pollution. We can't really afford to eliminate it—not without abandoning all the benefits of technology that we not only enjoy but on which we depend.

- 7 Inflation is the one form of taxation which can be imposed without any legislative action.
Quoted in Challenge, Nov.–Dec. 1973

8 Nothing is so permanent as a temporary government program.

Quoted in Cleveland Plain Dealer, 27 Oct. 1993. Although this line is now associated with Friedman, Utah senator Wallace F. Bennett is recorded in January 1964 hearings titled “Periodic Congressional Review of Federal Grants-in-Aid” as stating: “It is an age-old Washington axiom that there is nothing so permanent as a temporary Government program.”

His house is in the village, though;
He will not see me stopping here
To watch his woods fill up with snow.
"Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening" l. 1 (1923)
- 15 My little horse must think it queer
To stop without a farmhouse near.
"Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening" l. 5 (1923)
- 16 The woods are lovely, dark, and deep.
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,
And miles to go before I sleep.
"Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening" l. 13 (1923)
- 17 I have been one acquainted with the night.
I have walked out in rain—and back in rain.
I have outwalked the furthest city light.
"Acquainted with the Night" l. 1 (1928)
- 18 Writing free verse is like playing tennis with the net down.
Address to Milton Academy, Milton, Mass., 17 May 1935
- 19 I never dared be radical when young
For fear it would make me conservative when old.
"Precaution" l. 1 (1936)
- 20 The figure a poem makes. It begins in delight and ends in wisdom . . . in a clarification of life—not necessarily a great clarification, such as sects and cults are founded on, but in a momentary stay against confusion.
Collected Poems preface (1939)
- 21 The land was ours before we were the land's.
She was our land more than a hundred years
Before we were her people.
"The Gift Outright" l. 1 (1942). Frost recited this poem from memory at John F. Kennedy's inauguration, 20 Jan. 1961, after wind prevented him from reading his prepared text.
- 22 Such as we were we gave ourselves outright
(The deed of gift was many deeds of war)
To the land vaguely realizing westward,
But still unstoried, artless, unenhanced,
Such as she was, such as she would become.
"The Gift Outright" l. 12 (1942)
- 23 And were an epitaph to be my story
I'd have a short one ready for my own.
I would have written of me on my stone:
I had a lover's quarrel with the world.
"The Lesson for Today" l. 158 (1942)
- 24 Happiness Makes Up in Height for What It Lacks in Length.
Title of poem (1942)
- 25 Poetry is what is lost in translation. It is also what is lost in interpretation.
Quoted in Louis Untermeyer, Robert Frost: A Backward Look (1964)

Christopher Fry

English playwright, 1907–2005

- 1 The Lady's Not for Burning.

Title of play (1949)

See Thatcher 4

Roger Fry

English critic, 1866–1934

- 1 Art is significant deformity.

Quoted in Virginia Woolf, Roger Fry (1940)

Mary Elizabeth Frye

U.S. poet, 1904–2004

- 1 Do not stand at my grave and weep,
I am not there, I do not sleep.
“Do Not Stand at My Grave and Weep” l. 1 (1932)
- 2 Do not stand at my grave and cry,
I am not there—I do not die.
“Do Not Stand at My Grave and Weep” l. 15 (1932).
Later versions of the poem usually read “I did not die.”

Mitsuo Fuchida

Japanese pilot, 1902–1976

- 1 [Code words signaling the success of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, 7 Dec. 1941:] Tora-tora-tora.
Quoted in United States Naval Institute Proceedings, Sept. 1952. Tora is Japanese for “tiger.”

Carlos Fuentes

Mexican writer, 1928–2012

- 1 What America does best is to understand itself.
What it does worst is to understand others.
Quoted in Time, 16 June 1986

Francis Fukuyama

U.S. political theorist, 1953–

- 1 What we may be witnessing is not the end of the Cold War but the end of history as such; that is, the end point of man’s ideological evolution and the universalization of Western liberal democracy.

See Sellar 3; Sellar 4

J. William Fulbright

U.S. politician, 1905–1995

- 1 The attitude above all others which I feel sure is no longer valid is the arrogance of power, the tendency of great nations to equate power with virtue and major responsibilities with a universal mission.
The Arrogance of Power introduction (1967)

Robert Fulghum

U.S. author, 1937–

- 1 Share everything. Play fair. Don’t hit people.
Put things back where you found them. Clean up your own mess. Don’t take things that aren’t yours. Say you’re sorry when you hurt somebody. Wash your hands before you eat. Flush. Warm cookies and cold milk are good for you. Live a balanced life—learn some and think some and draw and paint and sing and dance and play and work every day some.
All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten (1988)

“Blind Boy” Fuller (Fulton Allen)

U.S. blues musician, 1907–1941

- 1 Keep on truckin’.
“Truckin’ My Blues Away” (song) (1936)

Margaret Fuller

U.S. critic and reformer, 1810–1850

- 1 I myself am more divine than any I see.
Letter to Ralph Waldo Emerson, 1 Mar. 1838
- 2 I now know all the people worth knowing in America, and I find no intellect comparable to my own.
Quoted in Memoirs of Margaret Fuller Ossoli, ed. Ralph Waldo Emerson, William Henry Channing, and James Freeman Clarke (1852)
- 3 [Remark to Henry James, Sr., Sept. 1843:] I accept the universe.
Quoted in Daily Inter Ocean (Chicago), 11 Mar. 1893
See Thomas Carlyle 20

R. Buckminster Fuller

U.S. designer and architect, 1895–1983

- 1 Here is God’s purpose—

Ralph Fuller

U.S. cartoonist, 1890–1963

- 1 [Caption of cartoon showing signalmen watching two trains about to collide.] Tch, tch! What a way to run a railroad!
Ballyhoo, June 1932

Thomas Fuller

English writer and physician, 1654–1734

- 1 Be you never so high the law is above you.
Gnomologia (1752)

Rose Fyleman

English children's writer, 1877–1957

- 1 There are fairies at the bottom of our garden!
"Fairies" l. 1 (1918)

Zsa Zsa Gabor

Hungarian-born U.S. actress, 1917–2016

- 1 I never hated a man enough to give him diamonds back.
Quoted in Observer (London), 28 Aug. 1957
- 2 A man in love is incomplete until he has married—and then he's finished.
Quoted in Newsweek, 28 Mar. 1960
- 3 Husbands are like fires. They go out when unattended.
Quoted in Newsweek, 28 Mar. 1960
- 4 [When asked how many husbands she had had:]
You mean apart from my own?
Quoted in Kenneth Edwards, I Wish I'd Said That! (1976)

William Gaddis

U.S. novelist, 1922–1998

- 1 What is it they want from a man that they didn't get from his work? What do they expect? What is there left of him when he's done his work? What's any artist, but the dregs of his work? the human shambles that follows it around.
The Recognitions pt. 1, ch. 3 (1955)
- 2 Money . . . ? in a voice that rustled.
JR (1975)
- 3 You get justice in the next world, in this world you have the law.
A Frolic of His Own (1994)

Yuri Gagarin

Russian cosmonaut, 1934–1968

- 1 Let's go!
Radio communication at moment of launch of the first space flight, Baikonur Cosmodrome, Kazakhstan, 12 Apr. 1961

Neil Gaiman

English writer, 1960–

- 1 Google can bring you back, you know, a hundred thousand answers. A librarian can bring you back the right one.
McFadden Memorial Lecture, Indianapolis, Ind., 16 Apr. 2010

Ernest J. Gaines

U.S. writer, 1933–2019

- 1 What justice would there be to take this life? Justice, gentlemen? Why, I would just as soon put a hog in the electric chair as this.
A Lesson Before Dying ch. 1 (1994)
- 2 Good by mr wigin tell them im strong tell them im a man.
A Lesson Before Dying ch. 29 (1994)

John Kenneth Galbraith

Canadian-born U.S. economist, 1908–2006

- 1 The Affluent Society.
Title of book (1958)
- 2 It will be convenient to have a name for the ideas which are esteemed at any time for their acceptability, and it should be a term that emphasizes this predictability. I shall refer to these ideas henceforth as the conventional wisdom.
The Affluent Society ch. 2 (1958)
- 3 The leisure class has been replaced by another and much larger class to which work has none of the older connotation of pain, fatigue, or other mental or physical discomfort. We have failed to observe the emergence of this New Class, as it may be simply called.
The Affluent Society ch. 24 (1958)
- 4 Much of the world's work, it has been said, is done by men who do not feel quite well. Marx is a case in point.
The Age of Uncertainty ch. 3 (1977)

5 The salary of the chief executive of the large corporation is not a market reward for achievement. It is frequently in the nature of a warm personal gesture by the individual to himself.

Galen

Greek physician and writer, 129–199

1 That which is grows, while that which is not becomes.

On the Natural Faculties bk. 2, sec. 3

Tony “Two-Ton” Galento

U.S. boxer, 1910–1979

1 [Remark to his manager Joe Jacobs before his losing heavyweight championship fight against Joe Louis, 1939:] I’ll moider that burn!

Quoted in Joe Louis, My Life Story (1947)

Galileo Galilei

Italian astronomer and physicist, 1564–1642

1 I do not feel obliged to believe that that same God who has endowed us with senses, reason, and intellect has intended to forgo their use and by some other means to give us knowledge which we can attain by them.

Letter to Madame Christina of Lorraine, Grand Duchess of Tuscany, 1615

2 Philosophy is written in this grand book, the universe, which stands continually open to our gaze. . . . It is written in the language of mathematics, and its characters are triangles, circles, and other geometric figures without which . . . one wanders about in a dark labyrinth.

The Assayer (1623) (translation by Stillman Drake)

3 Desiring to remove from the minds of Your Eminences, and of all faithful Christians, this vehement suspicion rightly conceived against me, with sincere heart and unpretended faith I abjure, curse, and detest the aforesaid errors and heresies . . . and I swear that in the future I will never again say or assert verbally or in writing, anything that might cause a similar suspicion toward me.

Abjuration after being sentenced for his advocacy of the Copernican system, Rome, 22 June 1633

4 [Alleged remark after recanting his position that the earth moves around the sun, 1632:] Eppur si muove.

And yet it does move.

Attributed in Giuseppe Baretta, The Italian Library (1757). Stillman Drake writes in The Discoveries and Opinions of Galileo (1957): “It is curious that this famous story should have first appeared so late and in an English book. . . . [Most serious writers rejected] the whole story as a myth created to fit Galileo’s personality rather than the truth. But in 1911 the same Italian words . . . were discovered on a painting attributed to Murillo and dating no more than a decade after Galileo’s death.”

George H. Gallup

U.S. pollster, 1901–1984

1 I could prove God statistically. Take the human body—the chance that all functions of the individual would just happen is a statistical monstrosity.

Quoted in Reader’s Digest, Oct. 1943

John Galsworthy

English novelist, 1867–1933

1 Nobody tells me anything.

The Man of Property pt. 1, ch. 1 (1906)

2 He [old Jolyon] had always had a contempt for the place [his Club], having joined it many years ago when they refused to have him at the “Hotch Potch” owing to his being “in trade.” As if he were not as good as any of them! He naturally despised the Club that did take him.

Francis Galton

English statistician and psychologist, 1822–1911

1 The phrase “nature and nurture” is a convenient jingle of words, for it separates under two distinct heads the innumerable elements of which personality is composed.

English Men of Science: Their Nature and Nurture ch. 1 (1874)

2 We greatly want a brief word to express the science of improving stock, which is by no means confined to questions of judicious mating, but which, especially in the case of man, takes cognizance of all influences that tend in however remote a degree to give to the more suitable races or strains of blood a better chance of prevailing speedily over the less suitable than they otherwise would have had. The word eugenics would sufficiently express the idea.

Inquiries into Human Faculty and Its Development (1883)

Indira Gandhi

Indian prime minister, 1917–1984

1 I am proud that I spent the whole of my life in the service of my people. . . . I shall continue to serve until my last breath and when I die, I can say, that every drop of my blood will invigorate India and strengthen it.

Speech, Bhubaneshwar, India, 30 Oct. 1984. Gandhi was assassinated the day after this speech.

Mohandas Karamchand (Mahatma) Gandhi

Indian nationalist and spiritual leader, 1869–1948

1 Satyagraha largely appears to the public as Civil Disobedience or Civil Resistance. It is civil in the sense that it is not criminal. . . . [The civil resister] considers certain laws to be so unjust as to render obedience to them a dishonor. He then openly and civilly breaks them and quietly suffers the penalty for their breach.

Young India, 14 Jan. 1920

2 Non-violence is the first article of my faith. It is also the last article of my creed.

Defense against charge of sedition, Shahi Bag, India, 18 Mar. 1922

3 Noncooperation with evil is as much a duty as is cooperation with good. But in the past, noncooperation has been deliberately expressed in violence to the evildoer. I am endeavoring to show to my countrymen that violent noncooperation only multiplies evil and that evil can only be sustained by violence, withdrawal of support of evil requires complete abstention from violence.

Courtroom statement, Ahmadabad, India, 23 Mar. 1922

4 I am an uncompromising opponent of violent methods even to serve the noblest of causes.

Young India, 11 Dec. 1924

5 “Hate the sin and not the sinner” is a precept which, though easy enough to understand, is rarely practised, and that is why the poison of hatred spreads in the world.

An Autobiography: The Story of My Experiments with Truth pt. 4, ch. 9 (1929)
See Augustine 5

6 [Upon being asked what he thought of Western civilization:] It would be a good idea.

Quoted in CBS News television special, 17 Jan. 1967

7 You must be the change you want to see in the world.

Quoted in Santa Fe New Mexican, 22 Mar. 1987.

According to the Gandhi Institute for Nonviolence, this has not been traced in Gandhi’s writings but “the Gandhi family states that M. K. Gandhi was known to say this verse many times in his lifetime and believes it to be original with him.” Garson O’Toole has found that Gandhi expressed a similar idea as early as 1913 in an article titled “Snake-Bite”: “If we could change ourselves, the tendencies in the world would also change.”

8 Whenever I despair, I remember that the way of truth and love has always won. There may be tyrants and murderers, and for a time, they may seem invincible, but in the end, they always fail. Think of it: always.

Attributed in Gandhi (motion picture) (1982). The Gandhi Institute for Nonviolence has been unable to find this in Gandhi’s writings.

Greta Garbo (Greta Lovisa Gustafsson)

Swedish-born U.S. actress, 1905–1990

1 I want to be alone.

The Single Standard (motion picture) (1929). Listed here under Garbo’s name rather than under Film Lines because it is so clearly identified with her as an actress and off-screen personality rather than with any individual movie line. Nigel Rees, Cassell’s Movie Quotations, notes that in her 1927 silent film Love the words “I like to be alone” appeared as a screen title. In The Single Standard there was a title card reading “I am walking alone because I want to be alone.” In Grand Hotel (1932) Garbo spoke “I want to be alone”

(the line had also appeared in Vicki Baum's 1930 play upon which that movie was based). By the early 1930s the phrase was indelibly linked with Garbo's persona, although there is no evidence of her actually saying it in "real life."

See Garbo 2

- 2 I never said, "I want to be alone." . . . I only said, "I want to be let alone." There is all the difference.

Quoted in John Bainbridge, Garbo (1955)

See Garbo 1

- 3 [Response when Louis B. Mayer failed to meet her salary demands:] I tank I go home.

Quoted in Norman Zierold, Moguls (1969)

Federico García Lorca

Spanish poet and playwright, 1899–1936

- 1 Green, how much I want you green.
Green wind. Green branches.
The ship upon the sea
and the horse in the mountain.
"Somnambule Ballad" (1928) (translation by Stephen Spender and Joan Gill)
- 2 At five in the afternoon.
Ah, that fatal five in the afternoon!
It was five by all the clocks!
It was five in the shade of the afternoon!
"The Goring and the Death" (1935) (translation by Stephen Spender and Joan Gill)

Gabriel García Márquez

Colombian novelist, 1927–2014

- 1 Many years later, as he faced the firing squad, Colonel Aureliano Buendia was to remember that distant afternoon when his father took him to discover ice.

One Hundred Years of Solitude (1967)

- 2 At that time Macondo was a village of twenty adobe houses, built on the bank of a river of clear water that ran along a bed of polished stones, which were white and enormous, like prehistoric eggs. The world was so recent that many things lacked names, and in order to indicate them it was necessary to point.

One Hundred Years of Solitude (1967)

- 3 Before reaching the final line, however, he had already understood that he would never leave that room, for it was foreseen that the city of mirrors (or mirages) would be wiped out by the wind and exiled from the memory of men at the precise moment when Aureliano Babilonia would finish deciphering the parchments, and that everything written on them was unrepeatable since time immemorial and forever more, because races condemned to one hundred years of solitude did not have a second opportunity on the earth.

One Hundred Years of Solitude (1967)

- 4 Over the weekend the vultures got into the presidential palace by pecking through the screens on the balcony windows and the flapping of their wings stirred up the stagnant time inside, and at dawn on Monday the city awoke out of its lethargy of centuries with the warm, soft breeze of a great man dead and rotting grandeur.

The Autumn of the Patriarch (1975) (translation by Gregory Rabassa)

- 5 It was inevitable: the scent of bitter almonds always reminded him of the fate of unrequited love.
Love in the Time of Cholera (1985)
- 6 The problem with marriage is that it ends every night after making love, and it must be rebuilt every morning before breakfast.
Love in the Time of Cholera (1985)

Ava Gardner

U.S. actress, 1922–1990

- 1 Deep down, I'm pretty superficial.
Quoted in Roland Flamini, Ava (1983)

Ed Gardner

U.S. comedian, 1905–1963

- 1 In opera is when a guy gets stabbed in the back, instead of bleeding, he sings.

Duffy's Tavern (radio show), quoted in Canton (Ohio) Repository, 28 Nov. 1947

John Gardner

U.S. writer, 1933–1982

- 1 "Poor Grendel's had an accident," I whisper.
"So may you all."
Grendel ch. 12 (1971)

John W. Gardner

U.S. government official and activist, 1912–2002

- 1 We are all faced with a series of great opportunities—brilliantly disguised as insoluble problems.

Quoted in Reader's Digest, Mar. 1966

James A. Garfield

U.S. president, 1831–1881

- 1 [Address to Williams College Alumni, New York, N.Y., 28 Dec. 1871]: Take a log cabin in the West, put a wooden bench in it, with Mark Hopkins on one end and a student on the other, and you have a college.

Quoted in New York Evangelist, 17 July 1879. The earliest record, printed in the Williams Vidette, 27 Jan. 1872, read: "Offer him [Garfield] the finest college buildings, the largest library and the most complete physical appliances, and he would rather have Dr. Hopkins in a brick shanty than them all." A more familiar version is in a speech by John James Ingalls, ca. 1885–1890: "A pine log, with the student at one end and Doctor Hopkins at the other, would be a liberal education" (A Collection of the Writings of John James Ingalls [1902]).

- 2 [Alleged speech calming a crowd, New York, N.Y., 17 Apr. 1865, after assassination of Lincoln]: God reigns, and the Government at Washington still lives!

Attributed in Bangor Daily Whig & Courier, 29 June 1880. Respectfully Quoted, ed. Suzy Platt, cites Garfield biographer Theodore Clarke Smith: "Smith notes that while the tradition of this speech was so well established during Garfield's own lifetime as to become a 'familiar commonplace,' no clipping of it exists among Garfield's papers, nor did Garfield himself, so far as known, refer to it in later times." Paul F. Boller, Jr., and John George, They Never Said It, goes further: "It's a splendid story, but unfortunately it's not true. Garfield, an Ohio Congressman at the time, wasn't even in New York in April 1865."

Giuseppe Garibaldi

Italian patriot and military leader, 1807–1882

- 1 Men, I'm getting out of Rome. Anyone who wants to carry on the war against the outsiders, come with me. I can offer you neither honors nor wages; I offer you hunger, thirst, forced marches, battles, and death. Anyone who loves his country, follow me.

Attributed in Giuseppe Guerzoni, Garibaldi (1882)

Judy Garland (Frances Ethel Gumm)

U.S. singer and actress, 1922–1969

- 1 I was born at the age of twelve on a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot.

Quoted in Observer (London), 18 Feb. 1951

Eric Garner

U.S. horticulturist, 1970–2014

- 1 [Exclamation while being held by policemen, New York]: I can't breathe!

Quoted in N.Y. Daily News, 18 July 2014

John Nance Garner

U.S. vice-president, 1868–1967

- 1 The Vice Presidency isn't worth a pitcher of warm spit.

Attributed in L.A. Times, 1 Apr. 1962. Garner's actual words were probably "pitcher of warm piss."

David Garrick

English actor and manager, 1717–1779

- 1 Heart of oak are our ships,
Heart of oak are our men:
We always are ready;
Steady, boys, steady;
We'll fight and we'll conquer again and again.
"Heart of Oak" (song) (1759)

William Lloyd Garrison

U.S. abolitionist, 1805–1879

- 1 I am in earnest—I will not equivocate—I will not excuse—I will not retreat a single inch—
AND I WILL BE HEARD!

The Liberator, 1 Jan. 1831 (first issue)

- 2 Tell a man whose house is on fire to give a moderate alarm; tell him to moderately rescue his wife from the hands of the ravisher; tell the mother to gradually extricate her babe from the fire into which it has fallen; but urge me not to use moderation in a case like the present.

The Liberator, 1 Jan. 1831 (first issue)

- 3 I will be as harsh as truth and as uncompromising as justice. On this subject I do not wish to think, or speak, or write, with moderation.

The Liberator, 1 Jan. 1831 (first issue)

- 4 The compact which exists between the North and the South is “a covenant with death and an agreement with hell.”

Resolution adopted by Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society, 27 Jan. 1843. “A covenant with death and an agreement with hell” paraphrases Isaiah 28:15.

Marcus Garvey

Jamaican-born U.S. black nationalist leader, 1887–1940

- 1 We should say to the millions who are in Africa to hold the fort, for we are coming, four hundred million strong.
Speech at Liberty Hall, New York, N.Y., 25 Nov. 1922
- 2 Look Up, You Mighty Race!
Title of article, Black Man, Sept.–Oct. 1936
- 3 Day by day we hear the cry of AFRICA FOR THE AFRICANS. This cry has become a positive, determined one. It is a cry that is raised simultaneously the world over because of the universal oppression that affects the Negro.
Quoted in The Philosophy and Opinions of Marcus Garvey (1923)

Alicia Garza

U.S. political activist and writer, 1981–

- 1 Black people. I love you. I love us. Our lives matter. Black Lives Matter.
Facebook posting, July 2013. This appears to be the introduction of the slogan “Black lives matter.”

Elizabeth Gaskell

English novelist, 1810–1865

- 1 A man . . . is so in the way in the house!
Cranford ch. 1 (1853)
- 2 I'll not listen to reason. . . . Reason always means what someone else has got to say.
Cranford ch. 14 (1853)
- 3 [Of Mary Ann Evans's identity as “George Eliot,” the author of Adam Bede:] It is a noble grand book, whoever wrote it—but Miss Evans' life taken at the best construction, does so jar against the beautiful book that one cannot help hoping against hope.
Letter to George Smith, 4 Aug. 1859

- 4 That kind of patriotism which consists in hating all other nations.

Sylvia's Lovers ch. 1 (1863)

William H. Gass

U.S. writer, 1924–2016

I YOU HAVE FALLEN INTO ART—RETURN TO LIFE.

Willie Masters' Lonesome Wife (1968)

Bill Gates

U.S. businessman and software engineer, 1955–

- 1 People often overestimate what will happen in the next two years and underestimate what will happen in ten.
The Road Ahead “Afterword” (1996). Joseph Licklider had earlier written in Libraries of the Future (1965), “A modern maxim says: People tend to overestimate what can be done in one year and to underestimate what can be done in five or ten years.”

- 2 640K ought to be enough for anyone.

Attributed in InfoWorld, 1 Jan. 1990. This assertion about computer memory was supposedly uttered in 1981, but Gates has denied ever making such a statement. Two earlier precursor attributions to Gates appeared in InfoWorld, 29 Aug. 1985 (“When we set the upper limit of PC-DOS at 640K, we thought nobody would ever need that much memory.—William Gates”) and InfoWorld, 14 Nov. 1988 (“Bill Gates once said 640K of memory was more than anyone needed”).

I thought so once; but now I know it.

"My Own Epitaph" l. 1 (1720)

- 3 They'll tell thee, sailors, when away,

In ev'ry port a mistress find.

"Sweet William's Farewell to Black-Eyed Susan" l. 27
(1720)

- 4 I know you lawyers can, with ease,

Twist words and meanings as you please;

That language, by your skill made pliant,

Will bend to favor ev'ry client.

Fables "The Dog and the Fox" l. 1 (1738)

Marvin Gaye

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1939–1984

- 1 Mother, mother

There's too many of you crying

Brother, brother, brother

There's far too many of you dying.

"What's Going On" (song) (1971). Cowritten with Renaldo Benson and Alfred Cleveland.

- 2 When I get that feeling,

I want some sexual healing.

"Sexual Healing" (song) (1982)

François Gayot de Pitaval

Coauthored with Midge Ure.

Martha Gellhorn

U.S. journalist and author, 1908–1998

- 1 People often say, with pride, "I'm not interested in politics." They might as well say, "I'm not interested in my standard of living, my health, my job, my rights, my freedoms, my future, or any future."

"White into Black," Granta 10 (1984)

Genghis Khan

Mongol emperor, 1162–1227

- 1 [The greatest happiness is] to crush your enemies, to see them fall at your feet—to take their horses and goods and hear the lamentation of their women.

Attributed in Harold Lamb, Genghis Khan (1927). A version in French appears in volume 4 of Revue des Deux Mondes (1843).

Arnold van Gennep

German-born French anthropologist, 1873–1957

- I I have tried to assemble here all the ceremonial patterns which accompany a passage from one situation to another or from one cosmic or social world to another. Because of the importance of these transitions, I think it legitimate to single out rites of passage as a special category.

Rites de Passage ch. 1 (1908) (translation by Monika B. Vizedom and Gabrielle L. Caffee)

George II

British king, 1683–1760

- I [Response to the Duke of Newcastle, who had called General James Wolfe a madman.] If he is mad, I hope to God he'll bite some of my generals.

Quoted in New-York Magazine, Nov. 1791. An earlier version of this anecdote, without specific mention of Wolfe, appeared in John Henderson, Letters and Poems (1786).
See Lincoln 65

George IV

British king, 1762–1830

- I [Replying to Sir Edmund Nagle's attempt to inform him of the death of Napoleon.] "Sir, your bitterest enemy is dead."

"Is she, by God!" said the tender husband.

Reported in Journal of Hon. Henry Edward Fox (entry for 25 Aug. 1821)

George V

British king, 1865–1936

- I Car, vois-tu, chaque jour je t'aime davantage, Aujourd'hui plus qu'hier et bien moins que demain.

For, you see, each day I love you more,
Today more than yesterday and less than tomorrow.

Les Pipeaux "L'Éternelle Chanson" (1889)

Hugo Gernsback

Luxembourg-born U.S. editor and inventor, 1884–1967

- I The editor of this publication [Gernsback] addressed a number of letters to science fiction lovers. The editor promised to pay $50.00 for the best letter each month on the subject of "What Science Fiction Means to Me."

Science Wonder Stories, June 1929. Gernsback here popularized the term science fiction. William Wilson had introduced it in an isolated usage in 1851, and T. O'Connor Sloane had used the words in the magazine Amazing Stories in 1927.
See William Wilson 1

Geronimo (Goyathlay)

Native American leader, ca. 1829–1909

- I [Statement upon surrendering to General George Crook, 25 Mar. 1886.] Once I moved about like the wind. Now I surrender to you and that is all.
Quoted in Dee Brown, Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee (1970)

David Gerrold

U.S. science fiction writer, 1944–

- I You know what a virus is, don't you? . . . The VIRUS program does the same thing.
When Harlie Was One (1972). First use of the term virus for a maliciously designed computer program.

Ira Gershwin (Israel Gershowitz)

U.S. songwriter, 1896–1983

I got music,
I got my man—
Who could ask for anything more?
“I Got Rhythm” (song) (1930)
- 6 I got plenty of nothin',
And nothin's plenty for me.
“I Got Plenty of Nothin'” (song) (1935)
- 7 It ain't necessarily so,
The things that you're liable
To read in the Bible,
It ain't necessarily so.
“It Ain't Necessarily So” (song) (1935)
- 8 You like potato and I like po-tah-to;
You like tomato and I like to-mah-to;
Potato, po-tah-to, tomato, to-mah-to—
Let's call the whole thing off!
“Let's Call the Whole Thing Off” (song) (1936)
- 9 Nice work if you can get it,
And you can get it if you try.
“Nice Work If You Can Get It” (song) (1937)

J. Paul Getty

U.S. business executive, 1892–1976

- 1 The meek shall inherit the earth—but NOT the mineral rights.
Quoted in Middlesboro (Ky.) Daily News, 24 Apr. 1972. Barry Popik has found a precursor in the Titusville (Pa.) Herald, 24 Apr. 1924: “When the meek inherit the earth they'll probably find that somebody else has arranged for the oil leases and mineral rights.” See Bible 112; Bible 205; Heinlein 16; John M. Henry 1
- 2 [Remark to reporters after his grandson had been kidnapped and a ransom payment was demanded, Guildford, England, 26 July 1973:] I have 14 other grandchildren and if I pay one penny now, I'll have 14 other kidnapped grandchildren.
Quoted in Minneapolis Star, 27 July 1973
- 3 If you can count your money you don't have a billion dollars.
Attributed in Chicago Daily Tribune, 28 Oct. 1957

Giuseppe Giacosa

- 2 Mi chiamano Mimi ma' il mio nome è Lucia.
They call me Mimi, but my real name is Lucia.
La Bohème (opera with music by Giacomo Puccini) act 1 (1896). Cowritten with Luigi Illica.
- 3 Vissi d'arte, vissi d'amore, non feci mai male ad anima viva.
I lived for art, I lived for love; never did I harm a living soul.
Tosca (opera with music by Giacomo Puccini) act 2 (1900). Cowritten with Luigi Illica.
- 4 Un bel dì, vedremo levarsi un fil di fumo sull' estremo confin del mare, E poi la nave appare.
He'll return one fine day, I'll see the telltale smoke rise far above the far horizon before his ship appears.
Madama Butterfly (opera with music by Giacomo Puccini) act 2 (1904). Cowritten with Luigi Illica.

A. Bartlett Giamatti

U.S. university president and baseball commissioner, 1938–1989

- 1 It [baseball] breaks your heart. It is designed to break your heart. The game begins in the spring, when everything else begins again, and it blossoms in the summer, filling the afternoons and evenings, and then as soon as the chill rains come, it stops and leaves you to face the fall alone.
“The Green Fields of the Mind,” Yale Alumni Magazine, Nov. 1977
- 2 [Upon his appointment as president of Yale University:] All I ever wanted to be president of was the American League.
Quoted in Bert Sugar, Book of Sports Quotes (1979)
- 3 Baseball has the largest library of law and lore and custom and ritual, and therefore, in a nation that fundamentally believes it is a nation under law, well, baseball is America's most privileged version of the level field.
Quoted in Sports Illustrated, 17 Apr. 1989

Edward Gibbon

English historian, 1737–1794

- 1 The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire.
Title of book (1776)
- 2 The various modes of worship, which prevailed in the Roman world, were all considered by the people as equally true; by the philosopher, as equally false; and by the magistrate, as equally useful.
The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire ch. 2 (1776–1788)
- 3 This long peace, and the uniform government of the Romans, introduced a slow and secret poison into the vitals of the empire. The minds of men were gradually reduced to the same level, the fire of genius was extinguished, and even the military spirit evaporated.
The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire ch. 2 (1776–1788)
- 4 His [Titus Antoninus Pius's] reign is marked by the rare advantage of furnishing very few materials for history, . . . the register of the crimes, follies, and misfortunes of mankind.
The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire ch. 3 (1776–1788)
See Voltaire 15
- 5 [Of Emperor Gordian II:] Twenty-two acknowledged concubines, and a library of sixty-two thousand volumes, attested the variety of his inclinations, and from the productions [children and writings] which he left behind him, it appears that the former as well as the latter were designed for use rather than ostentation.
The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire ch. 7 (1776–1788)
- 6 The pure and genuine influence of Christianity may be traced in its beneficial, though imperfect, effects on the Barbarian proselytes of the North. If the decline of the Roman empire was hastened by the conversion of Constantine, his victorious religion broke the violence of the fall, and mollified the ferocious temper of the conquerors.
The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire ch. 38 (1776–1788)
- 7 Experience had shewn him [Pope Gregory the Great] the efficacy of these solemn and pompous rites, to soothe the distress, confirm the faith, to mitigate the fierceness, and to dispel the dark enthusiasm of the vulgate, and he readily forgave their tendency to promote the reign of priesthood and superstition.

The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire ch. 45 (1776–1788)

- 8 If we contrast the rapid progress of this mischievous discovery [gunpowder] with the slow and laborious advances of reason, science, and the arts of peace, a philosopher, according to his temper, will laugh or weep at the folly of mankind.
The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire ch. 65 (1776–1788)
- 9 I sighed as a lover, I obeyed as a son.
Memoirs of My Life ch. 4 (1796)
- 10 It was at Rome, on the 15th of October, 1764, as I sat musing amidst the ruins of the Capitol, while the barefoot friars were singing vespers in the Temple of Jupiter, that the idea of writing the decline and fall of the city first started to my mind.
Memoirs of My Life ch. 6 (1796)
- 11 My English text is chaste, and all licentious passages are left in the obscurity of a learned language.
Memoirs of My Life ch. 8 (1796)

Stella Gibbons

English novelist, 1902–1989

- 1 Something nasty in the woodshed.
Cold Comfort Farm ch. 10 (1932)

Wolcott Gibbs

U.S. critic, 1902–1958

- 1 [Parodying the style of the magazine Time:] Backward ran sentences until reeled the mind.
New Yorker, 28 Nov. 1936
- 2 [Parodying the style of the magazine Time:] Where it will all end, knows God.
New Yorker, 28 Nov. 1936

Kahlil Gibran

Lebanese writer and painter, 1883–1931

- 1 If you could hear the whispering of the dream you would hear no other sound.
The Prophet "Farewell" (1923)

- 2 Your children are not your children.
They are the sons and daughters of Life's longing for itself.
They came through you but not from you
And though they are with you yet they belong not to you.
You may give them your love but not your thoughts,
For they have their own thoughts.
You may house their bodies but not their souls.
The Prophet "On Children" (1923)
- 3 Let there be spaces in your togetherness.
The Prophet "On Marriage" (1923)
- 4 Work is love made visible.
The Prophet "On Work" (1923)
- 5 Are you a politician asking what your country can do for you or a zealous one asking what you can do for your country?
"The New Frontier" (1925). This is a loose translation made in the 1970s and was undoubtedly influenced by John F. Kennedy's words from 1960.
*See Briggs 1; Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr. 6; John Kennedy
4; John Kennedy 5; John Kennedy 16*

William Gibson

U.S.-born Canadian science fiction writer, 1948–

- 1 I knew every chip in Bobby's simulator by heart; it looked like your workaday Ono-Sendai VII, the "Cyberspace Seven."
Omni, July 1982. Coinage of cyberspace.
- 2 The sky above the port was the color of television, tuned to a dead channel.
Neuromancer ch. 1 (1984)
- 3 At twenty-two, had been a cowboy, a rustler, one of the best in the Sprawl. . . . Had operated on an almost permanent adrenaline high, a byproduct of youth and proficiency, jacked into a custom cyberspace deck that projected his disembodied consciousness into the consensual hallucination that was the Matrix.
Neuromancer ch. 1 (1984)
- 4 The future has arrived—it's just not evenly distributed yet.
Quoted in S.F. Examiner, 19 Apr. 1992

André Gide

French novelist and critic, 1869–1951

- 1 Everything has been said before; but since nobody listens, we have to keep going back and beginning all over again.
Traite du Narcisse (1891)
- 2 Families, I hate you! Shut-in homes, closed doors, jealous possessions of happiness.
Fruits of the Earth bk. 4 (1897)
- 3 Croyez ceux qui cherchent la vérité, doutez de ceux qui la trouvent.
Believe those who are seeking the truth; doubt those who find it.
Ainsi Soit-Il (1952) (translation by Justin O'Brien)
- 4 [In response to being asked who was the greatest nineteenth-century poet:] Hugo,—hélas!
Hugo—alas!
Quoted in L'Ermitage, Feb. 1902

Gabrielle Giffords

U.S. politician, 1970–

- 1 [Advocating gun control legislation after surviving an assassination attempt:] Speaking is difficult, but I need to say something important.
Testimony at Senate Judiciary Committee hearing, 30
Jan. 2013

Fred Gilbert

English songwriter, 1850–1903

- 1 The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo.
Title of song (1892)

Humphrey Gilbert

English explorer, ca. 1537–1583

- 1 We are as near to Heaven by sea as by land.
Quoted in Richard Hakluyt, Third and Last Volume of the Voyages (1600). Bartlett's Familiar Quotations quotes Thomas More, Utopia (1516): "The way to heaven out of all places is of like length and distance."
Bartlett's also notes that "Gilbert, on the last day of his life, was seen in his tiny pinnacle Squirrel with a book in hand, probably More's Utopia, which inspired his last utterance. He was homeward bound from Newfoundland, which he had just taken possession of in the name of the queen [August 1583]."

Ray Gilbert

U.S. songwriter, 1912–1976

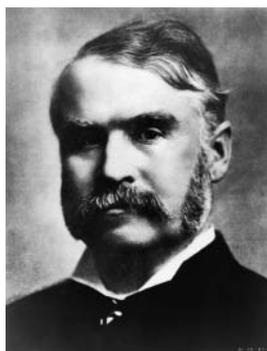

- 1 Zip-a-dee-doo-dah! Zip-a-dee-ay!
 My, oh, my! What a wonderful day!
 Plenty of sunshine headin' my way,
 Zip-a-dee-doo-dah! Zip-a-dee-ay!
 "Zip-a-dee-do-dah" (song) (1945)

W. S. (William Schwenck) Gilbert

English comic writer, 1836–1911

Quotations are based on the libretti prepared by Ian Bradley for The Annotated Gilbert and Sullivan (1982).

- 1 I'm called Little Buttercup—dear Little Buttercup,
 Though I could never tell why,
 But still I'm called Buttercup—poor Little
 Buttercup,
 Sweet Little Buttercup, I.
H.M.S. Pinafore act 1 (1878)
- 2 [Captain:] I am the Captain of the Pinafore;
 [All:] And a right good captain, too!
H.M.S. Pinafore act 1 (1878)
- 3 [Captain:] And I'm never, never sick at sea!
 [All:] What, never?
 [Captain:] No, never!
 [All:] What, never?
 [Captain:] Well, hardly ever!
H.M.S. Pinafore act 1 (1878)
- 4 Then give three cheers, and one cheer more,
 For the hardy Captain of the Pinafore!
H.M.S. Pinafore act 1 (1878)
- 5 [Captain:] I do my best to satisfy you all—
 [All:] And with you we're quite content.
 [Captain:] You're exceedingly polite,
 And I think it only right
 To return the compliment.
H.M.S. Pinafore act 1 (1878)
- 6 Bad language or abuse,
 I never, never use,
 Whatever the emergency;
 Though, "Bother it," I may Occasionally say,
 I never use a big, big D—.
H.M.S. Pinafore act 1 (1878)
- 7 And so do his sisters, and his cousins, and his aunts!
 His sisters and his cousins,

- Whom he reckons up by dozens,
 And his aunts!
H.M.S. Pinafore act 1 (1878)
- 8 When I was a lad I served a term
 As office boy to an Attorney's firm.
 I cleaned the windows and I swept the floor,
 And I polished up the handle of the big front door. . . .
 I polished up that handle so carefuller
 That now I am the Ruler of the Queen's Navee!
H.M.S. Pinafore act 1 (1878)
- 9 I always voted at my party's call,
 And I never thought of thinking for myself at all.
H.M.S. Pinafore act 1 (1878)
- 10 Stick close to your desks and never go to sea,
 And you all may be Rulers of the Queen's Navee!
H.M.S. Pinafore act 1 (1878)
- 11 Things are seldom what they seem,
 Skim milk masquerades as cream.
H.M.S. Pinafore act 2 (1878)
- 12 He is an Englishman!
 For he himself has said it,
 And it's greatly to his credit,
 That he is an Englishman!
H.M.S. Pinafore act 2 (1878)
- 13 For he might have been a Roosian,
 A French, or Turk, or Proosian,
 Or perhaps Itali-an! . . . .
 But in spite of all temptations
 To belong to other nations,
 He remains an Englishman!
H.M.S. Pinafore act 2 (1878)

- 14 It is a glorious thing
To be a Pirate King.
The Pirates of Penzance act 1 (1879)
- 15 Poor wandering one!
Though thou hast surely strayed,
Take heart of grace,
Thy steps retrace,
Poor wandering one!
The Pirates of Penzance act 1 (1879)
- 16 Poor wandering one!
If such poor love as mine
Can help thee find
True peace of mind—
Why, take it, it is thine!
The Pirates of Penzance act 1 (1879)
- 17 Here's a first-rate opportunity
To get married with impunity,
And indulge in the felicity
Of unbounded domesticity.
The Pirates of Penzance act 1 (1879)
- 18 You shall quickly be parsonified,
Conjugally matrimonified,
By a doctor of divinity,
Who is located in this vicinity.
The Pirates of Penzance act 1 (1879)
- 19 I am the very model of a modern Major-General, I've information vegetable, animal, and mineral,
I know the kings of England, and I quote the fights historical,
From Marathon to Waterloo, in order
categorical.
The Pirates of Penzance act 1 (1879)
- 20 I'm very well acquainted too with matters mathematical,
I understand equations, both the simple and quadratical,
About binomial theorem I'm teeming with a lot o' news—
With many cheerful facts about the square of the hypotenuse.
The Pirates of Penzance act 1 (1879)
- 21 When the foeman bares his steel
Tarantara! tarantara!
We uncomfortable feel,
Tarantara!
The Pirates of Penzance act 2 (1879)
- 22 When a felon's not engaged in his employment
Or maturing his felonious little plans,
His capacity for innocent enjoyment
Is just as great as any honest man's.
The Pirates of Penzance act 2 (1879)
- 23 Our feelings we with difficulty smother
When constabulary duty's to be done.
Ah, take one consideration with another,
A policeman's lot is not a happy one.
The Pirates of Penzance act 2 (1879)
- 24 When the enterprising burglar isn't burgling,
When the cut-throat isn't occupied in crime.
The Pirates of Penzance act 2 (1879)
- 25 Twenty love-sick maidens we,
Love-sick all against our will.
Patience act 1 (1881)
- 26 The Law is the true embodiment
Of everything that's excellent.
It has no kind of fault or flaw,
And I, my Lords, embody the Law.
Iolanthe act 1 (1882)
- 27 I often think it's comical
How Nature always does contrive
That every boy and every gal,
That's born into the world alive
Is either a little Liberal
Or else a little Conservative!
Iolanthe act 2 (1882)
- 28 A wandering minstrel I—
A thing of shreds and patches,
Of ballads, songs, and snatches,
And dreamy lullaby!
The Mikado act 1 (1885)
See Shakespeare 215
- 29 My family pride is something inconceivable. I can't help it. I was born sneering.
The Mikado act 1 (1885)
- 30 Behold the Lord High Executioner!
The Mikado act 1 (1885)
- 31 As some day it may happen that a victim must be found,
I've got a little list—I've got a little list
Of society offenders who might well be underground
And who never would be missed—who never would be missed!
The Mikado act 1 (1885)

- 32 Then the idiot who praises, with enthusiastic tone,
All centuries but this, and every country but his own.
The Mikado act 1 (1885)
- 33 And that singular anomaly, the lady novelist—
I don't think she'd be missed—I'm sure she'd not be missed!
The Mikado act 1 (1885)
- 34 Three little maids from school are we,
Pert as a school-girl well can be,
Filled to the brim with girlish glee.
The Mikado act 1 (1885)
- 35 [Yum-Yum:] Everything is a source of fun.
[Peep-Bo:] Nobody's safe, for we care for none!
[Pitti-Sing:] Life is a joke that's just begun!
The Mikado act 1 (1885)
- 36 Three little maids who, all unwary,
Come from a ladies' seminary.
The Mikado act 1 (1885)
- 37 To sit in solemn silence in a dull, dark dock,
In a pestilential prison, with a life-long lock,
Awaiting the sensation of a short, sharp shock,
From a cheap and chippy chopper on a big black block!
The Mikado act 1 (1885)
- 38 Here's a how-de-do!
The Mikado act 2 (1885)
- 39 My object all sublime
I shall achieve in time—
To let the punishment fit the crime.
The Mikado act 2 (1885)
See Cicero 5
- 40 And make each prisoner pent
Unwittingly represent
A source of innocent merriment!
The Mikado act 2 (1885)
- 41 [The punishment of a billiard sharp:]
And there he plays extravagant matches
In fitless finger-stalls
On a cloth untrue,
With a twisted cue
And elliptical billiard balls!
The Mikado act 2 (1885)
- 42 I have a left shoulder-blade that is a miracle of loveliness. People come miles to see it. My right elbow has a fascination that few can resist. It is on view Tuesdays and Fridays, on presentation of visiting card.

The Mikado act 2 (1885)

- 43 Merely corroborative detail, intended to give artistic verisimilitude to an otherwise bald and unconvincing narrative.
The Mikado act 2 (1885)
- 44 The flowers that bloom in the spring,
Tra la,
Have nothing to do with the case.
The Mikado act 2 (1885)
- 45 On a tree by a river a little tom-tit
Sang "Willow, titwillow, titwillow!"
And I said to him, "Dicky-bird, why do you sit Singing 'Willow, titwillow, titwillow'?"
The Mikado act 2 (1885)
- 46 "Is it weakness of intellect, birdie?" I cried,
"Or a rather tough worm in your little inside?"
The Mikado act 2 (1885)
- 47 When every one is somebodee,
Then no one's anybody!
The Gondoliers act 2 (1889)
- 48 The world has joked incessantly for over fifty centuries,
And every joke that's possible has long ago been made.
His Excellency act 2 (1894)

Julia Gillard

Australian prime minister, 1961–

- 1 [Responding to a speech by Opposition Leader Tony Abbott:] I will not be lectured about sexism and misogyny by this man. I will not. . . . Not now, not ever.
Speech to Australian House of Representatives, 9 Oct. 2012

Haven Gillespie

U.S. songwriter, 1888–1975

- 1 You better watch out,
You better not cry,
Better not pout,
I'm telling you why:
Santa Claus is comin' to town.
"Santa Claus Is Comin' to Town" (song) (1934)

- 2 He's making a list
And checking it twice,
Gonna find out
Who's naughty and nice.
"Santa Claus Is Comin' to Town" (song) (1934)

Penelope Gilliatt

U.S. critic and writer, 1932–1993

- 1 Sunday Bloody Sunday.
Title of motion picture (1971). According to Nigel Rees, Cassell's Movie Quotations, "Since the 19th century there has been the exclamation 'Sunday, bloody Sunday' to reflect frustration at the inactivity and boredom traditionally associated with the Sabbath. This was presumably the cue for the title of Penelope Gilliatt's screenplay." In 1983, the song title "Sunday Bloody Sunday" by the Irish band U2 referred to the "Bloody Sunday" massacre of thirteen Irish Catholics by British troops on 30 Jan. 1972.

Carol Gilligan

U.S. psychologist, 1936–

- 1 While an ethic of justice proceeds from the premise of equality—that everyone should be treated the same—an ethic of care rests on the premise of nonviolence—that no one should be hurt.
In a Different Voice ch. 6 (1982)

Strickland Gillilan

U.S. poet, 1869–1954

- 1 Bilin' down's repoort, wuz Finnigin.
An' he writed this here; "Musther Flannigan—
Off agin, on agin,
Gone agin.—Finnigin."
"Finnigin to Flannigan" l. 45 (1897). The source of the expression "off again on again."
2 Adam
Had 'em.
"The Antiquity of Microbes" l. 1 (1904). Said to be the shortest poem in the English language.

James Gillray

English cartoonist, ca. 1757–1815

- 1 [Referring to the Bank of England.] The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street.
Title of cartoon (1797)

Charlotte Perkins Gilman

U.S. feminist and writer, 1860–1935

- 1 There are things in that paper that nobody knows but me, or ever will.
Behind that outside pattern the dim shapes get clearer every day.
It is always the same shape, only very numerous.
And it is like a woman stooping down and creeping about behind that pattern.
"The Yellow Wallpaper" (1892)
2 There's a whining at the threshold—
There's a scratching at the floor—
To work! To work! In Heaven's name!
The wolf is at the door!
"The Wolf at the Door" l. 5 (1893)
3 The labor of women in the house, certainly enables men to produce more wealth than they otherwise could; and in this way women are economic factors in society. But so are horses.
Women and Economics ch. 1 (1898)
4 There is no female mind. The brain is not an organ of sex. As well speak of a female liver.
Women and Economics ch. 8 (1898)
5 The fact that women in the home have shut themselves away from the thought and life of the world has done much to retard progress. We fill the world with the children of 20th century A.D. fathers and 20th century B.C. mothers.
Speech at National American Convention, 1905

Samuel Gilman

U.S. clergyman, 1791–1858

- 1 Fair Harvard! Thy sons to thy Jubilee throng.
"Ode, Bicentennial, Harvard University" l. 1 (1836)

Gary Gilmore

U.S. murderer, 1941–1977

- 1 [Remark before his execution for murder, 17 Jan. 1977.] Let's do it!
Quoted in Wash. Post, 18 Jan. 1977

Grant Gilmore

U.S. legal scholar, 1910–1982

- 1 Law reflects but in no sense determines the moral worth of a society. The values of a reasonably just society will reflect themselves in a reasonably just law. The better the society, the less law there will be. In Heaven there will be no law, and the lion will lie down with the lamb. The values of an unjust society will reflect themselves in an unjust law. The worse the society, the more law there will be. In Hell there will be nothing but law, and due process will be meticulously observed.

The Ages of American Law ch. 5 (1977)

John Gilmore

U.S. computer scientist, 1955–

- 1 The Net interprets censorship as damage and routes around it.

Quoted in InformationWeek, 29 Nov. 1993

Patrick S. Gilmore

Irish-born U.S. bandleader, 1829–1892

- 1 When Johnny comes marching home again,
hurrah! hurrah!
We'll give him a hearty welcome then, hurrah,
hurrah!
The men will cheer, the boys will shout,
The ladies they will all turn out,
And we'll all feel gay when Johnny comes marching home.
"When Johnny Comes Marching Home" (song) (1863)

Allen Ginsberg

U.S. poet, 1926–1997

- 1 America I've given you all and now I'm nothing.
"America" l. 1 (1956)
- 2 America when will you be angelic?
When will you take off your clothes?
When will you look at yourself through the grave?
When will you be worthy of your million Trotskyites?
"America" l. 8 (1956)
- 3 Are you being sinister or is this some form of practical joke?
I'm trying to come to the point.
I refuse to give up my obsession.
"America" l. 21 (1956)

- 4 Asia is rising against me
I haven't got a chinaman's chance.
"America" l. 48 (1956)
- 5 America how can I write a holy litany in your silly mood?
"America" l. 55 (1956)
- 6 I'd better get right down to the job.
It's true I don't want to join the Army or turn lathes in precision parts factories. I'm nearsighted and psychopathic anyway.
America I'm putting my queer shoulder to the wheel.
"America" l. 72 (1956)
- 7 I saw the best minds of my generation destroyed by madness, starving hysterical naked,
dragging themselves through the negro streets
at dawn looking for an angry fix, angelheaded hipsters burning for the ancient heavenly connection to the starry dynamo in the machinery of night.
"Howl" l. 1 (1956)
See Louis Simpson 1
- 8 who lost their loveboys to the three old shrews of fate the one eyed shrew of the heterosexual dollar the one eyed shrew that winks out of the womb and the one eyed shrew that does nothing but sit on her ass and snip the intellectual golden threads of the craftsman's loom.
"Howl" l. 40 (1956)
- 9 With the absolute heart of the poem of life butchered out of their own bodies good to eat a thousand years.
"Howl" l. 78 (1956)
- 10 There is nothing to be learned from history any more. We're in science fiction now.
Quoted in Christopher Butler, After the Wake: An Essay on the Contemporary Avant-Garde (1980)
- Nikki Giovanni (Yolande Cornelia Giovanni)
U.S. poet, 1943–
- 1 It's a sex object if you're pretty and no love
or love and no sex if you're fat.
"Woman Poem" l. 17 (1968)

- 2 And I really hope no white person ever has cause to write about me because they never understand Black love is Black wealth and they'll probably talk about my hard childhood and never understand that all the while I was quite happy.
"Nikki-Rosa" l. 24 (1970)
- 3 So she replied: show me someone not full of herself
and i'll show you a hungry person.
"Poem for a Lady Whose Voice I Like" l. 20 (1970)
- 4 There're two people in the world that are not likeable: a master and a slave.
Quoted in James Baldwin and Nikki Giovanni, A Dialogue (1973)

George Gipp

U.S. football player, 1895–1920

- 1 [Alleged deathbed request to coach Knute Rockne:] Tell them to go in there with all they've got and win just one for the Gipper.
Attributed in Collier's, 22 Nov. 1930. Murray Sperber, in Shake Down the Thunder: The Creation of Notre Dame Football (1993), concludes that this version of a 1928 Rockne pep talk with the coach recounting these words was, in all probability, written by Rockne's ghostwriter at Collier's, John B. Kennedy.
Rockne did apparently quote Gipp in 1928 (the *N.Y.
Daily News*, 12 Nov. 1928, had the words as "On his deathbed George Gipp told me that some day, when the time came, he wanted me to ask a Notre Dame team to beat the Army for him"), but there is much evidence against Gipp having actually made such a request.

Delphine de Girardin

French writer, 1804–1855

- 1 Les affaires, c'est l'argent des autres!
Business, it's other people's money.
Marguerite ou Deux Amours ch. 17 (1852)

Jean Giraudoux

French writer, 1882–1944

- 1 There's no better way of exercising the imagination than the study of law. No poet ever interpreted nature as freely as a lawyer interprets the truth.
La Guerre de Troie N'Aura pas Lieu act 2, sc. 4 (1935)

Lillian Gish

U.S. actress, 1893–1993

- 1 When I was making films, Lionel Barrymore first played my grandfather, later he played my father, and finally he played my husband. If he had lived, I am sure I would have played his mother. That's the way it is in Hollywood. The men get younger and the women get older.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 31 Dec. 1982

Rudolph W. Giuliani

U.S. politician, 1944–

- 1 [In response to a question about estimated casualties at the World Trade Center after the 9/11 terrorist attacks:] More than any of us can bear.
News conference, New York, N.Y., 11 Sept. 2001
- 2 Our hearts are broken, but they are beating, and they are beating stronger than ever. We choose to live our lives in freedom.
Remarks on Saturday Night Live (television show), 29
Sept. 2001
- 3 Truth isn't truth.
NBC Meet the Press (television show), 19 Aug. 2018

William E. Gladstone

British statesman, 1809–1898

- 1 You cannot fight against the future. Time is on our side.
Speech in House of Commons, 27 Apr. 1866
- 2 Justice delayed is justice denied.
Speech in House of Commons, 16 Mar. 1868.
Although Gladstone popularized this saying, it appeared earlier in the Weekly Mississippian (Jackson, Miss.), 23 Nov. 1838. Edward K. Conklin has found precursors dating back to "Another Word to the Wise, Shewing That the Delay of Justice, Is Great Injustice" (John Musgrave, Title of pamphlet [1646]) and "Justice delayed is little better than justice denied" (George Dillwyn, Occasional Reflections [1815]).
- 3 But, as the British Constitution is the most subtile organism which has proceeded from the womb and the long gestation of progressive history, so the American Constitution is, so far as I can see, the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man.
North American Review, Sept./Oct. 1878

- 4 All the world over, I will back the masses against the classes.

Speech, Liverpool, England, 28 June 1886

Joseph Glanvill

English clergyman and philosopher, 1636–
1680

- 1 They that have never peep't beyond the common belief in which their easie understandings were at first indoctrinated, are indubitably assur'd of the Truth, and comparative excellency of their receptions, while the larger Souls, that have travail'd the divers Climates of Opinions, are more cautious in their resolves, and more sparing to determine.

Henry Glapthorne

English playwright, ca. 1610–ca. 1643

- 1 The law is such an Ass.

Revenge for Honor act 3, sc. 2 (1654)

See Dickens 20

Susan Glaspell

U.S. writer, 1876–1948

- 1 Nothing here but kitchen things.

Trifles (1916)

April Glaspie

U.S. diplomat, 1942–

- 1 [Statement to Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein four days before Hussein ordered the invasion of Kuwait:] We have no opinion on the Arab-Arab conflicts like your border disagreement with Kuwait. [Secretary of State James Baker] has directed our official spokesman to emphasize the instruction that the issue is not associated with America.

Quoted in Guardian, 12 Sept. 1990

James Gleick

U.S. writer, 1954–

- 1 Tiny differences in input could quickly become overwhelming differences in output. . . . In weather, for example, this translates into what is only half-jokingly known as the Butterfly

Effect—the notion that a butterfly stirring the air today in Peking can transform storm systems next month in New York.

Denis Glover

New Zealand poet, 1912–1980

- 1 Quardle oodle ardle wardle doodle
The magpies said.

“The Magpies” l. 3 (1941)

Donald Glover

U.S. entertainer, 1983–

- 1 This is America
Don't catch you slippin' up.

“This Is America” (song) (2018)

Louise Glück

U.S. poet, 1943–

- 1 Soon the birds and ancients
Will be starting to arrive, bereaving points South.

“The Racer's Widow” l. 3 (1968)

- 2 Even he did not get to keep that lovely body.

“The Racer's Widow” l. 12 (1968)

Elinor Glyn

English writer, 1864–1943

- 1 No matter what he does, one always forgives him. It does not depend upon looks, either—although this actual person is abominably good-looking—it does not depend upon intelligence or character or—anything—as you say, it is just “it.”

Kurt Gödel

Austrian-born U.S. logician and mathematician, 1906–1978

- 1 The development of mathematics toward greater precision has led, as is well known, to the formalization of large tracts of it, so that one can prove any theorem using nothing but a few mechanical rules. . . . One might therefore conjecture that these axioms and rules of inference are sufficient to decide any mathematical question that can at all be formally expressed in these systems. It will be shown below that this is not the case, that on the contrary there are in the two systems mentioned relatively simple problems in the theory of integers that cannot be decided on the basis of the axioms.

“On Formally Undecidable Propositions of Principia Mathematica and Related Systems I” (1931)

Arthur Godfrey

U.S. entertainer, 1903–1983

- 1 I’m proud to be paying taxes in the United States. The only thing is—I could be just as proud for half the money.

Quoted in Reader’s Digest, Oct. 1951

Joseph Goebbels

German Nazi leader, 1897–1945

- 1 We can manage without butter but not, for example, without guns. If we are attacked we can only defend ourselves with guns not with butter.

Speech, Berlin, 17 Jan. 1936
See Goering 1

- 2 Wollt Ihr den totalen Krieg?
Do you want total war?
Speech at Sportpalast, Berlin, 18 Feb. 1943
- 3 Should the German people lay down their arms, the Soviets . . . would occupy all eastern and south-eastern Europe together with the greater part of the Reich. Over all this territory, which with the Soviet Union included, would be of enormous extent, an iron curtain would at once descend.

- 3 The people can always be brought to the bidding of the leaders. That is easy. All you have to do is tell them they are being attacked and denounce the pacifists for lack of patriotism and exposing the country to danger. It works the same way in any country.

Quoted in Gustave M. Gilbert, Nuremberg Diary (1947). Gilbert recorded these words from a jail-cell interview with Goering during the Nuremberg war crimes trials, 18 Apr. 1946.

Johann Wolfgang von Goethe

German writer, 1749–1832

das alte.*
America, you have it better than our continent,
the old one.
Almanac for the Muses (1831)

- 20 Das Ewig-Weibliche zieht uns hinan.
The Eternal Feminine draws us on.
Faust pt. 2 “Hochgebirg” (1832)
- 21 [“Last words”:] Mehr Licht!
More light!
Quoted in K. W. Müller, Goethes Letzte Literarische Thätigkeit (1832). The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations notes that this is an abbreviated version of “Macht doch den zweiten Fensterladen auch auf, damit mehr Licht hereinkomme” (Open the second shutter, so that more light can come in).
- 22 His high rank, as an English peer, was very injurious to Byron, for all genius is oppressed by the outer world;—how much more by high rank and great possessions! The middle station is most favorable to genius; you find the great artists and poets there.
Quoted in Johann Peter Eckermann, Conversations with Goethe in the Last Years of His Life (1836–1848) (entry for 24 Feb. 1825)
- 23 I compare the earth and her atmosphere to a great living being perpetually inhaling and exhaling.
Quoted in Johann Peter Eckermann, Conversations with Goethe in the Last Years of His Life (1836–1848) (entry for 11 Apr. 1827)
See Lovelock 1
- 24 Classicism is health, romanticism is disease.
Quoted in Johann Peter Eckermann, Conversations with Goethe in the Last Years of His Life (1836–1848) (entry for 2 Apr. 1829)
- 25 I don’t know myself, and God forbid that I should.
Quoted in Johann Peter Eckermann, Conversations with Goethe in the Last Years of His Life (1836–1848) (entry for 10 Apr. 1829)
- 26 If any one asks me for good advice, I say I will give it, but only on condition that you promise me not to take it.
Quoted in Johann Peter Eckermann, Conversations with Goethe in the Last Years of His Life (1836–1848) (entry for 13 Feb. 1831)

Nikolai Gogol

Russian writer, 1809–1852

- I [Are not] you too, Russia, speeding along like a spirited troika that nothing can overtake? . . . Everything on earth is flying past, and looking askance, other nations and states draw aside and make way.

Dead Souls pt. I, ch. 11 (1842) (translation by David Magarshak)

Isaac Goldberg

U.S. writer, 1887–1938

- I Diplomacy is to do and say
The nastiest thing in the nicest way.
The Reflex, Oct. 1927

Ludwig Max Goldberger

German banker, 1848–1913

- I [Referring to the United States:] Land of Unlimited Possibilities.
Title of book (1903)

William Golding

English novelist, 1911–1993

- I Fancy thinking the Beast was something you could hunt and kill! . . . You knew, didn’t you? I’m part of you? Close, close, close! I’m the reason why it’s no go? Why things are the way they are?
Lord of the Flies ch. 8 (1954). Ellipsis in the original.
- 2 Ralph wept for the end of innocence, the darkness of man’s heart, and the fall through the air of the true, wise friend called Piggy.
Lord of the Flies ch. 12 (1954)

Emma Goldman

Lithuanian-born U.S. anarchist, 1869–1940

- I I did not believe that a Cause which stood for a beautiful ideal, for anarchism, for release and freedom from conventions and prejudice, should demand the denial of life and joy. I insisted that our Cause could not expect me to become a nun and that the movement should not be turned into a cloister. If it meant that, I did not want it.
Living My Life ch. 5 (1931). Rosalie Maggio, The New Beacon Book of Quotations by Women, posits this as a possible source for the abridgment “If I can’t dance I don’t want to be in your revolution.” The abridgment apparently first appeared on T-shirts at a 1973 festival in New York City.

William Goldman

U.S. screenwriter and novelist, 1931–2018

- 1 Hello, my name is Inigo Montoya, you killed my father, prepare to die.
The Princess Bride ch. 5 (1973)
- 2 Life is pain. . . . Anybody that says different is selling something.

French-born English financier and politician, 1933–1997

- 1 [Remark upon marrying Annabel Birley, 1978:] If you marry your mistress, you create a job vacancy.
Quoted in Geoffrey Wansell, Tycoon (1987)

Oliver Goldsmith

British writer, 1728–1774

- 1 Such is the patriot's boast, where'er we roam,
His first, best country ever is, at home.
The Traveller l. 73 (1764)
- 2 History of Little Goody Two-Shoes.
Title of book (1765). The authorship of this children's story has also been ascribed to people other than Goldsmith, such as John Newbery and Giles Jones.
- 3 Man wants but little here below,
Nor wants that little long.
"Edwin and Angelina, or the Hermit" l. 31 (1766).
Edward Young had written, in Night Thoughts, "Night 8" (1742–1745): "She gives but little, nor that little, long."
- 4 But soon a wonder came to light
That show'd the rogues they lied:
The man recovered of the bite,
The dog it was that died.
"An Elegy on the Death of a Mad Dog" l. 29 (1766)
- 5 I find you want me to furnish you with argument and intellects too.
The Vicar of Wakefield ch. 7 (1766)
See Samuel Johnson 106

- 6 When lovely woman stoops to folly
And finds too late that men betray,
What charm can soothe her melancholy,
What art can wash her guilt away?
The Vicar of Wakefield ch. 29 (1766)
See T. S. Eliot 54
- 7 Ill fares the land, to hast'ning ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates, and men decay;
Princes and lords may flourish, or may fade;
A breath can make them, as a breath has made;
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once destroyed, can never be supplied.
The Deserted Village l. 51 (1770)
- 8 At church, with meek and unaffected grace,
His looks adorn'd the venerable place;
Truth from his lips prevail'd with double sway,
And fools, who came to scoff, remain'd to pray.
The Deserted Village l. 179 (1770)
- 9 The very pink of perfection.
She Stoops to Conquer act 1 (1773)

Barry M. Goldwater

U.S. politician, 1909–1998

- 1 Sometimes I think this country would be better off if we could just saw off the Eastern Seaboard and let it float out to sea.
Quoted in Wash. Star, 3 Dec. 1961
- 2 I will offer a choice, not an echo.
News conference, Paradise City, Ariz., 3 Jan. 1964
- 3 Extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice.
Moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue.
Speech accepting nomination for president at Republican National Convention, San Francisco, Calif., 16 July 1964
See Thomas Paine 24

Samuel Goldwyn (Samuel Goldfish)

Polish-born U.S. motion picture producer, 1882–1974

- 1 Gentlemen, include me out.
Quoted in Alva Johnston, The Great Goldwyn (1937).
Apparently uttered before storming out of a heated discussion of a Motion Pictures Producers and Distributors of America labor controversy in 1933.
- 2 I'll give you a definite maybe.
Quoted in Dallas Morning News, 29 Mar. 1940.
"Definite maybe" was earlier credited to an unnamed producer in Brooklyn Daily Eagle, 14 Nov. 1933.

- 3 [Of films with “messages”:] Messages are for Western Union.
Quoted in Dallas Morning News, 17 Apr. 1943
- 4 Why should people go out and pay to see bad movies when they can stay at home and see bad television for nothing?
Quoted in Observer, 9 Sept. 1956
- 5 The reason so many people showed up at [Louis B. Mayer’s] funeral was because they wanted to make sure he was dead.
Quoted in Bosley Crowther, Hollywood Rajah (1960)
See Jessel 2
- 6 [When urged to write his autobiography:] Oh no. I can’t do that—not until long after I’m dead.
Quoted in Norman Zierold, The Moguls (1969)
- 7 [Of his film The Best Years of Our Lives before its opening, 1946:] I don’t care if it doesn’t make a nickel, I just want every man, woman, and child in America to see it.
Quoted in Norman Zierold, The Moguls (1969)
- 8 A verbal contract isn’t worth the paper it’s written on.
Attributed in Alva Johnston, The Great Goldwyn (1937). According to Norman Zierold, The Moguls (1969), Goldwyn actually said, in praise of the trustworthiness of motion picture executive Joseph M. Schenck: “His verbal contract is worth more than the paper it’s written on.” The sentence was then “improved,” like many other Goldwynisms, and became famous in the form above. There is evidence, however, of an older provenance. “A verbal agreement is not worth the paper it’s written on” appeared, for example, in the Irish Times and Solicitors’ Journal, 14 June 1890.
- 9 Our comedies are not to be laughed at.
Attributed in Alva Johnston, The Great Goldwyn (1937). The Trenton Sunday Times-Advertiser, 8 May 1921, attributed “My comedies are not to be laughed at” to an unnamed producer. The joke is an old one, traced by Garson O’Toole as far back as the New-York Mirror, 29 Aug. 1829 (“His efforts, like Cumberland’s comedies, are not to be laughed at”).
- 10 I read part of it all the way through.
Attributed in Alva Johnston, The Great Goldwyn (1937). According to Johnston, this was said by another producer but then “pinned” on Goldwyn.
- 11 I can answer you in two words, “Im possible.”
Attributed in Alva Johnston, The Great Goldwyn (1937). According to Johnston: “Sam did not say it. It was printed late in 1925 in a humorous magazine and credited to an anonymous Potash or Perlmutter.

An executive in the Chaplin studio pointed it out to Charlie Chaplin, saying, ‘It sounds like Sam Goldwyn.’ Chaplin said, ‘We’ll pin it on Sam,’ and he repeated it until it became a world-famous Goldwynism.” An earlier version was in the Daily Illini, 26 Jan. 1928: “In two words I can tell you what’s the matter with it: It’s im-possible.”

- 12 It rolls off my back like a duck.
Attributed in Alva Johnston, The Great Goldwyn (1937)
- 13 Anybody who goes to a psychiatrist should have his head examined.
Attributed in N.Y. Herald Tribune, 26 Dec. 1948.
Probably an apocryphal Goldwynism.
- 14 Let’s have some new clichés.
Attributed in N.Y. Times, 6 Sept. 1983. Labeled “perhaps apocryphal” in The Oxford Dictionary of Twentieth Century Quotations.
- 15 I want a film that begins with an earthquake and works up to a climax.
Attributed in Wash. Post, 23 Jan. 1944. Virtually identical language was attributed to “a film magnate” in Spectator, 4 Mar. 1938.

Daniel Goleman

U.S. psychologist, 1946–

- I What factors are at play, for example, when people of high IQ flounder and those of modest IQ do surprisingly well? I would argue that the difference quite often lies in the abilities called here emotional intelligence, which include self-control, zeal and persistence, and the ability to motivate oneself.
Emotional Intelligence “Aristotle’s Challenge” (1995). Goleman popularized this term, although it is documented in a general sense by the Oxford English Dictionary as early as 1938.

Vernon Louis “Lefty” Gomez

U.S. baseball player, 1908–1989

- I [Response after being asked to have his salary cut from $20,000 to $7,500 because he had had a poor season:] Tell you what, you keep the salary and pay me the cut.
Quoted in Colin Jarman, The Guinness Dictionary of Sports Quotations (1990)

Ivan Goncharov

Russian novelist, 1812–1891

- I “And he was as intelligent as other people, his soul was pure and clear as crystal; he was noble and affectionate—and yet he did nothing!”

“But why? What was the reason?”

“The reason . . . what reason was there? Oblomovism!”

Oblomov pt. 4, ch. 12 (1859)

Maud Gonne

Irish nationalist and actress, 1867–1953

- I [Remark to William Butler Yeats:] Poets should never marry. The world should thank me for not marrying you.

Quoted in Margaret Ward, Maud Gonne: A Life (1990)

Alberto R. Gonzales

U.S. government official, 1955–

- I In my judgment, this new paradigm [the war on terrorism] renders obsolete Geneva’s strict limitations on questioning of enemy prisoners and renders quaint some of its provisions.

Memorandum (written as White House legal counsel) to George W. Bush, 25 Jan. 2002

Miguel “Mike” Gonzales

Cuban baseball player and manager, 1890–1977

- I Good field. No hit.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 2 Sept. 1927. In this 1924 telegram, Gonzalez gave his scouting assessment of the abilities of Moe Berg, a baseball catcher of limited (athletic) talents who later became a leading U.S. spy during World War II. The line is sometimes attributed to a Cuban scout named Adolpho Luque.

Amy Goodman

U.S. journalist, 1957–

- I [Accepting an award for coverage of the 1991 massacre of Timorese by Indonesian troops:] Go to where the silence is and say something.

Quoted in Columbia Journalism Review, Mar./Apr. 1994

Paul Goodman

U.S. author and activist, 1911–1972

- I Where there is official censorship it is a sign that speech is serious. Where there is none, it is pretty certain that the official spokesmen have all the loud-speakers.

Growing Up Absurd ch. 2 (1960)

Steve Goodman

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1948–1984

- I Good morning America how are you?
Don’t you know me, I’m your native son,
I’m the train they call The City of New Orleans,
I’ll be gone five hundred miles when the day is done.

“The City of New Orleans” (song) (1972)

- 2 The conductor sings his song again,
The passengers will please refrain
This train’s got the disappearing railroad blues.
“The City of New Orleans” (song) (1972)

Joe Goodwin

U.S. songwriter, 1889–1943

- I When you’re smiling, when you’re smiling, the whole world smiles with you,
When you’re laughing, when you’re laughing, the sun comes shining through.
But when you’re crying you bring on the rain,
so stop your sighing, be happy again.
Keep on smiling, ’cause when you’re smiling, the whole world smiles with you.

“When You’re Smiling (The Whole World Smiles with You)” (song) (1928). Cowritten with Mark Fisher and Larry Shay.

Mikhail Sergeevich Gorbachev

Soviet statesman, 1931–

- I Democracy is the wholesome and pure air without which a socialist public organization cannot live a full-blooded life.

Speech to 27th Congress of Communist Party of the Soviet Union, Moscow, 25 Feb. 1986

- 2 The guilt of Stalin and his immediate entourage before the Party and the people for the mass repressions and lawlessness they committed is enormous and unforgivable.
Speech on seventieth anniversary of Russian Revolution, Moscow, 2 Nov. 1987

- 3 The idea of restructuring [perestroika] . . . combines continuity and innovation, the historical experience of Bolshevism and the contemporaneity of socialism.

Speech on seventieth anniversary of Russian Revolution, Moscow, 2 Nov. 1987

Nadine Gordimer

South African writer, 1923–2014

- 1 It was a miracle; it was all a miracle: and one ought to have known, from the sufferings of saints, that miracles are horror.

July's People (1981)

Mack Gordon

Polish-born U.S. songwriter, 1904–1959

- 1 Pardon me, boy,
Is that the Chattanooga choo-choo?
Track twenty-nine.
Boy, you can give me a shine.
“Chattanooga Choo-Choo” (song) (1941)

Albert F. Gore, Jr.

U.S. politician, 1948–

- 1 High-capacity fiber optic networks will be the information superhighways of tomorrow.
Statement on Senate bill, 3 Jan. 1989. Apparent coinage of information superhighway to refer to the Internet.
- 2 My counsel advises me that there is no controlling legal authority or case that says that there was any violation of law whatsoever in the manner in which I asked people to contribute to our reelection campaign.
Press briefing, 3 Mar. 1997
- 3 During my service in the United States Congress, I took the initiative in creating the Internet.
CNN television interview, 9 Mar. 1999. This statement was controversial because the Internet was created in the early 1970s, but it was true that Gore had been a pioneer in advocating the construction of a national high-speed data network.
- 4 [Remark to George W. Bush during their telephone call in which Gore retracted his election night concession:] You don't have to get snippy.
Quoted in Chicago Tribune, 8 Nov. 2000

Maxim Gorky (Aleksei Maksimovich Peshkov)

Russian writer and political activist, 1868–1936

- 1 How marvelous is Man! How proud the word rings—Man!

The Lower Depths act 4 (1903)

Stuart Gorrell

U.S. songwriter, 1902–1963

- 1 Georgia, Georgia,
The whole day through;
Just an old sweet song
Keeps Georgia on my mind.
“Georgia on My Mind” (song) (1930)

Edmund Gosse

English writer, 1849–1928

- 1 [Of Sturge Moore:] A sheep in sheep's clothing.
Quoted in Ferris Greenslet, Under the Bridge (1943)
See Winston Churchill 48

Glenn Gould

Canadian pianist and composer, 1932–1982

- 1 The purpose of art is the lifelong construction of a state of wonder.
Commencement address at York University, Toronto, Canada, 6 Nov. 1982

Stephen Jay Gould

U.S. paleontologist and author, 1941–2002

- 1 But a man does not attain the status of Galileo merely because he is persecuted; he must also be right.
Natural History, Mar. 1975
- 2 In science “fact” can only mean “confirmed to such a degree that it would be perverse to withhold provisional assent.”
Hen's Teeth and Horse's Toes “Evolution as Fact and Theory” (1983)
- 3 People in the past, in religious civilizations, had a real, profound terror of apocalyptic catastrophe. What frightens us in our secular age is the computer breakdown that'll occur if computers interpret the 00 of the year 2000 as a return to 1900.
Conversations About the End of Time introduction, ed. Catherine David et al. (1999)

Remy de Gourmont

French writer, 1858–1915

- I De toutes les aberrations sexuelles, la plus singulière est peut-être la chasteté.

Of all sexual aberrations perhaps the most curious is chastity.

La Physique de l'Amour: Essai sur l'Instincte Sexuel ch. 18 (1903) (translation by Ezra Pound)

Francisco José de Goya y Lucientes

Spanish painter, 1746–1828

- I The dream of reason produces monsters.
Los Caprichos caption of plate 43 (1799)

Baltasar Gracián

Spanish philosopher, 1601–1658

- I Never open the door to a lesser evil, for other and greater ones invariably slink in after it.
The Art of Worldly Wisdom (1647)

Alex Graham

Scottish cartoonist, 1917–1991

- I [Addressed by two extraterrestrials to a horse, with a flying saucer parked in the field behind them:]
Kindly take us to your President!

New Yorker, 21 Mar. 1953 (cartoon caption). Apparently the source of the science fiction catchphrase, “Take me to your leader.” The exact words “Take us to your leader!” appeared in Walter Winchell’s newspaper column, 1 July 1955. In a non-science-fiction context, “take me to your leader” appeared in Burnett Hillman Streeter, The Sadhu: A Study in Mysticism and Practical Religion (1921).

Clementina Stirling Graham

Scottish writer, 1782–1877

- I The best way to get the better of temptation is just to yield to it.

David Graham

U.S. lawyer, 1808–1852

- I A lawyer should never ask a witness on cross-examination a question unless in the first place he knew what the answer would be, or in the second place he didn’t care.

Quoted in Francis L. Wellman, The Art of Cross-Examination (1903)

Martha Graham

U.S. dancer and choreographer, 1894–1991

- I We look at the dance to impart the sensation of living in an affirmation of life, to energize the spectator into keener awareness of the vigor, the mystery, the humor, the variety, and the wonder of life. This is the function of the American dance.

“The American Dance” (1935)

Kenneth Grahame

British children’s book writer, 1859–1932

- I Believe me, my young friend, there is nothing—absolutely nothing—half so much worth doing as simply messing about in boats.

The Wind in the Willows ch. 1 (1908)

Cary Grant (Archibald Leach)

English actor, 1904–1986

- I Everybody wants to be Cary Grant. Even I want to be Cary Grant.

Quoted in Newsweek, 12 Mar. 1990

- 2 [Responding to telegram to his movie studio, HOW OLD CARY GRANT?:] OLD CARY GRANT FINE. HOW YOU?

Attributed in St. Petersburg Times, 8 Nov. 1959. Ralph Keyes, in his book “Nice Guys Finish Seventh” (1992), quotes Grant as denying the authenticity of this anecdote.

- 3 Judy Judy Judy.

Attributed in Dallas Morning News, 1 Dec. 1967. According to Ralph Keyes, “Nice Guys Finish Seventh” (1992), “Grant once had some sound men listen through all of his movies for the line. They couldn’t find it. Where did he think it originated? ‘I vaguely recall,’ said Grant, ‘that at a party someone introduced Judy Garland by saying “Judy, Judy, Judy,” and it caught on, attributed to me.’” A claim of earlier usage is made by Marc Eliot, Cary Grant (2004): “Grant recorded a promo for the Lux Radio Theater version of Only Angels Have Wings in which he did actually say, ‘Jee-u-dee, JEE-U-DEE, JEE-U-DEE.’” (Only Angels Have Wings was a 1939 film.)

Ulysses S. Grant

U.S. president and military leader, 1822–1885

- I No terms except an unconditional and immediate surrender can be accepted. I propose to move immediately upon your works.
Dispatch to General Simon Bolivar Buckner, Fort Donelson, Tenn., 16 Feb. 1862

- 2 [I] propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all Summer.

Dispatch from Spotsylvania (Va.) Court House, 11 May 1864. The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations quotes this as “I purpose to fight it out . . .,” but the wording appears as above in The Papers of Ulysses S. Grant, vol. 10, ed. John Y. Simon (1982).

- 3 I know no method to secure the repeal of bad or obnoxious laws so effective as their stringent execution.

First Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1869

- 4 Wars of extermination, engaged in by people pursuing commerce and all industrial pursuits, are expensive even against the weakest people, and are demoralizing and wicked.

Second Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1873

- 5 Let no guilty man escape if it can be avoided. Be specially vigilant—or instruct those engaged in the prosecution of fraud to be—against all who insinuate that they have high influence to protect—or to protect them. No personal consideration should stand in the way of performing a public duty.

Endorsement added to letter, received 29 July 1875. According to Respectfully Quoted, ed. Suzy Platt: “The exposure of the Whisky Ring, a secret association of distillers and federal officials defrauding the government, was a major scandal in 1875. W. D. W. Barnard, a St. Louis banker, wrote to [President] Grant that officials in St. Louis claimed Grant would sustain them to protect Orville Babcock, his private secretary. Grant added the above endorsement and referred the letter to Benjamin H. Bristow, secretary of the treasury, who led the efforts to expose the ring.”

- 6 I am a verb.

- 7 I only know two tunes. One is Yankee Doodle, and the other isn't.

Quoted in George W. Childs, Recollections of General Grant (1890). Garson O'Toole has traced similar jokes, with different tunes named, as far back as 1839.

Günter Grass

German novelist, 1927–2015

- 1 Granted: I am an inmate of a mental hospital; my keeper is watching me, he never lets me out of his sight; there's a peephole in the door, and my keeper's eye is the shade of brown that can never see through a blue-eyed type like me.

The Tin Drum bk. 1, ch. 1 (1959)

- 2 You can declare at the very start that it's impossible to write a novel nowadays, but then, behind your back, so to speak, give birth to a whopper, a novel to end all novels.

Robert Graves

English writer, 1895–1985

- 1 As you are woman, so be lovely:
As you are lovely, so be various,
Merciful as constant, constant as various,
So be mine, as I yours for ever.

“Pygmalion to Galatea” l. 26 (1927)

- 2 Goodbye to All That.

Title of book (1929)

- 3 Down, wanton, down! Have you no shame
That at the whisper of Love's name,
Or Beauty's, presto! up you raise
Your angry head and stand at gaze!

“Down, Wanton, Down!” l. 1 (1933)

- 4 Tell me, my witless, whose one boast
Could be your staunchness at the post,
When were you made a man of parts
To think fine and profess the arts?

“Down, Wanton, Down!” l. 13 (1933)

- 5 Truth loving Persians do not dwell upon
The trivial skirmish fought near Marathon.
“The Persian Version” l. 1 (1945)

- 6 The reason why the hairs stand on end, the eyes water, the throat is constricted, the skin

crawls and a shiver runs down the spine when one writes or reads a true poem is that a true poem is necessarily an invocation of the White Goddess, or Muse, the Mother of All Living, the ancient power of fright and lust—the female spider or the queen bee whose embrace is death.

The White Goddess ch. 1 (1948)

- 7 For me, the naked and the nude
(By lexicographers construed
As synonyms that should express
The same deficiency of dress
Or shelter) stand as wide apart
As love from lies, or truth from art.
“The Naked and the Nude” l. 1 (1957)

Thomas Gray

English poet, 1716–1771

- 1 Where ignorance is bliss,
’Tis folly to be wise.
“Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College” l. 99
(1747)
- 2 Not all that tempts your wand’ring eyes
And heedless hearts, is lawful prize;
Nor all, that glisters, gold.
“Ode on the Death of a Favorite Cat” l. 40 (1748)
See Proverbs 121
- 3 The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd wind slowly o’er the lea,
The ploughman homeward plods his weary way,
And leaves the world to darkness and to me.
“Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard” l. 1 (1751)
- 4 Beneath those rugged elms, that yew-tree’s shade,
Where heaves the turf in many a mouldering
heap,
Each in his narrow cell for ever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.
“Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard” l. 13 (1751)
- 5 Let not ambition mock their useful toil,
Their homely joys, and destiny obscure;
Nor grandeur hear with a disdainful smile,

The short and simple annals of the poor.

“Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard” l. 29 (1751)
See Dunne 8

- 6 The paths of glory lead but to the grave.
“Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard” l. 36 (1751)
- 7 Full many a gem of purest ray serene,
The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear;
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air.
“Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard” l. 53 (1751)
- 8 Some village-Hampden, that with dauntless breast
The little tyrant of his fields withstood;
Some mute inglorious Milton here may rest,
Some Cromwell guiltless of his country’s blood.
“Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard” l. 57 (1751)
See Mencken 30
- 9 Far from the madding crowd’s ignoble strife,
Their sober wishes never learned to stray;
Along the cool sequestered vale of life
They kept the noiseless tenor of their way.
“Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard” l. 73 (1751)
- 10 Here rests his head upon the lap of Earth
A youth to fortune and to fame unknown.
Fair Science frown’d not on his humble birth,
And Melancholy mark’d him for her own.
“Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard” l. 117 (1751)
- 11 Sweet is the breath of vernal shower,
The bee’s collected treasures sweet,
Sweet music’s melting fall, but sweeter yet
The still small voice of gratitude.
“Ode for Music” l. 61 (1769)

Rocky Graziano (Rocco Barbella)

U.S. boxer, 1921–1990

- 1 Somebody Up There Likes Me.
Title of book (1955)

Horace Greeley

U.S. journalist and politician, 1811–1872

- 1 The illusion that the times that were are better than those that are, has probably pervaded all ages.
The American Conflict ch. 1 (1864–1866)
- 2 Go West, young man.
Quoted in Punchinello, 20 Aug. 1870. This is one of the great examples of the prevalence of misinformation about famous quotations. The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations says that Greeley used it in his book Hints Toward Reform (1850), then John Babson Lane Soule used it in an 1851 editorial in the Terre Haute (Indiana) Express. Bartlett's Familiar Quotations says that the Soule article inspired Greeley to use the quotation in an editorial in the New York Tribune. The Oxford English Dictionary gives a vague citation to Soule; many other reference works take pride in attributing the phrase to Soule rather than Greeley, who is closely associated with it in popular history. However, inspection of Hints Toward Reform shows that the quotation does not appear there. Thomas Fuller, writing in Indiana Magazine of History, Sept. 2004, found that these words also do not appear in the Terre Haute Express in 1851. There is no trace of the attribution to Soule before 1890, when the Chicago Mail made this assertion (30 June). Fuller concludes that "John Soule had nothing whatsoever to do with the phrase" and was also unable to find "go West, young man" in Greeley's writings, including the New York Tribune and other sources where various people have claimed it occurred. The Punchinello citation given is the earliest attribution to Greeley found to date, although Josiah Grinnell asserts plausibly in his autobiography Men and Events of Forty Years (1891) that Greeley gave Grinnell the famous advice in 1833. In his magazine The New-Yorker, 25 Aug. 1838, Greeley had written: "If any young man is about to commence the world . . . we say to him, publicly and privately, Go to the West."

- 1 Love on the Dole.
Title of book (1933)

Germaine Greer

Australian feminist, 1939–

- 1 It is exactly the element of quest in her sexuality that the female is taught to deny. She is not only taught to deny it in her sexual contacts, but . . . in all her contacts, from infancy onward, so that when she becomes aware of her sex the pattern has sufficient inertia to prevail over new forms of desire and curiosity. This is the condition which is meant by the term female eunuch.

The Female Eunuch (1970)

- 2 Freud is the father of psychoanalysis. It had no mother.

The Female Eunuch (1970)

- 3 Woman . . . cannot be content with health and agility: she must make exorbitant efforts to appear something that never could exist without a diligent perversion of nature. Is it too much to ask that women be spared the daily struggle for superhuman beauty in order to offer it to the caresses of a subhumanly ugly mate?

The Female Eunuch (1970)

- 4 Libraries are reservoirs of strength, grace, and wit, reminders of order, calm, and continuity, lakes of mental energy, neither warm nor cold, light nor dark. The pleasure they give is steady, unorgastic, reliable, deep, and long-lasting. In any library in the world, I am at home, unselfconscious, still, and absorbed.

Daddy, We Hardly Knew You (1989)

Gregory the Great

Italian pope, ca. 540–604

- 1 Non Angli sed Angeli.

Not Angles but Angels.

Quoted in Bede, Historia Ecclesiastica. The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations states that Gregory uttered this, according to oral tradition, “on seeing English slaves in Rome . . . based on Responsum est, quod Angli vocarentur. At ille: ‘Bene,’ inquit; ‘nam et angelicam habent faciem, et tales angelorum in caelis decet esse coheredes’ (It is well, for they have the faces of angels, and such should be the co-heirs of the angels of heaven).

Dick Gregory

U.S. comedian, 1932–2017

- 1 I happen to know quite a bit about the South. Spent twenty years there one night.

From the Back of the Bus introduction (1962)

- 2 You gotta say this for the white race—its self-confidence knows no bounds. Who else could go to a small island in the South Pacific where there’s no poverty, no crime, no unemployment, no war, and no worry—and call it a “primitive society”?

From the Back of the Bus (1962)

- 3 New York is the greatest city in the world—especially for my people. Where else, in this great and glorious land of ours, can I get on a subway, sit in any part of the train I please, get off at any station above 110th Street, and know I’ll be welcome?

From the Back of the Bus (1962)

- 4 When the white Christian missionaries went to Africa, the white folks had the bibles and the natives had the land. When the missionaries pulled out, they had the land and the natives had the bibles.

Quoted in Black Manifesto: Religion, Racism, and Reparations, ed. Robert S. Lecky and H. Elliott Wright (1969)

Stephen Grellet

French missionary, 1773–1855

- 1 I expect to pass through this world but once. Any good thing therefore that I can do, or any kindness that I can show to any fellow creature, let me do it now. Let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again.

Attributed in W. Gurney Benham, Benham’s Book of Quotations, Proverbs, and Household Words (1907). After noting that this has also been attributed to Emerson and others, Benham states, “There seems to be some authority in favor of Stephen Grellet being the author, but the passage does not occur in any of his printed works.” The earliest appearance of “I will not pass this way again” found for this book is in the Coshocton (Ohio) Age, 15 Jan. 1868, where it is quoted anonymously.

Thomas Gresham

English financier, ca. 1519–1579

- 1 Ytt may please your majesty to understande, thatt the firste occasion of the fall of exchange did growe by the Kinges majesty, your latte ffather, in abasing his quoyne ffrorne vi ounces fine too iiii ounces fine. Whereuppon the exchange fell ffrorne xxviii. vii. to xiiis. iiii. which was the occasion thatt all your ffine goold was convayd ought of this your realme. Letter to Queen Elizabeth I (1558). Printed in J. W. Burgon, The Life and Times of Sir Thomas Gresham (1839). This passage inspired Henry Dunning

Macleod in 1858 to use the term Gresham’s Law to refer to the economic principle that “bad money drives out good.”

Quoted in Philadelphia Inquirer, 9 Feb. 1983. Usually quoted as “You miss 100% of the shots you don’t take.”

Clifford Grey

English songwriter, 1887–1941

- 1 If you were the only girl in the world,
And I were the only boy,
Nothing else would matter in the world today,
We could go on loving in the same old way.
“If You Were the Only Girl in the World” (song) (1916)

Edward Grey, Viscount Grey of Fallodon

British politician, 1862–1933

- 1 [Remark on the eve of World War I, 3 Aug. 1914:] The lamps are going out all over Europe; we shall not see them lit again in our lifetime.

Matt Groening

U.S. cartoonist, 1954–

For convenience, all quotations and catchphrases from the television series The Simpsons are grouped together here under Matt Groening, the show’s creator.

- 1 [Catchphrase of character Bart Simpson:] Don’t have a cow, man.
The Simpsons (television series) (1989–)
- 2 [Catchphrase of character Bart Simpson:] Aye, Caramba!
The Simpsons (television series) (1989–)
- 3 [Catchphrase of character C. Montgomery Burns:] Ex . . . cellent!
The Simpsons (television series) (1989–)
- 4 [Catchphrase of character Bart Simpson:] I’m Bart Simpson. Who the hell are you?
The Simpsons (television series), 17 Dec. 1989

- 5 [Catchphrase of character Homer Simpson:] D’oh . . .

The Simpsons (television series), 17 Dec. 1989
See Finlayson 1

- 6 [Catchphrase of character Bart Simpson:] Eat my shorts!

The Simpsons (television series), 14 Jan. 1990.
Although this is famous as a Simpsons catchphrase, the expression predated the show. The Historical Dictionary of American Slang documents “eat my shorts” to 1979, when it appeared in the National Lampoon.

- 7 [Groundskeeper Willie’s characterization of the French:] Cheese-eating surrender monkeys.

The Simpsons (television series), 30 Apr. 1995. This episode was written by Joshua Sternin, Jeffrey Ventimilia, Al Jean, and Mike Reiss.

- 8 Trying is the first step towards failure.

The Simpsons (television series), 7 Dec. 1997. This episode was written by Dan Greaney.

- 9 Love is a snowmobile racing across the tundra and then suddenly it flips over, pinning you underneath. At night, the ice weasels come.
Quoted in L.A. Times, 14 Feb. 1991

Andrei A. Gromyko

Soviet president, 1909–1989

- 1 [Of Mikhail Gorbachev:] Comrades, this man has a nice smile, but he’s got iron teeth.
Speech to Soviet Communist Party Central Committee, 11 Mar. 1985

Walter Gropius

German-born U.S. architect, 1883–1969

- 1 Architects, painters, and sculptors must recognize anew and learn to grasp the composite character of a building both as an entity and in its separate parts. Only then will their work be imbued with the architectonic spirit which it has lost as “salon art.”
“The Bauhaus Proclamation April 1919” (1919)
- 2 Together let us desire, conceive, and create the new structure of the future, which will embrace architecture and sculpture and painting in one unity and which will one day rise toward heaven from the hands of a million workers like the crystal symbol of a new faith.
“The Bauhaus Proclamation April 1919” (1919)

Hugo Grotius (Huig de Groot)

Dutch jurist and philosopher, 1583–1645

- 1 The following most specific and unimpeachable axiom of the Law of Nations, called a primary rule or first principle, the spirit of which is self-evident and immutable, to wit: Every nation is free to travel to every other nation, and to trade with it.

Edmund L. Gruber

U.S. soldier, 1879–1941

- 1 Over hill, over dale, we have hit the dusty trail
And those caissons go rolling along.
“The Caisson Song” (song) (1907)
- 2 Oh, it’s hi-hi-yee! for the field artillereee,
Shout out your numbers loud and strong,
And where’er we go, you will always know
That those caissons are rolling along.
“The Caisson Song” (song) (1907)

John Guare

U.S. playwright, 1938–

- 1 Everybody on this planet is separated by only six other people. Six degrees of separation. Between us and everybody else on this planet.
Six Degrees of Separation (1989)

Philip Guedalla

English historian and biographer, 1889–1944

- 1 The work of Henry James has always seemed divisible by a simple dynastic arrangement into three reigns: James I, James II, and the Old Pretender.
Supers and Supermen “Some Critics” (1920)

- 2 The detective-story is the normal recreation of noble minds.

Quoted in Dorothy L. Sayers, The Omnibus of Crime (1929)Edgar A. Guest

U.S. writer and journalist, 1881–1959

- 1 It takes a heap o’ livin’ in a house t’ make it home,
A heap o’ sun an’ shadder, an’ ye sometimes have t’ roam
Afore ye really ’preciate the things ye lef’ behind,
An’ hunger fer ’em somehow, with ’em allus on yer mind.
“Home” l. 1 (1916)

Ernesto “Che” Guevara

Argentinian-born Cuban revolutionary, 1928–1967

- 1 Revolution that does not constantly become more profound is a regressive revolution.
“Guerilla Warfare—A Method,” Cuba Socialista (1961)
- 2 In a revolution, one either triumphs or dies.
“Farewell Letter” (1965)
- 3 Dos, tres . . . muchos Vietnam.
Two, three . . . many Vietnams.
“Message to Tricontinental Magazine,” Bohemia, 21 Apr. 1967
- 4 Let me say, with the risk of appearing ridiculous, that the true revolutionary is guided by strong feelings of love. It is impossible to think of an authentic revolutionary without this quality.
Quoted in Jon Lee Anderson, Che Guevara: A Revolutionary Life (1997)

Robert Guidry

U.S. songwriter, 1938–2010

- 1 See you later alligator,
After ’while, crocodile.
“See You Later Alligator” (song) (1956). According to the Oxford Dictionary of Catchphrases, these farewell words originated in U.S. “jive” of the 1930s.

Mary Louise Cecil Texas “Tex” Guinan

U.S. nightclub hostess, 1884–1933

Boston Review, Sept.–Oct. 1992

Thom Gunn

English-born U.S. poet, 1929–2004

- 1 Small, black, as flies hanging in heat, the Boys, Until the distance throws them forth, their hum

Bulges to thunder held by calf and thigh.

"On the Move" l. 10 (1957)

- 2 At worst, one is in motion; and at best,
Reaching no absolute, in which to rest,
One is always nearer by not keeping still.

"On the Move" l. 38 (1957)

- 3 O wily painter, limiting the scene
From a cacophony of dusty forms
To the one convulsion.

"In Santa Maria del Popolo" l. 13 (1961)

- 4 The painter saw what was, an alternate Candor and secrecy inside the skin.

"In Santa Maria del Popolo" l. 19 (1961)

Dorothy Frances Gurney

English poet, 1858–1932

- 1 The kiss of the sun for pardon,
The song of the birds for mirth,
One is nearer God's Heart in a garden
Than anywhere else on earth.

"God's Garden" l. 13 (1913)

Hadrian

Roman emperor, 76–138

- I Animula vagula blandula, Hospes comesque corporis.
Ah! gentle, fleeting, wav'ring sprite,
Friend and associate of this clay!
“Ad Animam Suam”

Ernst Haeckel

German biologist and philosopher, 1834–1919

- I Ontogenesis, or the development of the individual, is a short and quick recapitulation of phylogenesis, or the development of the tribe to which it belongs, determined by the laws of inheritance and adaptation.

The History of Creation (1868). Haeckel's theory, now disproved, is frequently quoted as “Ontogeny recapitulates phylogeny.”
See Sigmund Freud 7

- 2 There is no doubt that the course and character of the feared “European war” . . . will become the first world war in the full sense of the word. Indianapolis Star, 20 Sept. 1914. Previously, the earliest known use of First World War has been dated to 1931.

Walter Hagen

U.S. golfer, 1892–1969

- I Don't hurry, don't worry; you're here only a few hours, don't forget to smell the flowers.
Quoted in Oakland Tribune, 9 Jan. 1941

H. Rider Haggard

English writer, 1856–1925

- I She who must be obeyed.
She ch. 6 (1887)

Merle Haggard

U.S. country singer and songwriter, 1937–2016

- I I'm proud to be an Okie from Muskogee.
“Okie from Muskogee” (song) (1969). Cowritten with Roy Edward Burris.

Frank Hague

U.S. politician, 1876–1956

- I I am the law!
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 11 Nov. 1937. William Safire explains in Safire's Political Dictionary (1978): “Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City . . . received a bum rap from history on this quotation. The episode involved two youths who wanted to change from day school to night school so that they could go to work, but who were denied working papers by the Board of Education's Special Services Director because the law required them to stay in day school. Mayor Hague cut through the red tape and ordered the official to give the boys working papers. As he proudly recounted the matter before the Men's Club of Emory Church in Jersey City on November 10, 1937, when the school official told him, ‘That's the law,’ he replied, ‘Listen, here is the law. I am the law! Those boys go to work!’ Today such an action would be lauded . . . but Hague had a well-deserved reputation for high-handedness, and the phrase soon lost its context and was used against him.”

Alexander Haig

U.S. government official and general, 1924–2010

- I [Articulating an erroneous interpretation of the succession of power, after the attempted assassination of President Ronald Reagan, 30 Mar.

1981:] As of now, I am in control here in the White House.

Quoted in Wash. Post, 4 Apr. 1981

Douglas Haig, First Earl Haig

British military leader, 1861–1928

- 1 Every position must be held to the last man: there must be no retirement. With our backs to the wall and believing in the justice of our cause each one of us must fight on to the end.
Order to British troops, 11 Apr. 1918

Haile Selassie I (Ras Tafari Makonnen)

Ethiopian emperor, 1891–1975

- 1 Soldiers! When it is announced that a respected and beloved leader has died for our freedom in the course of a battle, do not grieve, do not lose hope! Observe that anyone who dies for his country is a fortunate man, but death takes what it wants, indiscriminately, in peacetime as well as in war. It is better to die with freedom than without it.
Address to Ethiopian Parliament, 18 July 1935

- 2 Outside the Kingdom of the Lord there is no nation which is greater than another. God and history will remember your judgment!
Speech to League of Nations, Geneva, Switzerland, 30 June 1936

- 3 Until the philosophy which holds one race superior and another inferior is finally and permanently discredited and abandoned: . . . until there are no longer first-class and second-class citizens of any nation; . . . until the color of a man's skin is of no more significance than the color of his eyes; . . . until the basic human rights are equally guaranteed to all without regard to race; . . . until that day, the dream of lasting peace and world citizenship and the rule of international morality will remain but a fleeting illusion, to be pursued but never attained.

Address to United Nations General Assembly, 4 Oct. 1963

Hakuin

Japanese monk and writer, 1686–1769

- 1 What is the Sound of the Single Hand? When you clap together both hands a sharp sound is heard; when you raise the one hand there is neither sound nor smell.

“Yabuko-ji” (written 1753)

David Halberstam

U.S. journalist and author, 1934–2017

J. B. S. Haldane

Scottish biologist, 1892–1964

- 1 Now, my own suspicion is that the universe is not only queerer than we suppose, but queerer than we can suppose.

Possible Worlds and Other Essays “Possible Worlds” (1927)

- 2 [Reflecting on the fact that there are 400,000 species of beetles, as opposed to 8,000 species of mammals.] The Creator, if He exists, has a special preference for beetles.

“A Report of Professor Haldane’s Lecture to the Society on April 7, 1951,” Journal of the British Interplanetary Society, July 1951. The title of the lecture was “Biological Problems of Space Flight.” The frequently quoted form of the quotation, “an inordinate fondness for beetles,” appeared in an article by G. E. Hutchinson in American Naturalist, May–June 1959.

H. R. Haldeman

U.S. government official, 1926–1993

- 1 [Comment to John Dean about the Watergate scandal, 8 Apr. 1973.] Once the toothpaste is out of the tube, it is awfully hard to get it back in.
Quoted in Hearings Before the Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities of the United States Senate: Watergate and Related Activities (1973). Although this saying is associated with Haldeman, it appears earlier in the Sheboygan Press, 5 Mar. 1940, as, “Have you ever tried squeezing the toothpaste back in the tube again?”

Edward Everett Hale

U.S. author and clergyman, 1822–1909

- 1 Nolan was proved guilty enough, as I say; yet you and I would never have heard of him, reader, but that, when the president of the court asked him at the close whether he wished to say anything to show that he had always been faithful to the United States, he cried out, in a fit of frenzy,—

“Damn the United States! I wish I may never hear of the United States again!”

. . . “Prisoner, hear the sentence of the Court! The Court decides, subject to the approval of the President, that you never hear the name of the United States again.”

“The Man Without a Country” (1863)

- 2 He loved his country as no other man has loved her, but no man deserved less at her hands.

“The Man Without a Country” (1863)

- 3 To look up and not down,
To look forward and not back,
To look out and not in,—
and
To lend a hand.

Ten Times One Is Ten ch. 9 (1871)

Nathan Hale

U.S. Revolutionary hero, 1755–1776

- 1 [“Last words” before being hanged by British as a spy, New York, N.Y., 22 Sept. 1776:] I only lament, that I have but one life to lose for my country.

Attributed in Abiel Holmes, American Annals (1805). These words, among the most famous in the chronicles of American history, are not supported by eyewitness accounts. The second earliest newspaper article about Hale’s execution by the British as a Revolutionary spy did include a similar attributed quotation by Hale: “I am so satisfied with the cause in which I have engaged, that my only regret is, that I have not more lives than one to offer in its service” (Boston Independent Chronicle, 17 May 1781). The earliest article, in the Essex Journal (Newburyport, Mass.), 13 Feb. 1777, asserted that Hale had cried at the scaffold that “if he had ten thousand lives, he would lay them all down, if called to it, in defence of his injured, bleeding country.” Hale’s friend William Hull over a period of decades shaped such alleged words into the “but one life to lose” line. A possible inspiration to Hale or Hull was the remark by the English agitator John Lilburne: “I am sorry I have but one life to lose, in maintaining the truth, justice, and righteousness, of so gallant a piece” (Englands New Chains Discovered [1649]). Another possible source was the 1713 Joseph Addison quotation cross-referenced below.

Sara Josepha Hale

U.S. writer, 1788–1879

- 1 Mary had a little lamb,
Its fleece was white as snow,
And everywhere that Mary went
The lamb was sure to go.
He followed her to school one day—
That was against the rule,
It made the children laugh and play,
To see a lamb at school.

“Mary’s Lamb” l. 1 (1830). According to Iona and Peter Opie, Oxford Dictionary of Nursery Rhymes, 2nd ed., “E. V. Lucas came to the conclusion that these were the best-known four-line verses in the English language. . . . ‘Mary had a little lamb’ was the first utterance recorded on Edison’s talking machine or phonograph (1877).”

Alex Haley

U.S. novelist and biographer, 1921–1992

- 1 Early in the spring of 1750, in the village of Juffure, four days upriver from the coast of The Gambia, West Africa, a manchild was born to Omoro and Binta Kinte.

Ed Haley

U.S. songwriter, 1862–1932

- 1 While strolling through the park one day,
All in the merry month of May,
A roguish pair of eyes they took me by surprise,
In a moment my poor heart they stole away!
Oh a sunny smile was all she gave to me.
“The Fountain in the Park” (song) (1884)

T. C. Haliburton

Canadian author and judge, 1796–1865

- 2 [Of lesbianism.] You're neither unnatural, nor abominable, nor mad; you're as much a part of what people call nature as anyone else; only you're unexplained as yet—you've not got your niche in creation.

The Well of Loneliness ch. 20 (1928)

- 3 I am one of those whom God marked on the forehead. Like Cain, I am marked and blemished. If you come to me . . . the world will abhor you, will persecute you, will call you unclean. Our love may be faithful even unto death and beyond—yet the world will call it unclean.

The Well of Loneliness ch. 37 (1928)

James O. Halliwell

English literary scholar, 1820–1889

- 1 Presently came along a wolf, and knocked at the door, and said,—“Little pig, little pig, let me come in.” To which the pig answered,—“No, no, by the hair of my chiny chin chin.” The wolf then answered to that,—“Then I'll huff, and I'll puff, and I'll blow your house in.”

Alexander Hamilton

West Indian–born U.S. statesman, 1757–1804

- 1 The sacred rights of mankind are not to be rummaged for among old parchments or musty records. They are written, as with a sunbeam, in the whole volume of human nature, by the hand of the divinity itself; and can never be erased or obscured by mortal power.

“The Farmer Refuted” (1775)

- 2 I hate Congress—I hate the army—I hate the world—I hate myself. The whole is a mass of fools and knaves.
Letter to John Laurens, 12 Sept. 1780
- 3 A national debt if it is not excessive will be to us a national blessing.
Letter to Robert Morris, 30 Apr. 1781
See Madison 11
- 4 Let Americans disdain to be the instruments of European greatness. Let the thirteen States, bound together in a strict and indissoluble Union, concur in erecting one great American system, superior to the control of all transatlantic force or influence, and able to dictate the terms of the connection between the old and the new world!
The Federalist no. 11 (1788)
- 5 Government implies the power of making laws. It is essential to the idea of a law, that it be attended with a sanction; or, in other words, a penalty or punishment for disobedience.
The Federalist no. 15 (1788)
- 6 Why has government been instituted at all? Because the passions of men will not conform to the dictates of reason and justice, without constraint.
The Federalist no. 15 (1788)
- 7 Laws are a dead letter without courts to expound and define their true meaning and operation.
The Federalist no. 22 (1788)
- 8 The judiciary, from the nature of its functions, will always be the least dangerous to the political rights of the constitution; because it will be least in a capacity to annoy or injure them. . . . The judiciary . . . has no influence over either the sword or the purse, no direction either of the strength or of the wealth of the society, and can take no active resolution whatever. It may truly be said to have neither

FORCE NOR WILL, but merely judgment; and must ultimately depend upon the aid of the executive arm even for the efficacy of its judgments.

The Federalist no. 78 (1788)

- 9 Here [in the House of Representatives], sir, the people govern; here they act by their immediate representatives.
Remarks at New York convention on adoption of federal Constitution, Poughkeepsie, N.Y., 27 June 1788.
- 10 Every power vested in a government is in its nature sovereign, and includes, by force of the term, a right to employ all the means requisite . . . to the ends of such power.
Opinion on the Constitutionality of the Bank, 23 Feb. 1791
- 11 If the end be clearly comprehended within any of the specified powers, and if the measure have an obvious relation to that end, and is not forbidden by any particular provision of the Constitution, it may safely be deemed to come within the compass of the national authority.
Opinion on the Constitutionality of the Bank, 23 Feb. 1791
- 12 Your people, sir,—your people is a great beast!
Attributed in Theophilus Parsons, The Memoir of Theophilus Parsons (1859). Plato described the multitude as a “great strong beast” in The Republic bk. 6, 493-B.

Andrew Hamilton

Scottish-born U.S. lawyer and politician, ca. 1676–1741

- 1 Power may justly be compar'd to a great River, while kept within it's [sic] due Bounds, is both Beautiful and Useful; but when it overflows, it's [sic] Banks, it is then too impetuous to be stemm'd, it bears down all before it, and brings Destruction and Desolation whenever it comes. If then this is the Nature of Power, let us at least do our Duty, and like wise Men (who value Freedom) use our utmost Care to support Liberty, the only Bulwark against lawless Power, which in all Ages has sacrificed to it's [sic] wild Lust and boundless Ambition, the Blood of the best Men that ever liv'd.
Argument in John Peter Zenger Trial, New York, N.Y. (1735)

2 The Question before the Court and you Gentlemen of the Jury, is not of small nor private Concern, it is not the Cause of the poor Printer, nor of New-York alone, which you are now trying: . . . It is the Cause of Liberty; . . . every Man who prefers Freedom to a Life of slavery will bless and honor You, as Men who have baffled the Attempt of Tyranny; and by an impartial and uncorrupt Verdict, have laid a noble Foundation for securing to ourselves, our Posterity, and our Neighbours, That, to which Nature and the Laws of our Country have given us a Right,—the Liberty—both of exposing and opposing arbitrary Power (in these Parts of the World, at least) by speaking and writing Truth. Argument in John Peter Zenger Trial, New York, N.Y. (1735)

Edith Hamilton

German-born U.S. classical scholar, 1867–1963

1 The fundamental fact about the Greek was that he had to use his mind. The ancient priests had said, “Thus far and no farther. We set the limits to thought.” The Greeks said, “All things are to be examined and called into question. There are no limits set to thought.”

The Greek Way ch. 2 (1930)

Dag Hammarskjöld

Swedish statesman and U.N. Secretary-General, 1905–1961

1 We are not permitted to choose the frame of our destiny. But what we put into it is ours.

Markings (1964)

2 I don't know Who—or what—put the question, I don't know when it was put. I don't even remember answering. But at some moment I did answer Yes to Someone—or Something—and from that hour I was certain that existence is meaningful and that, therefore, my life, in self-surrender, had a goal.

Markings (1964)

M. C. Hammer (Stanley Kirk Burrell)

When the wind comes right behind the rain.
“Oklahoma!” (song) (1943)
- 9 Don’t sigh and gaze at me
(Your sighs are so like mine),
Your eyes mustn’t glow like mine—
People will say we’re in love!
“People Will Say We’re in Love” (song) (1943)
- 10 Chicks and ducks and geese better scurry
When I take you out in the surrey,
When I take you out in the surrey with the fringe on top.
“The Surrey with the Fringe on Top” (song) (1943)
- 11 June is bustin’ out all over
All over the meadow and the hill!
“June Is Bustin’ Out All Over” (song) (1945)
- 12 Walk on, walk on with hope in your heart,
And you’ll never walk alone!
“You’ll Never Walk Alone” (song) (1945)
- 13 I’m Gonna Wash That Man Right Outa My Hair.
Title of song (1949)
- 14 Some enchanted evening,
You may see a stranger . . .
Across a crowded room.
“Some Enchanted Evening” (song) (1949)
- 15 There is nothin’ like a dame! . . .
There is nothin’ you can name
That is anythin’ like a dame!
“There Is Nothin’ like a Dame” (song) (1949)
- 16 I’m as corny as Kansas in August,
High as a flag on the Fourth of July!
“A Wonderful Guy” (song) (1949)
- 17 Younger than springtime are you.
“Younger Than Springtime” (song) (1949)
- 18 You’ve got to be taught to be afraid
Of people whose eyes are oddly made,
Of people whose skin is a different shade.
You’ve got to be carefully taught.
“You’ve Got to Be Carefully Taught” (song) (1949)
- 19 Hello, young lovers, whoever you are,
I hope your troubles are few.
All my good wishes go with you tonight—
I’ve been in love like you.
“Hello, Young Lovers” (song) (1951)
- 20 I know how it feels to have wings on your heels,
And to fly down the street in a trance.
You fly down a street on the chance that you’ll meet,
And you meet—not really by chance.
“Hello, Young Lovers” (song) (1951)
- 21 Whenever I feel afraid
I hold my head erect
And whistle a happy tune,
So no one will suspect
I’m afraid.

Brown paper packages tied up with strings—
These are a few of my favorite things.
“My Favorite Things” (song) (1959)
- 26 When the dog bites,
When the bee stings,
When I’m feeling sad,
I simply remember my favorite things
And then I don’t feel so bad!
“My Favorite Things” (song) (1959)
- 27 The hills are alive
With the sound of music,
With songs they have sung
For a thousand years.
“The Sound of Music” (song) (1959)

Dashiell Hammett

U.S. detective fiction writer, 1894–1961

- 1 I won’t play the sap for you.
The Maltese Falcon ch. 20 (1930)
- 2 When a man’s partner is killed he’s supposed to do something about it. It doesn’t make any difference what you thought of him. He was your partner and you're supposed to do something about it.

The Maltese Falcon ch. 20 (1930)

- 3 Don't be too sure I'm as crooked as I'm supposed to be. That kind of reputation might be good business—bringing in high-priced jobs and making it easier to deal with the enemy.

The Maltese Falcon ch. 20 (1930)

Jupiter Hammon

U.S. writer, 1711–ca. 1805

- 1 If we should ever get to Heaven, we shall find nobody to reproach us for being black, or being slaves.

Amadou Hampâté Bâ

Malian author and anthropologist, 1901–1991

- 1 In Africa, when an old man dies, it is a library burning.

Speech at UNESCO conference, Paris, Dec. 1960

Knut Hamsun

Norwegian writer, 1859–1952

- 1 It was during the time I wandered about and starved in Christiana: Christiana, this singular city, from which no man departs without carrying away the traces of his sojourn there.
- 2 Nought availed; I was dying helplessly, with my eyes wide open—staring straight up at the roof. At length, I stuck my forefinger in my mouth, and took to sucking it. Something stirred in my brain, a thought that bored its way in there—a stark-mad notion. Supposing I were to take a bite? And without a moment's reflection, I shut my eyes, and clenched my teeth on it. I sprang up. At last I was thoroughly awake.

John Hancock

U.S. statesman, 1737–1793

- 1 [Remark upon signing his name boldly on the engrossed copy of the Declaration of Independence, 2 Aug. 1776:] There John Bull can read my name without spectacles.

Attributed in Public Ledger (Philadelphia), 10 July 1841. This quotation is undoubtedly apocryphal.

Learned Hand

U.S. judge, 1872–1961

- 1 I must say that as a litigant I should dread a lawsuit beyond almost anything else short of sickness and death.
- “The Deficiencies of Trials to Reach the Heart of the Matter” (lecture at Association of the Bar of the City of New York) (1921)
- 2 A transaction, otherwise within an exception of the tax law, does not lose its immunity, because it is actuated by a desire to avoid, or, if one choose, to evade, taxation. Any one may so arrange his affairs that his taxes shall be as low as possible; he is not bound to choose the pattern which will best pay the Treasury; there is not even a patriotic duty to increase one's taxes.
- Helvering v. Gregory* (1934)
- 3 This much I think I do know—that a society so riven that the spirit of moderation is gone, no court can save; that a society where that spirit flourishes, no court need save; that in a society which evades its responsibility by thrusting upon the courts the nurture of that spirit, that spirit in the end will perish.
- “The Contribution of an Independent Judiciary to Civilization” (speech), Boston, Mass., 21 Nov. 1942
See Hand 5
- 4 Right conclusions are more likely to be gathered out of a multitude of tongues, than through any kind of authoritative selection. To many this is, and always will be, folly; but we have staked upon it our all.
- United States v. Associated Press* (1943)
- 5 I often wonder whether we do not rest our hopes too much upon constitutions, upon laws and upon courts. These are false hopes, believe me, these are false hopes. Liberty lies in the hearts of men and women; when it dies there, no constitution, no law, no court can save it; no constitution, no law, no court can even do much to help it. While it lies there it needs no constitution, no law, no court to save it.
- “The Spirit of Liberty” (speech), New York, N.Y., 21 May 1944
See Hand 3

- 6 What then is the spirit of liberty? I cannot define it; I can only tell you my own faith. The spirit of liberty is the spirit which is not too sure that it is right; the spirit of liberty is the spirit which seeks to understand the minds of other men and women; the spirit of liberty is the spirit which weighs their interests alongside its own without bias.
 “The Spirit of Liberty” (speech), New York, N.Y., 21 May 1944
- 7 In each case [the courts] must ask whether the gravity of the “evil,” discounted by its improbability, justifies such invasion of free speech as is necessary to avoid the danger.
United States v. Dennis (1950)
- 8 Law has always been unintelligible, and I might say that perhaps it ought to be. And I will tell you why, because I don’t want to deal in paradoxes. It ought to be unintelligible because it ought to be in words—and words are utterly inadequate to deal with the fantastically multiform occasions which come up in human life.
 “Thou Shalt Not Ration Justice” (1951)
- 9 If we are to keep our democracy, there must be one commandment: Thou shalt not ration justice.
 “Thou Shalt Not Ration Justice” (1951)
- 10 One utterance of [Oliver Cromwell] . . . has always hung in my mind. It was just before the Battle of Dunbar; he beat the Scots in the end . . . but he wrote them before the battle, trying to get them to accept a reasonable composition. These were his words: “I beseech ye in the bowels of Christ, think ye may be mistaken.” I should like to have that written over the portals of every church, every school, and every court house, and, may I say, of every legislative body in the United States. I should like to have every court begin, “I beseech ye in the bowels of Christ, think that we may be mistaken.”
 Testimony before Senate committee, 28 June 1951

- 11 For myself I had rather take my chance that some traitors will escape detection than spread abroad a spirit of general suspicion and distrust. . . . I believe that that community is already in process of dissolution where each man begins to eye his neighbor as a possible enemy, where nonconformity with the accepted creed, political as well as religious, is a mark of disaffection; where denunciation, without specification or backing, takes the place of evidence; where orthodoxy chokes freedom of dissent; where faith in the eventual supremacy of reason has become so timid that we dare not enter our convictions in the open lists, to win or lose.

“A Plea for the Open Mind and Free Discussion” (speech), Albany, N.Y., 24 Oct. 1952

George Frederick Handel

German-born English composer, 1685–1759

- 1 Whether I was in my body or out of my body [as he wrote the “Hallelujah Chorus” in Messiah] I know not. God knows it!

Attributed in Harvard Magazine, Dec. 1862. Handel here echoed II Corinthians 12:2: “I knew a man in Christ above fourteen years ago (whether in the body, I cannot tell; or whether out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth).”

J. B. (John Bernard) Handelsman

U.S. cartoonist, 1922–2007

- 1 [Lawyer to potential client:] You have a pretty good case, Mr. Pitkin. How much justice can you afford?

New Yorker, 24 Dec. 1973 (cartoon caption)

Jack Handey

U.S. humorist, 1949–

- 1 If trees could scream, would we be so cavalier about cutting them down? We might, if they screamed all the time, for no good reason.
Saturday Night Live (television program), 12 Oct. 1991

- 2 I can picture in my mind a world without war, a world without hate. And I can picture us attacking that world, because they’d never expect it.

Quoted in L.A. Times, 18 Jan. 1999

W. C. Handy

U.S. blues musician, 1873–1958

- 1 Memphis Blues.

Title of song (1912). Earliest documented occurrence of the term blues.

- 2 I hate to see de ev'nin' sun go down, Hate to see de ev'nin' sun go down,
'Cause ma baby he done lef dis town.
"St. Louis Blues" (song) (1914)
- 3 St. Louis woman, wid her diamon' rings,
Pulls dat man 'roun' by her apron strings.
"St. Louis Blues" (song) (1914)
- 4 Got de St. Louis Blues jes as blue as ah can be,
Dat man got a heart lak a rock cast in the sea,
Or else he wouldn't have gone so far from me.
"St. Louis Blues" (song) (1914)
- 5 If Beale Street could talk, if Beale Street could talk,
Married men would have to take their beds and walk,
Except one or two, who never drink booze,
And the blind man on the corner who sings the Beale Street Blues.
"Beale Street Blues" (song) (1916)

Carol Hanisch

U.S. feminist, fl. 1969

- 1 The Personal Is Political.
Title of article, Notes from the Second Year (1969).
Hanisch later stated that her article's title was supplied by editors Shulamith Firestone and Anne Koedt.

Lorraine Hansberry

U.S. playwright, 1930–1965

- 1 In my mother's house there is still God.
A Raisin in the Sun act 1, sc. 1 (1959)
- 2 [To winners of a creative writing contest sponsored by Reader's Digest and the United Negro College Fund:] Though it be a thrilling and marvellous thing to be merely young and gifted in such times, it is doubly so—doubly dynamic—to be young, gifted and black.
Negro Digest, Aug. 1964

Beck Hansen

U.S. musician, 1970–

- 1 In the time of chimpanzees I was a monkey.
"Loser" (song) (1993)
- 2 I'm a loser baby, why don't you kill me.
"Loser" (song) (1993)

Edmond Haraucourt

French poet, 1856–1941

- 1 Partir c'est mourir un peu,
C'est mourir à ce qu'on aime.
To go away is to die a little,
It is to die to that which one loves.
"Rondel de l'Adieu" (1891)

Donna Haraway

U.S. cultural theorist, 1944–

- 1 Though both are bound in the spiral dance, I would rather be a cyborg than a goddess.
"A Manifesto for Cyborgs: Science, Technology, and Socialist Feminism in the 1980s" (1985)

Otto Harbach

U.S. songwriter, 1873–1963

- 1 When a lovely flame dies,
Smoke gets in your eyes.
"Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" (song) (1933)

E. Y. Harburg

U.S. songwriter, 1896–1981

- 1 Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?
Title of song (1932)
- 2 Ding Dong! The Wicked Witch is dead.
"Ding Dong! The Witch Is Dead!" (song) (1939)
- 3 I could while away the hours
Conversin' with the flowers,
Consultin' with the rain;
With the thoughts I'd be thinkin'
I could be another Lincoln,
If I only had a brain.
"If I Only Had a Brain" (song) (1939)
- 4 Somewhere over the rainbow
Skies are blue,
And the dreams that you dare to dream
Really do come true.
"Over the Rainbow" (song) (1939)
- 5 Somewhere over the rainbow
Bluebirds fly,
Birds fly over the rainbow
Why then oh why can't I?
"Over the Rainbow" (song) (1939)

6 Follow the yellow brick road.

William Harcourt

British politician, 1827–1904

- 1 We are all Socialists now.
 Speech in House of Commons, 11 Aug. 1887
 See Milton Friedman 6

Garrett Hardin

U.S. biologist, 1915–2003

- 1 We can never do merely one thing.
Perspectives in Biology and Medicine, Autumn 1963
- 2 The Tragedy of the Commons.
 Title of article, Science, 13 Dec. 1968
- 3 Ruin is the destination toward which all men rush, each pursuing his own best interest in a society that believes in the freedom of the commons. Freedom in a commons brings ruin to all.
 “The Tragedy of the Commons,” Science, 13 Dec. 1968
- 4 Picture a pasture open to all. . . . The rational herdsman concludes that the only sensible course for him to pursue is to add another animal to his herd. And another; and another. . . . But this is the conclusion reached by each and every rational herdsman sharing a commons. Therein is the tragedy. Each man is locked into a system that compels him to increase his herd without limit—in a world that is limited.
 “The Tragedy of the Commons,” Science, 13 Dec. 1968. The second ellipsis is in the original.

Warren G. Harding

U.S. president, 1865–1923

- 1 America’s present need is not heroics but healing; not nostrums but normalcy; not revolution but restoration; . . . not surgery but serenity.

Speech, Boston, Mass., 14 May 1920. Harding was widely derided for coining the word normalcy, but in fact this word was already current and the Oxford English Dictionary documents it as early as 1857. Apparently Harding’s manuscript had the word as normality, but he misspoke it as normalcy.

Elizabeth Hardwick

U.S. critic and author, 1916–2007

- 1 This is the unspoken contract of a wife and her works. In the long run wives are to be paid in a peculiar coin—consideration for their feelings. And it usually turns out this is an enormous, unthinkable inflation few men will remit, or if they will, only with a sense of being overcharged.

Seduction and Betrayal: Women and Literature
 “Amateurs” (1974)

G. H. Hardy

English mathematician, 1877–1947

- 1 Archimedes will be remembered when Aeschylus is forgotten, because languages die and mathematical ideas do not. “Immortality” may be a silly word, but probably a mathematician has the best chance of whatever it may mean.
A Mathematician’s Apology ch. 8 (1940)
- 2 The mathematician’s patterns, like the painter’s or the poet’s, must be beautiful; the ideas, like the colors or the words, must fit together in a harmonious way. Beauty is the first test: there is no permanent place in the world for ugly mathematics.
A Mathematician’s Apology ch. 10 (1940)
- 3 A science is said to be useful if its development tends to accentuate the existing inequalities in the distribution of wealth, or more directly promotes the destruction of human life.
A Mathematician’s Apology ch. 21 (1940)

Thomas Hardy

English novelist and poet, 1840–1928

- 1 The difference between a common man and a recognized poet is, that one has been deluded, and cured of his delusion, and the other continues deluded all his days.

Desperate Remedies ch. 3 (1871)

- 2 Though a good deal is too strange to be believed, nothing is too strange to have happened.

Notebook, Feb. 1871

- 3 Good, but not religious-good.

Under the Greenwood Tree ch. 2 (1872)

- 4 Uniform pleasantness is rather a defect than a faculty. It shows that a man hasn't sense enough to know whom to despise.

A Pair of Blue Eyes ch. 9 (1873)

- 5 Anybody's life may be just as romantic and strange and interesting if he or she fails as if he or she succeed. All the difference is, that the last chapter is wanting in the story.

A Pair of Blue Eyes ch. 19 (1873)

- 6 There is no regular path for getting out of love as there is for getting in. Some people look upon marriage as a short cut that way, but it has been known to fail.

Far from the Madding Crowd ch. 5 (1874)

- 7 If a woman did not invariably form an opinion of her choice before she has half seen him, and love him before she has half formed an opinion, there would be no tears and pining in the whole feminine world, and poets would starve for want of a topic.

The Hand of Ethelberta ch. 19 (1876)

- 8 Women the most delicate get used to strange moral situations. Eve probably regained her normal sweet composure about a week after the Fall.

Two on a Tower ch. 35 (1882)

- 9 MICHAEL HENCHARD'S WILL

"That Elizabeth-Jane Farfrae be not told of my death, or made to grieve on account of me.

"& that I be not bury'd in consecrated ground.

"& that no sexton be asked to toll the bell.

"& that nobody is wished to see my dead body.

"& that no murners walk behind me at my funeral.

"& that no flours be planted on my grave.

"& that no man remember me.

"To this I put my name.

The Mayor of Casterbridge ch. 45 (1886)

- 10 A woeful fact—that the human race is too extremely developed for its corporeal conditions, the nerves being evolved to an activity abnormal in such an environment. Even the higher animals are in excess in this respect. It may be questioned if Nature, or what we call nature, so far back as when she crossed the line from invertebrates to vertebrates, did not exceed her mission. This planet does not supply the materials for happiness to higher existences.

Notebook, 7 Apr. 1889

- 11 Did it never strike your mind that what every woman says some women may feel?

Tess of the D'Urbervilles ch. 12 (1891)

- 12 Considering his position he became wonderfully free from the chronic melancholy which is taking hold of the civilized races with the decline of belief in a beneficent Power.

Tess of the D'Urbervilles ch. 18 (1891)

- 13 "Justice" was done, and the President of the Immortals (in Aeschylean phrase) had ended his sport with Tess.

Tess of the D'Urbervilles ch. 59 (1891)

- 14 And so, standing before the aforesaid officiator, the two swore that at every other time of their lives till death took them, they would assuredly believe, feel, and desire precisely as they had believed, felt, and desired during the few preceding weeks. What was as remarkable as the undertaking itself was the fact that nobody seemed at all surprised at what they swore.
Jude the Obscure pt. 1, ch. 9 (1896)
- 15 The social moulds civilization fits us into have no more relation to our actual shapes than the conventional shapes of the constellations have to the real star-patterns.
Jude the Obscure pt. 4, ch. 1 (1896)
- 16 If the marriage ceremony consisted in an oath and signed contract between the parties to cease loving from that day forward . . . and to avoid each other's society as much as possible in public, there would be more loving couples than there are now. Fancy the secret meetings between the perjuring husband and wife, the denials of having seen each other, the clambering in at bedroom windows, and the hiding in closets! There'd be little cooling then.
Jude the Obscure pt. 5, ch. 1 (1896)
- 17 People go on marrying because they can't resist natural forces, although many of them may know perfectly well that they are possibly buying a month's pleasure with a life's discomfort.
Jude the Obscure pt. 5, ch. 1 (1896)
- 18 That excessive regard of parents for their own children, and their dislike of other people's, is, like class-feeling, patriotism, save-your-own-soul-ism, and other virtues, a mean exclusiveness at bottom.

"The Darkling Thrush" l. 21 (1902)
- 21 Pessimism (or rather what is called such) is, in brief, playing the sure game. You cannot lose at it; you may gain. It is the only view of life in which you can never be disappointed. Having reckoned what to do in the worst possible circumstances, when better arise, as they may, life becomes child's play.
Notebook, 1 Jan. 1902
- 22 A local thing called Christianity.
The Dynasts pt. 1, act 1, sc. 6 (1904)
- 23 War makes rattling good history; but Peace is poor reading.
The Dynasts pt. 1, act 2, sc. 5 (1904)
- 24 Yes; quaint and curious war is!
You shoot a fellow down
You'd treat if met where any bar is,
Or help to half-a-crown.

And consummation comes, and jars two hemispheres.

Come whispering by:
War's annals will cloud into night
Ere their story die.
"In Time of 'The Breaking of Nations'" l. 9 (1915)
- 28 I am the family face;
Flesh perishes, I live on,
Projecting trait and trace
Through time to times anon,
And leaping from place to place
Over oblivion.
"Heredity" l. 1 (1917)
- 29 The years-heired feature that can
In curve and voice and eye
Despise the human span
Of durance—that is I;
The eternal thing in man,
That heeds no call to die.
"Heredity" l. 7 (1917)

30 [Remark, 1918:] My opinion is that a poet should express the emotion of all the ages and the thought of his own.

Quoted in Florence Emily Hardy, The Later Years of Thomas Hardy (1930)

John Harington

English writer and translator, 1561–1612

- 1 Treason doth never prosper, what's the reason?
For if it prosper, none dare call it treason.
Epigrams "Of Treason" (1618)

John M. Harlan

U.S. judge, 1833–1911

- 1 By the Louisiana statute, the validity of which is here involved, all railway companies (other than street railroad companies) carrying passengers in that State are required to have separate but equal accommodations for white and colored persons.

Plessy v. Ferguson (dissenting opinion) (1896). The statute used the phrase "equal but separate," but Harlan's opinion popularized "separate but equal." An earlier usage of the latter formulation appears in the argument of counsel in an 1889 Mississippi case, Louisville, N.O. & T.R. Co. v. State. The Declaration of Independence referred to "the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle" a people.

See Kerner 1; Earl Warren 1

- 2 But in view of the Constitution, in the eye of the law, there is in this country no superior, dominant, ruling class of citizens. There is no caste here. Our Constitution is color-blind, and neither knows nor tolerates classes among citizens. In respect of civil rights, all citizens are equal before the law. The humblest is the peer of the most powerful.

Plessy v. Ferguson (dissenting opinion) (1896)

- 3 The arbitrary separation of citizens, on the basis of race, while they are on a public highway, is a badge of servitude wholly inconsistent with the civil freedom and the equality before the law established by the Constitution. . . . We boast of the freedom enjoyed by our people above all other peoples. But it is difficult to reconcile that boast with a state of the law which, practically, puts the brand of servitude and degradation upon a large class of our fellow-citizens, our equals before the law. The thin disguise of "equal" accommodations for passengers in railroad coaches will not mislead any one, nor atone for the wrong this day done.

Plessy v. Ferguson (dissenting opinion) (1896)

John M. Harlan

U.S. judge, 1899–1971

- 1 One man's vulgarity is another man's lyric.
Cohen v. California (1971)

Sheldon Harnick

U.S. songwriter, 1924–

- 1 Matchmaker, matchmaker, make me a match,
Find me a find,
Catch me a catch.
"Matchmaker" (song) (1964)

Robert Goodloe Harper

U.S. politician, 1765–1825

- 1 Millions for defense but not a cent for tribute.
Toast at dinner for John Marshall, Philadelphia, Pa., 18 June 1798. According to Burton E. Stevenson, The Home Book of Quotations, this was "published in the American Daily Advertiser, 20 June, 1798. . . . Harper afterwards explained that what he had in mind was . . . that, instead of permitting France to plunder American merchant vessels of millions in tribute, he would spend them in defense." This quotation is often ascribed to Charles Cotesworth Pinckney as a response to a demand for a $250,000 bribe made by a French secret agent in 1797, but Pinckney said that his response was "Not a penny; not a penny."

James Harrington

English philosopher, 1611–1677

- 1 These I conceive to be the principles upon which Aristotle and Livy . . . have grounded their assertion that a commonwealth is an empire of laws and not of men.

The Commonwealth of Oceana pt. 1 (1656)

See John Adams 4; Archibald Cox 1; Gerald Ford 3

Michael Harrington

U.S. political scientist and socialist, 1928–1989

- 1 The other America, the America of poverty, is hidden today in a way that it never was before. Its millions are socially invisible to the rest of us.
The Other America: Poverty in the United States ch. 1 (1962)

2 For the middle class, the police protect property, give directions, and help old ladies. For the urban poor, the police are those who arrest you. In almost any slum there is a vast conspiracy against the forces of law and order.

The Other America: Poverty in the United States ch. 1 (1962)

3 To be a Negro is to participate in a culture of poverty and fear that goes far deeper than any law for or against discrimination. . . . After the racist statutes are all struck down, after legal equality has been achieved in the schools and in the courts, there remains the profound institutionalized and abiding wrong that white America has worked on the Negro for so long.

The Other America: Poverty in the United States ch. 4 (1962)

Charles K. Harris

U.S. songwriter, 1867–1930

1 Many a heart is aching, if you could read them all,
Many the hopes that have vanished, after the ball.
“After the Ball” (song) (1892)

Charles S. Harris

U.S. psychologist, 1937–

1 A man without faith is like a fish without a bicycle.
Swarthmore Phoenix, 7 Apr. 1958. Often repeated as “a man without God . . .” It inspired the feminist slogan “A woman without a man is like a fish without a bicycle.” A very early precursor appeared in the Hartford Courant, 31 Dec. 1898, which referred to a town in Spain: “The place didn’t need an American consul any more than a cow needs a bicycle.”

English novelist, 1964–

1 She closes her eyes again, and I begin to sing softly: . . . Hoping that this time it will remain a lullaby. That this time the wind will not hear. That this time—please, just this once—it will leave without us.

U.S. writer, 1922–2007

1 From here on in I rag nobody.
Bang the Drum Slowly ch. 17 (1956)

Robert Harris

English journalist and author, 1957–

1 There can now be no doubt that it is Stalin rather than Hitler who is the most alarming figure of the twentieth century. I say this—I say this not merely because Stalin killed more people than Hitler—though clearly he did—and not even because Stalin was more of a psychopath than Hitler—although clearly he was. I say it because Stalin was not a one-off like Hitler, an eruption from nowhere. Stalin stands in a historical tradition of rule by terror which existed before him, which he refined, and which could exist again. His, not Hitler’s, is the spectre that should worry us.
Archangel ch. 11 (1998)

2 The great western myth. . . . That just because a place has a McDonald’s and MTV and takes American Express it’s exactly the same as everywhere else—it doesn’t have a past any more, it’s Year Zero.

- I [On allegations of his womanizing before his scandal with Donna Rice:] Follow me around. I don't care. I'm serious. If anybody wants to put a tail on me, go ahead. They'd be very bored.
Quoted in N.Y. Times Magazine, 3 May 1987

Josephine Hart

Irish writer, 1942–2011

- I Damaged people are dangerous. They know they can survive.
Damage ch. 12 (1991)

Lorenz Hart

U.S. songwriter, 1895–1943

The Bronx and Staten Island too.
"Manhattan" (song) (1925)

- 2 With a Song in My Heart.

Title of song (1930)

- 3 When love congeals

It soon reveals

The faint aroma of performing seals,
The double crossing of a pair of heels.

I wish I were in love again!

"I Wish I Were in Love Again" (song) (1937)

- 4 Johnny One Note.

Title of song (1937)

- 5 That's why the lady is a tramp.

"The Lady Is a Tramp" (song) (1937)

- 6 Falling in love with love

Is falling for make-believe.

Falling in love with love

Is playing the fool.

"Falling in Love with Love" (song) (1938)

- 7 I fell in love,

With love everlasting,

But love fell out with me.

"Falling in Love with Love" (song) (1938)

- 8 Bewitched, Bothered, and Bewildered.

Title of song (1941)

Moss Hart

U.S. playwright, 1904–1961

U.S. stockbroker and author, 1875–1957

- 1 What lies behind us and what lies before us are tiny matters compared to what lies within us.

Meditations in Wall Street (1940)

Robert Hass

U.S. poet, 1941–

- 1 All the new thinking is about loss.
In this it resembles the old thinking.
“Meditation at Lagunitas” l. 1 (1979)
- 2 A word is elegy to what it signifies.
“Meditation at Lagunitas” l. 11 (1979)
- 3 Longing, we say, because desire is full of endless distances.
“Meditation at Lagunitas” l. 24 (1979)
- 4 There are moments when the body is as numinous as words, days that are the good flesh continuing.
Such tenderness, those afternoons and evenings, saying blackberry, blackberry, blackberry.
“Meditation at Lagunitas” l. 28 (1979)

Václav Havel

Czech president and playwright, 1936–2011

- 1 A specter is haunting Eastern Europe: the specter of what in the West is called “dissent.”
“The Power of the Powerless” (1978) (translation by Paul Wilson)
- 2 There’s always something suspect about an intellectual on the winning side.

Stephen W. Hawking

English physicist, 1942–2018

- 1 Someone told me that each equation I included in the book would halve the sales.

A Brief History of Time acknowledgments (1988)

- 2 A well-known scientist (some say it was Bertrand Russell) once gave a public lecture on astronomy. He described how the earth orbits around the sun and how the sun, in turn, orbits around the center of a vast collection of stars called our galaxy. At the end of the lecture, a little old lady at the back of the room got up and said: “What you have told us is rubbish. The world is really a flat plate supported on the back of a giant tortoise.” The scientist gave a superior smile before replying, “What is the tortoise standing on?” “You’re very clever, young man, very clever,” said the old lady. “But it’s turtles all the way down!”

A Brief History of Time ch. 1 (1988). A very similar anecdote, in which an old woman speaks of “rocks all the way down,” is found as early as 1838 (The New Yorker, 18 Aug.).

- 3 If we do discover a complete theory [of the universe], it should in time be understandable in broad principle by everyone, not just a few scientists. Then we shall all, philosophers, scientists, and just ordinary people, be able to take part in the discussion of the question of why it is that we and the universe exist. If we find the answer to that, it would be the ultimate triumph of human reason—for then we would know the mind of God.

A Brief History of Time ch. 11 (1988)

- 4 What is it that breathes fire into the equations and makes a universe for them to describe. . . . Why does the universe go to all the bother of existing?

A Brief History of Time ch. 11 (1988)

- 5 The best evidence we have that time travel is not possible, and never will be, is that we have not been invaded by hordes of tourists from the future.

Darwin Lecture at Cambridge University, Cambridge, England, Jan. 1991

Edwin Hawkins

U.S. gospel musician, 1943–2018

- 1 Oh happy day
When Jesus . . . washed my sins away.
“Oh Happy Day” (song) (1969)

Nathaniel Hawthorne

U.S. novelist and short story writer, 1804–1864

- 1 By the sympathy of your human hearts for sin ye shall scent out all the places—whether in church, bedchamber, street, field, or forest—where crime has been committed, and shall exult to behold the whole earth one stain of guilt, one mighty blood spot.
“Young Goodman Brown” (1835)
- 2 We sometimes congratulate ourselves at the moment of waking from a troubled dream; it may be so the moment after death.
Journal, 25 Oct. 1836
- 3 The Scarlet Letter.
Title of book (1850)
- 4 If a man, sitting all alone, cannot dream strange things, and make them look like truth,
he need never try to write romances.
The Scarlet Letter “The Custom-House” (1850)
- 5 On the breast of her gown, in fine red cloth, surrounded with an elaborate embroidery and fantastic flourishes of gold thread, appeared the letter A.
The Scarlet Letter ch. 2 (1850)
- 6 My heart was a habitation large enough for many guests, but lonely and chill, and without a household fire. I longed to kindle one! It seemed not so wild a dream.
The Scarlet Letter ch. 4 (1850)
- 7 But there is a fatality, a feeling so irresistible and inevitable that it has the force of doom, which almost invariably compels human beings to linger around and haunt, ghost-like,
the spot where some great and marked event has given the color to their lifetime; and still the more irresistibly, the darker the tinge that saddens it.
The Scarlet Letter ch. 5 (1850)
- 8 Let the black flower blossom as it may!
The Scarlet Letter ch. 14 (1850)
- 9 Let men tremble to win the hand of woman, unless they win along with it the utmost passion of her heart!
The Scarlet Letter ch. 15 (1850)
- 10 What we did had a consecration of its own.
The Scarlet Letter ch. 17 (1850)
- 11 The scarlet letter was her passport into regions where other women dared not tread.
Shame, Despair, Solitude! These had been her teachers,—stern and wild ones,—and they had made her strong, but taught her much amiss.
The Scarlet Letter ch. 18 (1850)
- 12 We must not always talk in the market-place of what happens to us in the forest.
The Scarlet Letter ch. 22 (1850)
- 13 She assured them, too, of her firm belief, that,
at some brighter period, when the world should have grown ripe for it, in Heaven’s own time, a new truth would be revealed, in order to establish the whole relation between man and woman on a surer ground of mutual happiness.
The Scarlet Letter ch. 24 (1850)
- 14 Not to be deficient in this particular, the author has provided himself with a moral;—the truth, namely, that the wrong-doing of one generation lives into the successive ones.
The House of the Seven Gables preface (1851)
- 15 God will give him blood to drink!
The House of the Seven Gables ch. 1 (1851)
- 16 For, what other dungeon is so dark as one’s own heart! What jailer so inexorable as one’s self!
The House of the Seven Gables ch. 11 (1851)
- 17 What we call real estate . . . is the broad foundation on which nearly all the guilt of this world rests.
The House of the Seven Gables ch. 17 (1851)
- 18 The world owes all its onward impulses to men ill at ease. The happy man inevitably confines himself within ancient limits.
The House of the Seven Gables ch. 20 (1851)
See George Bernard Shaw 22

19 The greatest obstacle to being heroic is the doubt whether one may not be going to prove one's self a fool; the truest heroism is to resist the doubt; and the profoundest wisdom to know when it ought to be resisted, and when to be obeyed.

The Blithedale Romance ch. 2 (1852)

20 It is my belief—yes, and my prophecy, should I die before it happens—that, when my sex shall achieve its rights, there will be ten eloquent women where there is now one eloquent man. Thus far, no woman in the world has ever once spoken out her whole heart and her whole mind. The mistrust and disapproval of the vast bulk of society throttles us, as with two gigantic hands at our throats! We mumble a few weak words, and leave a thousand better ones unsaid.

The Blithedale Romance ch. 14 (1852)

21 America is now wholly given over to a d——d mob of scribbling women.

Letter to William D. Ticknor, 19 Jan. 1855

22 “It is very lonesome at the summit!” “Like a man's life, when he has climbed to eminence.”

John Milton Hay

U.S. statesman, 1838–1905

1 True luck consists not in holding the best of the cards at the table:

Luckiest he who knows just when to rise and go home.

Distichs no. 15 (1890)

See Schlitz 1

2 [Of the Spanish-American War:] It has been a splendid little war, begun with the highest motives, carried on with magnificent intelligence and spirit, favored by that Fortune which loves the brave.

Letter to Theodore Roosevelt, 27 July 1898

S. I. Hayakawa

U.S. semanticist and politician, 1906–1992

1 We should hang on to it [the Panama Canal]. We stole it fair and square.

Quoted in L.A. Times, 7 Oct. 1976

Joseph Hayden

U.S. songwriter, fl. 1896

1 There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight.
“A Hot Time in the Old Town” (song) (1896)

Robert Hayden

U.S. poet, 1913–1980

1 What did I know
of love's austere and lonely offices?
“Those Winter Sundays” l. 10 (1962)

Tom Hayden

U.S. political activist, 1939–2016

1 We are people of this generation, bred in at least modest comfort, housed now in universities, looking uncomfortably to the world we inherit.
“The Port Huron Statement of the Students for a Democratic Society” (1962)

Franz Joseph Haydn

Austrian composer, 1732–1809

1 Before God and as an honest man I tell you that your son is the greatest composer known to me either in person or by name: He has taste, and, furthermore, the most profound knowledge of composition.

Quoted in Leopold Mozart, Letter to Maria Anna Mozart, 16 Feb. 1785

2 [To Mozart, who had advised him not to visit England because Haydn lacked knowledge of foreign languages, 1790:] My language is understood all over the world.

Quoted in Albert Christoph Die, Biographical Accounts of Joseph Haydn (1810) (translation by Vernon Gotwals)

Friedrich A. von Hayek

Austrian-born British economist, 1899–1992

1 The system of private property is the most important guaranty of freedom, not only for those who own property, but scarcely less for those who do not.

The Road to Serfdom ch. 8 (1944)

2 I am certain that nothing has done so much to destroy the juridical safeguards of individual freedom as the striving after this mirage of social justice.

Economic Freedom and Representative Government (1973)

Alfred Hayes

U.S. songwriter, 1911–1985

- I I dreamed I saw Joe Hill last night
Alive as you and me.
Says I, “But Joe, you’re ten years dead.”
“I never died,” says he.
“I Dreamed I Saw Joe Hill Last Night” (song) (1936)

Isaac Hayes

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1942–2008

- I Who’s the black private dick
That’s a sex machine to all the chicks
Shaft, you’re damn right.
“Theme from Shaft” (song) (1971)

Wayne Woodrow “Woody” Hayes

U.S. football coach, 1913–1987

- I When you throw a pass three things can happen to it, and two of them are bad.
Quoted in Dallas Morning News, 23 Nov. 1962. This 1962 source attributed the quotation to Darrell Royal, but Royal in 2005 gave credit to Hayes as the originator.

Tony Hayward

English business executive, 1957–

- I [Comment to reporters about his company BP’s catastrophic oil leak in the Gulf of Mexico, 30 May 2010:] I’d like my life back.
Quoted in Guardian, 2 June 2010

Victoria Hayward

U.S. travel writer, fl. 1922

- I [Of Canadian cultural diversity:] It is indeed a mosaic of vast dimensions and great breadth.
Romantic Canada ch. 24 (1922)
See Baudouin 1; Jimmy Carter 3; Crèvecoeur 1; Ralph Ellison 2; Jesse Jackson 1; Zangwill 2

Rita Hayworth (Margarita Carmen Cansino)

U.S. actress, 1918–1987

- I [Of one of her film characters:] Men fall in love with Gilda, but they wake up with me.
Quoted in John Kobal, Rita Hayworth: Portrait of a Love Goddess (1977)

Robert Hazard (Robert Rimato)

U.S. rock musician, 1948–2008

- I When the working day is done
Girls—they want to have fun
Oh girls just want to have fun.
“Girls Just Want to Have Fun” (song) (1979)

Lee Hazlewood

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1929–2007

- I These boots are made for walkin’
And that’s just what they’ll do
One of these days these boots are gonna walk all over you.
“These Boots Are Made for Walkin’” (song) (1966)

William Hazlitt

English essayist, 1778–1830

- I Hamlet is a name: his speeches and sayings but the idle coinage of the poet’s brain. What then, are they not real? They are as real as our own thoughts. Their reality is in the reader’s mind. It is we who are Hamlet.
Characters of Shakespeare’s Plays “Hamlet” (1817)
- 2 This play [Hamlet] has a prophetic truth, which is above that of history.
Characters of Shakespeare’s Plays “Hamlet” (1817)
- 3 Man is the only animal that laughs and weeps; for he is the only animal that is struck with the difference between what things are, and what they ought to be.
Lectures on the English Comic Writers “On Wit and Humor” (1818)
- 4 One has no notion of him [William Cobbett] as making use of a fine pen, but a great mutton-fist; his style stuns his readers. . . . He is too much for any single newspaper antagonist; “lays waste” a city orator or Member of Parliament, and bears hard upon the government itself. He is a kind of fourth estate in the politics of the country.
Table Talk “Character of Cobbett” (1821)
See Thomas Carlyle 14; Thomas Macaulay 4; Thackeray 10
- 5 A great chess-player is not a great man, for he leaves the world as he found it. No act terminating in itself constitutes greatness.
Table Talk “The Indian Jugglers” (1822)

6 Perhaps the best cure for the fear of death is to reflect that life has a beginning as well as an end. There was a time when we were not: this gives us no concern—why then should it trouble us that a time will come when we shall cease to be?

Table Talk “On the Fear of Death” (1822)

Bessie Head

South African–born Botswanan writer, 1937–1986

1 I am building a stairway to the stars. I have the authority to take the whole of mankind up there with me. That is why I write.

“Why Do I Write?” (1985)

John Healy

U.S. journalist, fl. 1877

1 The Mounties fetch their man every time.

Fort Benton (Montana) Record, 13 Apr. 1877. Healy’s line inspired the Royal Canadian Mounted Police’s unofficial motto, “The Mounties always get their man.”

Timothy Michael Healy

Irish politician, 1855–1931

1 [Responding to John Redmond’s statement, at Irish Parliamentary Party meeting, 6 Dec. 1890, that “He [William Ewart Gladstone] is the master of the [Irish] party”:] Who is to be the mistress of the party?

Quoted in St. John Ervine, Parnell (1925). Healy was alluding to Katherine O’Shea, whose involvement with Charles Stewart Parnell was devastating to Parnell’s political leadership.

Seamus Heaney

Irish poet, 1939–2013

1 I rhyme

To see myself, to set the darkness echoing.

“Personal Helicon” l. 19 (1965)

2 The cold smell of potato mould, the squelch and slap

Of soggy peat, the curt cuts of an edge

Through living roots awaken in my head.

But I’ve no spade to follow men like them.

Between my finger and my thumb

The squat pen rests.

I’ll dig with it.

“Digging” l. 25 (1966)

3 God is a foreman with certain definite views
Who orders life in shifts of work and leisure.

“Docker” l. 10 (1966)

4 The famous

Northern reticence, the tight gag of place

And times: yes, yes. Of the “wee six” I sing

Where to be saved you only must save face

And whatever you say, you say nothing.

“Whatever You Say Say Nothing” l. 32 (1975)

5 Is there a life before death? That’s chalked up
In Ballymurphy. Competence with pain,

Coherent miseries, a bite and sup,

We hug our little destiny again.

“Whatever You Say Say Nothing” l. 85 (1975)

6 But don’t be surprised

If I demur, for, be advised

My passport’s green.

No glass of ours was ever raised

To toast The Queen.

“An Open Letter” l. 80 (1983). Heaney was objecting to his being included in The Penguin Book of Contemporary British Poetry.

7 You lose more of yourself than you redeem

Doing the decent thing.

Station Island pt. 12 (1984)

8 History says don’t hope

On this side of the grave.

But then, once in a lifetime

The longed for tidal wave

Of justice can rise up

And hope and history rhyme.

“Doubletake” l. 13 (1990)

William Randolph Hearst

U.S. newspaper publisher, 1863–1951

1 [Telegram to Frederic Remington, whom Hearst had sent to Cuba to cover a rebellion there:] You furnish the pictures, and I’ll furnish the war.

Attributed in James Creelman, On the Great Highway (1901). Howard Langer, America in Quotations, notes: “Some scholars now question Creelman’s reliability, pointing out that neither Remington nor Davis [a correspondent accompanying Remington to Cuba] ever confirmed it and that Hearst flatly denied it.”

- 2 News is something which somebody wants suppressed: all the rest is advertising.
 Attributed in Time & Tide, 29 Oct. 1955. “News is what somebody does not want you to print. All the rest is advertising” appeared, attributed to an unnamed newspaper editor, in The Motor, Dec. 1937.

Edward Heath

British prime minister, 1916–2005

- 1 [Of the Lonrho affair.] The unpleasant and unacceptable face of capitalism.
 Speech in House of Commons, 15 May 1973

Reginald Heber

English clergyman, 1783–1826

- 1 Brightest and Best of the Sons of the Morning.
 Title of hymn (1819)
See Halberstam 1; Percy Shelley 16

Ben Hecht

U.S. author, 1894–1964

- 1 The son of a bitch stole my watch!
The Front Page act 2 (1928). Coauthored with Charles MacArthur.

Georg Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel

German philosopher, 1770–1831

- 1 What is rational is actual and what is actual is rational.
Philosophy of Right (1821)
- 2 The owl of Minerva spreads its wings only with the falling of dusk.
Philosophy of Right (1821)
- 3 What experience and history teach is this—that people and governments never have learned anything from history, or acted upon any lessons they might have drawn from it.
Lectures on the Philosophy of History: Introduction introduction (1830)
- 4 The History of the World is nothing but the development of the Idea of Freedom.
Lectures on the Philosophy of History introduction (1837)
- 5 Napoleon was twice defeated, and the Bourbons twice expelled. By repetition that which at first appeared merely a matter of chance and contingency, becomes a real and ratified existence.

Lectures on the Philosophy of History pt. 3, sec. 3 (1837)
See Karl Marx 4

Martin Heidegger

German philosopher, 1889–1976

- 1 Language is the house of Being. In its home man dwells.
 “Letter on Humanism” (1947)
- 2 Die Sprache spricht.
 Language speaks.
 “Language” (1950)

Robert L. Heilbroner

U.S. economist, 1919–2005

- 1 [The great economists] can be called the worldly philosophers, for they sought to embrace in a scheme of philosophy the most worldly of all of man’s activities—his drive for wealth.
The Worldly Philosophers introduction (1953)

Carolyn Heilbrun

U.S. literary scholar and mystery novelist, 1926–2003

- 1 In former days, everyone found the assumption of innocence so easy; today we find fatally easy the assumption of guilt.
Poetic Justice ch. 2 (1970). Written under the pseudonym Amanda Cross.
- 2 One hires lawyers as one hires plumbers, because one wants to keep one’s hands off the beastly drains.
The Question of Max ch. 5 (1976). Written under the pseudonym Amanda Cross.

Cynthia Heimel

U.S. writer and humorist, 1947–2018

- 1 If You Can’t Live Without Me, Why Aren’t You Dead Yet?
 Title of book (1991)

Heinrich Heine

German poet, 1797–1856

- 1 *Dort, wo man Bücher
 Verbrennt, verbrennt man auch am Ende Menschen.*

Wherever they burn books they will also, in the end, burn human beings.

Almansor: A Tragedy l. 245 (1823)

2 Auf Flügeln des Gesanges.

On Wings of Song.

Title of song (1823)

3 Mark this well, you proud men of action:

You are nothing but the unwitting agents of the men of thought who often, in quiet self-effacement, mark out most exactly all your doings in advance.

History of Religion and Philosophy in Germany vol. 3 (1834)

See Keynes 12

4 People in those old times had convictions; we moderns only have opinions. And it needs more than a mere opinion to erect a Gothic cathedral.

The French Stage ch. 9 (1837)

5 [Deathbed remark:] Dieu me pardonnera, c'est son métier.

God will pardon me, it is His trade.

Quoted in Alfred Meissner, Heinrich Heine (1856)

Robert A. Heinlein

U.S. science fiction writer, 1907–1988

1 You have attributed conditions to villainy that simply result from stupidity.

“Logic of Empire” (1941). Thomas F. Woodcock wrote in the Wall Street Journal, 22 Dec. 1937: “In this world much of what the victims believe to be malice is explicable on the ground of ignorance or incompetence, or a mixture of both.”

2 Women should be obscene but not heard.

Stranger in a Strange Land ch. 35 (1961). Richard F. Carroll was quoted in Billboard, 19 Dec. 1908, as saying “little girls should be obscene and not heard.”

3 Oh, “tanstaaf.” Means “There ain’t no such thing as a free lunch.”

The Moon Is a Harsh Mistress ch. 11 (1966). There is also a 1949 book by Pierre Dos Utt titled Tanstaaf: A Plan for a New Economic World Order. See Commoner 1; Walter Morrow 1

4 Always listen to experts. They’ll tell you what can’t be done, and why. Then do it.

Time Enough for Love “Intermission” (1973)

5 There are hidden contradictions in the minds of people who “love Nature” while deploring the “artificialities” with which “Man has spoiled ‘Nature.’” The obvious contradiction lies in their choice of words, which imply that Man and his artifacts are not part of “Nature”—but beavers and their dams are.

Time Enough for Love “Intermission” (1973)

6 Democracy is based on the assumption that a million men are wiser than one man. How’s that again? I missed something.

Time Enough for Love “Intermission” (1973)

7 God is omnipotent, omniscient, and omnibenevolent—it says so right here on the label. If you have a mind capable of believing all three of these divine attributes simultaneously, I have a wonderful bargain for you. No checks, please. Cash and in small bills.

Time Enough for Love “Intermission” (1973)

8 The two highest achievements of the human mind are the twin concepts of “loyalty” and “duty.” Whenever these twin concepts fall into disrepute—get out of there fast! You may possibly save yourself, but it is too late to save that society. It is doomed.

Time Enough for Love “Intermission” (1973)

9 Anyone who cannot cope with mathematics is not fully human. At best he is a tolerable subhuman who has learned to wear shoes, bathe, and not make messes in the house.

Time Enough for Love “Intermission” (1973)

10 A human being should be able to change a diaper, plan an invasion, butcher a hog, conn a ship, design a building, write a sonnet, balance accounts, build a wall, set a bone, comfort the dying, take orders, give orders, cooperate, act alone, solve equations, analyze a new problem, pitch manure, program a computer, cook a tasty meal, fight efficiently, die gallantly. Specialization is for insects.

Time Enough for Love “Intermission” (1973)

11 The most preposterous notion that H. sapiens has ever dreamed up is that the Lord God of Creation, Shaper and Ruler of all the Universes, wants the saccharine adoration of His creatures, can be swayed by their prayers, and becomes petulant if He does not receive this flattery. Yet this absurd fantasy, without a shred of evidence to bolster it, pays all the expenses of the oldest, largest, and least productive industry in all history.

Werner Heisenberg

German physicist, 1901–1976

- 1 The more precisely we determine the position [of an electron], the more imprecise is the determination of velocity at this instant, and vice versa.
"On the Perceptual Content of Quantum Theoretical Kinematics and Mechanics" (1927). Known as "Heisenberg's uncertainty principle."
- 2 Since the measuring device has been constructed by the observer . . . we have to remember that what we observe is not nature in itself but nature exposed to our method of questioning.

Joseph Heller

U.S. novelist, 1923–1999

- 1 It was love at first sight. The first time Yossarian saw the Chaplain he fell madly in love with him.
"Catch-18" (1955)
- 2 He had decided to live forever or die in the attempt, and his only mission each time he went up was to come down alive.
Catch-22 ch. 3 (1961)
- 3 There was only one catch and that was Catch-22, which specified that a concern for one's own safety in the face of dangers that were real and immediate was the process of a rational mind. Orr was crazy and could be grounded. All he had to do was ask; and as soon as he did, he would no longer be crazy and would have to fly more missions. Orr would be crazy to fly more missions and sane if he didn't, but if he was sane he had to fly them. If he flew them he was crazy and didn't have to; but if he didn't want to he was sane and had to. Yossarian was moved very deeply by the absolute simplicity of this clause of Catch-22 and let out a respectful whistle.
Catch-22 ch. 5 (1961). Heller originally wrote "Catch-18," and the first chapter of Catch-22 was published under that title in the collection New World Writing: Seventh Mentor Selection in 1955, but the phrase was changed because Leon Uris had a book out at the same time titled Mila 18.

Lillian Hellman

U.S. playwright, 1905–1984

- 1 I cannot and will not cut my conscience to fit this year's fashions, even though I long ago came to the conclusion that I was not a political person and could have no comfortable place in any political group.

Letter to John S. Wood, 19 May 1952. Hellman declared in this letter to the chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee that she would testify about her own leftist political associations but not about those of others.

Hermann Ludwig Ferdinand von Helmholtz

German physicist and anatomist, 1821–1894

- 1 Nature as a whole possesses a store of force which cannot in any way be either increased or diminished . . . therefore, the quantity of force in Nature is just as eternal and unalterable as the quantity of matter. . . . I have named [this] general law "The Principle of the Conservation of Force."

Über die Erhaltung der Kraft (1847) (translation by E. Atkinson). Modern physicists use energy for Helmholtz's word force.

Leona Helmsley

U.S. hotel executive, 1920–2007

- 1 We don't pay taxes. Only the little people pay taxes.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 12 July 1989. A comment Helmsley made to her housekeeper in 1983, reported at Helmsley's tax evasion trial.

Héloïse

French nun and writer, ca. 1095–1164

- 1 God knows I never sought anything in you except yourself; I wanted simply you, nothing of yours.

Robert Murray Helpmann

Australian dancer and actor, 1909–1986

- 1 [Comment after opening night of play Oh, Calcutta!, 1969:] The trouble with nude dancing is that not everything stops when the music stops.

Quoted in Frank Muir, The Frank Muir Book (1976)

Mark Helprin

U.S. writer and journalist, 1947–

- 1 There was a white horse, on a quiet winter morning when snow covered the streets gently and was not deep, and the sky was swept with vibrant stars, except in the east, where dawn was beginning in a light blue flood. The air was motionless, but would soon start to move as the sun came up and winds from Canada came charging down the Hudson.

Ernest Hemingway

U.S. writer, 1899–1961

- 1 You and me, we've made a separate peace.
In Our Time ch. 6 (1924)
- 2 It was all a nothing and a man was nothing too. It was only that and light was all it needed and a certain cleanness and order. Some lived in it and never felt it but he knew it all was nada y pues nada y nada y pues nada. Our nada who art in nada, nada be thy name thy kingdom nada thy will be nada in nada as it is in nada. Give us this nada our daily nada and nada us our nada as we nada our nadas and nada us not into nada but deliver us from nada; pues nada. Hail nothing full of nothing, nothing is with thee.
"A Clean, Well-Lighted Place" (1926)
- 3 Nobody ever lives their life all the way up except bull-fighters.
The Sun Also Rises ch. 2 (1926)
- 4 I did not care what it [the world] was all about. All I wanted to know was how to live in it. Maybe if you found out how to live in it you learned from that what it was all about.
The Sun Also Rises ch. 14 (1926)
- 5 It makes one feel rather good deciding not to be a bitch. . . . It's sort of what we have instead of God.
The Sun Also Rises ch. 19 (1926)
- 6 "Oh, Jake," Brett said, "we could have had such a damned good time together." . . .
"Yes," I said. "Isn't it pretty to think so?"
The Sun Also Rises ch. 19 (1926)
- 7 In the fall the war was always there but we did not go to it any more.
Men Without Women "In Another Country" (1927)
- 8 In the late summer of that year we lived in a house in a village that looked across the river and the plain to the mountains. In the bed of the river there were pebbles and boulders, dry and white in the sun, and the water was clear and swiftly moving and blue in the channels.
A Farewell to Arms ch. 1 (1929)
- 9 I had seen nothing sacred, and the things that were glorious had no glory and the sacrifices were like the stockyards at Chicago if nothing was done with the meat except to bury it. . . . Abstract words such as glory, honor, courage, or hallow were obscene.
A Farewell to Arms ch. 27 (1929)
- 10 The world breaks everyone and afterward many are strong at the broken places. But those that will not break it kills. It kills the very good and the very gentle and the very brave impartially. If you are none of these you can be sure that it will kill you too but there will be no special hurry.
A Farewell to Arms ch. 34 (1929)
- 11 You never had time to learn. They threw you in and told you the rules and the first time they caught you off base they killed you.
A Farewell to Arms ch. 41 (1929)
- 12 It was like saying good-bye to a statue. After a while I went out and left the hospital and walked back to the hotel in the rain.
A Farewell to Arms ch. 41 (1929)
- 13 I know only that what is moral is what you feel good after and what is immoral is what you feel bad after.
Death in the Afternoon ch. 1 (1932)
See Lincoln 57

- 14 I was trying to write then and I found the greatest difficulty, aside from knowing truly what you really felt, rather than what you were supposed to feel, had been taught to feel, was to put down what really happened in action; what the actual things were which produced the emotion that you experienced . . . the real thing, the sequence of motion and fact which made the emotion and which would be as valid in a year or in ten years or, with luck and if you stated it purely enough, always.
Death in the Afternoon ch. 1 (1932)
See T. S. Eliot 27
- 15 If a writer of prose knows enough about what he is writing about he may omit things that he knows and the reader, if the writer is writing truly enough, will have a feeling of those things as strongly as though the writer had stated them. The dignity of movement of an ice-berg is due to only one-eighth of it being above water. A writer who omits things because he does not know them only makes hollow places in his writing.
Death in the Afternoon ch. 16 (1932)
- 16 If he wrote it he could get rid of it. He had gotten rid of many things by writing them.
Winner Take Nothing "Fathers and Sons" (1933)
- 17 All good books are alike in that they are truer than if they had really happened and after you are finished reading one you will feel that all that happened to you and afterwards it all belongs to you; the good and the bad, the ecstasy, the remorse and sorrow, the people and the places and how the weather was. If you can get so that you can give that to people, then you are a writer.
Esquire, Dec. 1934
- 18 All modern American literature comes from one book by Mark Twain called Huckleberry Finn. All American writing comes from that. There was nothing before. There has been nothing as good since.
Green Hills of Africa ch. 1 (1935)
- 19 No matter how a man alone ain't got no bloody fucking chance.
To Have and Have Not ch. 23 (1937)
- 20 Kilimanjaro is a snow-covered mountain 19,710 feet high, and is said to be the highest mountain in Africa. Its western summit is called the Masai "Ngàje Ngài," the House of God. Close to the western summit there is the dried and frozen carcass of a leopard. No one has explained what the leopard was seeking at that altitude.
"The Snows of Kilimanjaro" (1938)
- 21 The rich were dull and they drank too much. . . . He remembered poor Julian and his romantic awe of them and how he had started a story once that began, "The very rich are different from you and me." And how someone had said to Julian, Yes, they have more money.
"The Snows of Kilimanjaro" (1938). In the story's original magazine publication in 1936, Hemingway wrote, "poor Scott Fitzgerald." He later changed the name to "Julian" at Fitzgerald's request. According to Matthew J. Bruccoli, Scott and Ernest (1978), Hemingway remarked at a lunch in 1936 that "I am getting to know the rich." Critic Mary Colum replied, "The only difference between the rich and other people is that the rich have more money."
See F. Scott Fitzgerald 36
- 22 [Referring to kissing:] Where do the noses go? I always wondered where the noses would go.
For Whom the Bell Tolls ch. 7 (1940)
- 23 [After sex:] But did thee feel the earth move?
For Whom the Bell Tolls ch. 13 (1940)
- 24 If we win here we will win everywhere. The world is a fine place and worth the fighting for and I hate very much to leave it.
For Whom the Bell Tolls ch. 43 (1940)
- 25 Cowardice, as distinguished from panic, is almost always simply a lack of ability to suspend the functioning of the imagination.
Men at War introduction (1942)
- 26 A writer should be of as great probity and honesty as a priest of God. He is either honest or not, as a woman is either chaste or not, and after one piece of dishonest writing he is never the same again.
Men at War introduction (1942)
- 27 "I would like to take the great DiMaggio fishing," the old man said. "They say his father was a fisherman. Maybe he was as poor as we are and would understand."
The Old Man and the Sea (1952)

28 But man is not made for defeat. A man can be destroyed but not defeated.

The Old Man and the Sea (1952)

29 The old man was dreaming about the lions.

The Old Man and the Sea (1952)

30 If you are lucky enough to have lived in Paris as a young man, then wherever you go for the rest of your life, it stays with you, for Paris is a moveable feast.

A Moveable Feast epigraph (1964). A. E. Hotchner writes in Papa Hemingway: A Personal Memoir (1966) that Hemingway made this remark to him in 1950. Also in 1950, Hemingway wrote, "Happiness, as you know, is a moveable feast," in Across the River and into the Trees.

31 His [F. Scott Fitzgerald's] talent was as natural as the pattern that was made by the dust on a butterfly's wings. At one time he understood it no more than the butterfly did and he did not know when it was brushed or marred. Later he became conscious of his damaged wings and of their construction and he learned to think and could not fly any more because the love of flight was gone and he could only remember when it had been effortless.

A Moveable Feast "Scott Fitzgerald" (1964)

32 [Definition of guts:] Grace under pressure.

Quoted in New Yorker, 30 Nov. 1929 (profile by Dorothy Parker). Earlier, Hemingway had used "grace under pressure" in a letter to F. Scott Fitzgerald, 20 Apr. 1926. In the 1926 letter Hemingway stated that he was not referring to guts.

33 Time is the least thing we have of.

Quoted in New Yorker, 13 May 1950

34 I started out very quiet and I beat Mr. Turgenev. Then I trained hard and I beat Mr. de Maupassant. I've fought two draws with Mr. Stendhal and I think I had an edge in the last one. But nobody's going to get me in any ring with Mr. Tolstoy unless I'm crazy or I keep getting better.

Quoted in New Yorker, 13 May 1950

35 The most essential gift for a good writer is a built-in, shock-proof shit detector. This is the writer's radar and all great writers have had it.

Quoted in Paris Review, Spring 1958

36 Poor Faulkner. Does he really think big emotions come from big words? He thinks I don't know the ten-dollar words. I know them all right. But there are older and simpler and better words, and those are the ones I use.

Quoted in A. E. Hotchner, Papa Hemingway (1966)

37 [Example of a short story consisting of only six words:] For sale. Baby shoes. Never worn.

Attributed in John de Groot, Papa: A Play Based on the Legendary Lives of Ernest Hemingway act 1 (1989). This is now often ascribed to Hemingway, but Garson O'Toole has found that there is no evidence that he authored it. Similar pre-Hemingway items have been uncovered by O'Toole, such as "The great American dramatist will be the man or woman who can write a one-act play as poignant as a seven-word want ad which the Houston Post discovers: For Sale, a baby carriage; never used" (Life Magazine, 16 June 1921).

English king, 1133–1189

- 1 [Of Thomas à Becket, 1170:] Who will deliver me from this turbulent Priest?
Attributed in Robert Dodsley, The Chronicle of the Kings of England (1740). W. L. Warren, noting that there is no way of knowing whether Henry actually spoke these words, writes in Henry II (1973): “The chroniclers and the biographers of Becket tell differing tales. That he uttered some such words is, however, beyond doubt.” Accounts of language by the king to the same effect are found in Materials for the History of Thomas Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury (1875–1885).

Patrick Henry

U.S. Revolutionary leader, 1736–1799

- 1 Caesar had his Brutus—Charles the first, his Cromwell, and George the third—(“Treason!” cried the speaker) . . . may profit by their example. If this be treason, make the most of it.

Speech in Virginia House of Burgesses, Williamsburg, Va., May 1765. These words are attributed to Henry in William Wirt’s biography, Sketches of the Life and Character of Patrick Henry (1817), on the authority of Thomas Jefferson and two other eyewitnesses. Very similar wording appears in John Burk, History of Virginia vol. 3 (1805). However, the American Heritage Dictionary of American Quotations states: “Notes made by a French visitor to Williamsburg at the time, but not discovered until 1921, suggest that Henry actually backed down when interrupted by the Speaker.” The anonymous Frenchman’s notes are published in “Journal of a French Traveller in the Colonies, 1765,” American Historical Review, July 1921.

- 2 Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God!—I know not what course others may take; but as for me, give me liberty, or give me death!
- Speech in Virginia Convention, Richmond, Va., 23 Mar. 1775. The words of Henry’s speech are known through their being reported in William Wirt, Sketches of the Life and Character of Patrick Henry (1817). Wirt reconstructed the speech from people who had heard it, but the passage of time renders his precise text questionable.
- 3 That religion, or the duty which we owe to our Creator, and the manner of discharging it, can be directed only by reason and conviction, not by force or violence; and therefore all men are equally entitled to the free exercise of religion, according to the dictates of conscience; and that it is the mutual duty of all to practice Christian forbearance, love, and charity towards each other.

Katharine Hepburn

U.S. actress, 1907–2003

- 1 Sometimes I wonder if men and women really suit each other. Perhaps they should live next door and just visit now and then.
Quoted in Barbara Rowes, The Book of Quotes (1979)
- 2 Acting isn’t really a very high-class way to make a living, is it? Nobody ever won a Nobel Prize for acting. You have to remember that Shirley Temple could do it at the age of four.

Anne Herbert

U.S. writer, 1950–2015

- 1 Anything we do randomly and frequently starts to make its own sense and changes the world into itself. Senseless violence makes more and more sense when vengeance and fear take us closer and closer to a world where everyone is dead for no reason. But violence isn’t the only thing that is senseless until it makes its own sense. Anything you want there to be more of, do it randomly. It will make itself be more, senselessly. Scrawl it on the wall: RANDOM KINDNESS AND SENSELESS ACTS OF BEAUTY.
Whole Earth Review, July 1985

- 2 Libraries will get you through times of no money better than money will get you through times of no libraries.

Quoted in The Next Whole Earth Catalog: Access to Tools, ed. Stewart Brand (1980). Herbert derived this quotation from Gilbert Shelton's statement about drugs and money.

Frank Herbert

U.S. science fiction writer, 1920–1986

- 1 I must not fear. Fear is the mind-killer. Fear is the little-death that brings total obliteration. I will face my fear. I will permit it to pass over me and through me. And when it has gone past I will turn the inner eye to see its path. Where the fear has gone there will be nothing. Only I will remain.

- 3 Who says that fictions onely and false hair
Become a verse? Is there in truth no beautie?
"Jordan (1)" l. 1 (1633)
See Keats 5; Keats 16
- 4 Love bade me welcome: yet my soul drew back,
Guilty of dust and sinne
But quick-ey'd Love, observing me grow slack
From my first entrance in,
Drew nearer to me, sweetly questioning,
If I lack'd any thing.
"Love" l. 1 (1633)
- 5 You must sit down, sayes Love, and taste my meat:
So I did sit and eat.
"Love" l. 17 (1633)
- 6 Sweet spring, full of sweet dayes and roses,
A box where sweets compacted lie.
"Virtue" l. 9 (1633)

Jerry Herman

U.S. songwriter, 1931–2019

- 1 Hello, Dolly,
Well, hello, Dolly,
It's so nice to have you back where you belong.
"Hello, Dolly!" (song) (1964)

Gerald V. Hern

U.S. sports editor, 1911–1992

- 1 Pitch Spahn and Sain, Then Pray for Rain.
Boston Post, 14 Sept. 1948. Warren Spahn and Johnny Sain were the star pitchers of the Boston Braves baseball team.

Herodotus

Greek historian, ca. 485 B.C.–ca. 425 B.C.

- 1 In peace, children inter their parents; war violates the order of nature and causes parents to inter their children.
Histories bk. 1, sec. 87
- 2 The most hateful torment for men is to have knowledge of everything but power over nothing.
Histories bk. 9, sec. 16

Don Herold

U.S. humorist, 1889–1966

- 1 "If I Had My Life to Live Over—" I'd Pick More Daisies.
Title of article, Reader's Digest, Oct. 1953

Michael Herr

U.S. writer, 1940–2016

- 1 There was a famous story, some reporters asked a door gunner, "How can you shoot women and children?" and he'd answered, "It's easy, you just don't lead 'em so much."
Dispatches ch. 3 (1977)
- 2 I think that Vietnam was what we had instead of happy childhoods.
Dispatches ch. 3 (1977)
- 3 We were walking across 57th Street one afternoon and passed a blind man carrying a sign that read, MY DAYS ARE DARKER THAN YOUR NIGHTS. "Don't bet on it, man," the ex-medic said.
Dispatches ch. 3 (1977)

Robert Herrick

English poet, 1591–1674

- 1 A sweet disorder in the dress
Kindles in clothes a wantonness.
“Delight in Disorder” l. 1 (1648)
- 2 Fair daffodils, we weep to see
You haste away so soon.
“To Daffodils” l. 1 (1648)
- 3 Gather ye rosebuds while ye may,
Old Time is still a-flying:
And this same flower that smiles to-day,
To-morrow will be dying.
“To the Virgins, to Make Much of Time” l. 1 (1648)
- 4 Whenas in silks my Julia goes,
Then, then (methinks) how sweetly flows
That liquefaction of her clothes.
Next, when I cast mine eyes and see
That brave vibration each way free;
O how that glittering taketh me!
“Upon Julia’s Clothes” l. 1 (1648)

James Herriot (James Alfred Wight)

British veterinarian and author, 1916–1995

- 1 I have long held the notion that if a vet can’t catch his patient there’s nothing much to worry about.
Vet in Harness ch. 20 (1974)

John Hersey

Chinese-born U.S. writer, 1914–1993

- 1 There, in the tin factory, in the first moment of the atomic age, a human being was crushed by books.
Hiroshima ch. 1 (1946)

June Hershey

U.S. songwriter, fl. 1941

- 1 Deep in the Heart of Texas.
Title of song (1941)

Markus Herz

German physician and philosopher, 1747–1803

- 1 [Of patients who read medical books:] My dear friend, you will some day die of a misprint.
Quoted in Ernst von Feuchtersleben, Dietetics of the Soul (1841)

Theodor Herzl

Hungarian-born Austrian Zionist, 1860–1904

- 1 If you will it, it is no dream.
Altneuland epigraph (1902)

Hesiod

Greek poet, fl. 700 B.C.

- 1 The half is greater than the whole.
Works and Days l. 40
- 2 The man who does evil to another does evil to
himself,
and the evil counsel is most evil
for him who counsels it.
Works and Days l. 265
- 3 There’s no place like home.
Works and Days l. 365
See L. Frank Baum 3; Payne 2

Hermann Hesse

German novelist and poet, 1877–1962

- 1 If you hate a person, you hate something in him that is part of yourself. What isn’t part of ourselves doesn’t disturb us.
Demian ch. 6 (1919)
- 2 I looked at my life, and it was also a river.
Siddhartha ch. 9 (1922)
- 3 Wisdom cannot be passed on. Wisdom which a wise man tries to pass on to someone always sounds like foolishness.
Siddhartha ch. 12 (1922)
- 4 He went on two legs, wore clothes, and was a human being, but nevertheless he was in reality a wolf of the Steppes. He had learned a good deal . . . and was a fairly clever fellow.
What he had not learned, however, was this: to find contentment in himself and his own life.
The cause of this apparently was that at the bottom of his heart he knew all the time (or thought he knew) that he was in reality not a man, but a wolf of the Steppes.
Steppenwolf pt. 1 (1927)
- 5 I understood it all. I understood Pablo. I understood Mozart, and somewhere behind me
I heard his ghastly laughter. I knew that all the hundred thousand pieces of life’s game were in my pocket. . . . I would traverse not once more, but often, the hell of my inner being. One day I would be a better hand at the game. One day I would learn how to laugh. Pablo was waiting for me, and Mozart too.

Steppenwolf pt. 6 (1927)

Gordon Hewart, Viscount Hewart

British judge, 1870–1943

- 1 Justice should not only be done, but should manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done.

Rex v. Sussex Justices (1924). J. B. Atlay, The Victorian Chancellors vol. 2 (1908), states that when Lord Herschell “was at the Bar, Sir George Jessel once attempted to cut him short in an argument. Herschell . . . retorted on the Master of the Rolls that, important as it was that people should get justice, it was even more important that they should be made to feel and see that they were getting it.”

Foster Hewitt

Canadian sports broadcaster, 1904–1985

- 1 He shoots! He scores!
Radio broadcast of hockey game, 4 Apr. 1933

Reinhard Heydrich

German Nazi leader, 1904–1942

- 1 [On plans to exterminate millions of European Jews:] Now the rough work has been done we begin the period of finer work. We need to work in harmony with the civil administration. We count on you gentlemen as far as the final solution is concerned.

Speech, Wannsee, Germany, 20 Jan. 1942
See Goering 2

Edward Heyman

U.S. songwriter, 1907–1981

- 1 You oughta be in pictures,
You're wonderful to see.
“You Oughta Be in Pictures” (song) (1934)
- 2 When I fall in love
It will be forever.
“When I Fall in Love” (song) (1952)

DuBose Heyward

U.S. writer, 1885–1940

- 1 Summertime
And the livin' is easy,

Fish are jumpin',
And the cotton is high.
“Summertime” (song) (1935)

Thomas Heywood

English playwright, ca. 1574–1641

- 1 A Woman Killed with Kindness.
Title of play (1607)
- 2 Seven cities warred for Homer, being dead,
Who, living, had no roof to shroud his head.
The Hierarchy of the Blessed Angels (1635)

W. E. (William Edward) Hickson

English educational writer, 1803–1870

- 1 'Tis a lesson you should heed,
Try, try, try again;
If at first you don't succeed,
Try, try, try again.
The Singing Master (1836). This song, titled “Perseverance; or, Try Again,” may not have been authored by Hickson.
See W. C. Fields 20

Jim Hightower

U.S. politician, 1943–

- 1 [Of George H. W. Bush's inherited wealth:] He is a man who was born on third base and thinks he hit a triple.
Speech at Democratic National Convention, Atlanta, Ga., 19 July 1988. “Born on third base and thinks he hit a triple” was used earlier (about another wealthy heir) in Fortune, 30 May 1983.
- 2 Ain't nothing in the middle of the road but yellow stripes and dead armadillos.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 22 July 1984. Although this line is associated with Hightower, The Dictionary of Modern Proverbs documents versions as far back as 1967 (“The middle of the road is where there's a yellow line and dead cats”) and 1970 (“The middle of the road is where you find the yellow stripe and dead skunks”).
See Bevan 2

Brewster M. Higley

U.S. physician, 1823–1911

- 1 Oh, give me a home
Where the buffalo roam
Where the deer and the antelope play
Where seldom is heard

A discouraging word,
And the sky is not cloudy all day.
“Oh, Give Me a Home Where the Buffalo Roam” (1873). These words became famous as the lyrics of the song “Home on the Range.”

David Hilbert

German mathematician, 1862–1943

- 1 We must know, we will know.
Address to the Society of German Scientists and Physicians, Königsberg, Germany, 8 Sept. 1930
- 2 One can measure the importance of a scientific work by the number of earlier publications rendered superfluous by it.
Quoted in Howard Eves, *Mathematical Circles
Revisited* (1971)

Hildegard of Bingen

German abbess and polymath, 1098–1179

- 1 A feather does not fly of its own accord, it is borne up by the air. So too I am not imbued with human doctrine or strong powers. . . .
Rather, I depend entirely on God’s help.
Letter to Odo of Soissons (1148) (translation by Mark Atherton)

Geoffrey Hill

English poet, 1932–2016

- 1 Beware
The soft-voiced owl, the ferret’s smile,
The hawk’s deliberate stoop in air,
Cold eyes, and bodies hooped in steel,
Forever bent upon the kill.
“Genesis” l. 16 (1959)
- 2 By blood we live, the hot, the cold,
To ravage and redeem the world:
There is no bloodless myth will hold.
“Genesis” l. 40 (1959)
- 3 As estimated, you died. Things marched, sufficient, to that end.
Just so much Zyklon and leather, patented terror, so many routine cries.
“September Song” l. 4 (1968)
- 4 Platonic England, house of solitudes, rests in its laurels and its injured stone.
“An Apology for the Revival of Christian Architecture in England” st. 34 (1978)

Joe Hill (Joel Hägglund)

Swedish-born U.S. labor leader and songwriter, 1879–1915

- 1 You will eat, bye and bye,
In that glorious land in the sky;
Work and pray, live on hay,
You’ll get pie in the sky when you die.
“Preacher and the Slave” (song) (1911)
- 2 Don’t waste any time mourning—organize!
Telegram to William D. Haywood, 18 Nov. 1915. Hill was a member of the Industrial Workers of the World
(the “Wobblies”) and was their leading songwriter.
He was executed on 19 November 1915, on the basis of highly suspect evidence, for murdering a Utah grocer.

Rowland Hill

English clergyman, 1744–1833

- 1 He did not see any reason why the devil should have all the good tunes.
Reported in Edward W. Broome, *The Rev. Rowland
Hill* (1881). This is usually attributed to Hill, but the Monthly Review vol. 6 (1791) credits “Why should the devil have all the good times?” to George Whitefield (1714–1770), one of the founders of Methodism, and a very similar formulation is attributed to Whitefield in the New-York Journal, 24 Nov. 1787.

Edmund Hillary

New Zealand explorer, 1919–2008

- 1 [After completing the first ascent of Mount Everest, 29 May 1953:] Well, we knocked the bastard off!
Quoted in Edmund Hillary, Nothing Venture, Nothing Win (1975)

Hillel

Jewish teacher, ca. 60 B.C.–ca. A.D. 9

- 1 If I am not for myself, who is for me? And when I am for myself, what am I? And if not now, when?
Talmud Mishnah “Pirquei Avot” 1:14
- 2 What is hateful to you do not do to your neighbor. That is the whole Torah. The rest is commentary.
Talmud “Shabbat” 31a
See Aristotle 12; Bible 225; Chesterfield 4; Confucius 9

Alice Hillingdon

English noblewoman, fl. 1912

- 1 I am happy now that Charles calls on my bedchamber less frequently than of old. As it is, I now endure but two calls a week and when I hear his steps outside my door I lie down on my bed, close my eyes, open my legs, and think of England.

Attributed in Jonathan Gathorne-Hardy, The Rise and Fall of the British Nanny (1972). Gathorne-Hardy ascribes this passage to Lady Hillingdon's "journal," but no such journal appears to exist and it is likely that the quotation is apocryphal. An earlier version is in the Washington Post, 18 May 1943: "Stanley Baldwin's son tells this story of the day his sister went out with a young man who wanted to marry her. She asked her mother for advice, in case the young man should want to kiss her . . . 'Do what I did,' said her mother, reminiscing of the beginning of her romance with the man who was to become Prime Minister. 'Just close your eyes and think of England.'" (Ellipsis in the original.)

James Hilton

English novelist, 1900–1954

- 1 The austere serenity of Shangri-La.
Lost Horizon ch. 5 (1933)
- 2 Nothing really wrong with him—only anno domini, but that's the most fatal complaint of all, in the end.
Goodbye, Mr. Chips ch. 1 (1934)

Chester Himes

U.S. writer, 1909–1984

- 1 My feelings are too intense. I hate too bitterly, I love too exaltingly, I pity too extravagantly, I hurt too painfully. We American blacks call that "soul."
The Quality of Hurt vol. 1, bk. 3, ch. 5 (1972)

Paul von Hindenburg

German military leader and president, 1847–1934

- 1 As an English general has very truly said, "The German army was 'stabbed in the back.'" Statement to Reichstag committee of inquiry, 18 Nov. 1919. Hindenburg apparently was referring to a conversation between British general Neill Malcolm and German military leader Erich von Ludendorff in Berlin in late 1918. Malcolm's words are said to have been: "You mean, General Ludendorff, that you were—were stabbed in the back?"

S. E. (Susan Eloise) Hinton

U.S. novelist, 1948–

- 1 When I stepped out into the bright sunlight from the darkness of the movie house, I had only two things on my mind: Paul Newman and a ride home.
The Outsiders ch. 1 (1967)
- 2 Stay gold, Ponyboy. Stay gold.
The Outsiders ch. 9 (1967)

Hippocrates

Greek physician, ca. 460 B.C.–357 B.C.

- 1 Life is short, the art long.
Aphorisms sec. 1, para. 1. Often quoted in the Latin form, Ars longa, vita brevis, from Seneca's De Brevitate Vitae sec. 1.
See Chaucer 4; Longfellow 2
- 2 As to diseases make a habit of two things—to help, or at least, to do no harm.
Epidemics bk. 1, ch. 11
- 3 I swear by Apollo Physician, by Asclepius, by Health, by Panacea, and by all the gods and goddesses, making them my witnesses, that I will carry out, according to my ability and judgment, this oath and this indenture.
The Physician's Oath (translation by W. H. S. Jones)
- 4 I will use treatment to help the sick according to my ability and judgment, but never with a view to injury and wrongdoing. Neither will I administer a poison to anybody when asked to do so, nor will I suggest such a course. Similarly, I will not give to a woman a pessary to cause abortion. I will keep pure and holy both my life and my art.
The Physician's Oath (translation by W. H. S. Jones)
- 5 In whatsoever houses I enter, I will enter to help the sick, and I will abstain from all intentional wrongdoing and harm, especially from abusing the bodies of man or woman, bond or free. And whatsoever I shall see or hear in the course of my profession in my intercourse with men, if it be what should not be published abroad, I will never divulge, holding such things to be holy secrets. Now if I carry out this oath, and break it not, may I gain forever the reputation among all men for my life and for my art.
The Physician's Oath (translation by W. H. S. Jones)

Hirohito

Japanese emperor, 1901–1989

- 1 The war situation has developed not necessarily to Japan's advantage.
Broadcast announcing Japan's surrender, 15 Aug. 1945
- 2 The enemy has begun to employ a new and most cruel bomb, the power of which to do damage is indeed incalculable, taking the toll of many innocent lives. Should we continue to fight, it would not only result in an ultimate collapse and obliteration of the Japanese nation, but it would also lead to the total extinction of human civilization.
Broadcast announcing Japan's surrender, 15 Aug. 1945
- 3 The ties between us and our people . . . do not depend upon mere legends and myths . . . predicated on the false conception that the Emperor is divine and that the Japanese people are superior to other races and fated to rule the world.
Address denying his divinity, 1 Jan. 1946

Alfred Hitchcock

English film director, 1899–1980

- 1 In regard to the tune, we have a name in the studio, and we call it the "MacGuffin." It is the mechanical element that usually crops up in any story. In crook stories it is always the necklace and in spy stories it is always the papers. We just try to be a little more original.
Lecture at Columbia University, New York, N.Y., 30 Mar. 1939. According to Donald Spoto, The Dark Side of Genius: The Life of Alfred Hitchcock (1983), Hitchcock picked up the term MacGuffin from film editor Angus MacPhail.
- 2 Actors are cattle.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 26 July 1940

Christopher Hitchens

English author and journalist, 1949–2011

- 1 The secular state is the guarantee of religious pluralism. This apparent paradox, again, is the simplest and most elegant of political truths. "Ireland" (1998)

Adolf Hitler

German dictator, 1889–1945

- 1 The broad mass of a nation . . . will more easily fall victim to a big lie than to a small one.
Mein Kampf vol. 1, ch. 10 (1925)
- 2 [Referring to his massacre of Ernst Roehm and associates in June 1934.] The night of the long knives.
Speech to Reichstag, 13 July 1934
- 3 I go the way that Providence dictates with the assurance of a sleepwalker.
Speech, Munich, Germany, 15 Mar. 1936
- 4 [On the Sudetenland.] It is the last territorial claim which I have to make in Europe.
Speech, Berlin, 26 Sept. 1938
- 5 After fifteen years of work I have achieved, as a common German soldier and merely with my fanatical will-power, the unity of the German nation, and have freed it from the death sentence of Versailles.
Proclamation, 21 Dec. 1941
- 6 This war . . . is one of those elemental conflicts which usher in a new millennium and which shake the world once in a thousand years.
Speech to Reichstag, 26 Apr. 1942
- 7 [Question by telephone to General Alfred Jodl after Hitler had ordered Paris to be set on fire by retreating German troops, 25 Aug. 1944.] Brennt Paris?
Is Paris burning?
Quoted in Larry Collins and Dominique Lapierre, Is Paris Burning? (1965). Lapierre relates in A Thousand Suns: Witness to History (1999) that he was told of this quotation by General Walter Warlimont, former deputy chief of staff of the Wehrmacht, who recorded it in his diary for 25 Aug. 1944.
- 8 [Explaining why he was willing to invade Poland, 1939.] Who, after all, speaks to-day of the annihilation of the Armenians?
Attributed in Louis Lochner, What About Germany? (1942). This alleged remark has not been verified in official records of Hitler's 1939 speeches.
- 9 The streets of our country are in turmoil. The universities are filled with students rebelling and rioting. Communists are seeking to destroy our country. Russia is threatening us with her might and the Republic is in danger. Yes, danger from within and from without. We need law and order. Yes, without law and order our nation cannot survive. Elect us and we shall restore law and order.

Attributed in Saturday Review, 17 May 1969. According to Ralph Keyes, “Nice Guys Finish Seventh”: “This statement was used by defenders of student rebels to imply that their critics were crypto-fascists. It was put in play by a liberal newsletter which said the sentences came from a 1932 speech Hitler made in Hamburg.” Researchers have been unable to trace an authentic Hitler source.

Benjamin Hoadly

English clergyman, 1676–1761

- 1 Whoever hath an absolute authority to interpret any written or spoken laws, it is He who is truly the Law Giver to all intents and purposes, and not the Person who first wrote or spoke them. Sermon before the King of England, 31 Mar. 1717

Thomas Hobbes

English philosopher, 1588–1679

- 1 For by art is created that great Leviathan, called a commonwealth or state, (in Latin civitas) which is but an artificial man . . . and in which, the sovereignty is an artificial soul.
Leviathan introduction (1651)
- 2 True and False are attributes of speech, not of things. And where speech is not, there is neither Truth nor Falsehood.
Leviathan pt. 1, ch. 4 (1651)
- 3 For words are wise men’s counters, they do but reckon by them: but they are the money of fools, that value them by the authority of an Aristotle, a Cicero, or a Thomas, or any other doctor whatsoever, if but a man.
Leviathan pt. 1, ch. 4 (1651)
- 4 The power of a man, to take it universally, is his present means, to obtain some future apparent good; and is either original or instrumental. . . . Reputation of power, is power.
Leviathan pt. 1, ch. 10 (1651)
- 5 In the first place, I put for a general inclination of all mankind, a perpetual and restless desire of power after power, that ceaseth only in death.
Leviathan pt. 1, ch. 11 (1651)

- 6 Religion; which by reason of the different fancies, judgments, and passions of several men, hath grown up into ceremonies so different, that those which are used by one man, are for the most part ridiculous to another.

Leviathan pt. 1, ch. 12 (1651)

- 7 During the time men live without a common power to keep them all in awe, they are in that condition which is called war; and such a war as is of every man against every man.

Leviathan pt. 1, ch. 13 (1651)

- 8 [Describing a state of nature.] No arts; no letters; no society; and which is worst of all, continual fear, and danger of violent death; and the life of man, solitary, poor, nasty, brutish, and short.

Leviathan pt. 1, ch. 13 (1651)

- 9 Force, and fraud, are in war the two cardinal virtues.

Leviathan pt. 1, ch. 13 (1651)

- 10 Such truth as opposeth no man’s profit nor pleasure is to all men welcome.

Leviathan “A Review and Conclusion” (1651)

- 11 [“Last words”.] Death, is a leap into the dark. Quoted in The Last Sayings, or, Dying Legacy of Mr. Thomas Hobbs of Malmesbury (1680). Usually rendered as “I am about to take my last voyage, a great leap in the dark.”

Edward W. Hoch

U.S. politician, 1848–1925

- 1 There is so much good in the worst of us,
And so much bad in the best of us,
That it hardly becomes any of us
To talk about the rest of us.

Attributed in The Reader, 7 Sept. 1907. Home Book of Quotations notes the following: “Attributed to Edward Wallis Hoch, ex-Governor of Kansas, because first printed in the Record, of Marion, Kansas, of which he was editor.” The claims that Hoch was the author and that the quotation first appeared in the Record are extremely dubious. The earliest version found by the editor of this book (“There is so much good in the worst of us / And so much bad in the best of us / That it little behooves any of us / To say much of the rest of us”) was printed in the Brown County World (Hiawatha, Kan.), 14 Aug. 1896, without attribution to any individual.

Ho Chi Minh

North Vietnamese president, 1890–1969

- I All men are created equal; they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights; among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of happiness. This immortal statement was made in the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America in 1776. In a broader sense, this means: All the peoples on the earth are equal from birth, all the peoples have a right to live, to be happy and free.

Proclamation of independence, 2 Sept. 1945
See Jefferson 2

- 2 Men and women, old and young, regardless of creeds, political parties, or nationalities, all the Vietnamese must stand up to fight the French colonialists to save the fatherland. Those who have rifles will use their rifles; those who have swords will use their swords; those who have no swords will use spades, hoes, or sticks.

Proclamation, 19 Dec. 1946 (translation by Peter Wiles)

- 3 [Remark, ca. 1946:] It is better to sniff the French dung for a while than eat China's all our lives.

Quoted in Jean Lacouture, Ho Chi Minh: A Political Biography (1968) (translation by Peter Wiles)

- 4 Nothing is more precious than independence and liberty.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 25 Jan. 1973

Russ Hodges

U.S. sportscaster, ca. 1909–1971

- I The Giants win the pennant! The Giants win the pennant!

Television broadcast of Giant-Dodger baseball playoff game, 3 Oct. 1951

William H. "Red" Hodgson

U.S. songwriter, fl. 1930

- I The Music Goes 'Round and Around.

Title of song (1931). Burton E. Stevenson, Home Book of Quotations, states: "The authorship . . . has also been credited to Eddy Farley and Mike Riley, but Hodgson seems to have the prior claim. The song is said to have been suggested by some lines in a joke book for the Ford automobile, published in 1915: You push the first pedal down, The wheels go 'round and around."

Don C. Hoefler

U.S. journalist, ca. 1922–1986

- I Silicon Valley USA.

Title of article, Electronic News, 11 Jan. 1971. First appearance in print of Silicon Valley, referring to an area in California where many electronics firms were located. Hoefler later recalled that the term "was used occasionally mostly by Easterners" before his series of articles, but Hoefler's usage popularized it.

Abbie Hoffman

U.S. political activist, 1936–1989

- I Today is the first day of the rest of your life.

Revolution for the Hell of It (1968). There is also 1968 evidence for this saying's being used by the antidrug movement Synanon, and it may have been originated by Synanon's founder, Charles Dederich.

- 2 Steal This Book.

Title of book (1971)

- 3 Sacred cows make the tastiest hamburger.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 20 Apr. 1989. Although this is associated with Hoffman, The Daily Collegian (Penn State University), 19 Oct. 1965, printed "Sacred cows make the best hamburger," crediting it to Aardvark magazine.

- 4 I believe in compulsory cannibalism. If people were forced to eat what they killed there would be no war.

Quoted in James Charlton, The Military Quotation Book (1990)

Al Hoffman

U.S. songwriter, 1902–1960

- I Takes Two to Tango.

Title of song (1952). Cowritten with Dick Manning.

August Heinrich Hoffmann, von Fallersleben

German poet, 1798–1874

- I Deutschland Über Alles.

Germany Above All.

Title of poem (1841)

Douglas R. Hofstadter

U.S. computer scientist and author, 1945–

- I Hofstadter's Law: It always takes longer than you expect, even when you take into account Hofstadter's Law.

Gödel, Escher, Bach ch. 5 (1979)

William Hogarth

English painter and engraver, 1697–1764

- I The Rake's Progress.
Title of series of paintings and engravings (1735)

Friedrich Hölderlin

German poet, 1770–1843

- I Near and
Hard to grasp, the god.
Yet where danger lies,
Grows that which saves.
"Patmos" (1802) (translation by Richard Sieburth)

Billie Holiday (Eleanora Fagan)

U.S. singer, 1915–1959

- I Mama may have
Papa may have
But God bless the child that's got his own.
"God Bless the Child" (song) (1941). Coauthored with Arthur Herzog, Jr.
- 2 I can't stand to sing the same song the same way two nights in succession, let alone two years or ten years. If you can, then it ain't music, it's close-order drill or exercise or yodeling or something, not music.
Lady Sings the Blues ch. 4 (1956). Coauthored with William Duffy.
- 3 You can be up to your boobies in white satin, with gardenias in your hair and no sugar cane for miles, but you can still be working on a plantation.
Lady Sings the Blues ch. 11 (1956). Coauthored with William Duffy.

Eddie Holland

U.S. songwriter, 1939–

- I Set me free, why don't cha, baby
Get out my life, why don't cha, baby
'Cause you don't really love me
You just keep me hangin' on.
"You Keep Me Hangin' On" (song) (1966)

Henry Scott Holland

English clergyman, 1847–1918

- I Death is nothing at all; it does not count. I have only slipped away into the next room.
Sermon in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, 15 May 1910

John Hollander

U.S. poet, 1929–2013

- I The periodic table folded up. Now again
The elements are four: I myself, whose hand and heart
And inner eye are one and indivisible; ink,
Discursive, drying into characters; the hard,
white
Ground of this very page; and for the fourth, yourself: air
In which I burn? Or the fire by which I am consumed.
Powers of Thirteen no. 7, l. 8 (1983)
- 2 The odd, evening hour, neither yours nor mine,
but ours,
When our hands reach out to touch like object and image
Moving toward the mirror's surface each through the magic Space that the other's world must needs transform in order
To comprehend.
Powers of Thirteen no. 169, l. 7 (1983)

Buddy Holly (Charles Hardin Holley)

U.S. rock singer and musician, 1937–1959

- I That'll be the day when I die.
"That'll Be the Day" (song) (1957). Cowritten with Jerry Allison and Norman Petty.
See Film Lines 151

Fanny Dixwell Holmes

U.S. socialite and wife of Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., 1840–1929

- I [Remark to President Theodore Roosevelt at White House dinner honoring Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., 8 Jan. 1903:] Washington is full of famous men and the women they married when they were young.
Quoted in Catherine Drinker Bowen, Yankee from Olympus (1944)

John H. Holmes

U.S. clergyman, 1879–1964

- I This universe is not hostile, nor yet is it friendly. It is simply indifferent.
The Sensible Man's View of Religion ch. 4 (1932)

Oliver Wendell Holmes

U.S. writer and physician, 1809–1894

- 1 And if I should live to be
The last leaf upon the tree
In the spring,
Let them smile, as I do now,
At the old forsaken bough
Where I cling.
“The Last Leaf” l. 43 (1831)
- 2 The state should, I think, be called “Anaesthesia.” This signifies insensibility.
... The adjective will be “Anaesthetic.” Thus we might say the state of Anaesthesia, or the anaesthetic state.
Letter to W. T. G. Morton, 21 Nov. 1846
- 3 What a satire, by the way, is that machine [Charles Babbage’s calculating machine] on the mere mathematician! A Frankenstein-monster, a thing without brains and without heart, too stupid to make a blunder; that turns out results like a corn-sheller, and never grows any wiser or better, though it grind a thousand bushels of them!
The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table ch. 1 (1858)
- 4 Good Americans, when they die, go to Paris.
The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table ch. 6 (1858).
Holmes attributed this comment to “one of the wittiest of men,” probably referring to his friend
Thomas Gold Appleton.
See Wilde 30
- 5 Boston State-House is the hub of the solar system.
The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table ch. 6 (1858)
- 6 Every now and then a man’s mind is stretched by a new idea or sensation, and never shrinks back to its former dimensions.
The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table ch. 11 (1858)
- 7 Have you heard of the wonderful one-hoss shay,
That was built in such a logical way
It ran a hundred years to a day.
The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table ch. 11, “The Deacon’s Masterpiece” l. 1 (1858)
- 8 End of the wonderful one-hoss shay.
Logic is logic. That’s all I say.
The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table ch. 11, “The Deacon’s Masterpiece” l. 119 (1858)

9 Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul.

10 He comes of the Brahmin caste of New England. This is the harmless, inoffensive, untitled aristocracy referred to, and which many readers will at once acknowledge.

Elsie Venner ch. 1 (1861)

11 Life is a fatal complaint, and an eminently contagious one.

The Poet at the Breakfast Table ch. 12 (1872)

Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.

U.S. judge, 1841–1935

1 It is better to have a line drawn somewhere in the penumbra between darkness and light, than to remain in uncertainty.

“The Theory of Torts” (1873). Appears to be the first use of the “penumbra” metaphor in American law.
See William O. Douglas 5

2 The life of the law has not been logic: it has been experience. The felt necessities of the time, the prevalent moral and political theories, intuitions of public policy, avowed or unconscious, even the prejudices which judges share with their fellow-men, have had a good deal more to do than the syllogism in determining the rules by which men should be governed.

The Common Law Lecture 1 (1881). The first sentence appeared verbatim in Holmes’s review of Christopher C. Langdell’s A Selection of Cases on the Law of Contracts, published in the American Law Review,
Mar. 1880.
See Coke 4

- 3 The law embodies the story of a nation's development through many centuries, and it cannot be dealt with as if it contained only the axioms and corollaries of a book of mathematics.
The Common Law Lecture I (1881)
- 4 Vengeance imports a feeling of blame, and an opinion, however distorted by passion, that a wrong has been done. It can hardly go very far beyond the case of a harm intentionally inflicted: even a dog distinguishes between being stumbled over and being kicked.
The Common Law Lecture I (1881)
- 5 The truth is, that the law is always approaching, and never reaching, consistency. It is forever adopting new principles from life at one end, and it always retains old ones from history at the other, which have not yet been absorbed or sloughed off. It will become entirely consistent only when it ceases to grow.
The Common Law Lecture I (1881)
- 6 We pause to become conscious of our national life and to rejoice in it, to recall what our country has done for each of us, and to ask ourselves what we can do for our country in return.
Memorial Day Address, Keene, N.H., 30 May 1884
See Briggs 1; Gibran 5; John Kennedy 4; John Kennedy 5; John Kennedy 16
- 7 I think that, as life is action and passion, it is required of a man that he should share the passion and action of his time at peril of being judged not to have lived.
Memorial Day Address, Keene, N.H., 30 May 1884
- 8 The law, wherein, as in a magic mirror, we see reflected, not only our own lives, but the lives of all men that have been!
"The Law" (address to Suffolk Bar Association dinner), Boston, Mass., 5 Feb. 1885. The "magic mirror" is probably an allusion to Alfred Tennyson's poem, "The Lady of Shalott," in which the Lady's only view of the world is through reflections in a mirror.
- 9 The external and immediate result of an advocate's work is but to win or lose a case. But remotely what the lawyer does is to establish, develop, or illuminate rules which are to govern the conduct of men for centuries; to set in motion principles and influences which shape the thought and action of generations which know not by whose command they move.
"Sidney Bartlett" (eulogy), Boston, Mass., 23 Mar. 1889
- 10 If you want to know the law and nothing else, you must look at it as a bad man, who cares only for the material consequences which such knowledge enables him to predict, not as a good one, who finds his reasons for conduct, whether inside the law or outside of it, in the vaguer sanctions of conscience.
"The Path of the Law" (1897)
- 11 The prophecies of what the courts will do in fact, and nothing more pretentious, are what I mean by the law.
"The Path of the Law" (1897)
- 12 Certainty generally is illusion, and repose is not the destiny of man.
"The Path of the Law" (1897)
- 13 For the rational study of the law the black-letter man may be the man of the present, but the man of the future is the man of statistics and the master of economics.
"The Path of the Law" (1897)
- 14 It is revolting to have no better reason for a rule of law than that so it was laid down in the time of Henry IV. It is still more revolting if the grounds upon which it was laid down have vanished long since, and the rule simply persists from blind imitation of the past.
"The Path of the Law" (1897)
- 15 The remoter and more general aspects of the law are those which give it universal interest. It is through them that you not only become a great master in your calling, but connect your subject with the universe and catch an echo of the infinite, a glimpse of its unfathomable process, a hint of the universal law.
"The Path of the Law" (1897)
- 16 Life is an end in itself, and the only question as to whether it is worth living is whether you have enough of it.
Speech to Bar Association of Boston, Boston, Mass., 7 Mar. 1900
- 17 Great cases like hard cases make bad law. For cases are called great, not by reason of their real importance in shaping the law of the future, but because of some accident of immediate overwhelming interest which appeals to the feelings and distorts the judgment. These immediate interests exercise a kind of hydraulic pressure which makes what previously was clear seem doubtful, and before which even well settled principles of law will bend.

Northern Securities Co. v. United States (dissenting opinion) (1904)
See Proverbs 136

- 18 This case is decided upon an economic theory which a large part of the country does not entertain. If it were a question whether I agreed with that theory, I should desire to study it further and long before making up my mind. But I do not conceive that to be my duty, because I strongly believe that my agreement or disagreement has nothing to do with the right of a majority to embody their opinions in law.
Lochner v. New York (dissenting opinion) (1905)
- 19 The Fourteenth Amendment does not enact [the economic theories of] Mr. Herbert Spencer's Social Statics.
Lochner v. New York (dissenting opinion) (1905)
- 20 A constitution is not intended to embody a particular economic theory. . . . It is made for people of fundamentally differing views, and the accident of our finding certain opinions natural and familiar or novel and even shocking ought not to conclude our judgment upon the question whether statutes embodying them conflict with the Constitution of the United States.
Lochner v. New York (dissenting opinion) (1905)
- 21 Life is painting a picture, not doing a sum.
"The Class of '61" (speech), Cambridge, Mass., 28 June 1911
- 22 We are very quiet there [at the Supreme Court], but it is the quiet of a storm centre, as we all know.
"Law and the Court" (speech to Harvard Law School Association of New York), 15 Feb. 1913
- 23 I do not think we need trouble ourselves with the thought that my view depends upon differences of degree. The whole law does so as soon as it is civilized. . . . Negligence is all degree—that of the defendant here degree of the nicest sort; and between the variations according to distance that I suppose to exist and the simple universality of the rules in the Twelve Tables of the Leges Barbarorum, there lies the culture of two thousand years.
LeRoy Fibre Co. v. Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. (concurring opinion) (1914)
- 24 The common law is not a brooding omnipresence in the sky but the articulate voice of some sovereign or quasi-sovereign that can be identified.
Southern Pacific Co. v. Jensen (dissenting opinion) (1917)
- 25 I abhor, loathe, and despise these long discourses, and agree with Carducci the Italian poet who died some years ago that a man who takes half a page to say what can be said in a sentence will be damned.
Letter to Frederick Pollock, 1 June 1917
- 26 A word is not a crystal, transparent and unchanged, it is the skin of a living thought and may vary greatly in color and content according to the circumstances and the time in which it is used.
Towne v. Eisner (1918)
- 27 Persecution for the expression of opinions seems to be perfectly logical. If you have no doubt of your premises or your power and want a certain result with all your heart you naturally express your wishes in law and sweep away all opposition.
Abrams v. United States (dissenting opinion) (1919)
- 28 But when men have realized that time has upset many fighting faiths, they may come to believe even more than they believe the very foundations of their own conduct that the ultimate good desired is better reached by free trade in ideas—that the best test of truth is the power of the thought to get itself accepted in the competition of the market, and that truth is the only ground upon which their wishes safely can be carried out. That at any rate is the theory of our Constitution. It is an experiment, as all life is an experiment.
Abrams v. United States (dissenting opinion) (1919)
See Milton 8

- 29 The most stringent protection of free speech would not protect a man in falsely shouting fire in a theatre and causing a panic. . . . The question in every case is whether the words used are used in such circumstances and are of such a nature as to create a clear and present danger that they will bring about the substantive evils that Congress has a right to prevent.
Schenck v. United States (1919). The sentence about “falsely shouting fire in a theatre” is often misquoted by omitting the word “falsely” or by adding the word “crowded” before “theatre.” Holmes appears to have taken the theater example from the closing argument of prosecutor Edwin S. Wertz in the sedition trial of Eugene V. Debs in 1918. Wertz stated: “A man in a crowded auditorium, or any theatre, who yells ‘fire’ and there is no fire, and a panic ensues and someone is trampled to death, may be rightfully indicted and charged with murder.”
See Brandeis 6
- 30 I . . . probably take the extremest view in favor of free speech, (in which, in the abstract, I have no very enthusiastic belief, though I hope I would die for it).
Letter to Frederick Pollock, 26 Oct. 1919
- 31 Upon this point a page of history is worth a volume of logic.
New York Trust Co. v. Eisner (1921)
- 32 It will need more than the Nineteenth Amendment to convince me that there are no differences between men and women, or that legislation cannot take those differences into account.
Adkins v. Children’s Hospital (dissenting opinion) (1922)
- 33 But I have long thought that if you knew a column of advertisements by heart, you could achieve unexpected felicities with them. You can get a happy quotation anywhere if you have the eye.
Letter to Harold Laski, 31 May 1923
- 34 It is said that this manifesto is more than a theory, that it was an incitement. Every idea is an incitement.
Gitlow v. New York (dissenting opinion) (1925)
- 35 It is better for all the world, if instead of waiting to execute degenerate offspring for crime, or to let them starve for their imbecility, society can prevent those who are manifestly unfit from continuing their kind. The principle that sustains compulsory vaccination is broad enough to cover cutting the Fallopian tubes. . . . Three generations of imbeciles are enough.
Buck v. Bell (1927)
- 36 Taxes are what we pay for civilized society.
Compañía General de Tabacos de Filipinas v. Collector of Internal Revenue (dissenting opinion) (1927). “Taxation is the price which we pay for civilization” has been found by Garson O’Toole to have appeared in Journal of the House of Representatives of the State of Vermont (1852).
- 37 The government ought not to use evidence obtained and only obtainable, by a criminal act. . . . For my part I think it a less evil that some criminals should escape than that the Government should play an ignoble part.
Olmstead v. United States (dissenting opinion) (1928)
- 38 The power to tax is not the power to destroy while this Court sits.
Panhandle Oil Co. v. Mississippi ex rel. Knox (dissenting opinion) (1928)
See John Marshall 7; Daniel Webster 2
- 39 If there is any principle of the Constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other it is the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us but freedom for the thought that we hate.
United States v. Schwimmer (dissenting opinion) (1929)
- 40 The riders in a race do not stop short when they reach the goal. There is a little finishing canter before coming to a standstill. There is time to hear the kind voice of friends and to say to one’s self: “The work is done.” But just as one says that, the answer comes: “The race is over, but the work never is done while the power to work remains.” The canter that brings you to a standstill need not be only coming to rest. It cannot be, while you still live. For to live is to function. That is all there is in living.
Radio address on his 90th birthday, 8 Mar. 1931
- 41 Life seems to me like a Japanese picture which our imagination does not allow to end with the margin. We aim at the infinite and when our arrow falls to earth it is in flames.
Letter to Federal Bar Association, 29 Feb. 1932

- 42 No generalization is wholly true—not even this one.

Quoted in Owen Wister, Roosevelt: The Story of a Friendship (1930)

- 43 [In response to a well-wisher who called out “Now justice will be administered in Washington” as Holmes embarked to take his seat on the U.S. Supreme Court, 1902:] Don’t be too sure. I am going there to administer the law.

Quoted in Charles Henry Butler, A Century at the Bar of the Supreme Court of the United States (1942)

- 44 [Of Franklin D. Roosevelt, after meeting him when Holmes was in his nineties and Roosevelt had just become president, 1933:] A second-class intellect, but a first-class temperament.

Thomas Hood

English poet, 1799–1845

- 1 There is a silence where hath been no sound,
There is a silence where no sound may be,
In the cold grave—under the deep, deep sea.
“Silence” l. 1 (1827)

Richard Hooker

English theologian, ca. 1554–1600

- 1 Of Law there can be no less acknowledged, than that her seat is the bosom of God, her voice the harmony of the world: all things in heaven and earth do her homage, the very least as feeling her care, and the greatest as not exempted from her power.

Of the Laws of Ecclesiastical Polity bk. 1, ch. 16 (1593)

Richard Hooker (H. Richard Hornberger)

U.S. physician, 1924–1997

- 1 We’re the pros from Dover.

*M*A*S*H* ch. 8 (1968). Developed by the character Hawkeye as a way of claiming to be a pro from an ambiguous golf club in order to wangle invitations to play free rounds.

bell hooks (Gloria Jean Watkins)

U.S. author and feminist, 1952–

- 1 The academy is not paradise. But learning is a place where paradise can be created.

Teaching to Transgress ch. 14 (1994)

Ellen Sturgis Hooper

U.S. poet, 1816–1841

- 1 I slept, and dreamed that life was Beauty;
I woke, and found that life was Duty.

“I Slept, and Dreamed That Life Was Beauty” l. 1 (1840)

Herbert C. Hoover

U.S. president, 1874–1964

- 1 Our country has deliberately undertaken a great social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far-reaching in purpose.

Letter to William E. Borah, 23 Feb. 1928. Referring to the prohibition of liquor, thereafter known as “the noble experiment.”

2 We were challenged with a peace-time choice between the American system of rugged individualism and a European philosophy of diametrically opposed doctrines—doctrines of paternalism and static socialism.

Campaign speech, New York, N.Y., 22 Oct. 1928. The term rugged individualism is found earlier in Godey's Magazine, May 1898.

3 The slogan of progress is changing from the full dinner pail to the full garage.

Campaign speech, New York, N.Y., 22 Oct. 1928. Often quoted as “a car in every garage and a chicken in every pot.”

J. Edgar Hoover

U.S. government official, 1895–1972

1 I regret to say that we of the FBI are powerless to act in cases of oral-genital intimacy, unless it has in some way obstructed interstate commerce.

Attributed in Irving Wallace, Intimate Sex Lives of Famous People (1981)

Anthony Hope (Anthony Hope Hopkins)

English novelist, 1863–1933

1 His foe was folly & his weapon wit.

Inscription on W. S. Gilbert Memorial, London (1915)

Laurence Hope (Adela Florence Nicolson)

English poet, 1865–1904

1 Pale hands I loved beside the Shalimar, Where are you now? Who lies beneath your spell?

Whom do you lead on Rapture's roadway, far,
Before you agonize them in farewell?

“Kashmiri Song” l. 1 (1901)

2 Less than the dust, beneath thy Chariot wheel, Less than the rust, that never stained thy Sword,
Less than the trust thou hast in me, O Lord,
Even less than these!

“Less Than the Dust” l. 1 (1901)

Gerard Manley Hopkins

English poet, 1844–1889

1 Elected Silence, sing to me
And beat upon my whorlèd ear.

“The Habit of Perfection” l. 1 (written 1866)

2 The world is charged with the grandeur of God.

“God's Grandeur” l. 1 (written 1877)

3 Glory be to God for dappled things.

“Pied Beauty” l. 1 (written 1877)

4 All things counter, original, spare, strange;
Whatever is fickle, freckled (who knows how?)
With swift, slow; sweet, sour; adazzle, dim;
He fathers-forth whose beauty is past change:
Praise him.

“Pied Beauty” l. 7 (written 1877)

5 I caught this morning morning's minion, kingdom of daylight's dauphin, dapple-dawn-drawn Falcon, in his riding

Of the rolling level underneath him steady air,
and striding

High there, how he rung upon the rein of a wimpling wing

In his ecstasy!

“The Windhover” l. 1 (written 1877)

6 Márgarét, áre you grieving
Over Goldengrove unleaving?

“Spring and Fall: to a young child” l. 1 (written 1880)

7 It is the blight man was born for,

It is Margaret you mourn for.

“Spring and Fall: to a young child” l. 12 (written 1880)

8 O the mind, mind has mountains; cliffs of fall Frightful, sheer, no-man-fathomed. Hold them cheap

May who ne'er hung there.

“No worst, there is none” l. 9 (written 1885)

Harry Hopkins

U.S. government official, 1890–1946

- 1 We are going to spend and spend and spend, tax and tax and tax and elect and elect and elect.

Quoted in Daily Times (Beaver and Rochester, Pa.), 26 Oct. 1938. This appears to be the origin of the political phrase “tax and spend.”

Jane Ellice Hopkins

English reformer, 1836–1904

- 1 Genius . . . an infinite capacity for taking pains.

Hail, ye heroes! heaven-born band!
“Hail, Columbia” l. 1 (1798)

Edward Hopper

U.S. painter, 1882–1967

- 1 If you could say it in words there’d be no reason to paint.

Quoted in Time, 24 Dec. 1956

Grace Murray Hopper

U.S. computer scientist, 1906–1992

- 1 [Notation next to moth taped into log:] First actual case of bug being found.

Logbook entry, 9 Sept. 1947. The moth taped into Hopper’s log after being found inside the early Mark II computer supposedly gave rise to the term bug meaning a defect in computer hardware or software. This insect is real—it is preserved at the Smithsonian Institution; however, much earlier usages of bug by Thomas Edison and others disprove the notion that the moth’s discovery inspired the term.

- 2 Always remember that it’s much easier to apologize than to get permission.

Quoted in Chicago Tribune, 9 Dec. 1982. “It’s easier to get forgiveness than permission,” not attributed to Hopper, appeared in Southern Education Report, Aug. 1966.

Horace (Quintus Horatius Flaccus)

Roman poet, 65 B.C.–8 B.C.

- 1 *Inceptis gravibus plerumque et magna professis
Purpureus, late qui splendeat, unus et alter Adsuitur pannus.*

Works of serious purpose and grand promises often have a purple patch or two stitched on, to shine far and wide.

Ars Poetica l. 14

- 2 *Multa renascentur quae iam cecidere, cadentque
Quae nunc sunt in honore vocabula, si volet usus, Quem penes arbitrium est et ius et norma loquendi.*

Many terms which have now dropped out of favor will be revived, and those that are at present respectable will drop out, if usage so choose, with whom lies the decision, the judgment, and the rule of speech.

Ars Poetica l. 70

- 3 Grammatici certant et adhuc sub iudice lis est.
Scholars dispute, and the case is still before the courts.

Donald Horne

Australian writer, 1921–2005

1 Australia is a lucky country.

The Lucky Country ch. 10 (1964). Horne meant this comment as a criticism, but it is often repeated with a positive sense.

Karen Horney

German-born U.S. psychoanalyst and author, 1885–1952

- 1 Fortunately analysis [psychoanalysis] is not the only way to resolve inner conflicts. Life itself still remains a very effective therapist.

Afghan-born U.S. novelist, 1965–

- 1 I became what I am today at the age of twelve, on a frigid overcast day in the winter of 1975.
The Kite Runner ch. 1 (2003)
- 2 He was already turning the street corner, his rubber boots kicking up snow. He stopped, turned. He cupped his hands around his mouth. “For you a thousand times over!” he said.
The Kite Runner ch. 7 (2003)

A. E. Housman

English poet, 1859–1936

- 1 Loveliest of trees, the cherry now
Is hung with bloom along the bough,
And stands about the woodland ride
Wearing white for Eastertide.
A Shropshire Lad no. 2, l. 1 (1896)
- 2 Into my heart an air that kills
From yon far country blows:
What are those blue remembered hills,
What spires, what farms are those?
A Shropshire Lad no. 40, l. 1 (1896)
- 3 That is the land of lost content,
I see it shining plain,
The happy highways where I went
And cannot come again.
A Shropshire Lad no. 40, l. 5 (1896)
- 4 Terence, this is stupid stuff:
You eat your victuals fast enough:
There can't be much amiss, 'tis clear,
To see the rate you drink your beer.
A Shropshire Lad no. 62, l. 1 (1896)

Charles Hamilton Houston

U.S. lawyer, 1895–1950

- 1 [Of United States civil rights and foreign policy:]
The failure of the Government to enforce democratic practices and to protect minorities in its own capital makes its expressed concern for national minorities abroad somewhat specious, and its interference in the domestic affairs of other countries very premature.
Letter to Harry S. Truman, 3 Dec. 1945

Sam Houston

U.S. general and president of Republic of Texas, 1793–1863

- 1 He has every characteristic of a dog except loyalty.
Quoted in Leon A. Harris, The Fine Art of Political Wit (1964)

Richard Hovey

U.S. poet, 1864–1900

- 1 For it's always fair weather
When good fellows get together,
With a stein on the table and a good song ringing clear.
“A Stein Song” l. 5 (1896)

Barbara Howar

U.S. writer and socialite, 1934–

- 1 [Of Henry Kissinger:] Henry's idea of sex is to slow the car down to thirty miles an hour when he drops you off at the door.
Quoted in Barbara Rowes, The Book of Quotes (1979)

Bart Howard (Howard Gustafsson)

U.S. songwriter and musician, 1915–2004

- 1 Fly me to the moon, and let me play among the stars.
 “Fly Me to the Moon (In Other Words)” (song) (1954)

Edgar W. Howe

U.S. editor and humorist, 1853–1937

- 1 What people say behind your back is your standing in the community.
 Quoted in The American Treasury: 1455–1955, ed. Clifton Fadiman (1955)

Julia Ward Howe

U.S. suffragist and reformer, 1819–1910

- 1 Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord:
 He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
 He hath loosed the fateful lightning of his terrible swift sword:
 His truth is marching on.
 “Battle Hymn of the Republic” l. 1 (1862)
- 2 Glory! Glory! Hallelujah! Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
 Glory! Glory! Hallelujah! His truth is marching on.
 “The Battle Hymn of the Republic” l. 5 (1862). The music and words of this chorus appeared earlier in a hymn titled “Brothers, Will You Meet Us?,” copyright G. S. Scofield, 1858.
 See Folk and Anonymous Songs 41
- 3 In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea,
 With a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and me:
 As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free;
 While God is marching on.
 “The Battle Hymn of the Republic” l. 25 (1862)

William Dean Howells

U.S. author, 1837–1920

- 1 I don’t see why, when it comes to falling in love, a man shouldn’t fall in love with a rich girl as easily as a poor one.
The Rise of Silas Lapham ch. 5 (1885)
 See Thackeray 9

Mary Howitt

English children’s writer, 1799–1888

- 1 “Will you walk into my parlor?” said a spider to a fly:
 “’Tis the prettiest little parlor that ever you did spy.”
 “The Spider and the Fly” l. 1 (1834). Often misquoted as “said the spider to the fly.”

Edmond Hoyle

English writer on games, 1672–1769

- 1 When in doubt, win the trick.
Hoyle’s Games Improved, ed. Charles Jones (1790). Although this is associated with Hoyle, it appears slightly earlier in The Aberdeen Magazine, Literary Chronicle, and Review vol. 1 (1788): “When in doubt win the trick.”

Fred Hoyle

English astrophysicist, 1915–2001

- 1 One [idea] was that the Universe started its life a finite time ago in a single huge explosion. . . . This big bang idea seemed to me to be unsatisfactory.
The Nature of the Universe ch. 5 (1950)

Roman L. Hruska

U.S. politician, 1904–1999

- 1 There are a lot of mediocre judges and people and lawyers, and they are entitled to a little representation [on the Supreme Court], aren’t they? We can’t have all Brandeises, Frankfurters, and Cardozos.
 Quoted in N.Y. Times, 17 Mar. 1970

Elbert Hubbard

U.S. writer, 1856–1915

- 1 [President William] McKinley gave Rowan a letter to be delivered to Garcia; Rowan took the letter & did not ask, “Where is he at?” By the Eternal! there is a man whose form should be cast in deathless bronze & the statue placed in every college of the land. It is not book-learning young men need, nor instruction about this and that, but a stiffening of the vertebrae which will cause them to be loyal to a trust, to act promptly, concentrate their energies: do the thing—“Carry a message to Garcia!”
 “A Message to Garcia” (1899)

- 2 Never explain—your friends do not need it and your enemies will not believe you anyhow.

The Motto Book (1907)

See Disraeli 32; John Arbuthnot Fisher 1

- 3 One machine can do the work of fifty ordinary men. No machine can do the work of one extraordinary man.

Quoted in Charles Higham and Joel Greenberg, Celluloid Muse (1969)

Langston Hughes

U.S. writer, 1902–1967

- 1 I’ve known rivers ancient as the world and older than the flow of human blood in human veins.

“The Negro Speaks of Rivers” l. 1 (1921)

- 2 I too, sing America.

I am the darker brother.

They send me to eat in the kitchen

When company comes,

But I laugh,

And eat well,

And grow strong.

“I, Too” l. 1 (1925)

- 3 They’ll see how beautiful I am

And be ashamed—

I, too, am America.

“I, Too” l. 16 (1925)

- 4 Got the Weary Blues

And can’t be satisfied—

I ain’t happy no mo’

And I wish that I had died.

“The Weary Blues” l. 27 (1926)

- 5 It is the duty of the younger Negro artist . . .

to change through the force of his art that old whispering “I want to be white,” hidden in the aspirations of his people, to “Why should I want to be white? I am a Negro—and beautiful!”

Nation, 23 June 1926

See Bible 156; Political Slogans 8

- 6 Hold fast to dreams

For if dreams die

Life is a broken-winged bird

That cannot fly.

“Dreams” l. 1 (1929)

- 7 I swear to the Lord
I still can't see
Why Democracy means
Everybody but me.
"The Black Man Speaks" l. 1 (1943)
- 8 What happens to a dream deferred?
Does it dry up
like a raisin in the sun?
Or fester like a sore—
And then run?
Does it stink like rotten meat?
Or crust and sugar over—
like a syrupy sweet?
Maybe it just sags
Like a heavy load.
Or does it explode?
"Harlem" l. 1 (1951)
See Bible 130
- 9 As I learn from you,
I guess you learn from me—
although you're older—and white—and somewhat more free.
This is my page for English B.
"Theme for English B" l. 37 (1951)
- 10 "It's powerful," he said.
"What?"
"That one drop of Negro blood—because just one drop of black blood makes a man colored. One drop—you are a Negro!"
Simple Takes a Wife ch. 20 (1953)

Ted Hughes

English poet, 1930–1998

- 1 Grey silent fragments
Of a grey silent world.
"The Horses" l. 14 (1957)
- 2 Cold, delicately as the dark snow,
A fox's nose touches twig, leaf;
Two eyes serve a movement, that now
And again now, and now, and now
Sets neat prints into the snow.
"The Thought-Fox" l. 9 (1957)
- 3 With a sudden sharp hot stink of fox,
It enters the dark hole of the head.
The window is starless still; the clock ticks,
The page is printed.
"The Thought-Fox" l. 21 (1957)

- 4 I sit in the top of the wood, my eyes closed.
Inaction, no falsifying dream
Between my hooked head and hooked feet:
Or in sleep rehearse perfect kills and eat.
"Hawk Roosting" l. 1 (1960)
- 5 It took the whole of Creation
To produce my foot, my each feather:
Now I hold Creation in my foot
Or fly up, and revolve it all slowly—
I kill where I please because it is all mine.
There is no sophistry in my body:
My manners are tearing off heads—
The allotment of death.
"Hawk Roosting" l. 10 (1960)
- 6 Pike, three inches long, perfect
Pike in all parts, green tigering the gold.
Killers from the egg; the malevolent aged grin.
"Pike" l. 1 (1960)
- 7 The jaws' hooked clamp and fangs
Not to be changed at this date;
A life subdued to its instrument.
"Pike" l. 13 (1960)
- 8 Stilled legendary depth:
It was as deep as England. It held
Pike too immense to stir, so immense and old
That past nightfall I dared not cast.
"Pike" l. 33 (1960)

Thomas Hughes

English jurist, reformer, and writer, 1822–1896

- 1 Life isn't all beer and skittles; but beer and skittles, or something better of the same sort, must form a good part of every Englishman's education.
Tom Brown's Schooldays pt. 1, ch. 2 (1857)
See Proverbs 170

Victor Hugo

French writer, 1802–1885

See Benjamin Franklin 25
- 7 The first symptom of true love in a young man is timidity; in a young woman, it is boldness.
Les Misérables vol. 4, bk. 3, ch. 6 (1862)
- 8 On résiste à l'invasion des armées; on ne résiste pas à l'invasion des idées.
One can resist the invasion of armies; one cannot resist the invasion of ideas.
Histoire d'un Crime (1877). Frequently paraphrased as "nothing is so powerful as an idea whose time has come." In the Atlanta Constitution, 8 June 1919, Hugo is quoted: "There is one thing stronger than armies, and that is an idea whose time has come."
- 9 Jesus wept; Voltaire smiled. From that divine tear and from that human smile is derived the grace of present civilization.
"Centenaire de Voltaire" (1878)
- David Hume
Scottish philosopher, 1711–1776
- 1 Generally speaking, the errors in religion are dangerous; those in philosophy only ridiculous.
A Treatise upon Human Nature bk. 1 (1739)
- 2 We speak not strictly and philosophically when we talk of the combat of passion and of reason.
Reason is, and ought only to be the slave of the passions, and can never pretend to any other office than to serve and obey them.
A Treatise upon Human Nature bk. 2 (1739)
- 3 It is not contrary to reason to prefer the destruction of the whole world to the scratching of my finger.
A Treatise upon Human Nature bk. 2 (1739)
- 4 Of all the animals with which this globe is peopled, there is none towards whom nature seems, at first sight, to have exercis'd more cruelty than towards man, in the numberless wants and necessities, with which she has loaded him, and in the slender means, which she affords to the relieving these necessities.
A Treatise upon Human Nature bk. 3 (1739)
- 5 In contriving any system of government, and fixing the several checks and controuls of the constitution, every man ought to be supposed a knave, and to have no other end, in all his actions, than private interest.
"Of the Independency of Parliament" (1741)
- 6 Money . . . is none of the wheels of trade: it is the oil which renders the motion of the wheels more smooth and easy.
Essays: Moral and Political "Of Money" (1741–1742)
- 7 No testimony is sufficient to establish a miracle, unless the testimony be of such a kind that its falsehood would be more miraculous than the fact which it endeavors to establish.
An Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding "Of Miracles" (1748)
- 8 The Christian religion not only was at first attended with miracles, but even at this day cannot be believed by any reasonable person without one. Mere reason is insufficient to convince us of its veracity: and whoever is moved by faith to assent to it, is conscious of a continued miracle in his own person, which subverts all the principles of his understanding, and gives him a determination to believe what is most contrary to custom and experience.
An Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding "Of Miracles" (1748)
- 9 Custom, then, is the great guide of human life.
An Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding sec. 5, pt. 1 (1748)
- 10 If we take in our hand any volume; of divinity or school metaphysics, for instance; let us ask,
Does it contain any abstract reasoning concerning quantity or number? No. Does it contain any experimental reasoning, concerning matter of fact and existence? No. Commit it then to the flames:

for it can contain nothing but sophistry and illusion.

An Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding sec. 12, pt. 3 (1748)

- 11 Bear-baiting was esteemed heathenish and unchristian: the sport of it, not the inhumanity, gave offence.

Hubert H. Humphrey

U.S. politician, 1911–1978

- 1 There are not enough jails, not enough policemen, not enough courts to enforce a law not supported by the people.

Speech, Williamsburg, Va., 1 May 1965

- 2 Here we are the way politics ought to be in America, the politics of happiness, the politics of purpose, and the politics of joy.

Speech, Washington, D.C., 27 Apr. 1968

- 3 It was once said that the moral test of government is how that government treats those who are in the dawn of life, the children; those who are in the twilight of life, the elderly; and those who are in the shadows of life, the sick, the needy, and the handicapped.

G. W. Hunt

English songwriter, ca. 1829–1904

- 1 We don't want to fight, but, by jingo if we do, We've got the ships, we've got the men, we've got the money too.

"We Don't Want to Fight" (song) (1878). Inspired the political usage of jingo and jingoism to refer to bellicose nationalism. The Oxford English Dictionary traces the expression by jingo as far back as Motteux' translation of Rabelais (1694).

Leigh Hunt

English poet and essayist, 1784–1859

- 1 [Of Prince George:] This Adonis in loveliness was a corpulent man of fifty.

The Examiner, 22 Mar. 1812

- 2 About Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase!)
"About Ben Adhem" l. 1 (1838)

- 3 Write me as one that loves his fellow-men.
"About Ben Adhem" l. 14 (1838)

- 4 And showed the names whom love of God had blessed,

And lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest!

"About Ben Adhem" l. 17 (1838)

- 5 Jenny kissed me when we met,
Jumping from the chair she sat in;
Time, you thief, who love to get Sweets into your list, put that in:
Say I'm weary, say I'm sad,
Say that health and wealth have missed me,
Say I'm growing old, but add,
Jenny kissed me.
"Rondeau" l. 1 (1838)

Evan Hunter (Salvatore Lombino)

U.S. novelist, 1926–2005

- 1 The Blackboard Jungle.

Title of book (1954)

Robert Hunter (Robert Burns)

U.S. rock musician and songwriter, 1941–2019

- 1 Sometimes the light's all shining on me

Other times I can barely see

Lately it occurs to me

What a long, strange trip it's been.

"Truckin'" (song) (1970)

- 2 Driving that train, high on cocaine
Casey Jones you'd better watch your speed.

Trouble ahead

Trouble behind

And you know that notion

Just crossed my mind.

"Casey Jones" (song) (1971)

Collis P. Huntington

U.S. businessman, 1821–1900

- 1 Whatever is not nailed down is mine. Whatever I can pry loose is not nailed down.

Attributed in H. L. Mencken, A New Dictionary of Quotations (1942). The attribution to Huntington has been shown by Garson O'Toole to be a confused interpretation of a statement that seems to have originated with David Starr Jordan, The Call of the Nation (1910): "Whatever is not nailed down is mine. . . . Whatever can be pried loose is not nailed down."

Herman Hupfeld

U.S. songwriter, 1894–1951

- 1 You must remember this,
A kiss is still a kiss,
A sigh is just a sigh;
The fundamental things apply,
As time goes by.
“As Time Goes By” (song) (1931)
- 2 And when two lovers woo
They still say, “I love you,”
On that you can rely.
“As Time Goes By” (song) (1931)

Fannie Hurst

U.S. novelist, 1885–1968

- 1 A woman has to be twice as good as a man to go half as far.
Quoted in Reader's Digest, Oct. 1958. A later satirical version of this saying added to the end “Luckily, this is not difficult” (Paul Dickson, The Official Rules [1978]).
See Eleanor Roosevelt 2

Zora Neale Hurston

U.S. novelist and folklorist, 1891–1960

- 1 I do not weep at the world—I am too busy sharpening my oyster knife.
World Tomorrow “How It Feels to Be Colored Me” (1928)
- 2 Ships at a distance have every man's wish on board. For some they come in with the tide. For others they sail forever on the same horizon, never out of sight, never landing until the Watcher turns his eyes away in resignation, his dreams mocked to death by Time. That is the life of men.
Their Eyes Were Watching God ch. 1 (1937)
- 3 Now, women forget all those things they don't want to remember, and remember everything they don't want to forget. The dream is the truth. Then they act and do things accordingly.
Their Eyes Were Watching God ch. 1 (1937)
- 4 De nigger woman is de mule uh de world so fur as Ah can see.
Their Eyes Were Watching God ch. 2 (1937)
- 5 The wind came back with triple fury, and put out the light for the last time. They sat in company with the others in other shanties, their eyes straining against crude walls and their souls asking if He meant to measure their puny might against His. They seemed to be staring at the dark, but their eyes were watching God.

Their Eyes Were Watching God ch. 18 (1937)

- 6 I have been in Sorrow's kitchen and licked out all the pots. Then I have stood on the peaky mountain wrapped in rainbows, with a harp and a sword in my hands.
Dust Tracks on a Road ch. 16 (1942)

Jan Hus

Bohemian religious reformer, ca. 1372–1415

- 1 O sancta simplicitas!
O holy simplicity!
Quoted in Julius W. Zingreff, Apophthegmata (1653). Hus's “last words,” uttered upon seeing an elderly peasant adding twigs to the pile at Hus's burning at the stake.
See St. Jerome 1

Saddam Hussein

Iraqi president, 1937–2006

- 1 What midgets they are! May they, most of all Bush and his servants Fahd and Husni, be accursed. . . . Everybody must realize that this battle will be the mother of all battles.
Broadcast statement, 20 Sept. 1990
- 2 I am Saddam Hussein, the president of Iraq.
Statement at arraignment, Baghdad, 1 July 2004. Hussein said almost the identical words when he was captured by U.S. troops near Tikrit, Iraq, 13 Dec. 2003. At the arraignment the judge instructed the clerk to write “former” in brackets before “president” in transcribing Hussein's statement.
- 3 [Remark to U.S. Ambassador April Glaspie, Baghdad, 25 July 1990:] Yours is a society that cannot accept 10,000 dead in one battle.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 13 Sept. 1990

Francis Hutcheson

Scottish philosopher, 1694–1746

- 1 That Action is best, which accomplishes the greatest Happiness for the greatest Numbers.

Robert M. Hutchins

U.S. educator, 1899–1977

- 1 The law may . . . depend on what the judge has had for breakfast.
“The Autobiography of an Ex-Law Student,” American Law School Review, Apr. 1934
- 2 The death of democracy is not likely to be an assassination from ambush. It will be a slow extinction from apathy, indifference, and undernourishment.
Great Books of the Western World vol. 1, ch. 10 (1952)

Gennifer Hutchison

U.S. screenwriter, 1977–

- 1 I am not in danger, Skyler. I am the danger! A guy opens his door and gets shot and you think that of me? No. I am the one who knocks!
Breaking Bad (television show), 21 Aug. 2011

Aldous Huxley

English novelist, 1894–1963

- 1 Facts do not cease to exist because they are ignored.
Proper Studies “A Note on Dogma” (1927)
- 2 “If you look up ‘Intelligence’ in the new volumes of the Encyclopaedia Britannica,” he had said, “you’ll find it classified under the following three heads: Intelligence, Human; Intelligence, Animal; Intelligence, Military. My stepfather’s a present specimen of Intelligence, Military.”
Point Counter Point ch. 7 (1928)
- 3 How do you know that the earth isn’t some other planet’s hell?
Point Counter Point ch. 17 (1928)
- 4 The end cannot justify the means, for the simple and obvious reason that the means employed determine the nature of the ends produced.
Ends and Means ch. 1 (1937)
See Proverbs 85
- 5 [Describing a mescaline-induced experience:] I looked down by chance, and went on passionately staring by choice, at my own crossed legs. Those folds in the trousers—what a labyrinth of endlessly significant complexity!

And the texture of the gray flannel—how rich, how deeply, mysteriously sumptuous!

The Doors of Perception (1954)

- 6 If we evolved a race of Isaac Newtons, that would not be progress. For the price Newton had to pay for being a supreme intellect was that he was incapable of friendship, love, fatherhood, and many other desirable things. As a man he was a failure; as a monster he was superb.
Quoted in J. W. N. Sullivan, Contemporary Mind (1934)

Thomas Henry Huxley

English biologist, 1825–1895

- 1 Science is, I believe, nothing but trained and organised common sense, differing from the latter only as a veteran may differ from a raw recruit: and its methods differ from those of common sense only so far as the guardsman’s cut and thrust differ from the manner in which a savage wields his club.
“On the Educational Value of the Natural History Sciences” (1854)
- 2 Truly it has been said, that to a clear eye the smallest fact is a window through which the Infinite may be seen.
“The Study of Zoology” (1861)
- 3 The great tragedy of Science—the slaying of a beautiful hypothesis by an ugly fact.
“Biogenesis and Abiogenesis” (1870)
- 4 A man’s worst difficulties begin when he is able to do as he likes.
“Address on University Education” (1876)
See Goethe 15; Modern Proverbs 14; George Bernard Shaw 16; Teresa of Ávila 2; Wilde 56; Wilde 74
- 5 The great end of life is not knowledge but action.
“Technical Education” (1877)
- 6 History warns us, however, that it is the customary fate of new truths to begin as heresies and to end as superstitions.
“The Coming of Age of ‘The Origin of Species’” (1880)
- 7 My reflection, when I first made myself master of the central idea of the “Origin” [Charles Darwin’s Origin of Species], was,

“How extremely stupid not to have thought of that!”

“On the Reception of the ‘Origin of Species’” (1888)

8 [Replying to Bishop Samuel Wilberforce in their debate on Charles Darwin’s theory of evolution, Oxford, England, 30 June 1860:] A man has no reason to be ashamed of having an ape for his grandfather. If there were an ancestor whom I should feel shame in recalling it would rather be a man—a man of restless and versatile intellect—who, not content with an equivocal success in his own sphere of activity, plunges into scientific questions with which he has no real acquaintance, only to obscure them with an aimless rhetoric, and distract the attention of his hearers from the real point at issue by eloquent digressions and skilled appeals to religious prejudice.

Quoted in Leonard Huxley, Life and Letters of Thomas Henry Huxley (1900)

9 I have always been Darwin’s bulldog.

Quoted in Henry Fairfield Osborn, Impressions of Great Naturalists (1924)

Joris-Karl Huysmans (Georges-Charles Huysmans)

French writer, 1848–1907

Lee Iacocca

U.S. business executive, 1924–2019

- 1 People want economy, and they will pay any price to get it.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 13 Oct. 1974

Janis Ian

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1951–

- 1 One of these days I'm gonna stop my listening Gonna raise my head up high.
One of these days I'm gonna raise up my glistening wings and fly.
But that day will have to wait for a while.
Baby I'm only society's child.
When we're older things may change,
But for now this is the way they must remain.
"Society's Child" (song) (1967)
- 2 To those of us who knew the pain
Of valentines that never came
And those whose names were never called
When choosing sides for basketball
It was long ago and far away
The world was younger than today
When dreams were all they gave for free
To ugly duckling girls like me.
"At Seventeen" (song) (1975)

Dolores Ibarruri (La Pasionaria)

Spanish Communist leader, 1895–1989

- 1 It is better to die on your feet than to live on your knees!
Radio broadcast, 18 July 1936. It is often claimed that Emiliano Zapata used this expression earlier in the century, but documentation for Zapata's usage is lacking. "Better to die on your feet than live on your knees" is mentioned as a Mexican aphorism in the Appleton (Wis.) Post Crescent, 4 June 1925. An article by Roberto Habermann in Survey, 1 May 1924, stated: "The day he [Zapata, assassinated in 1919] was murdered, and the news of it reached Cuernavaca, a barefooted peon scratched with his penknife in crude letters on one of the posts of the Boarda Garden, the old Maximilian palace, the following: 'Rebels of the South, it is more honorable to die on your feet than to live on your knees.'"

Brand act 3 (1866)
- 2 Being a prophet is a horrible business!
Peer Gynt act 4 (1867)
- 3 Turn to the Jewish nation, the nobility of the human race. How has it preserved itself— isolated, poetical—despite all the barbarity from without? Because it had no state to burden it. Had the Jewish nation remained in Palestine, it would long since have been ruined in the process of construction, like all the other nations.
Letter to George Brandes, 17 Feb. 1871
- 4 And you call yourselves pillars of society!
Pillars of Society act 3 (1877)
- 5 Our house has never been anything but a play-room. I have been your doll wife, just as at home I was Daddy's doll child. And the children in turn have been my dolls. I thought it was fun when you came and played with me, just as they thought it was fun when I went and played with them. That's been our marriage, Torvald.

A Doll's House act 3 (1879)

6 If I'm ever to reach any understanding of myself and the things around me, I must learn to stand alone. That's why I can't stay here with you any longer.

A Doll's House act 3 (1879)

7 I have another duty equally sacred. . . . My duty to myself.

A Doll's House act 3 (1879)

8 [Helmer.:] First and foremost, you are a wife and mother.

[Nora.:] That I don't believe any more. I believe that first and foremost I am an individual.

A Doll's House act 3 (1879)

9 I'm inclined to think that we are all ghosts, Pastor Manders, every one of us. It's not just what we inherit from our mothers and fathers that haunts us. It's all kinds of old defunct theories, all sorts of old defunct beliefs, and things like that.

Ghosts act 2 (1881)

10 I've only to pick up a newspaper and I seem to see ghosts gliding between the lines. Over the whole country there must be ghosts, as numerous as the sands of the sea. And here we are, all of us, abysmally afraid of the light.

Ghosts act 2 (1881)

11 Mother, give me the sun.

Ghosts act 3 (1881)

12 This meeting declares that it considers Dr. Thomas Stockmann, Medical Officer to the Baths, to be an enemy of the people.

An Enemy of the People act 4 (1882)

13 The worst enemy of truth and freedom in our society is the compact majority.

An Enemy of the People act 4 (1882)

14 The majority is never right.

An Enemy of the People act 4 (1882)

See Heinlein 14; Roscommon 1; Twain 119

15 Who are the people that make up the biggest proportion of the population—the intelligent ones or the fools? I think we can agree it's the fools, no matter where you go in this world, it's the fools that form the overwhelming majority. But I'll be damned if that means it's right that the fools should dominate the intelligent.

An Enemy of the People act 4 (1882)

16 The minority is always right.

An Enemy of the People act 4 (1882)

See Debs 1; Sydney Smith 6

17 The life of a normally constituted truth is generally, say, about seventeen or eighteen years, at most twenty; rarely longer. But truths as elderly as that have always worn terribly thin. But it's only then that the majority will have anything to do with them; then it will recommend them as wholesome food for thought. But there's no great food-value in that sort of diet.

An Enemy of the People act 4 (1882)

18 I love this town so much that I'd rather destroy it than see it prosper on a lie.

An Enemy of the People act 4 (1882)

19 You should never have your best trousers on when you turn out to fight for freedom and truth.

Really—one has to ask oneself—what dignity is there in that?

The Remains of the Day (1989)

4 Perhaps it is indeed time I began to look at this whole matter of bantering more enthusiastically. After all, when one thinks about it, it is not such a foolish thing to indulge in—particularly if it is the case that in bantering lies the key to human warmth.

Kobayashi Issa

Japanese poet, 1763–1827

1 Look, don't kill that fly!
It is making a prayer to you
By rubbing its hands and feet.
Poem

Molly Ivins

U.S. journalist, 1944–2007

1 Many people did not care for Pat Buchanan's speech; it probably sounded better in the original German.

Nation, 14 Sept. 1992

2 There are two kinds of humor. One kind that makes us chuckle about our foibles and our shared humanity—like what Garrison Keillor does. The other kind holds people up to public contempt and ridicule—that's what I do.

Andrew Jackson

U.S. president and general, 1767–1845

- 1 Our Union: It must be preserved.
Toast at Jefferson Day dinner, 13 Apr. 1830. Jackson altered the wording to “Our Federal Union” before it was given to the newspapers, and it is often reported thus.
- 2 Every man is equally entitled to protection by law. But when the laws undertake to add . . . artificial distinctions, to grant titles, gratuities, and exclusive privileges—to make the rich richer and the potent more powerful—the humble members of society—the farmers, mechanics, and laborers, who have neither the time nor the means of securing like favors to themselves, have a right to complain of the injustice of their government.
Veto Message on Bank Bill, 10 July 1832
- 3 There are no necessary evils in government. Its evils exist only in its abuses. If it would confine itself to equal protection, and, as Heaven does its rains, shower its favors alike on the high and the low, the rich and the poor, it would be an unqualified blessing.
Veto Message on Bank Bill, 10 July 1832
- 4 The wisdom of man never yet contrived a system of taxation that would operate with perfect equality.
Proclamation, 10 Dec. 1832
- 5 Eternal vigilance by the people is the price of liberty.
Farewell Address, 4 Mar. 1837
See Curran 1

- 6 John Marshall has made his decision: now let him enforce it!

Attributed in Horace Greeley, The American Conflict (1864). This response to the U.S. Supreme Court decision in Worcester v. Georgia (1832) was first attributed to Jackson in the 1864 Greeley book. While the remark does represent Jackson's views, he probably never spoke these actual words.

- 7 One man with courage makes a majority.

Attributed in Wash. Post, 7 Feb. 1964. Although this saying is strongly associated with Jackson, the earliest discoverable occurrence, in the form “Desperate courage makes one a majority,” is in the Atlantic Monthly, Nov. 1858, without attribution to any individual.

Charles Jackson

U.S. novelist, 1903–1968

- 1 The Lost Weekend.
Title of book (1944)

George Jackson

U.S. activist and author, 1941–1971

- 1 Being born a slave in a captive society and never experiencing any objective basis for expectation had the effect of preparing me for the progressively traumatic misfortunes that led to so many blackmen to the prison gate. I was prepared for prison. It required only minor psychic adjustments.
Soledad Brother (1970)
- 2 Patience has its limits. Take it too far, and it's cowardice.
Soledad Brother (1970)

Glenda Jackson

English actress and politician, 1936–

- 1 The important thing in acting is to be able to laugh and cry. If I have to cry, I think of my sex life. If I have to laugh, I think of my sex life.
Quoted in Robert Byrne, The 637 Best Things Anybody Ever Said (1982)

Jesse Jackson

U.S. politician, 1941–

- 1 Our flag is red, white, and blue, but our nation is a rainbow—red, yellow, brown, black, and white—and all are precious in God's sight. America is not like a blanket—one piece of unbroken cloth, the same color, the same texture, the same size. It is more like a quilt—many patches, many pieces, many colors, and many sizes, all woven and held together by a common thread.

- 2 I hear that melting-pot stuff a lot, and all I can say is that we haven't melted.

Quoted in Playboy, Nov. 1969

- 3 When we're unemployed we're called lazy; when the whites are unemployed, it's called a depression.

Quoted in David Frost, The Americans (1970)

Mahalia Jackson

U.S. gospel singer, 1911–1972

- 1 [Exhortation to Martin Luther King, Jr., inspiring King to deliver his "I Have a Dream" speech at the March on Washington, 28 Aug. 1963:] Tell them about your dream, Martin. Tell them about the dream.

Quoted in Boston Globe, 27 Aug. 1983

Michael Jackson

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1958–2009

- 1 We are the world,
We are the children.
"We Are the World" (song) (1985). Cowritten with Lionel Richie.
- 2 Before you judge me, try hard to love me, look within your heart
Then ask,—have you seen my childhood?
"Childhood" (song) (1995)
- 3 [Defending his practice of sharing his bed with young boys:] Why can't you share your bed? The most loving thing to do is to share your bed with someone.
Broadcast interview on ITV network, 3 Feb. 2003
- 4 [Upon being asked in court testimony whether he had memory lapses:] Not that I recall.
Quoted in The Sun, 5 Dec. 2002

Reggie Jackson

U.S. baseball player, 1946–

- 1 If I played in New York, they'd name a candy bar after me.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 15 Apr. 1976
- 2 [Of Tom Seaver:] He's so good that blind people come to the park just to hear him pitch.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 1 Jan. 1978
- 3 You know, this team . . . it all flows from me.
. . . I'm the straw that stirs the drink.
Attributed in Sport, June 1977. Jackson denied having said this.

Robert H. Jackson

U.S. judge and government official, 1892–1954

- 1 The very purpose of a Bill of Rights was to withdraw certain subjects from the vicissitudes of political controversy, to place them beyond the reach of majorities and officials and to establish them as legal principles to be applied by the courts. One's right to life, liberty, and property, to free speech, a free press, freedom of worship and assembly, and other fundamental rights may be submitted to no vote; they depend on the outcome of no elections.
West Virginia State Bd. of Educ. v. Barnette (1943)
- 2 Those who begin coercive elimination of dissent soon find themselves exterminating dissenters. Compulsory unification of opinion achieves only the unanimity of the graveyard.
West Virginia State Bd. of Educ. v. Barnette (1943)
- 3 The case is made difficult, not because the principles of its decision are obscure, but because the flag involved is our own. . . . To believe that patriotism will not flourish if patriotic ceremonies are voluntary and spontaneous instead of a compulsory routine is to make an unflattering estimate of the appeal of our institutions to free minds.
West Virginia State Bd. of Educ. v. Barnette (1943)
- 4 But freedom to differ is not limited to things that do not matter much. That would be a mere shadow of freedom. The test of its substance is the right to differ as to things that touch the heart of the existing order. If there is any

- fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion, or other matters of opinion or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein.
West Virginia State Bd. of Educ. v. Barnette (1943)
- 5 The privilege of opening the first trial in history for crimes against the peace of the world imposes a grave responsibility. The wrongs which we seek to condemn and punish have been so calculated, so malignant and so devastating, that civilization cannot tolerate their being ignored, because it cannot survive their being repeated. That four great nations, flushed with victory and stung with injury, stay the hands of vengeance and voluntarily submit their captive enemies to the judgment of the law is one of the most significant tributes that Power ever has paid to Reason.
Opening statement for the prosecution before International Military Tribunal, Nuremberg, Germany, 21 Nov. 1945
- 6 We must never forget that the record on which we judge these defendants today is the record on which history will judge us tomorrow. To pass these defendants a poisoned chalice is to put it to our own lips as well. We must summon such detachment and intellectual integrity to our task that this trial will commend itself to posterity as fulfilling humanity's aspirations to do justice.
Opening statement for the prosecution before International Military Tribunal, Nuremberg, Germany, 21 Nov. 1945
- 7 If you were to say of these men that they are not guilty, it would be as true to say there has been no war, there are no slain, there has been no crime.
Concluding speech for the prosecution before International Military Tribunal, Nuremberg, Germany, 26 July 1946
- 8 The choice is not between order and liberty. It is between liberty with order and anarchy without either. There is danger that, if the Court does not temper its doctrinaire logic with a little practical wisdom, it will convert the constitutional Bill of Rights into a suicide pact.
Terminiello v. Chicago (dissenting opinion) (1949)
- 9 The priceless heritage of our society is the unrestricted constitutional right of each member to think as he will. Thought control is a copyright of totalitarianism, and we have no claim to it. It is not the function of our Government to keep the citizen from falling into error; it is the function of the citizen to keep the Government from falling into error.
American Communications Ass'n v. Douds (1950) (concurring in part and dissenting in part)
- 10 I used to say that, as Solicitor General, I made three arguments of every case. First came the one that I planned—as I thought, logical, coherent, complete. Second was the one actually presented—interrupted, incoherent, disjointed, disappointing. The third was the utterly devastating argument that I thought of after going to bed that night.
Lecture before State Bar of California, San Francisco, Calif., 23 Aug. 1951
- 11 The day that this country ceases to be free for irreligion it will cease to be free for religion—except for the sect that can win political power.
Zorach v. Clauson (dissenting opinion) (1952)
- 12 There is no doubt that if there were a super-Supreme Court, a substantial proportion of our reversals of state courts would also be reversed. We are not final because we are infallible, but we are infallible only because we are final.
Brown v. Allen (concurring opinion) (1953)
- 13 Procedural fairness and regularity are of the indispensable essence of liberty. Severe substantive laws can be endured if they are fairly and impartially applied. Indeed, if put to the choice, one might well prefer to live under Soviet substantive law applied in good faith by our common-law procedures than under our substantive law enforced by Soviet procedural practices.
Shaughnessy v. United States (dissenting opinion) (1953)
- Shirley Jackson
U.S. writer, 1916–1965
- 1 “It isn’t fair, it isn’t right,” Mrs. Hutchinson screamed, and then they were upon her.
“The Lottery” (1948)

2 No live organism can continue for long to exist sanely under conditions of absolute reality; even larks and katydids are supposed, by some, to dream. Hill House, not sane, stood by itself against its hills, holding darkness within; it had stood so for eighty years and might stand for eighty more. Within, walls continued upright, bricks met neatly, floors were firm, and doors were sensibly shut; silence lay steadily against the wood and stone of Hill House, and whatever walked there, walked alone.

The Haunting of Hill House ch. 1 (1959)

Thomas J. “Stonewall” Jackson

U.S. Confederate general, 1824–1863

1 [“Last words”:] Let us cross the river and rest under the shade of the trees.

Quoted in Macon (Ga.) Telegraph, 25 May 1863

Harriet Jacobs

U.S. writer and abolitionist, 1813–1897

1 Reader, be assured this narrative is no fiction.

Incidents in the Life of a Slave Girl preface (1860)

Jane Jacobs

U.S.-born Canadian social and architectural critic, 1916–2006

1 But look what we have built. . . . This is not the rebuilding of cities. This is the sacking of cities.

The Death and Life of Great American Cities introduction (1961)

2 There must be eyes upon the street, eyes belonging to those we might call the natural proprietors of the street. The buildings on a street equipped to handle strangers and to insure the safety of both residents and strangers, must be oriented to the street. They cannot turn their backs or blank sides on it and leave it blind.

The Death and Life of Great American Cities ch. 2 (1961)

Joe Jacobs

U.S. boxing manager, 1896–1940

1 We wuz robbed!

Quoted in Wash. Post, 19 Sept. 1934. Spoken after heavyweight champion Max Schmeling, whom Jacobs managed, was defeated by Jack Sharkey, 21 June 1932.

2 I should have stood in bed.

Quoted in Reno Evening Gazette, 30 Dec. 1935. Referring to a game he attended during the 1935 World Series.

Mick Jagger

English rock musician and songwriter, 1943–

1 [Response, at press conference in New York, 26 Nov. 1969, to being asked whether the Rolling Stones were more “satisfied” now:] Financially dissatisfied, sexually satisfied, philosophically trying.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 28 Nov. 1969

2 I’d rather be dead than sing “Satisfaction” when I’m 45.

Quoted in People, 9 June 1975

Mick Jagger 1943– and Keith Richards 1943–

English rock musicians and songwriters

1 Time is on my side, yes it is.

“Time Is on My Side” (song) (1964)

2 I can’t get no satisfaction.

“I Can’t Get No Satisfaction” (song) (1965)

3 When I’m watchin’ my TV

And that man comes on to tell me

How white my shirts can be

But he can’t be a man ‘cause he doesn’t smoke
The same cigarettes as me.

“I Can’t Get No Satisfaction” (song) (1965)

4 And though she’s not really ill

There’s a little yellow pill

She goes running for the shelter of a mother’s little helper

And it helps her on her way, gets her through her busy day.

“Mother’s Little Helper” (song) (1966)

5 Doctor please, some more of these

Outside the door, she took four more

What a drag it is getting old.

“Mother’s Little Helper” (song) (1966)

6 Goodbye, Ruby Tuesday

Who could hang a name on you

When you change with every new day?

Still I’m gonna miss you.

“Ruby Tuesday” (song) (1967)

- 7 When I search a faceless crowd
A swirling mass of gray and black and white
They don't look real to me
In fact, they look so strange.
"Salt of the Earth" (song) (1968)
- 8 But what can a poor boy do
Except to sing for a rock & roll band?
Cause in sleepy London town there's just no place for Street fighting man.
"Street Fighting Man" (song) (1968)
- 9 Please allow me to introduce myself
I'm a man of wealth and taste
I've been around for a long, long year
Stole many a man's soul and faith.
"Sympathy for the Devil" (song) (1968)
- 10 Pleased to meet you, hope you guess my name
But what's puzzling you is the nature of my game.
"Sympathy for the Devil" (song) (1968)
- 11 I shouted out, "Who killed the Kennedys?"
When after all it was you and me.
"Sympathy for the Devil" (song) (1968)
- 12 Just as every cop is a criminal and all the sinners saints.
"Sympathy for the Devil" (song) (1968)
- 13 Oh, a storm is threatening my very life today
If I don't get some shelter, oh yeah, I'm going to fade away
War, children, it's just a shot away.
"Gimme Shelter" (song) (1969)
- 14 I met a gin-soaked, bar-room queen in Memphis,
She tried to take me upstairs for a ride.
She had to heave me right across her shoulder
'Cause I just can't seem to drink you off my mind.
"Honky Tonk Woman" (song) (1969)
- 15 You can't always get what you want
But if you try sometime you just might find
You get what you need.
"You Can't Always Get What You Want" (song) (1969)
- 16 No sweeping exits or offstage lines
Could make me feel bitter or treat you unkind . . .
Wild horses couldn't drag me away.
"Wild Horses" (song) (1971)

- 17 It's Only Rock and Roll.
Title of song (1974)

Evan James

Welsh songwriter, 1809–1878

- 1 O land of my fathers, O land of my love.
"Land of My Fathers" (song) (1856)

Henry James

U.S. novelist, 1843–1916

- 1 To write well and worthily of American things one need even more than elsewhere to be a master.
Letter to Charles Eliot Norton, 16 Jan. 1871
- 2 The curious thing is that the more the mind takes in, the more it has space for, and that all one's ideas are like the Irish people at home who live in the different corners of a room, and take boarders.
Roderick Hudson ch. 3 (1876)
- 3 We stand like a race with shrunken muscles, staring helplessly at the weights our forefathers easily lifted.
Roderick Hudson ch. 3 (1876)
- 4 It takes a great deal of history to produce a little literature.
Hawthorne ch. 1 (1879)
- 5 [Of Henry David Thoreau:] He was worse than provincial—he was parochial.
Hawthorne ch. 4 (1879)
- 6 Cats and monkeys—monkeys and cats—all human life is there!
The Madonna of the Future vol. 1 (1879)
- 7 The only reason for the existence of a novel is that it does compete with life.
"The Art of Fiction" (1884)
- 8 The only obligation to which in advance we may hold a novel without incurring the accusation of being arbitrary, is that it be interesting.
"The Art of Fiction" (1884)
- 9 Experience is never limited and it is never complete; it is an immense sensibility, a kind of huge spider-web, of the finest silken threads, suspended in the chamber of consciousness and catching every air-borne particle in its tissue.
"The Art of Fiction" (1884)

- 10 If I should certainly say to a novice, “Write from experience, and experience only,” I should feel that this was a rather tantalising monition if I were not careful immediately to add, “Try to be one of the people on whom nothing is lost!” “The Art of Fiction” (1884)
- 11 What is character but the determination of incident? What is incident but the illustration of character?
“The Art of Fiction” (1884)
- 12 We work in the dark—we do what we can—we give what we have. Our doubt is our passion and our passion is our task. The rest is the madness of art.
“The Middle Years” (1893)
- 13 The time-honored bread-sauce of the happy ending.
Theatricals: 2nd Series “Note” (1895)
- 14 Vereker’s secret, my dear man—the general intention of his books: the string the pearls were strung on, the buried treasure, the figure in the carpet.
The Figure in the Carpet ch. 11 (1896)
- 15 We were alone with the quiet day, and his little heart, dispossessed, had stopped.
The Turn of the Screw ch. 24 (1898)
- 16 She couldn’t dress it away, nor walk it away, nor read it away, nor think it away; she could neither smile it away in any dreamy absence nor blow it away in any softened sigh. She couldn’t have lost it if she had tried—that was what it was to be really rich. It had to be the thing you were.
The Wings of the Dove ch. 5 (1902)
- 17 Live all you can; it’s a mistake not to. It doesn’t so much matter what you do in particular, so long as you have your life. If you haven’t had that, what have you had?
The Ambassadors bk. 5, ch. 11 (1903)
- 18 The house of fiction has in short not one window, but a million . . . They are, singly or together, as nothing without the posted presence of the watcher.
The Portrait of a Lady preface (1908)
- 19 In art economy is always beauty.
The Altar of the Dead preface (1909)
- 20 The terrible fluidity of self-revelation.
The Ambassadors preface (1909)
- 21 The historian, essentially, wants more documents than he can really use; the dramatist only wants more liberties than he can really take.
The Aspern Papers preface (1909)
- 22 Life being all inclusion and confusion, and art being all discrimination and selection, the latter, in search of the hard latent value with which it alone is concerned, sniffs round the mass as instinctively and unerringly as a dog suspicious of some buried bone.
The Spoils of Poynton preface (1909)
- 23 The fatal futility of Fact.
The Spoils of Poynton preface (1909)
- 24 We must know, as much as possible, in our beautiful art . . . what we are talking about—and the only way to know it is to have lived & loved & cursed & floundered & enjoyed & suffered—I think I don’t regret a single “excess” of my responsive youth—I only regret, in my chilled age, certain occasions & possibilities I didn’t embrace.
Letter to Hugh Walpole, 21 Aug. 1913
- 25 The black and merciless things that are behind the great possessions.
The Ivory Tower notes (1917)
- 26 The war has used up words.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 21 Mar. 1915
- 27 [On experiencing his initial stroke:] So here it is at last, the distinguished thing!
Quoted in Edith Wharton, A Backward Glance (1934)
- 28 Summer afternoon—summer afternoon; to me those have always been the two most beautiful words in the English language.
Quoted in Edith Wharton, A Backward Glance (1934)

LeBron James

U.S. basketball player, 1984–

- 1 [Announcing his decision to leave the Cleveland Cavaliers team for the Miami Heat:] I’m taking my talents to South Beach.
ESPN TV broadcast, 8 July 2010

P. D. James

English detective fiction writer, 1920–2014

- 1 Early this morning, 1 January 2021, three minutes after midnight, the last human being to be born on earth was killed in a pub brawl in a suburb of Buenos Aires, aged twenty-five years two months and twelve days.
The Children of Men bk. 1, ch. 1 (1992)
- 2 What the detective story is about is not murder but the restoration of order.
Quoted in Face, Dec. 1986
- 3 I had an interest in death from an early age. It fascinated me. When I heard, “Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall,” I thought, “Did he fall or was he pushed?”
Quoted in Paris Review no. 135 (1995)

William James

U.S. philosopher and psychologist, 1842–1910

- 1 My first act of free will shall be to believe in free will.
Diary, 30 Apr. 1870
  - 2 The best way to define a man’s character would be to seek out the particular mental or moral attitude in which, when it came upon him, he felt himself most deeply and intensely active and alive. At such moments there is a voice inside which speaks and says: “This is the real me!”
Letter to Alice Gibbons James, 1878
  - 3 All our scientific and philosophic ideals are altars to unknown gods.
“The Dilemma of Determinism” (1884)
  - 4 Habit is thus the enormous fly-wheel of society, its most precious conservative agent. It alone is what keeps us all within the bounds of ordinance.
The Principles of Psychology vol. 1, ch. 4 (1890)
  - 5 Consciousness, then, does not appear to itself chopped up in bits. Such words as “chain” or “train” do not describe it fitly as it presents itself in the first instance. It is nothing jointed; it flows. A “river” or a “stream” are the metaphors by which it is most naturally described. In talking of it hereafter, let us call
- it the stream of thought, of consciousness, or of subjective life.*
The Principles of Psychology vol. 1, ch. 9 (1890). James had earlier written about the “stream of our consciousness” in “On Some Omissions of Introspective Psychology,” Mind, Jan. 1884. The term stream of consciousness is documented by the Oxford English Dictionary still earlier, in Alexander Bain, The Senses and the Intellect (1855).
  - 6 In its widest possible sense . . . a man’s Self is the sum total of all that he can call his, not only his body and his psychic powers, but his clothes and his house, his wife and children, his ancestors and friends, his reputation and works, his lands and horses, and yacht and bank-account. All these things give him the same emotions. If they wax and prosper, he feels triumphant; if they dwindle and die away, he feels cast down.
The Principles of Psychology vol. 1, ch. 10 (1890)
  - 7 Some people are far more sensitive to resemblances, and far more ready to point out wherein they consist, than others are. They are the wits, the poets, the inventors, the scientific men, the practical geniuses.
The Principles of Psychology vol. 1, ch. 13 (1890)
  - 8 Objective evidence and certitude are doubtless very fine ideals to play with, but where on this moonlit and dream-visited planet are they found?
“The Will to Believe” (1896)
  - 9 Although all the special manifestations of religion may have been absurd (I mean its creeds and theories), yet the life of it as a whole is mankind’s most important function.
Letter to Frances Morse, 13 Apr. 1900
  - 10 Religion . . . is a man’s total reaction upon life.
The Varieties of Religious Experience Lecture 2 (1902)
  - 11 We can act as if there were a God; feel as if we were free; consider Nature as if she were full of special designs; lay plans as if we were to be immortal; and we find then that these words do make a genuine difference in our moral life.
The Varieties of Religious Experience Lecture 3 (1902)
  - 12 A genuine first-hand religious experience . . . is bound to be a heterodoxy to its witnesses, the prophet appearing as a mere lonely madman. If his doctrine prove contagious enough to spread to any others, it becomes a definite and labeled heresy. But if it then still prove contagious enough to triumph over persecution, it becomes itself an orthodoxy, its day of inwardness is over: the spring is dry; the faithful live at second hand exclusively and stone the prophets in their turn.

The Varieties of Religious Experience Lectures 14–15 (1902)

- 13 One hears of the mechanical equivalent of heat. What we now need to discover in the social realm is the moral equivalent of war: something heroic that will speak to men as universally as war does, and yet will be as compatible with their spiritual selves as war has proved itself to be incompatible.
- The Varieties of Religious Experience* Lectures 14–15 (1902)
- 14 The God whom science recognizes must be a God of universal laws exclusively, a God who does a wholesale, not a retail business. He cannot accommodate his processes to the convenience of individuals.
- The Varieties of Religious Experience* Lecture 20 (1902)
- 15 Most people live, whether physically, intellectually, or morally, in a very restricted circle of their potential being. They make use of a very small portion of their possible consciousness, and of their soul's resources in general, much like a man who, out of his whole bodily organism, should get into a habit of using and moving only his little finger. Great emergencies and crises show us how much greater our vital resources are than we had supposed.
- Letter to Wincenty Lutoslawski, 6 May 1906
- 16 The moral flabbiness born of the exclusive worship of the bitch-goddess success. That—with the squalid cash interpretation put on the word success—is our national disease.
- Letter to H. G. Wells, 11 Sept. 1906
- 17 The philosophy which is so important in each of us is not a technical matter; it is our more or less dumb sense of what life honestly and deeply means. It is only partly got from books; it is our individual way of just seeing and feeling the total push and pressure of the cosmos.

Pragmatism: A New Name for Some Old Ways of Thinking Lecture 1 (1907)

- 18 I myself believe that the evidence for God lies primarily in inner personal experiences.
- Pragmatism: A New Name for Some Old Ways of Thinking* Lecture 3 (1907)
- 19 First, you know, a new theory is attacked as absurd; then it is admitted to be true, but obvious and insignificant; finally it is seen to be so important that its adversaries claim that they themselves discovered it.
- Pragmatism: A New Name for Some Old Ways of Thinking* Lecture 6 (1907)
- 20 True ideas are those that we can assimilate, validate, corroborate, and verify. False ideas are those that we cannot.
- Pragmatism: A New Name for Some Old Ways of Thinking* Lecture 6 (1907)
- 21 The truth of an idea is not a stagnant property inherent in it. Truth happens to an idea. It becomes true, is made true by events. Its verity is in fact an event, a process: the process namely of its verifying itself, its verification. Its validity is the process of its valid-ation.
- Pragmatism: A New Name for Some Old Ways of Thinking* Lecture 6 (1907)
- 22 I firmly disbelieve, myself, that our human experience is the highest form of experience extant in the universe. I believe rather that we stand in much the same relation to the whole of the universe as our canine and feline pets do to the whole of human life. They inhabit our drawing-rooms and libraries. They take part in scenes of whose significance they have no inkling. They are merely tangent to curves of history the beginnings and ends and forms of which pass wholly beyond their ken. So we are tangent to the wider life of things.
- Pragmatism: A New Name for Some Old Ways of Thinking* Lecture 8 (1907)
- 23 My thesis . . . is that the bodily changes follow directly the perception of the exciting fact, and that our feeling of the same changes as they occur is the emotion.

Thomas Jefferson

U.S. president, 1743–1826

- 1 When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature’s God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation. Declaration of Independence (1776)
- 2 We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.

Declaration of Independence (1776). Jefferson had used the word inalienable in a handwritten rough draft, but it was changed to unalienable for the final draft.

See Ho Chi Minh 1; George Mason 1

- 3 Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed.
Declaration of Independence (1776)
- 4 The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.
Declaration of Independence (1776)
- 5 He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harrass our people, and eat out their substance.
Declaration of Independence (1776)
- 6 We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them [the British], as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.
Declaration of Independence (1776)
- 7 That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved.
Declaration of Independence (1776)
- 8 And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.
Declaration of Independence (1776)
- 9 Truth is great and will prevail if left to herself; that she is the proper and sufficient antagonist to error, and has nothing to fear from the conflict unless by human interposition disarmed of her natural weapons, free argument and debate; errors ceasing to be dangerous when it is permitted freely to contradict them.
"A Bill for Establishing Religious Freedom" (1779)
- 10 It is error alone which needs the support of government. Truth can stand by itself.
Notes on the State of Virginia, query 17 (1781–1785)
- 11 It does me no injury for my neighbor to say there are twenty gods, or no God. It neither picks my pocket nor breaks my leg.
Notes on the State of Virginia, query 17 (1781–1785)
- 12 Is uniformity [of opinion] attainable? Millions of innocent men, women, and children, since the introduction of Christianity, have been burnt, tortured, fined, imprisoned; yet we have not advanced one inch towards uniformity. What has been the effect of coercion? To make one half the world fools, and the other half hypocrites.
Notes on the State of Virginia, query 17 (1781–1785)

- 13 [On slavery]: Can the liberties of a nation be thought secure when we have removed their only firm basis, a conviction in the minds of the people that these liberties are of the gift of god? That they are not to be violated but with his wrath? Indeed I tremble for my country when I reflect that god is just; that his justice cannot sleep forever.
Notes on the State of Virginia, query 18 (1781–1785)
- 14 What a stupendous, what an incomprehensible machine is man! Who can endure toil, famine, stripes, imprisonment, & death itself in vindication of his own liberty, and the next moment . . . inflict on his fellow men a bondage, one hour of which is fraught with more misery than ages of that which he rose in rebellion to oppose.
Letter to Jean Nicholas Demeunier, 24 Jan. 1786
- 15 Were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter.
Letter to Edward Carrington, 16 Jan. 1787
- 16 I hold it that a little rebellion now and then is a good thing, & as necessary in the political world as storms in the physical. Unsuccessful rebellions indeed generally establish the incroachments on the rights of the people which have produced them. An observation of this truth should render honest republican governors so mild in their punishment of rebellions, as not to discourage them too much. It is a medicine necessary for the sound health of government.
Letter to James Madison, 30 Jan. 1787
- 17 The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots & tyrants. It is its natural manure.
Letter to William Stephens Smith, 13 Nov. 1787
- 18 God forbid we should ever be 20 years without such a rebellion. . . . What country can preserve its liberties, if their rulers are not warned from time to time that their people preserve the spirit of resistance? Let them take arms. . . . What signify a few lives lost in a century or two?
Letter to William Stephens Smith, 13 Nov. 1787
- 19 A bill of rights is what the people are entitled to against every government on earth, general or particular, and what no just government should refuse, or rest on inference.
Letter to James Madison, 20 Dec. 1787
- 20 If we cannot secure all our rights, let us secure what we can.
Letter to James Madison, 15 Mar. 1789
- 21 The earth belongs to the living and not to the dead.
Letter to James Madison, 6 Sept. 1789
- 22 We are not to expect to be translated from despotism to liberty in a feather bed.
Letter to Marquis de Lafayette, 2 Apr. 1790
- 23 I would rather be exposed to the inconveniencies attending too much liberty than those attending too small a degree of it.
Letter to Archibald Stewart, 23 Dec. 1791
- 24 The second office of this government is honorable & easy, the first is but a splendid misery.
Letter to Elbridge Gerry, 13 May 1797
- 25 In questions of power, then, let no more be said of confidence in man, but bind him down from mischief by the chains of the Constitution.
Kentucky Resolutions of 1798, resolution 9 (1798)
- 26 The war hawks talk of septembrizing, deportation, and the examples for quelling sedition set by the French Executive.
Letter to James Madison, 26 Apr. 1798. Jefferson's usage of hawk here is earlier than any political usage of that word previously recorded.
- 27 I have sworn upon the altar of god, eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man.
Letter to Benjamin Rush, 23 Sept. 1800
- 28 If there be any among us who would wish to dissolve this Union or to change its republican form, let them stand undisturbed as monuments of the safety with which error of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it.
First Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1801
- 29 All, too, will bear in mind this sacred principle, that though the will of the majority is in all cases to prevail, that will to be rightful must be reasonable; that the minority possess their equal rights, which equal law must protect, and to violate would be oppression.

First Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1801

- 30 Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion, religious or political; peace, commerce, and honest friendship, with all nations; entangling alliances with none . . . freedom of religion; freedom of the press, and freedom of person under the protection of the habeas corpus, and trial by juries impartially selected. These principles form the bright constellation which has gone before us and guided our steps through an age of revolution and reformation. The wisdom of our sages and blood of our heroes have been devoted to their attainment. They should be the creed of our political faith, the text of civic instruction, the touchstone by which to try the services of those we trust; and should we wander from them in moments of error or of alarm, let us hasten to retrace our steps and to regain the road which alone leads to peace, liberty, and safety.

First Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1801

- 31 We are all Republicans, we are all Federalists.
First Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1801
- 32 If a due participation of office is a matter of right, how are vacancies to be obtained? Those by death are few; by resignation none.
Letter to Elias Shipman and others, 12 July 1801. Often paraphrased as "Few die and none resign."
- 33 Believing with you that religion is a matter which lies solely between man and his god, that he owes account to none other for his faith or his worship, that the legitimate powers of government reach actions only, and not opinions, I contemplate with sovereign reverence that act of the whole American people which declared that their legislature should make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, thus building a wall of separation between church and state.
Reply to Nehemiah Dodge, Ephraim Robbins, and Stephen S. Nelson (committee of the Danbury, Conn., Baptist Association), 1 Jan. 1802. Roger Williams had written in Mr. Cotton's Letter Lately

Printed, Examined and Answered (1644) of "the hedge or wall of separation between the garden of the church and the wilderness of the world."

- 34 It behoves every man who values liberty of conscience for himself, to resist invasions of it in the case of others; or their case may, by change of circumstances, become his own.
Letter to Benjamin Rush, 21 Apr. 1803
- 35 He who knows most, knows how little he knows.
"Batture at New Orleans" (1812)
- 36 He who receives an idea from me, receives instruction himself without lessening mine; as he who lights his taper at mine, receives light without darkening me.
Letter to Isaac McPherson, 13 Aug. 1813
- 37 The new circumstances under which we are placed call for new words, new phrases, and for the transfer of old words to new objects. An American dialect will therefore be formed.
Letter to John Waldo, 16 Aug. 1813
- 38 I agree with you that there is a natural aristocracy among men. The grounds of this are virtue & talents.
Letter to John Adams, 28 Oct. 1813
- 39 I am . . . mortified to be told that, in the United States of America, a question about the sale of a book can be carried before the civil magistrate. . . . Are we to have a censor whose imprimatur shall say what books may be sold, and what we may buy? . . . Whose foot is to be the measure to which ours are all to be cut and stretched?
Letter to N. G. Dufief, 19 Apr. 1814
- 40 I cannot live without books.
Letter to John Adams, 10 June 1815
- 41 If a nation expects to be ignorant & free, in a state of civilization, it expects what never was & never will be. The functionaries of every government have propensities to command at will the liberty & property of their constituents. There is no safe deposit for these but with the people themselves; nor can they be safe with them without information. Where the press is free and every man able to read, all is safe.
Letter to Charles Yancey, 6 Jan. 1816

- 42 There are indeed (who might say Nay) gloomy & hypochondriac minds, inhabitants of diseased bodies, disgusted with the present, & despairing of the future; always counting that the worst will happen, because it may happen. To these I say How much pain have cost us the evils which have never happened!
Letter to John Adams, 8 Apr. 1816
See Twain 148
- 43 Some men look at constitutions with sanctimonious reverence, and deem them like the ark of the covenant, too sacred to be touched. . . . Laws and institutions must go hand in hand with the progress of the human mind. . . . We might as well require a man to wear still the coat which fitted him when a boy, as civilized society to remain ever under the regimen of their barbarous ancestors.
Letter to Samuel Kercheval, 12 July 1816
- 44 When angry count 10. before you speak. If very angry 100.
Letter to Charles Clay, 12 July 1817. Jefferson is quoting advice he had given to Paul Clay.
- 45 But this momentous question, like a fire bell in the night, awakened and filled me with terror. I considered it at once as the knell of the Union.
Letter to John Holmes, 22 Apr. 1820. Jefferson was referring to the issue of whether to admit Missouri as a slave state but prohibit slavery in the remainder of the Louisiana Purchase.
- 46 Dictionaries are but the depositories of words already legitimated by usage. Society is the work-shop in which new ones are elaborated. When an individual uses a new word, if illformed it is rejected in society, if wellformed, adopted, and, after due time, laid up in the depository of dictionaries.
Letter to John Adams, 15 Aug. 1820
- 47 I know no safe depository of the ultimate powers of the society, but the people themselves: and if we think them not enlightened enough to exercise their control with a wholesome discretion, the remedy is not to take it from them, but to inform their discretion by education.
Letter to William Charles Jarvis, 28 Sept. 1820
- 48 The boisterous sea of liberty indeed is never without a wave.
Letter to Marquis de Lafayette, 26 Dec. 1820.
Jefferson had earlier used boisterous sea of liberty in a letter to Philip Mazzei, 24 Apr. 1796.
- 49 We are not afraid to follow truth wherever it may lead, nor to tolerate any error so long as reason is left free to combat it.
Letter to William Roscoe, 27 Dec. 1820
- 50 If the present Congress errs in too much talking, how can it be otherwise in a body to which the people send 150. lawyers, whose trade it is to question everything, yield nothing, and talk by the hour? That 150. lawyers should do business together ought not to be expected.
Autobiography (1821)
- 51 The only security of all is in a free press. The force of public opinion cannot be resisted, when permitted freely to be expressed. The agitation it produces must be submitted to. It is necessary to keep the waters pure.
Letter to Marquis de Lafayette, 4 Nov. 1823
- 52 Speeches measured by the hour, die with the hour.
Letter to David Harding, 20 Apr. 1824
- 53 Here was buried Thomas Jefferson author of the Declaration of American Independence of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom and father of the University of Virginia.
Epitaph (1826) on Jefferson's gravestone at his home, Monticello, at Charlottesville, Va.
- 54 The general spread of the light of science has already laid open to every view the palpable truth that the mass of mankind has not been born, with saddles on their backs, nor a favored few booted and spurred, ready to ride them legitimately, by the grace of god.
Letter to Roger C. Weightman, 24 June 1826. From Jefferson's last letter before his death.
- 55 [Last words, 4 July 1826:] This is the Fourth? Quoted in Henry S. Randall, The Life of Thomas Jefferson (1858). Jefferson was asking whether the date was July 4th, the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.
See John Adams 21

56 Dissent is the highest form of patriotism.

Attributed in Boston Globe, 2 June 1991. The widespread attribution to Jefferson is clearly apocryphal. The earliest known occurrence of these exact words or near-identical ones was in Friends Peace Committee, The Use of Force in International Affairs (1961) (“is dissent the highest form of patriotism?”); Barry Popik has traced similar formulations as far back as 1925.

Bernie Taupin 1950–

English singer and songwriter; songwriter

- 1 It seems to me you lived your life
Like a candle in the wind.
Never knowing who to cling to
When the rain set in. . . .
The candle burned out long before
Your legend ever did.
"Candle in the Wind" (song) (1973). This original version of the song was addressed to Marilyn Monroe.
- 2 Goodbye England's rose;
May you ever grow in our hearts. . . .
And your footsteps will always fall here
On England's greenest hills;
Your candle's burned out long before
Your legend ever will.
"Candle in the Wind" (revised version of song) (1997). The revised version of this song was sung by John at the funeral of Diana, Princess of Wales, 7 Sept. 1997.

St. John of the Cross

Spanish mystic and poet, 1542–1591

1 Noche oscura.

Dark night.

Title of poem (1578–1580). Frequently quoted as “dark night of the soul”; that phrase appears in translator David Lewis’s chapter heading for the poem in the saint’s Complete Works vol. 1, bk. 1, ch. 3 (1864).

John Paul II (Karol Wojtyła)

Polish pope, 1920–2005

1 This right [to join a free trade union] is not given to us by the State. . . . This right is given by the Creator.

Speech, Katowice, Poland, 20 June 1983

2 The culture of life means respect for nature and protection of God’s work of creation. In a special way, it means respect for human life from the first moment of conception until its natural end.

Speech, Denver, Colo., 15 Aug. 1993

3 [Response to suggestion that it was inappropriate for him as a cardinal to ski, ca. 1968:] It is unbecoming for a cardinal to ski badly.

Quoted in St. Petersburg Times, 7 Sept. 1987

Charles R. Johnson

U.S. writer, 1948–

1 Of all the things that drive men to sea, the most common disaster, I’ve come to learn, is women.

Middle Passage (1990)

Claudia Alta “Lady Bird” Johnson

U.S. First Lady, 1912–2007

1 Mrs. Kennedy is going to marry Aristotle Socrates Onassis! . . . I feel strangely freer. No shadow walks beside me down the halls of the White House.

A White House Diary (1970) (entry for 19 Oct. 1968)

Diane Johnson

U.S. author, 1934–

1 Men are generally more law-abiding than women. . . . Women have a feeling that since they didn’t make the rules, the rules have nothing to do with them.

Lying Low ch. 9 (1978)

Howard E. Johnson

U.S. songwriter, 1887–1941

1 “M” is for the million things she gave me,
“O” means only that she’s growing old,
“T” is for the tears were shed to save me,
“H” is for her heart of purest gold;
“E” is for her eyes, with love-light shining,
“R” means right, and right she’ll always be,
Put them all together, they spell “MOTHER,”
A word that means the world to me.
“M-O-T-H-E-R (A Word That Means the World to Me)”
(song) (1915)

2 The Best Things in Life Are Free.

Title of song (1917). Many reference works erroneously attribute this proverb to Buddy DeSylva, who wrote a song of the same name in 1927.

See DeSylva 3

James Weldon Johnson

U.S. author, 1871–1938

1 Lift Ev’ry Voice and Sing.

Title of poem (1900)

2 Young man, yo’ arm’s too short to box wid God!

The Autobiography of an Ex-Colored Man ch. 10 (1912). Johnson was quoting an African-American preacher named John Brown.

3 O black and unknown bards of long ago,
How came your lips to touch the sacred fire?

“O Black and Unknown Bards” l. 1 (1917)

4 And God stepped out on space,
And he looked around and said:
I’m lonely—

I’ll make me a world.

“The Creation” l. 1 (1927)

Lyndon B. Johnson

U.S. president, 1908–1973

1 I am a free man, an American, a United States Senator, and a Democrat, in that order. I am also a liberal, a conservative, a Texan, a taxpayer, a rancher, a businessman, a consumer, a parent, a voter, and not as young

- as I used to be nor as old as I expect to be—and I am all of these things in no fixed order.
Texas Quarterly, Winter 1958
- 2 [After the assassination of John F. Kennedy:]
All I have I would have given gladly not to be standing here today.
Address before Joint Session of Congress, 27 Nov. 1963
- 3 We have talked long enough in this country about equal rights. We have talked for one hundred years or more. It is time now to write the next chapter, and to write it in the books of law.
Address before Joint Session of Congress, 27 Nov. 1963
- 4 This administration today, here and now, declares unconditional war on poverty in America. I urge this Congress and all Americans to join with me in that effort.
State of the Union Address, 8 Jan. 1964
- 5 We are trying to build a great society that will make your children and your grandchildren and the people three or four generations from today proud of what we are doing.
Remarks to a group in connection with the Montana Territorial Centennial, Washington, D.C., 17 Apr. 1964. Johnson's first usage of the phrase great society.

- 10 I shall not seek, and I will not accept, the nomination of my party for another term as your President.
Broadcast address to the nation, 31 Mar. 1968
- 11 [Of Gerald R. Ford:] That's what happens when you play football too long without a helmet.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 30 Apr. 1967
- 12 [Of J. Edgar Hoover:] Better to have him inside the tent pissing out, than outside pissing in.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 31 Oct. 1971
- 13 [Of a prospective assistant:] I don't want loyalty. I want loyalty. I want him to kiss my ass in Macy's window at high noon and tell me it smells like roses. I want his pecker in my pocket.
Quoted in David Halberstam, The Best and the Brightest (1972)
- 14 [Of Gerald Ford:] So dumb he can't fart and chew gum at the same time.
Quoted in Richard Reeves, A Ford, Not a Lincoln (1975). Barry Popik has traced "he can't walk and chew gum at the same time" as far back as 1954 (Paris [Tex.] News, 16 Mar. 1954).

Philander C. Johnson

U.S. humorist, 1866–1939

- 1 Every man who has attained to high position is a sincere believer of the survival of the fittest.
Senator Sorghum's Primer of Politics (1906)
See Charles Darwin 7; Herbert Spencer 5; Herbert Spencer 6

Philip C. Johnson

U.S. architect, 1906–2005

- 1 The automobile is the greatest catastrophe in the entire history of City architecture.
"The Town and the Automobile or the Pride of Elm Street" (1955)
- 2 Architecture is the art of how to waste space.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 27 Dec. 1964

Robert Johnson

U.S. blues musician, 1911–1938

- 1 I went down to the crossroad,
Fell down on my knees.
Asked the Lord above,
“Have mercy, now, save poor Bob, if you please.”
“Cross Road Blues” (song) (1936)
- 2 When the train, it left the station
With two lights on behind—
Well, the blue light was my blues
And the red light was my mind.
“Love in Vain” (song) (1936)
- 3 Blues fallin’ down like hail
And the day keeps on worryin’ me
There’s a hell hound on my trail.
“Hell Hound on My Trail” (song) (1937)
- 4 You can squeeze my lemon
’Til the juice run down my leg.
“Travelling Riverside Blues” (song) (1937)

Samuel Johnson

English man of letters, 1709–1784

- 1 More knowledge may be gained of a man’s real character, by a short conversation with one of his servants, than from a formal and studied narrative, begun with his pedigree and ended with his funeral.
The Rambler no. 60 (13 Oct. 1750)

- 2 To neglect at any time preparation for death, is to sleep on our post at a siege, but to omit it in old age, is to sleep at an attack.
The Rambler no. 78 (15 Dec. 1750)
- 3 Such is the delight of mental superiority, that none on whom nature or study have conferred it, would purchase the gifts of fortune by its loss.
The Rambler no. 150 (24 Aug. 1751)
- 4 Every other author may aspire to praise; the lexicographer can only hope to escape reproach.
A Dictionary of the English Language preface (1755)
- 5 I am not yet so lost in lexicography, as to forget that words are the daughters of earth, and that things are the sons of heaven.
A Dictionary of the English Language preface (1755)
See Madden 1
- 6 I have studiously endeavored to collect examples and authorities from the writers before the restoration, whose works I regard as the wells of English undefiled, as the pure sources of genuine diction.
A Dictionary of the English Language preface (1755)
See Spenser 6
- 7 But these were the dreams of a poet doomed at last to wake a lexicographer.
A Dictionary of the English Language preface (1755)
- 8 The English Dictionary was written with little assistance of the learned, and without any patronage of the great; not in the soft obscurities of retirement, or under the shelter of academick bowers, but amidst inconvenience and distraction, in sickness and in sorrow.
A Dictionary of the English Language preface (1755)
- 9 DULL. . . . Not exhilarating; not delightful; as, to make dictionaries is dull work.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755)
- 10 EXCISE. . . . A hateful tax levied upon commodities, and adjudged not by the common judges of property, but wretches hired by those to whom excise is paid.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755)
- 11 FAVORITE. . . . One chosen as a companion by his superior; a mean wretch whose whole business is by any means to please.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755)

- 12 GRUBSTREET. . . . Originally the name of a street in Moorfields in London, much inhabited by writers of small histories, dictionaries, and temporary poems; whence any mean production is called grubstreet.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755)
- 13 LEXICOGRAPHER. . . . A writer of dictionaries; a harmless drudge.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755)
- 14 NETWORK. . . . Anything reticulated or decussated, at equal distances, with interstices between the intersections.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755)
- 15 OATS. . . . A grain, which in England is generally given to horses, but in Scotland supports the people.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755)
- 16 PATRON. . . . Commonly a wretch who supports with insolence, and is paid with flattery.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755)
- 17 PENSION. . . . In England it is generally understood to mean pay given to a state hireling for treason to his country.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755)
- 18 STAMMEL. . . . Of this word I know not the meaning.
A Dictionary of the English Language (1755)
- 19 No people can be great who have ceased to be virtuous.
"An Introduction to the Political State of Great Britain" (1756)
- 20 No sooner are we supplied with every thing that nature can demand, than we sit down to contrive artificial appetites.
The Idler no. 30 (11 Nov. 1758)
- 21 Among the calamities of war may be justly numbered the diminution of the love of truth, by the falsehoods which interest dictates and credulity encourages.
The Idler no. 30 (11 Nov. 1758)
See Modern Proverbs 96
- 22 He [the poet] must write as the interpreter of nature, and the legislator of mankind, and consider himself as presiding over the thoughts and manners of future generations; as a being superior to time and place.
Rasselas ch. 10 (1759)
See Auden 22; Auden 39; Andrew Fletcher 1; Percy Shelley 15; Twain 104
- 23 Human life is every where a state in which much is to be endured, and little to be enjoyed.
Rasselas ch. 11 (1759)
- 24 Marriage has many pains, but celibacy has no pleasures.
Rasselas ch. 26 (1759)
- 25 Nature has given women so much power that the law has very wisely given them little.
Letter to John Taylor, 18 Aug. 1763
- 26 How small, of all that human hearts endure,
That part which laws or kings can cause or cure.
Lines added to Oliver Goldsmith's The Traveller (1764)
- 27 [Of Shakespeare.:] He that tries to recommend him by select quotations, will succeed like the pedant in Hierocles, who, when he offered his house to sale, carried a brick in his pocket as a specimen.
The Plays of William Shakespeare preface (1765)
- 28 While, an author is yet living we estimate his powers by his worst performance, and when he is dead we rate them by his best.
The Plays of William Shakespeare preface (1765)
- 29 Shakespeare is above all writers, at least above all modern writers, the poet of nature; the poet that holds up to his readers a faithful mirror of manners and of life.
The Plays of William Shakespeare preface (1765)
- 30 [On the American colonies.:] How is it that we hear the loudest yelps for liberty among the drivers of negroes?
Taxation No Tyranny (1775)
- 31 [On a work by Congreve.:] It is praised by the biographers. . . . I would rather praise it than read it.
Lives of the English Poets "Congreve" (1779–1781)
- 32 About the beginning of the seventeenth century appeared a race of writers that may be termed the metaphysical poets.
Lives of the English Poets "Cowley" (1779–1781)

- 33 Words being arbitrary must owe their power to association, and have the influence, and that only, which custom has given them. Language is the dress of thought.
Lives of the English Poets "Cowley" (1779–1781)
See Samuel Wesley 1
- 34 [Of the death of David Garrick:] I am disappointed by that stroke of death, which has eclipsed the gaiety of nations and impoverished the public stock of harmless pleasure.
Lives of the English Poets "Edmund Smith" (1779–1781)
- 35 In the character of his [Thomas Gray's] Elegy I rejoice to concur with the common reader; for by the common sense of readers uncorrupted with literary prejudices . . . must be finally decided all claim to poetical honors.
Lives of the English Poets "Gray" (1779–1781)
- 36 [Of Italian opera:] An exotic and irrational entertainment, which has always been combated, and always has prevailed.
Lives of the English Poets "Hughes" (1779–1781)
- 37 The want of human interest is always felt. Paradise Lost is one of the books which the reader admires and lays down, and forgets to take up again. None ever wished it longer than it is.
Lives of the English Poets "Milton" (1779–1781)
- 38 [Of Alexander Pope's The Rape of the Lock:] New things are made familiar, and familiar things are made new.
Lives of the English Poets "Pope" (1779–1781)
- 39 [Referring to his fits of melancholia:] The black dog I hope always to resist, and in time to drive. . . . When I rise my breakfast is solitary, the black dog waits to share it, from breakfast to dinner he continues barking. . . . Night comes at last, and some hours of restlessness and confusion bring me again to a day of solitude. What shall exclude the black dog from a habitation like this?
Letter to Mrs. Thrale, 28 June 1783
- 40 Dictionaries are like watches; the worst is better than none, and the best cannot be expected to go quite true.
Letter to Francesco Sastres, 21 Aug. 1784
- 41 A lawyer has no business with the justice or injustice of the cause which he undertakes, unless his client asks his opinion, and then he is bound to give it honestly. The justice or injustice of the cause is to be decided by the judge.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Journal of a Tour to the Hebrides (1785) (entry for 15 Aug. 1773)
- 42 The law is the last result of human wisdom acting upon human experience for the benefit of the public.
Quoted in Heather Lynch Piozzi, Anecdotes of . . . Johnson (1786)
- 43 [After being absent from a tutorial at Oxford because he had been "sliding in Christ Church meadow":] JOHNSON: I had no notion that I was wrong or irreverent to my tutor.
BOSWELL: That, Sir, was great fortitude of mind.
JOHNSON: No, Sir; stark insensibility.
Quoted in James Boswell, Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 31 Oct. 1728)
- 44 A man may write at any time, if he will set himself doggedly to it.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for Mar. 1750)
- 45 [Of Lord Chesterfield's Letters:] They teach the morals of a whore, and the manners of a dancing master.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1754)
- 46 [Of Lord Chesterfield:] This man I thought had been a Lord among wits; but, I find, he is only a wit among Lords.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1754)
- 47 [To a woman who asked him why he had defined pastern in his Dictionary of the English Language as a horse's knee:] Ignorance, Madam, pure ignorance.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1755)
- 48 If a man does not make new acquaintance as he advances through life, he will soon find himself left alone. A man, Sir, should keep his friendship in constant repair.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1755)

- 49 Is not a Patron, my Lord, one who looks with unconcern on a man struggling for life in the water, and, when he has reached ground, encumbers him with help? The notice which you have been pleased to take of my labors, had it been early, had been kind; but it has been delayed till I am indifferent, and cannot enjoy it; till I am solitary, and cannot impart it; till I am known, and do not want it.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (letter to Lord Chesterfield, 7 Feb. 1755)
- 50 No man will be a sailor who has contrivance enough to get himself into a jail; for being in a ship is being in a jail, with the chance of being drowned. . . . A man in a jail has more room, better food, and commonly better company.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 16 Mar. 1759)
See Robert Burton 6
- 51 Consider, Sir, how insignificant this will appear a twelvemonth hence.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 6 July 1763)
See Dickens 25
- 52 The noblest prospect which a Scotchman ever sees, is the high road that leads him to England!
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 6 July 1763)
- 53 A man ought to read just as inclination leads him: for what he reads as a task will do him little good.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (entry for 14 July 1763)
- 54 If he does really think that there is no distinction between virtue and vice, why, Sir, when he leaves our houses, let us count our spoons.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 14 July 1763)
See Ralph Waldo Emerson 41
- 55 Your levellers wish to level down as far as themselves; but they cannot bear levelling up to themselves.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 21 July 1763)
- 56 [Of a female Quaker:] Sir, a woman's preaching is like a dog's walking on his hinder legs. It is not done well; but you are surprised to find it done at all.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 31 July 1763)
- 57 This was a good dinner enough, to be sure; but it was not a dinner to ask a man to.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 31 July 1763)
- 58 [In response to Boswell's observation that George Berkeley's theory of the nonexistence of matter could not be refuted, Johnson kicked a large stone and said:] I refute it thus.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 6 Aug. 1763)
- 59 [Of John Hawkins:] Sir John, Sir, is a very unclubable man.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for Spring 1764)
- 60 So far is it from being true that men are naturally equal, that no two people can be half an hour together, but one shall acquire an evident superiority over the other.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 15 Feb. 1766)
- 61 Sir, we know our will is free, and there's an end on 't.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 16 Oct. 1769)
- 62 BOSWELL: But is not the fear of death natural to man?
JOHNSON: So much so, Sir, that the whole of life is but keeping away the thoughts of it.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 19 Oct. 1769)
- 63 Most schemes of political improvement are very laughable things.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 26 Oct. 1769)
- 64 It matters not how a man dies, but how he lives. The act of dying is not of importance, it lasts so short a time.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 26 Oct. 1769)
- 65 Being told she was remarkable for her humility and condescension to inferiors, he observed, that those were very laudable qualities, but it

- might not be so easy to discover who the lady's inferiors were.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1770)
See Dorothy Parker 32
- 66 That fellow seems to me to possess but one idea, and that is a wrong one.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1770)
See Disraeli 17
- 67 Johnson observed, that "he did not care to speak ill of any man behind his back, but he believed the gentleman was an attorney."
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1770)
- 68 [Of a man who remarried after the death of his first wife, with whom he had been unhappy.] The triumph of hope over experience.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1770)
- 69 A decent provision for the poor, is the true test of civilisation.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1770)
See Pearl S. Buck 3; Ramsey Clark 1; Dostoyevski 1; Humphrey 3; Helen Keller 4
- 70 [Of Lord Mansfield, born in Scotland but educated in England.] Much may be made of a Scotchman, if he be caught young.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for Spring 1772)
- 71 Sir, it is so far from natural for a man and woman to live in a state of marriage, that we find all the motives which they have for remaining in that connection, and the restraints which civilized society imposes to prevent separation, are hardly sufficient to keep them together.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 31 Mar. 1772)
- 72 I would not give half a guinea to live under one form of government rather than another. It is of no moment to the happiness of an individual.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 31 Mar. 1772)
- 73 [Of Oliver Goldsmith's apology in the London Chronicle for assaulting Thomas Evans.] He has, indeed, done it very well; but it is a foolish thing well done.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 3 Apr. 1773)
- 74 [Replying to the question, "What, have you not read it through?".] No, Sir, do you read books through?
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 19 Apr. 1773)
- 75 [Quoting an old college tutor.] Read over your compositions and where ever you meet with a passage which you think is particularly fine, strike it out.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 30 Apr. 1773)
- 76 [Of Lady Diana Beauclerk.] The woman's a whore, and there's an end on 't.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 7 May 1773)
- 77 Why, sir, a man grows better humored as he grows older. He improves by experience. When young, he thinks himself of great consequence, and every thing of importance. As he advances in life, he learns to think himself of no consequence, and little things of little importance; and so he becomes more patient, and better pleased.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 14 Sept. 1773)
- 78 [Of Thomas Gray.] He was dull in a new way, and that made many people think him great.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 28 Mar. 1775)
- 79 The greatest part of a writer's time is spent in reading, in order to write: a man will turn over half a library to make one book.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 6 Apr. 1775)
- 80 Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 7 Apr. 1775)
See Bierce 94
- 81 Knowledge is of two kinds. We know a subject ourselves, or we know where we can find information upon it.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 18 Apr. 1775)

- 82 We would all be idle if we could.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1776)
- 83 A man should be careful never to tell tales of himself to his own disadvantage. People may be amused and laugh at the time, but they will be remembered, and brought out against him upon some subsequent occasion.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 25 Mar. 1776)
- 84 No, Sir; to act from pure benevolence is not possible for finite beings. Human benevolence is mingled with vanity, interest, or some other motive.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for Apr. 1776)
- 85 No man but a blockhead ever wrote, except for money.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 5 Apr. 1776)
- 86 It is better that some should be unhappy, than that none should be happy, which would be the case in a general state of equality.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 7 Apr. 1776)
- 87 Sir, you have but two topics, yourself and me. I am sick of both.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for May 1776)
- 88 Olivarii Goldsmith,
Poetae, Physici, Historici,
Qui nullum fere scribendi genus
Non tetigit,
Nullum quod tetigit non ornavit.
To Oliver Goldsmith, Poet, Naturalist, Historian, who left scarcely any style of writing untouched, and touched nothing that he did not adorn.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 22 June 1776)
- 89 Depend upon it, Sir, when a man knows he is to be hanged in a fortnight, it concentrates his mind wonderfully.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 19 Sept. 1777)
- 90 When a man is tired of London, he is tired of life; for there is in London all that life can afford.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 20 Sept. 1777)
- 91 [Of the existence of ghosts:] All argument is against it; but all belief is for it.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 31 Mar. 1778)
- 92 Johnson had said that he could repeat a complete chapter of “The Natural History of Iceland,” from the Danish of Horrebow, the whole of which was exactly thus:—“CHAP. LXXII. Concerning snakes. There are no snakes to be met with throughout the whole island.”
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 13 Apr. 1778). Bartlett’s Familiar Quotations points out that ch. 42 is even shorter: “There are no owls of any kind in the whole island.”
- 93 I am willing to love all mankind, except an American.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 15 Apr. 1778)
- 94 All censure of a man’s self is oblique praise. It is in order to show how much he can spare.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 25 Apr. 1778)
- 95 I am always for getting a boy forward in his learning; for that is a sure good. I would let him at first read any English book which happens to engage his attention; because you have done a great deal when you have brought him to have entertainment from a book. He’ll get better books afterwards.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 16 Apr. 1779)
- 96 [On the Giant’s Causeway in Ireland:] Worth seeing, yes; but not worth going to see.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 12 Oct. 1779)
- 97 If you are idle, be not solitary; if you are solitary, be not idle.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (letter to Boswell, 27 Oct. 1779)
See Robert Burton 8

- 98 [To a follower of George Berkeley's philosophy, which held that things exist only insofar as they are perceived by a mind:] Pray, Sir, don't leave us; for we may perhaps forget to think of you, and then you will cease to exist.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1780)
- 99 [When asked what he considered to be the real value of the Thrale Brewery, which, as executor, he was attempting to sell:] We are not here to sell a parcel of boilers and vats, but the potentiality of growing rich beyond the dreams of avarice.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 6 Apr. 1781)
See Edward Moore 2
- 100 [Quotation] is a good thing; there is a community of mind in it. Classical quotation is the parole of literary men all over the world.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 8 May 1781)
- 101 Resolve not to be poor: whatever you have, spend less. Poverty is a great enemy to human happiness; it certainly destroys liberty, and it makes some virtues impracticable, and others extremely difficult.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (letter to Boswell, 7 Dec. 1782)
- 102 It is strange that there should be so little reading in the world, and so much writing. People in general do not willingly read, if they can have any thing else to amuse them.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 1 May 1783)
- 103 Clear your mind of cant.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 15 May 1783)
- 104 As I know more of mankind I expect less of them, and am ready now to call a man a good man, upon easier terms than I was formerly.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for Sept. 1783)
- 105 If a man were to go by chance at the same time with [Edmund] Burke under a shed, to shun a shower, he would say—"this is an extraordinary man."
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for 15 May 1784)
- 106 Sir, I have found you an argument; but I am not obliged to find you an understanding.
Quoted in James Boswell, The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791) (entry for June 1784)
See Oliver Goldsmith 5
- 107 [On hearing a violin solo:] Difficult do you call it, Sir? I wish it were impossible.
Quoted in William Seward, Supplement to the Anecdotes of Distinguished Persons (1797)
- 108 What is written without effort is in general read without pleasure.
Quoted in William Seward, Biographia (1799)
- 109 [On overindulgence in drink, to the extent of becoming a beast:] He who makes a beast of himself gets rid of the pain of being a man.
Quoted in Percival Stockdale, The Memoirs of the Life, and Writings of Percival Stockdale (1809)
- 110 [To two women who commended him on his omission of vulgar words from his Dictionary of the English Language:] What! my dears! then you have been looking for them?
Quoted in Henry G. Beste, Personal and Literary Memorials (1829). A very similar anecdote about Johnson, with the punch line "I find, however, that you have been looking for them," appeared in Gentleman's Magazine, Apr. 1785.

Hanns Johst

German playwright, 1890–1978

- 1 Wenn ich Kultur höre . . . entsichere ich meinen Browning.
When I hear the word "culture" . . . I reach for my gun.
Schlageter act 1, sc. 1 (1933). Frequently attributed to Hermann Goering.

Al Jolson (Asa Yoelson)

Russian-born U.S. singer and actor, 1886–1950

- 1 California, here I come right back where I started from.
"California Here I Come" (song) (1924). Cowritten with Buddy DeSylva and Joseph Meyer.
- 2 Wait a minute, wait a minute. You ain't heard nothin' yet!
The Jazz Singer (motion picture) (1927). This ad-libbed line is celebrated because it constituted the first spoken words in the first prominent talking motion picture. Jolson had earlier recorded a song titled "You Ain't Heard Nothing Yet" (1919, written by Gus Kahn and Buddy DeSylva). Nigel Rees notes in Cassell Companion to Quotations: “Martin Abramson in The Real Story of Al Jolson (1950) suggests that Jolson had also uttered the slogan in San Francisco as long before as 1906. Interrupted by noise from a building site across the road from a café in which he was performing, Jolson had shouted, ‘You think that’s noise—you ain’t heard nuttin’ yet!’ Listening to the film soundtrack makes it clear that Jolson did not add ‘folks’ at the end of his mighty line, as Bartlett . . . and the [Oxford Dictionary of Quotations] say he did.”

3 Sonny Boy.

Title of song (1928). Cowritten with Buddy DeSylva, Lew Brown, and Ray Henderson.

Booker T. Jones

U.S. rhythm and blues musician, 1944–

- 1 If it wasn’t for bad luck, I wouldn’t have no luck at all.

“Born Under a Bad Sign” (song) (1967). Cowritten with William Bell.

James Jones

U.S. novelist, 1921–1977

- 1 They shouldnt teach their immigrants’ kids all about democracy unless they mean to let them have a little of it, it ony makes for trouble. Me and the United States is disassociating our alliance as of right now, until the United States can find time to read its own textbooks a little.

From Here to Eternity ch. 39 (1951)

John Paul Jones (John Paul)

U.S. admiral, 1747–1792

- 1 I wish to have no Connection with any Ship that does not sail fast, for I intend to go in harm’s way.

Letter to Le Ray de Chaumont, 16 Nov. 1778

- 2 [Remark during Battle off Flamborough Head, 23 Sept. 1779:] I have not yet begun to fight.

Quoted in John Henry Sherburne, Life and Character of the Chevalier John Paul Jones (1825). According to Respectfully Quoted, ed. Suzy Platt: “The exact wording of his reply is uncertain, and several accounts exist. The standard version . . . is from an account of the engagement by one of Jones’s officers, First Lieutenant Richard Dale.”

Mother Jones (Mary Harris Jones)

Irish-born U.S. labor organizer, 1830–1930

- 1 Pray for the dead and fight like hell for the living!

The Autobiography of Mother Jones ch. 6 (1925)

T. A. D. Jones

U.S. football coach, 1887–1957

- 1 [To Yale football players preparing for game against Harvard, 24 Nov. 1923:] Gentlemen, you are now going out to play football against Harvard. Never again in your whole life will you do anything so important.

Quoted in Tim Cohane, The Yale Football Story (1951)

Tom Jones

U.S. songwriter, 1928–

- 1 Try to remember the kind of September
When life was slow and oh so mellow.

“Try to Remember” (song) (1960)

- 2 Deep in December it’s nice to remember
The fire of September that made us mellow Deep in December our hearts should remember

And follow . . .

“Try to Remember” (song) (1960)

William Jones

British philologist and jurist, 1746–1794

- 1 The law is a jealous science.

Letter to Mr. Howard, 4 Oct. 1774
See Story 1

- 2 The Sanskrit language, whatever be its antiquity, is of a wonderful structure; more perfect than the Greek, more copious than the Latin, and more exquisitely refined than either, yet bearing to both of them a stronger affinity, both in the roots of verbs, and in the forms of grammar, than could possibly have been produced by accident; so strong, indeed, that no philologer could examine them all three, without believing them to have sprung from some common source, which, perhaps, no longer exists.

“The Third Anniversary Discourse, on the Hindus” (1786)

William Jones

U.S. politician, 1753–1822

- 1 The Continental ship Providence, now lying at Boston, is bound on a short cruise, immediately; a few good men are wanted to make up her complement.

Providence Gazette, 20 Mar. 1779

Erica Jong

U.S. writer, 1942–

- 1 Everyone has talent. What is rare is the courage to follow the talent to the dark place where it leads.

“The Artist as Housewife” (1972)

- 2 Fear of Flying.

Title of book (1973)

- 3 Bigamy is having one husband too many. Monogamy is the same.

Fear of Flying epigraph (1973). Jong was quoting an anonymous source here. “They say bigamy means one wife too many; but so does monogamy sometimes” appeared in Robert Webster Jones, Light Interviews with Shades (1922).

- 4 There were 117 psychoanalysts on the Pan Am flight to Vienna and I’d been treated by at least six of them.

Fear of Flying ch. 1 (1973)

- 5 The zipless fuck is absolutely pure. It is free of ulterior motives. There is no power game. The man is not “taking” and the woman is not “giving.” No one is attempting to cuckold a husband or humiliate a wife. No one is out to prove anything or get anything out of anyone. The zipless fuck is the purest thing there is. And it is rarer than the unicorn.

Fear of Flying ch. 1 (1973). Jong explains: “Zipless because when you come together zippers fell away like petals.”

- 6 Gossip is the opiate of the oppressed.

Fear of Flying ch. 6 (1973)

- 7 Coupling doesn’t always have to do with sex. . . . Two people holding each other up like flying buttresses. Two people depending on each other and babying each other and defending each other against the world outside. Sometimes it was worth all the disadvantages of marriage just to have that: one friend in an indifferent world.

Fear of Flying ch. 10 (1973)

- 8 Men and women, women and men. It will never work.

Fear of Flying ch. 16 (1973)

Ben Jonson

English playwright and poet, ca. 1573–1637

- 1 Queen and huntress, chaste and fair,

Now the sun is laid to sleep,

Seated in thy silver chair,

State in wonted manner keep:

Hesperus entreats thy light,

Goddess, excellently bright.

Cynthia’s Revels act 5, sc. 3 (1600)

- 2 Still to be neat, still to be drest,

As you were going to a feast.

Epicene act 1, sc. 1 (1609)

- 3 Such sweet neglect more taketh me,

Than all the adulteries of art;

They strike mine eyes, but not my heart.

Epicene act 1, sc. 1 (1609)

- 4 Fortune, that favors fools.

The Alchemist prologue (1610)

- 5 Rest in soft peace, and, asked, say here doth lie

Ben Jonson his best piece of poetry.

“On My First Son” l. 9 (1616)

- 6 Drink to me only with thine eyes,

And I will pledge with mine;

Or leave a kiss but in the cup,

And I’ll not look for wine.

“To Celia” l. 1 (1616). The following appears in Philostratus (ca. 181–250), Letter 24: “Drink to me with your eyes alone. . . . And if you will, take the cup to your lips and fill it with kisses, and give it to me.”

- 7 [On Shakespeare’s portrait.:]

This figure that thou here seest put,

It was for gentle Shakespeare cut,

Wherein the graver had a strife

With Nature, to out-do the life.

First Folio Shakespeare “To the Reader” l. 1 (1623)

- 8 [On William Shakespeare.:]

Reader, look

Not on his picture, but his book.

First Folio Shakespeare “To the Reader” l. 9 (1623)

9 Thou hadst small Latin, and less Greek.
 “To the Memory of My Beloved, the Author, Mr.
 William Shakespeare” l. 31 (1623)

10 He was not of an age, but for all time!
 “To the Memory of My Beloved, the Author, Mr.
 William Shakespeare” l. 38 (1623)

11 Sweet Swan of Avon!
 “To the Memory of My Beloved, the Author, Mr.
 William Shakespeare” l. 66 (1623)

Janis Joplin

U.S. rock singer, 1943–1970

1 Down on me, down on me
 Looks like everyone in this whole round world
 Is down on me.
 “Down on Me” (song) (1967)

2 Lord, won't you buy me a Mercedes-Benz?
 My friends all drive Porsches
 I must make amends.
 “Mercedes-Benz” (song) (1970)

3 Get It While You Can.
 Title of song (1971)

4 [Of Dwight Eisenhower, whose death pushed Joplin off the cover of Newsweek:] Fourteen heart attacks and he had to die in my week.
 Quoted in New Music Express, 12 Apr. 1969

5 On stage I make love to twenty-five thousand people; then I go home alone.
 Quoted in Barbara Rowes, The Book of Quotes (1979)

Barbara C. Jordan

U.S. politician, 1936–1996

1 Earlier today we heard the beginning of the Preamble to the Constitution of the United States. “We the people.” It is a very eloquent beginning. But, when that document was completed on the 17th of September in 1787,
 I was not included in that “We, the people.”
 I felt somehow for many years that George Washington and Alexander Hamilton just left me out by mistake. But, through the process of amendment, interpretation, and court decision,
 I have finally been included in “We, the people.”

Statement before House Judiciary Committee
 considering impeachment of Richard Nixon, 25 July 1974
See Constitution of the United States 1

2 My faith in the Constitution is whole, it is complete, it is total. I am not going to sit here and be an idle spectator to the diminution, the subversion, the destruction of the Constitution.
 Statement before House Judiciary Committee
 considering impeachment of Richard Nixon, 25 July 1974

Henry Jordan

U.S. football player, 1935–1977

1 [Of coach Vince Lombardi:] The coach is very fair. He treats us all like dogs.
 Quoted in Boston Globe, 23 Dec. 1965

Louis Jordan

U.S. rhythm and blues musician, 1908–1975

1 Is You or Is You Ain't My Baby?
 Title of song (1943). Cowritten with Billy Austin.

2 Let the Good Times Roll.
 Title of song (1946). Jordan popularized this expression, but Barry Popik has unearthed uses of it or variants such as “Let the good times roll in upon us” as early as the Atlanta Constitution, 4 Sept. 1898.

Joseph II

Holy Roman emperor, 1741–1790

1 [Of Mozart's opera, The Escape from the Seraglio, 1782:] Too beautiful for our ears and an extraordinary number of notes, dear Mozart.
 Quoted in Franz Xavier Niemetschek, Life of Mozart
 (1798). According to Niemetschek, Mozart replied,
 “Just as many, Your Majesty, as are necessary.”

Chief Joseph

Native American chief, ca. 1840–1904

1 If you tie up a horse to a stake, do you expect he will grow fat? If you pen an Indian up on a small spot of earth, and compel him to stay there, he will not be contented, nor will he grow and prosper. I have asked some of the great white chiefs where they get their authority to say to the Indian that he shall stay in one place, while he sees white men going where they please. They can not tell me.

North American Review, Apr. 1879

2 [Speech of surrender at end of Nez Percé War, 5
 Oct. 1877:] I am tired of fighting. . . . I want to have time to look for my children and see how many of them I can find. Maybe I shall find them among the dead.

Quoted in Herbert J. Spinden, The Nez Percé Indians (1908)

- 3 [Statement to General Miles at end of Nez Percé War, 5 Oct. 1877:] From where the sun now stands I will fight no more.
Quoted in Herbert J. Spinden, The Nez Percé Indians (1908)

Jenny Joseph

English poet, 1932–2018

- 1 When I am an old woman I shall wear purple
With a red hat which doesn't go, and doesn't suit me.
And I shall spend my pension on brandy and summer gloves
And satin sandals, and say we've no money for butter.
"Warning" l. 1 (1965)

Francis de Jouvenot

French playwright, fl. 1888

- 1 Fin de Siècle.
End of Century.
Title of play (1888). Coauthored with H. Micard.

William N. "Bill" Joy

U.S. computer scientist, 1954–

- 1 The experiences of the atomic scientists clearly show the need to take personal responsibility, the danger that things will move too fast, and the way in which a process can take on a life of its own. We can, as they did, create insurmountable problems in almost no time flat. We must do more thinking up front if we are not to be similarly surprised and shocked by the consequences of our inventions.
"Why the Future Doesn't Need Us: Our Most Powerful 21st-Century Technologies—Robotics, Genetic Engineering, and Nanotech—Are Threatening to Make Humans an Endangered Species," Wired, Apr. 2000

James Joyce

Irish writer, 1882–1941

- 1 Yes, the newspapers were right: snow was general all over Ireland. It was falling on every part of the dark central plain, on the treeless hills, falling softly upon the Bog of Allen and, further westward, softly falling into the dark mutinous Shannon waves.

Dubliners "The Dead" (1914)

- 2 His soul swooned slowly as he heard the snow falling faintly through the universe and faintly falling, like the descent of their last end, upon all the living and the dead.
Dubliners "The Dead" (1914)
- 3 He looked down the slope and, at the base, in the shadow of the wall of the Park, he saw some human figures lying. Those venal and furtive loves filled him with despair. He gnawed the rectitude of his life; he felt that he had been outcast from life's feast.
Dubliners "A Painful Case" (1914)
- 4 Once upon a time and a very good time it was there was a moocow coming down along the road and this moocow that was down along the road met a nicens little boy named baby tuckoo.
A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man ch. 1 (1916)
- 5 Ireland is the old sow that eats her farrow.
A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man ch. 5 (1916)
- 6 Pity is the feeling which arrests the mind in the presence of whatsoever is grave and constant in human sufferings and unites it with the human sufferer. Terror is the feeling which arrests the mind in the presence of whatsoever is grave and constant in human sufferings and unites it with the secret cause.
A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man ch. 5 (1916)
- 7 The artist, like the God of the creation, remains within or behind or beyond or above his

- handiwork, invisible, refined out of existence, indifferent, paring his fingernails.
A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man ch. 5 (1916). The character Lynch responds to this statement of Stephen Dedalus with the comment, "Trying to refine them also out of existence."
- 8 [Upon being asked whether he intended to become a Protestant.] I said that I had lost the faith, Stephen answered, but not that I had lost self-respect. What kind of liberation would that be to forsake an absurdity which is logical and coherent and to embrace one which is illogical and incoherent?
A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man ch. 5 (1916)
- 9 I will try to express myself in some mode of life or art as freely as I can and as wholly as I can, using for my defense the only arms I allow myself to use, silence, exile, and cunning.
A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man ch. 5 (1916)
- 10 Mother is putting my new secondhand clothes in order. She prays now, she says, that I may learn in my own life and away from home and friends what the heart is and what it feels. Amen. So be it.
A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man ch. 5 (1916)
- 11 Welcome, O life! I go to encounter for the millionth time the reality of experience and to forge in the smithy of my soul the uncreated conscience of my race.
A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man ch. 5 (1916)
- 12 Old father, old artificer, stand me now and ever in good stead.
A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man ch. 5 (1916)
- 13 Stately, plump Buck Mulligan came from the stairhead, bearing a bowl of lather on which a mirror and a razor lay crossed.
Ulysses (1922)
- 14 The snotgreen sea. The scrotumtightening sea.
Ulysses (1922)
- 15 It is a symbol of Irish art. The cracked lookingglass of a servant.
Ulysses (1922)
- 16 Agenbite of inwit. Conscience.
Ulysses (1922). Ayenbite of Inwyt was the title of a fourteenth-century treatise by Dan Michel of Northgate.
- 17 History, Stephen said, is a nightmare from which I am trying to awake.
Ulysses (1922)
- 18 Lawn Tennyson, gentleman poet.
Ulysses (1922)
- 19 A man of genius makes no mistakes. His errors are volitional and are the portals of discovery.
Ulysses (1922)
- 20 Love loves to love love.
Ulysses (1922)
- 21 Greater love than this, he said, no man hath that a man lay down his wife for his friend.
Ulysses (1922)
See Bible 326
- 22 He kissed me under the Moorish wall and I thought well as well him as another and then I asked him with my eyes to ask again yes and then he asked me would I yes to say yes my mountain flower and first I put my arms around him yes and drew him down to me so he could feel my breasts all perfume yes and his heart was going like mad and yes I said yes I will Yes.
Ulysses (1922)
- 23 riverrun, past Eve and Adam's, from swerve of shore to bend of bay, brings us by a commodious vicus of recirculation back to Howth Castle and Environs.
Finnegans Wake pt. 1 (1939)
- 24 Three quarks for Muster Mark!
 Sure he hasn't got much of a bark
 And sure any he has it's all beside the mark.
Finnegans Wake pt. 2 (1939). Physicist Murray Gell-Mann was influenced by this line when in 1963 he chose the name quark to denote a group of subatomic particles.
- 25 By an epiphany he meant a sudden spiritual manifestation, whether in vulgarity of speech or of gesture or in a memorable phase of the mind itself.
Stephen Hero ch. 25 (1944)
- 26 The demand that I make of my reader is that he should devote his whole life to reading my works.
 Quoted in Harper's Magazine, Oct. 1931

27 When a young man came up to him in Zurich and said, “May I kiss the hand that wrote Ulysses?” Joyce replied, somewhat like King Lear, “No, it did lots of other things too.” Quoted in Richard Ellmann, James Joyce (1959)

28 I want to give a picture [in Ulysses] of Dublin so complete that if the city one day suddenly disappeared from the earth it could be reconstructed out of my book.
Quoted in Frank Budgen, James Joyce and the Making of Ulysses, and Other Writings (1960)

29 Why all this fuss and bother about the mystery of the unconscious? What about the mystery of the conscious? What do they know about that? Quoted in Frank Budgen, James Joyce and the Making of Ulysses, and Other Writings (1960)

Benito Juárez

Mexican president, 1806–1872

- 1 Entre los individuos, como entre las Naciones, el respeto al derecho ajeno es la paz.
Among individuals, as among nations, respect for the rights of others is peace.
Manifiesto, 15 July 1867

Jack Judge

English entertainer, 1878–1938

- 1 It’s a long way to Tipperary,
It’s a long way to go;
It’s a long way to Tipperary,
To the sweetest girl I know!
“It’s a Long Way to Tipperary” (song) (1912)

Julian the Apostate (Flavius Claudius Julianus)

Roman emperor, 331–363

- 1 [Traditional version of his dying words:] Vicisti, Galilae.
You have won, Galilean.
Attributed in Theodoret, Ecclesiastical History (ca. 450). According to the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations, this is actually “a late embellishment of Theodoret.”

Julian of Norwich

English anchoress, ca. 1342–ca. 1413

- 1 Sin is behovely, but all shall be well and all shall be well and all manner of thing shall be well.
Revelations of Divine Love ch. 27 (ca. 1380)
See T. S. Eliot 125

Carl Gustav Jung

Swiss psychologist, 1875–1961

- 1 The great problems of life, including of course sex, are always related to the primordial images of the collective unconscious. These images are balancing and compensating factors that correspond to the problems which life confronts us with in reality. This is not matter for astonishment, since these images are deposits of thousands of years of experience of the struggle for existence and for adaptation.
Psychological Types ch. 5 (1921)
- 2 Among all my patients in the second half of life—that is to say, over thirty-five—there has not been one whose problem in the last resort was not that of finding a religious outlook on life.
“Psychotherapists or the Clergy” (1932)
- 3 The dream is a little hidden door in the innermost and most secret recesses of the soul, opening into that cosmic night which was psyche long before there was any ego-consciousness, and which will remain psyche no matter how far our ego-consciousness extends.
“The Meaning of Psychology for Modern Man” (1933)
- 4 The contents of the collective unconscious . . . are known as archetypes.
Eranos Jahrbuch (1934)
- 5 As far as we can discern, the sole purpose of human existence is to kindle a light of meaning in the darkness of mere being.
Memories, Dreams, Reflections ch. 11 (1962)
- 6 Every form of addiction is bad, no matter whether the narcotic be alcohol or morphine or idealism.
Memories, Dreams, Reflections ch. 12 (1962)

Junius

English pseudonymous author, fl. 1770

“Reflections on Sin, Pain, Hope, and the True Way” (1917–1920)

- 8 Someone must have traduced Joseph K., for without having done anything wrong he was arrested one fine morning.

The Trial ch. 1 (1925) (translation by Willa and Edwin Muir)

- 9 You may object that it is not a trial at all; you are quite right, for it is only a trial if I recognize it as such.

The Trial ch. 2 (1925) (translation by Willa and Edwin Muir)

- 10 It’s often better to be in chains than to be free.

The Trial ch. 8 (1925) (translation by Willa and Edwin Muir)

- 11 “Like a dog!” he said: it was as if the shame of it must outlive him.

The Trial ch. 10 (1925) (translation by Willa and Edwin Muir)

- 12 This village belongs to the Castle, and whoever lives here or passes the night here does so in a manner of speaking in the Castle itself. Nobody may do that without the Count’s permission.

The Castle ch. 1 (1926) (translation by Willa and Edwin Muir)

Gus Kahn

U.S. songwriter, 1886–1941

- 1 There's nothing surer,
The rich get rich and the poor get children,
In the meantime,
In between time,
Ain't we got fun?
"Ain't We Got Fun" (song) (1920). Cowritten with Raymond B. Egan.
See Bible 264; Merton 4; Modern Proverbs 75

Daniel Kahneman

Israeli-born U.S. psychologist and economist, 1934–

- 1 Nothing in life is as important as you think it is when you are thinking about it.
Thinking, Fast and Slow ch. 38 (2011)

Kālidāsa

Indian playwright and poet, fl. ca. 400

- 1 We have watered the trees that blossom in the summer-time. Now let's sprinkle those whose flowering-time is past. That will be a better deed because we shall not be working for a reward.
Shakuntala act 1 (translation by Arthur W. Ryder)

Wendy Kaminer

U.S. lawyer and writer, 1949–

- 1 Only people who die very young learn all they really need to know in kindergarten.
I'm Dysfunctional, You're Dysfunctional introduction
(1992). Kaminer is referring to Robert Fulghum's 1988 book, All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten.

Wassily Kandinsky

Russian painter, 1866–1944

many cases, the mother of our emotions.
Concerning the Spiritual in Art pt. 1 (1911)

Helen Kane

U.S. singer, 1903–1966

- 1 Boop-boop-a-doop.
"That's My Weakness Now" (song) (1928). Kane interpolated these syllables while singing "That's My Weakness Now" in 1928. Beginning in 1930 they were used as the catchphrase of cartoon character
Betty Boop, who was modeled on Kane.

Immanuel Kant

German philosopher, 1724–1804

- 1 Out of the crooked timber of humanity no straight thing can ever be made.
The Idea of a Universal History proposition 6 (1784)
- 2 There is nothing it is possible to think of anywhere in the world, or indeed anything at all outside it, that can be held to be good without limitation, excepting only a good will.
Groundwork for the Metaphysics of Morals sec. 1 (1785)
(translation by Allen W. Wood)
- 3 I ought never to conduct myself except so that I could also will that my maxim become a universal law.
Groundwork for the Metaphysics of Morals sec. 1 (1785)
(translation by Allen W. Wood)
- 4 Finally, there is one imperative that, without being grounded on any other aim to be achieved through a certain course of conduct as its condition, commands this conduct immediately. This imperative is categorical. . . .
This imperative may be called that of morality.
Groundwork for the Metaphysics of Morals sec. 2 (1785)
(translation by Allen W. Wood)

5 Act so that you use humanity, as much in your own person as in the person of every other, always at the same time as end and never merely as means.

Groundwork for the Metaphysics of Morals sec. 2 (1785)
(translation by Allen W. Wood)

6 Two things fill the mind with ever new and increasing admiration and awe, the oftener and more steadily we reflect on them: the starry heavens above me and the moral law within me.

Critique of Practical Reason conclusion (1788)
(translation by Lewis White Beck)

Alphonse Karr

French novelist and journalist, 1808–1890

1 Si l'on veut abolir la peine de mort en ce cas, que MM. les assassins commencent.

If the death penalty is to be abolished, let those gentlemen, the murderers, do it first.

Les Guêpes, Jan. 1849

2 Plus ça change, plus c'est la même chose.

The more things change, the more they remain the same.

Les Guêpes, July 1848

Beatrice Kaufman

U.S. writer, 1895–1945

1 I've been poor and I've been rich. Rich is better!

Quoted in Wash. Post, 12 May 1937. This quotation is invariably attributed to Sophie Tucker, but the usage by Kaufman occurs years before any evidence linking it to Tucker.

Alan Kay

U.S. computer scientist, 1940–

- 1 [Remark at meeting between Palo Alto Research Center scientists and Xerox planners, 1971.] The best way to predict the future is to invent it. Quoted in InfoWorld, 26 Apr. 1982

Susanna Kaysen

U.S. writer, 1948–

- 1 This time I read the title of the painting: Girl Interrupted at Her Music. Interrupted at her music: as my life had been, interrupted in the music of being seventeen, as her life had been, snatched and fixed on canvas: one moment made to stand still and to stand for all the other moments, whatever they would be or might have been. What life can recover from that?
Girl, Interrupted (1993)

Nikos Kazantzakis

Greek writer, 1883–1957

- 1 How simple and frugal a thing is happiness: a glass of wine, a roast chestnut, a wretched little brazier, the sound of the sea. . . . All that is required to feel that here and now is happiness is a simple, frugal heart.
Zorba the Greek ch. 7 (1946) (translation by Carl Wildman)
- 2 “Life is trouble,” Zorba continued. “Death, no. To live—do you know what that means? To undo your belt and look for trouble!”
Zorba the Greek ch. 8 (1946) (translation by Carl Wildman)

Bil Keane

U.S. cartoonist, 1922–2011

- 1 Yesterday’s the past, tomorrow’s the future, but today is a GIFT. That’s why it’s called the present.
The Family Circus (comic strip), 31 Aug. 1994

John Keats

English poet, 1795–1821

- 1 Much have I travelled in the realms of gold.
“On First Looking into Chapman’s Homer” l. 1 (1817)
- 2 Oft of one wide expanse had I been told
That deep-brow’d Homer ruled as his demesne;
Yet did I never breathe its pure serene
Till I heard Chapman speak out loud and bold.
“On First Looking into Chapman’s Homer” l. 5 (1817)
- 3 Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
When a new planet swims into his ken;
Or like stout Cortez when with eagle eyes
He stared at the Pacific—and all his men
Looked at each other with a wild surmise—
Silent, upon a peak in Darien.
“On First Looking into Chapman’s Homer” l. 9 (1817)
- 4 To one who has been long in city pent,
’Tis very sweet to look into the fair
And open face of heaven.
“To One Who Has Been Long in City Pent” l. 1 (1817)
See Milton 40
- 5 I am certain of nothing but the holiness of the heart’s affections and the truth of imagination—what the imagination seizes as beauty must be truth—whether it existed before or not.
Letter to Benjamin Bailey, 22 Nov. 1817
See George Herbert 3; Keats 16
- 6 At once it struck me, what quality went to form a Man of Achievement especially in Literature & which Shakespeare possessed so enormously—I mean Negative Capability, that is, when man is capable of being in uncertainties, Mysteries, doubts, without any irritable reaching after fact & reason.
Letter to George and Thomas Keats, 21 Dec. 1817
- 7 When I have fears that I may cease to be
Before my pen has gleaned my teeming brain.
“When I Have Fears” l. 1 (written 1818)
- 8 There is not a fiercer hell than the failure in a great object.
Endymion preface (1818)
- 9 A thing of beauty is a joy for ever:
Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness; but still will keep
A bower quiet for us, and a sleep

- Full of sweet dreams, and health, and quiet breathing.
Endymion bk. I, l. 1 (1818)
- 10 If poetry comes not as naturally as the leaves to a tree it had better not come at all.
Letter to John Taylor, 27 Feb. 1818
- 11 I think I shall be among the English Poets after my death.
Letter to George and Georgiana Keats, 14 Oct. 1818
- 12 Call the world if you please “The vale of soul-making.”
Letter to George and Georgiana Keats, 21 Apr. 1819
- 13 Oh, what can ail thee knight-at-arms,
Alone and palely loitering?
“La Belle Dame Sans Merci” l. 1 (1820)
- 14 I saw pale kings and princes too,
Pale warriors, death-pale were they all;
They cried—“La Belle Dame sans Merci
Hath thee in thrall!”
“La Belle Dame Sans Merci” l. 37 (1820)
- 15 Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard
Are sweeter; therefore, ye soft pipes, play on;
Not to the sensual ear, but, more endeared,
Pipe to the spirit ditties of no tone.
“Ode on a Grecian Urn” l. 11 (1820)
- 16 When old age shall this generation waste,
Thou shalt remain, in midst of other woe
Than ours, a friend to man, to whom thou say’st,
“Beauty is truth, truth beauty,”—that is all
Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know.
“Ode on a Grecian Urn” l. 46 (1820)
See George Herbert 3; Keats 5
- 17 She dwells with Beauty—Beauty that must die;
And Joy, whose hand is ever at his lips
Bidding adieu.
“Ode on Melancholy” l. 21 (1820)
- 18 Not charioted by Bacchus and his pards,
But on the viewless wings of Poesy,
Though the dull brain perplexes and retards:
Already with thee! tender is the night,
And haply the Queen-Moon is on her throne.
“Ode to a Nightingale” l. 32 (1820)
- 19 Thou wast not born for death, immortal bird!
No hungry generations tread thee down;
The voice I hear this passing night was heard
- In ancient days by emperor and clown:
Perhaps the self-same song that found a path
Through the sad heart of Ruth, when, sick for home,
She stood in tears amid the alien corn;
The same that oft-times hath Charmed magic casements, opening on the foam
Of perilous seas, in faery lands forlorn.
“Ode to a Nightingale” l. 61 (1820)
- 20 Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness,
Close bosom-friend of the maturing sun;
Conspiring with him how to load and bless
With fruit the vines that round the thatch-eaves run.
“To Autumn” l. 1 (1820)
- 21 Where are the songs of Spring? Ay, where are they?
Think not of them, thou hast thy music too.
“To Autumn” l. 23 (1820)
- 22 “If I should die,” said I to myself, “I have left no immortal work behind me—nothing to make my friends proud of my memory—but I have loved the principle of beauty in all things, and if I had had time I would have made myself remembered.”
Letter to Fanny Brawne, ca. Feb. 1820
- 23 I always made an awkward bow.
Letter to Charles Armitage Brown, 30 Nov. 1820
- 24 Among the many things he [Keats] has requested of me to-night, this is the principal one,—that on his grave-stone shall be this,— HERE LIES ONE WHOSE NAME WAS WRIT IN WATER.
John Keats, reported in Joseph Severn, Letter to Charles Armitage Brown, 14 Feb. 1821. Keats is thought to have been inspired by a line in Francis Beaumont and John Fletcher’s 1620 play Philaster:
“All your better deeds / Shall be in water writ.”
See Shakespeare 453

U.S. priest and broadcaster, 1900–1977

- I A Christopher spends his time improving, not disapproving, because he knows that “it is better to light one candle than to curse the darkness.”
You Can Change the World! “Explaining the Christophers” (1948). Keller chose this “ancient Chinese proverb” as the motto of the Christophers, a religious society he founded in 1945. This may indeed have been a Chinese saying, given the Frederick (Md.) Post printing the following on 8 July 1940: “One of the leaders of new China said to a friend of mine recently, ‘I had rather light a candle in the darkness than to curse the darkness.’” On the other hand, “It is far better to light the candle than to curse the darkness” appeared in a 1907 American book, The Supreme Conquest and Other Sermons by W. L. Watkinson.

William Thomson, Lord Kelvin

Irish-born Scottish physicist and mathematician, 1824–1907

1 I often say that when you can measure what you are speaking about, and express it in numbers, you know something about it; but when you cannot measure it, when you cannot express it in numbers, your knowledge is of a meagre and unsatisfactory kind: it may be the beginning of knowledge, but you have scarcely, in your thoughts, advanced to the stage of science, whatever the matter may be.

Popular Lectures and Addresses "Electrical Units of Measurement" (1889). The lecture from which this passage is taken was delivered 3 May 1883.

Thomas Ken

English clergyman, 1637–1711

1 Praise God, from whom all blessings flow!
Praise Him, all creatures here below!
Praise Him above, ye heavenly host!
Praise Father, Son, and Holy Ghost!
"Awake my soul, and with the sun" (hymn) (1695)

William Kendall

U.S. architect, 1856–1941

1 Neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds.

Inscription on U.S. Post Office Building, New York, N.Y. (1912). Kendall, who was the designer of the Post Office Building, wrote these words as a free translation of Herodotus, Histories, vol. 4, book 8, verse 98. A more exact translation, by A. D. Godley, reads: "It is said that as many days as there are in the whole journey, so many are the men and horses that stand along the road, each horse and man at the interval of a day's journey, and these are stayed neither by snow nor rain nor heat nor darkness from accomplishing their appointed course with due speed."

Thomas Keneally

Australian writer, 1935–

1 The list is an absolute good. The list is life. All around its cramped margins lies the gulf.

Schindler's Ark ch. 31 (1982)

George Kennan

U.S. explorer and author, 1845–1924

1 [Proverb of Caucasian mountaineers:] Heroism is endurance for one moment more.

Journal of the American Geographical Society vol. 15 (1883)

George F. Kennan

U.S. diplomat, 1904–2005

1 It is clear that the main element of any United States policy toward the Soviet Union must be that of a long-term, patient but firm and vigilant containment of Russian expansive tendencies.

"The Sources of Soviet Conduct," Foreign Affairs, July 1947

Anthony Kennedy

U.S. judge, 1936–

1 [On same-sex couples seeking the right to marry:] These men and women . . . ask for equal dignity in the eyes of the law. The Constitution grants them that right.

Obergefell v. Hodges (2015)

Edward M. Kennedy

U.S. politician, 1932–2009

1 For me, a few hours ago, this campaign came to an end. For all those whose cares have been our concern, the work goes on, the cause endures, the hope still lives, and the dream shall never die.

Speech at Democratic National Convention, New York, N.Y., 13 Aug. 1980

Florynce Kennedy

U.S. lawyer, 1916–2000

- 1 Oppressed people are frequently very oppressive when first liberated. And why wouldn't they be? They know best two positions. Somebody's foot on their neck or their foot on somebody's neck.

"Institutionalized Oppression vs. the Female" (1970)

- 2 If men could get pregnant, abortion would be a sacrament.

Quoted in Off Our Backs, 24 June 1971. This citation was referring to a speech Kennedy gave at a Washington, D.C., rally on 15 May 1971. Gloria Steinem later stated that the witticism was originated with an elderly female Irish cabdriver who was transporting Kennedy and Steinem around Boston or Cambridge.

- 3 There are very few jobs that actually require a penis or vagina. All other jobs should be open to everybody.

Quoted in Ms., Mar. 1973

Jimmy Kennedy

Irish songwriter, 1902–1984

- 1 Today's the day the teddy bears have their picnic.

"The Teddy Bears' Picnic" (song) (1932)

- 2 In out in out shake it all about,
You do the Hokey Cokey
And you turn around.
That's what it's all about.

"Hokey Cokey" (song) (1942). William Wells Newell, Games and Songs of American Children (1883), records the following: "Put your right elbow in, Put your right elbow out, Shake yourselves a little, And turn yourselves about."

- 3 Even old New York was once New Amsterdam
Why they changed it I can't say
People just liked it better that way.

"Istanbul (Not Constantinople)" (song) (1953)

- 4 Why did Constantinople get the works
That's nobody's business but the Turks'.

"Istanbul (Not Constantinople)" (song) (1953)

John F. Kennedy

U.S. president, 1917–1963

- 1 I have just received the following telegram from my generous Daddy. It says, "Dear Jack:

Don't buy a single vote more than necessary. I'll be damned if I'm going to pay for a landslide."

Remarks at Gridiron Dinner, Washington, D.C., 15 Mar. 1958. The telegram was undoubtedly an invention of the younger Kennedy's.

- 2 When written in Chinese, the word crisis is composed of two characters. One represents danger and the other represents opportunity. Speech to United Negro College Fund, Indianapolis, Ind., 12 Apr. 1959. The assertion about the Chinese characters, which is a questionable one, appeared as early as the Jan. 1938 issue of the journal Chinese Recorder.

- 3 This is not a time to keep the facts from the people—to keep them complacent. To sound the alarm is not to panic but to seek action from an aroused public. For, as the poet Dante once said: "The hottest places in hell are reserved for those who, in a time of great moral crisis, maintain their neutrality."

Speech, Tulsa, Okla., 16 Sept. 1959 (printed in John F. Kennedy, The Strategy of Peace, ed. Allan Nevins [1960]). No passage in Dante matches Kennedy's words, so the quotation seems to belong to Kennedy rather than the poet. Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., states in A Thousand Days (1965) that Kennedy wrote "The hottest places in Hell are reserved for those who, in a period of moral crisis, maintain their neutrality" in a loose-leaf notebook of quotations Kennedy kept in 1945–1946 and attributed these words to Dante. Kennedy may have gotten the sentence from Henry Powell Spring, What Is Truth (1944), where it appeared identically and was attributed to Dante.

- 4 We stand today on the edge of a new frontier—the frontier of the Nineteen Sixties—the frontier of unknown opportunities and perils—the frontier of unfulfilled hopes and unfulfilled threats. . . . The New Frontier of which

- I speak is not a set of promises—it is a set of challenges. It sums up not what I intend to offer to the American people, but what I intend to ask of them.
- Speech accepting Democratic presidential nomination, Los Angeles, Calif., 15 July 1960. According to American Heritage Dictionary of American Quotations, ed. Margaret Miner and Hugh Rawson, “The ‘new frontier’ phrase had been used before. In 1934, Henry Wallace published a book entitled New Frontiers, and in 1936 Alf Landon, the Republican candidate for president also spoke of ‘a new frontier . . . a frontier of invention and new wants.’” Walt W. Rostow is credited with suggesting the phrase “new frontier” to Kennedy at a Boston cocktail party, 16 June 1960. - 6 For those to whom much is given, much is required. And when at some future date the high court of history sits in judgment on each of us—recording whether in our brief span of service we fulfilled our responsibilities to the state—our success or failure, in whatever office we hold, will be measured by the answers to four questions: First, were we truly men of courage. . . . Secondly, were we truly men of judgment. . . . Third, were we truly men of integrity. . . . Finally, were we truly men of dedication.

- 7 Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans—born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a hard and bitter peace, proud of our ancient heritage.
- Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1961
- 8 Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival and the success of liberty.
- Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1961
- 9 If a free society cannot help the many who are poor, it cannot save the few who are rich.
- Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1961
- 10 To our sister republics south of our border, we offer a special pledge—to convert our good words into good deeds—in a new alliance for progress—to assist free men and free governments in casting off the chains of poverty.
- Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1961
- 11 Let us never negotiate out of fear. But let us never fear to negotiate.
- Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1961
- 12 If a beach-head of cooperation may push back the jungle of suspicion, let both sides join in creating a new endeavor, not a new balance of power, but a new world of law, where the strong are just and the weak secure and the peace preserved. All this will not be finished in the first one hundred days. Nor will it be finished in the first one thousand days, nor in the life of this Administration, nor even perhaps in our lifetime on this planet. But let us begin.
- Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1961
- 13 Now the trumpet summons us again—not as a call to bear arms, though arms we need—not as a call to battle, though embattled we are—but a call to bear the burden of a long twilight struggle, year in and year out, “rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation”—a struggle against the common enemies of man: tyranny, poverty, disease, and war itself.
- Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1961. The words in quotation marks are from the Bible, Romans 12:12.
- 14 In the long history of the world, only a few generations have been granted the role of defending freedom in its hour of maximum danger. I do not shrink from this responsibility—I welcome it.
- Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1961
- 15 The energy, the faith, the devotion which we bring to this endeavor will light our country and all who serve it—and the glow from that fire can truly light the world.
- Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1961

- 16 And so, my fellow Americans: ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country. My fellow citizens of the world: ask not what America will do for you, but what together we can do for the freedom of man.

- 17 With a good conscience our only sure reward, with history the final judge of our deeds, let us go forth to lead the land we love, asking His blessing and His help, but knowing that here on earth God's work must truly be our own.
Inaugural Address, 20 Jan. 1961

- 19 First, I believe that this nation should commit itself to achieving the goal, before this decade is out, of landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to the earth. No single space project in this period will be more impressive to mankind, or more important for the long-range exploration of space; and none will be so difficult or expensive to accomplish.
Special message to joint session of Congress on urgent national needs, 25 May 1961
- 20 I do not think it altogether inappropriate to introduce myself to this audience. I am the man who accompanied Jacqueline Kennedy to Paris, and I have enjoyed it.
Speech at SHAPE headquarters, Paris, 2 June 1961
- 21 Mankind must put an end to war or war will put an end to mankind.
Address to United Nations General Assembly, New York, N.Y., 25 Sept. 1961
- 22 Somebody once said that Washington was a city of Northern charm and Southern efficiency.
Remarks to trustees and advisory committee of national cultural center, 14 Nov. 1961. Although this bon mot is associated with Kennedy, Warren Magnuson (senator from Washington) was quoted in the New Orleans Times-Picayune, 2 Oct. 1945: "Washington—with its Northern charm and Southern efficiency."
- 23 Those who make peaceful revolution impossible will make violent revolution inevitable.
Address on first anniversary of Alliance for Progress, 13 Mar. 1962
- 24 Some men are killed in a war and some men are wounded, and some men never leave the country, and some men are stationed in the Antarctic and some are stationed in San Francisco. It's very hard in military or in personal life to assure complete equality. Life is unfair.

Remarks at dinner honoring Nobel Prize winners of the Western Hemisphere, Washington, D.C., 29 Apr. 1962
- 26 A rising tide lifts all the boats.
Remarks, Pueblo, Colo., 17 Aug. 1962. In a later address Kennedy referred to this as a saying from Cape Cod, Massachusetts. Earlier occurrences date as far back as The Missionary Voice, May 1911: "The rising tide lifts all boats."
- 27 We choose to go to the moon in this decade and do the other things, not because they are easy, but because they are hard, because that goal will serve to organize and measure the best of our energies and skills.
Address at Rice University on nation's space effort, Houston, Tex., 12 Sept. 1962
- 28 We are prepared to discuss a détente affecting NATO and the Warsaw pact.
Message to Nikita Khrushchev, Oct. 1962
- 29 We don't see the end of the tunnel, but I must say I don't think it is darker than it was a year ago, and in some ways lighter.

- 30 We can help make the world safe for diversity. For, in the final analysis, our most basic common link is that we all inhabit this small planet. We all breathe the same air. We all

Commencement Address at American University, Washington, D.C., 10 June 1963
- 31 Every American ought to have the right to be treated as he would wish to be treated, as one would wish his children to be treated. But this is not the case.
Broadcast address on civil rights, 11 June 1963
- 32 No one has been barred on account of his race from fighting or dying for America—there are no “white” or “colored” signs on the foxholes or graveyards of battle.
Special Message to Congress on Civil Rights, 19 June 1963
- 33 All free men, wherever they may live, are citizens of Berlin, and, therefore, as a free man, I take pride in the words “Ich bin ein Berliner” [I am a Berliner].
Remarks in Rudolf Wilde Platz, West Berlin, Germany, 26 June 1963. Kennedy's statement is frequently cited as an example of an unintentional gaffe because Berliner in German can have the meaning “jelly-filled doughnut.” Reinhold Aman has debunked this legend, arguing that Kennedy's listeners would have clearly understood him to be referring to a “male inhabitant of Berlin” (Maledicta vol. 11).
- 34 Yesterday a shaft of light cut into the darkness. . . . For the first time, an agreement has been reached on bringing the forces of nuclear destruction under international control.
Broadcast address on Nuclear Test Ban Treaty, 26 July 1963
- 35 When power leads man towards arrogance, poetry reminds him of his limitations. When power narrows the areas of man's concern, poetry reminds him of the richness and diversity of his existence. When power corrupts, poetry cleanses. For art establishes the basic human truth which must serve as the touchstone of our judgment.

- 38 [On the appointment of his brother Robert F. Kennedy as attorney general:] I can't see that it's wrong to give him a little legal experience before he goes out to practice law.
Quoted in Victor Lasky, J.F.K.: The Man and the Myth (1963)
- 39 [Of the Bay of Pigs invasion:] All my life I've known better than to depend on the experts. How could I have been so stupid, to let them go ahead?
Quoted in Theodore C. Sorensen, Kennedy (1965)
- 40 [Responding to the question, “How did you become a war hero?”:] It was involuntary. They sank my boat.
Quoted in Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., A Thousand Days (1965)
- 41 [Remark, 13 Oct. 1960:] Do you realize the responsibility I carry? I'm the only person standing between Nixon and the White House.
Quoted in Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., A Thousand Days (1965)

Joseph P. Kennedy

U.S. businessman and politician, 1888–1969

I Don't get mad, get even.

Quoted in Ben Bradlee, Conversations with Kennedy (1975). An earlier occurrence appeared in the Chicago Tribune, 21 Feb. 1967: “The motto of the Irish Mafia which Bobby [Kennedy] inherited has always been, ‘Don't get mad—get even,’ a slogan which predates the Kennedys in Massachusetts politics.” Still earlier, “Don't get mad—get even” appeared in a list of teenagers' expressions in the Newport (R.I.) Daily News, 14 June 1956.

Jomo Kenyatta

Kenyan president, 1891–1978

- 1 The African is conditioned, by the cultural and social institutions of centuries, to a freedom of which Europe has little conception, and it is not in his nature to accept serfdom forever.
He realizes that he must fight unceasingly for his own emancipation; for without this he is doomed to remain the prey of rival imperialisms.

Hugh Keough

U.S. journalist, 1864–1912

- 1 The race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong; but that is the way to bet.
Quoted in Collier's, Feb. 1919. Garson O'Toole has found that Hugh S. Fullerton, in a 1912 booklet titled
By HEK, quoted Keough as follows: "The race is not always to the swift, but that is where to look." O'Toole also found "The race is—if not always—ninety-nine times in a hundred—to the swift, and the battle to the strong" (Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine, Oct. 1833).

Nancy Kerrigan

U.S. figure skater, 1969–

- 1 Why? Why? It hurts so much. Why me?

Quoted in Time, 17 Jan. 1994. Kerrigan said this after being hit on the leg by an assailant with a metal rod at Cobo Arena, Detroit, Mich., 6 Jan. 1994.

John Kerry

U.S. politician, 1943–

- 1 [Of the Vietnam War:] How do you ask a man to be the last man to die for a mistake?

Testimony before Senate Foreign Relations Committee, 22 Apr. 1971

- 2 [Of a 2003 Senate vote against funds for the war in Iraq, criticized in Republican campaign advertisements:] I actually did vote for the $87 billion, before I voted against it.

Remarks at Marshall University, Huntington, W.V., 16 Mar. 2004

Ken Kesey

U.S. novelist, 1935–2001

- 1 When I get out of here the first woman that takes on ol' Red McMurphy the ten-thousand-watt psychopath, she's gonna light up like a pinball machine and pay off in silver dollars!
- 2 Mostly, I'd just like to look over the country around the gorge again, just to bring some of it clear in my mind again. I been away a long time.
- 3 There are going to be times when we can't wait for somebody. Now, you're either on the bus or off the bus. If you're on the bus, and you get left behind, then you'll find it again. If you're off the bus in the first place—then it won't make a damn.

Quoted in Tom Wolfe, The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test (1968)

Joseph Kesselring

U.S. playwright, 1902–1967

- 1 Insanity runs in my family. It practically gallops!
Arsenic and Old Lace act 2 (1941)

Charles F. Kettering

U.S. electrical engineer and inventor, 1876–1958

- 1 I am interested in the future because I expect to spend the rest of my life in the future.

Quoted in L.A. Times, 19 July 1939

Thomas Kettle

Irish economist and poet, 1880–1916

- 1 Dublin Castle, if it did not know what the Irish people want, could not so infallibly have maintained its tradition of giving them the opposite.

Quoted in Ulick O'Connor, The Troubles: Ireland, 1912–1922 (1975)

Ellen Karolina Sofia Key

Swedish writer and feminist, 1849–1926

- 1 The emancipation of women is practically the greatest egoistic movement of the nineteenth century, and the most intense affirmation of the right of the self that history has yet seen.

The Century of the Child ch. 2 (1900)

- 2 The worst barbarity of war is that it forces men collectively to commit acts against which individually they would revolt with their whole being.

War, Peace, and the Future ch. 6 (1916) (translation by Hildegard Norberg)

Francis Scott Key

U.S. lawyer, 1779–1843

- 1 Oh, say, can you see by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?

Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight,

O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?

"The Star-Spangled Banner" (song) st. 1 (1814).

These lyrics and the ones below first appeared in Key's 1814 poem "Defence of Fort McHenry." "The Star-Spangled Banner" was designated the national anthem of the United States in 1916.

2 And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.
Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?
"The Star-Spangled Banner" (song) st. 1 (1814). The words Star Spangled flag had been used in a poem by Key published in 1805.

3 Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto, "In God is our trust."
"The Star-Spangled Banner" (song) st. 4 (1814)

3 Lenin was certainly right. There is no subtler, no surer means of overturning the existing basis of society than to debauch the currency.
The process engages all the hidden forces of economic law on the side of destruction, and does it in a manner which not one man in a million is able to diagnose.

The attributed Lenin discussion here has never been found in Lenin's writings, and Keynes may have invented it.

4 But this long run is a misleading guide to current affairs. In the long run we are all dead.

5 Professor [Max] Planck of Berlin, the famous originator of the Quantum Theory, once remarked to me that in early life he had thought of studying economics, but had found it too difficult!

6 Marxian Socialism must always remain a portent to the historians of Opinion—how a doctrine so illogical and so dull can have exercised so powerful and enduring an influence over the minds of men, and, through them, the events of history.

The End of Laissez-Faire pt. 3 (1926)

7 I believe that in many cases the ideal size for the unit of control and organization lies somewhere between the individual and the modern State. I suggest, therefore, that progress lies in the growth and the recognition of semi-autonomous bodies within the State.

The End of Laissez-Faire pt. 4 (1926)

8 The important thing for Government is not to do things which individuals are doing already,
and to do them a little better or a little worse;
but to do those things which at present are not done at all.

The End of Laissez-Faire pt. 4 (1926)

9 A "sound" banker, alas! is not one who foresees danger and avoids it, but one who, when he is ruined, is ruined in a conventional and orthodox way along with his fellows, so that no one can really blame him.

"The Consequences to the Banks of the Collapse of Money Values" (1931)

10 The love of money as a possession—as distinguished from the love of money as a means to the enjoyment and realities of life—will be recognized for what it is, a somewhat disgusting morbidity, one of those semicriminal, semi-pathological propensities which one hands over with a shudder to the specialists in mental disease.

Essays in Persuasion pt. 5 (1931)

11 If the Treasury were to fill old bottles with banknotes, bury them at suitable depths in disused coalmines which are then filled up to the surface with town rubbish, and leave it to private enterprise on well-tryed principles of laissez-faire to dig the notes up again . . . there need be no more unemployment.

The General Theory of Employment, Interest and Money
bk. 3, ch. 10 (1936)

- 12 Practical men, who believe themselves to be quite exempt from any intellectual influences, are usually the slaves of some defunct economist. Madmen in authority, who hear voices in the air, are distilling their frenzy from some academic scribbler of a few years back.

- 13 Owe your banker £1,000 and you are at his mercy; owe him £1 million and the position is reversed.

“Overseas Financial Policy in Stage III” (1945)

- 14 When my information changes, I change my mind. What do you do?

Attributed in Wall Street Journal, 13 Oct. 1978.

The 1978 attribution was made by economist Paul Samuelson. Eight years earlier, Samuelson himself had said the following without attribution to Keynes: “When events change, I change my mind. What do you do?” (Daily Labor Report, 21 Dec. 1970). (These citations were found by Garson O’Toole.) The most common wording now is “When the facts change, I change my mind. What do you do, sir?”

Khizr Khan

Pakistani-born U.S. lawyer, 1950–

- 1 [Addressing Donald Trump]: Have you even read the United States Constitution? . . . You have sacrificed nothing and no one.

Speech at Democratic National Convention, Philadelphia, Pa., 28 July 2016

Ruhollah Khomeini

Iranian religious and political leader, 1900–1989

- 1 Music is no different from opium. Music affects the human mind in a way that makes people think of nothing but music and sensual matters. . . . Music is a treason to the country, a treason to our youth, and we should cut out all this music and replace it with something instructive.

Ramadan speech, 23 July 1979

- 2 The author of the book entitled The Satanic Verses, which has been compiled, printed, and published in opposition to Islam, the Prophet and the Qur’an, as well as those publishers who were aware of its contents, have been sentenced to death. I call on all zealous Muslims to execute them quickly, wherever they find them.
Fatwa against Salman Rushdie, 14 Feb. 1989

Nikita S. Khrushchev

Russian statesman, 1894–1971

- 1 If anyone believes that our smiles involve abandonment of the teaching of Marx, Engels, and Lenin he deceives himself poorly. Those who wait for that must wait until a shrimp learns to whistle.

Speech at dinner for visiting East German dignitaries, Moscow, 17 Sept. 1955

- 2 Comrades! We must abolish the cult of the individual decisively, once and for all.

Speech to secret session of Twentieth Congress of Communist Party, 25 Feb. 1956. Frequently translated as “cult of personality.”

- 3 Whether you like it or not, history is on our side. We will bury you.

Speech to Western diplomats, Moscow, 18 Nov. 1956. Khrushchev later explained that he meant “bury” in the sense of “outlive.”

- 4 The Soviet Government . . . has given a new order to dismantle the arms which you describe as offensive [Soviet arms in Cuba], and to crate and return them to the Soviet Union.

Letter to John F. Kennedy, 28 Oct. 1962

- 5 [Remark, Belgrade, 21 Aug. 1963]: [Politicians] are the same all over. They promise to build a bridge even where there is no river.

Quoted in N.Y. Herald Tribune, 22 Aug. 1963

- 6 [Remark during visit to New York, N.Y., Oct. 1960]: There is no greenery. It is enough to make a stone sad.

Quoted in Barbara Rowes, The Book of Quotes (1979)

- 7 [Of nuclear war]: The living will envy the dead.

Attributed in Harper’s, Aug. 1979. According to Respectfully Quoted, ed. Suzy Platt, “no form of this quotation has been verified in the speeches or writings of Khrushchev.” A similar line appears in an article by Oliver Loud in Phylon vol. 9, no. 1 (1948).

Søren Kierkegaard

Danish philosopher, 1813–1855

- 1 It is quite true what Philosophy says: that Life must be understood backwards. But that makes one forget the other saying: that it must be lived—forwards.
Diary (1843)
- 2 “The absurd . . . the fact that with God all things are possible.” The absurd is not one of the factors which can be discriminated within the proper compass of the understanding: it is not identical with the improbable, the unexpected, the unforeseen.

James R. Killian

U.S. university president and government official, 1904–1988

- 1 It is useful to distinguish among four factors which give importance, urgency, and inevitability to the advancement of space technology. The first of these factors is the compelling urge of man to explore and to discover, the thrust of curiosity that leads men to try to go where no one has gone before.

B. B. King (Riley B. King)

U.S. blues musician, 1925–2015

- 1 I woke up this morning,
My baby was gone.
“Woke Up This Morning (My Baby’s Gone)” (song) (1952)

- 2 Nobody loves me but my mother—
And she could be jivin’, too.
“Nobody Loves Me But My Mother” (song) (1970)
- 3 Being a blues singer is like being black two times.
Quoted in Guitar Player, Sept. 1980

Carole King (Carole Klein)

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1942–

- 1 You make me feel like
A natural woman.
“(You Make Me Feel Like) A Natural Woman” (song) (1967)
- 2 Winter, spring, summer, or fall,
All you have to do is call
And I’ll be there.
You’ve got a friend.
“You’ve Got a Friend” (song) (1971)

Larry L. King

U.S. writer, 1929–2012

- 1 The only way you can lose this election, Joe, is to get caught in bed with a live man or a dead woman.
Harper’s, Nov. 1966

U.S. civil rights leader, 1929–1968

- 1 It is historically and biologically true that there can be no birth and growth without birth and growing pains. Whenever there is the emergence of the new we confront the recalcitrance of the old. So the tensions which we witness in the world today are indicative of the fact that a new world order is being born and an old order is passing away.

- 7 One who breaks an unjust law must do so openly, lovingly, . . . and with a willingness to accept the penalty.
 "Letter from Birmingham Jail," 16 Apr. 1963
- 8 I submit that an individual who breaks a law that conscience tells him is unjust, and who willingly accepts the penalty of imprisonment in order to arouse the conscience of the community over its injustice, is in reality expressing the highest respect for law.
 "Letter from Birmingham Jail," 16 Apr. 1963
- 9 We can never forget that everything Adolf Hitler did in Germany was "legal" and everything the Hungarian freedom fighters did in Hungary was "illegal."
 "Letter from Birmingham Jail," 16 Apr. 1963
- 10 I have a dream this afternoon that my four little children, that my four little children will not come up in the same young days that I came up within, but they will be judged on the basis of the content of their character, and not the color of their skin.

15 The means by which we live have outdistanced the ends for which we live. Our scientific power has outrun our spiritual power. We have guided missiles and misguided men.

Strength to Love ch. 7 (1963)

16 I believe that unarmed truth and unconditional love will have the final word in reality. This is why right temporarily defeated is stronger than evil triumphant.

Nobel Prize acceptance speech, Oslo, Norway, 10 Dec. 1964

17 A riot is at bottom the language of the unheard.

Where Do We Go from Here? ch. 4 (1967)

18 Even if it falls your lot to be a street sweeper, go on out and sweep streets like Michelangelo painted pictures; sweep streets like Handel and Beethoven composed music; sweep streets like Shakespeare wrote poetry; sweep streets so well that all the host of heaven and earth will have to pause and say, "Here lived a great street sweeper who swept his job well."

Sermon at New Covenant Baptist Church, Chicago, Ill., 9 Apr. 1967

19 [Suggesting his own eulogy:] Yes, if you want to say that I was a drum major, say that I was a drum major for justice; say that I was a drum major for peace; I was a drum major for righteousness.

Sermon delivered at Ebenezer Baptist Church, Atlanta, Ga., 4 Feb. 1968

20 Like anybody, I would like to live a long life.

Longevity has its place. But I'm not concerned about that now. I just want to do God's will.

And He's allowed me to go up to the mountain. And I've looked over, and I've seen the promised land. I may not get there with you, but I want you to know tonight that we as a people will get to the promised land.

Address to sanitation workers, Memphis, Tenn., 3 Apr. 1968. King was assassinated the day after making this address. In a sermon in Montgomery, Ala., 27 Jan. 1957, King had stated: "If I had to die tomorrow morning I would die happy because I've been to the mountaintop and I've seen the promised land and it's going to be here in Montgomery."

21 I want to be the white man's brother, not his brother-in-law.

Sexual Behavior in the Human Male ch. 10 (1948)
- 2 Males do not represent two discrete populations, heterosexual and homosexual. The world is not to be divided into sheep and goats. Not all things are black nor all things white. It is a fundamental of taxonomy that nature rarely deals with discrete categories. Only the human mind invents categories and tries to force facts into separated pigeon-holes. The living world is a continuum in each and every one of its aspects. The sooner we learn this concerning human sexual behavior the sooner we shall reach a sound understanding of the realities of sex.

muddied oafs at the goals.
"The Islanders" l. 31 (1903)
- 30 That's the secret. 'Tisn't beauty, so to speak, nor good talk necessarily. It's just It. Some women'll stay in a man's memory if they once walked down a street.

- 31 If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you,
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt
you,
But make allowance for their doubting too.

And treat those two impostors just the same.
“If—” st. 2 (1910)
- 33 If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with Kings—nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much,
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds’ worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that’s in it,
And—which is more—you’ll be a Man, my son!
“If—” st. 4 (1910)
- 34 The female of the species is more deadly than the male.
“The Female of the Species” st. 1 (1911)
- 35 It is always a temptation to a rich and lazy nation,
To puff and look important and to say:—
“Though we know we should defeat you,
we have not the time to meet you.
We will therefore pay you cash to go away.”
And that is called paying the Dane-geld;
But we’ve proved it again and again,
That if once you have paid him the Dane-geld
You never get rid of the Dane.
School History “Dane-Geld (A.D. 980–1016)” (1911).
Coauthored with C. R. L. Fletcher.
- 36 If any question why we died,
Tell them, because our fathers lied.
“Common Form” l. 1 (1919)
- 37 Fiction is Truth’s elder sister. Obviously. No one in the world knew what truth was till somebody had told a story.
A Book of Words “Fiction” (1928)
- 38 Every nation, like every individual, walks in a vain show—else it could not live with itself—but I never got over the wonder of a people who, having extirpated the aboriginals of their continent more completely than any modern race had ever done, honestly believed that they were a godly little New England community, setting examples to brutal mankind.

Something of Myself ch. 5 (1937)

- 39 [Remark to Lord Beaverbrook, ca. 1917:] Power without responsibility: the prerogative of the harlot throughout the ages.
Quoted in Kipling Journal, Dec. 1971

Henry Kissinger

German-born U.S. statesman, 1923–

- 1 A conventional army loses if it does not win.
The guerilla army wins if he does not lose.
Foreign Affairs, Jan. 1969
- 2 There cannot be a crisis next week. My schedule is already full.
Quoted in N.Y. Times Magazine, 1 June 1969
- 3 Power is the great aphrodisiac.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 19 Jan. 1971
See Graham Greene 5; Napoleon 14
- 4 The illegal we do immediately; the unconstitutional takes a little longer.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 23 Dec. 1973
- 5 [Remark after the invasion of Cambodia, 1970:]
We are all the President’s men.
Quoted in Sunday Times (London), 4 May 1975
- 6 [Richard Nixon] would have been a great, great man had somebody loved him.
Quoted in Stephen Ambrose, Nixon: Ruin and Recovery 1973–1990 (1991)

Horatio Herbert Kitchener, First Earl Kitchener

British general and statesman, 1850–1916

- 1 [To the Prince of Wales during World War I:] I don’t mind your being killed, but I object to your being taken prisoner.
Quoted in Journals and Letters of Reginald Viscount Esher (1938) (entry for 18 Dec. 1914)

Walter Kittredge

U.S. songwriter, 1834–1905

- 1 Many are the hearts that are weary to-night,
Wishing for the war to cease,
Many are the hearts looking for the right,

To see the dawn of peace.
Tenting to-night, tenting to-night,
Tenting on the old campground.
“Tenting on the Old Campground” (song) (1864)

Paul Klee

Swiss artist, 1879–1940

- 1 Art does not reproduce the visible; rather, it makes visible.
“Creative Credo” sec. 1 (1920)
- 2 [Of drawing:] An active line on a walk, moving freely without a goal. A walk for a walk’s sake.
Pedagogical Sketchbook ch. 1 (1925)

Heinrich von Kleist

German playwright, 1777–1811

- 1 We’ve had some very caustic writings
Unwilling to concede that God exists.
However, the devil, so far as I’m aware,
No atheist has yet quite proved away.
The Broken Jug sc. 11 (1808) (translation by David Constantine)

William “Bill” Klem

U.S. baseball umpire, 1874–1951

- 1 It ain’t nothin’ till I call it.
Quoted in Mel Allen and Ed Fitzgerald, You Can’t Beat the Hours (1964). Although this is commonly attributed to Klem, it is worth noting that the L.A. Times, 20 Mar. 1948, attributed “It ain’t nothin’ until I call it” to a different umpire, Charlie Moran.

B. Kliban

U.S. cartoonist, 1935–1990

- 1 Cat: One Hell of a nice animal, frequently mistaken for a meatloaf.
Cat (1975)

Friedrich Maximilian von Klinger

German playwright, 1752–1831

- 1 Sturm und Drang.
Storm and Stress.
Title of play (1775). This title was suggested by Christoph Kaufmann.

Friedrich Klopstock

German poet, 1724–1803

- 1 God and I both knew what it meant once; now God alone knows.

Quoted in Cesare Lombroso, The Man of Genius (1891)

Damon Knight

U.S. science fiction writer, 1922–2002

- 1 [Punch line of story about aliens taking human beings to their planet:] It’s a cookbook!
“To Serve Man” (1950)

Mark Knopfler

Scottish rock musician, 1949–

- 1 Now look at them yo-yo’s that’s the way you do it
You play the guitar on the M.T.V.
That ain’t workin’ that’s the way you do it
Money for nothin’ and chicks for free.
“Money for Nothing” (song) (1985). Cowritten with Sting.

John Knowles

U.S. writer, 1926–2001

- 1 My war ended before I even put on a uniform; I was on active duty all my time at school; I killed my enemy there.
A Separate Peace ch. 13 (1959)
- 2 All of them, all except Phineas, constructed at infinite cost to themselves these Maginot Lines against this enemy they thought they saw across the frontier, this enemy who never attacked that way—if he ever attacked at all; if he was indeed the enemy.
A Separate Peace ch. 13 (1959)

John Knox

Scottish religious leader, ca. 1505–1572

- 1 Un homme avec Dieu est toujours dans la majorité.
A man with God is always in the majority.
Quoted in Inscription on Reformation Monument, Geneva, Switzerland
See Coolidge 2; Douglass 7; Andrew Jackson 7; Wendell Phillips 3; Thoreau 9

Philander C. Knox

U.S. politician, 1853–1921

- 1 Oh, Mr. President, do not let so great an achievement suffer from any taint of legality. Quoted in Tyler Dennett, John Hay: From Poetry to Politics (1933). Knox's reply, as attorney general, to President Theodore Roosevelt's 1903 request for a legal justification of his acquisition of the Panama Canal Zone.

Ronald Knox

English writer and priest, 1888–1957

- 1 It is stupid of modern civilization to have given up believing in the devil, when he is the only explanation of it.
Let Dons Delight ch. 8 (1939)
- 2 It is alleged by a friend of my family that I used to suffer from insomnia at the age of four; and that when she asked me how I managed to occupy my time at night I answered, "I lie awake and think about the past."
Literary Distractions (1958)
- 3 There once was a man who said, "God
Must think it exceedingly odd
If he finds that this tree
Continues to be
When there's no one about in the Quad."
Quoted in Langford Reed, Complete Limerick Book (1924). Quotation dictionaries typically add an anonymous response to this:
Dear Sir,
Your astonishment's odd:
I am always about in the Quad.
And that's why the tree
Will continue to be,
Since observed by
Yours faithfully,
God.

Donald Knuth

U.S. computer scientist, 1938–

- 1 Beware of bugs in the above code; I have only proved it correct, not tried it.
Memorandum to Peter van Emde Boas, 29 Mar. 1977

Edward I. Koch

U.S. politician, 1924–2013

- 1 [Catchphrase:] How'm I doing?
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 26 Feb. 1978. In the slightly different form, "How am I doing?," this was quoted in the N.Y. Times, 26 June 1977.

Kenneth Koch

U.S. writer, 1925–2002

- 1 I chopped down the house that you had been saving to live in next summer.
I am sorry, but it was morning, and I had nothing to do and its wooden beams were so inviting.
"Variations on a Theme by William Carlos Williams" l. 1 (1962)
- 2 In the yard across the street we saw a snowman holding a garbage can lid smashed into a likeness of the mad English king, George the Third.
"You Were Wearing" l. 13 (1962)

Anne Koedt

U.S. feminist, 1941–

- 1 Whenever female orgasm and frigidity are discussed, a false distinction is made between the vaginal and the clitoral orgasm. Frigidity has generally been defined by men as the failure of women to have vaginal orgasms. Actually the vagina is not a highly sensitive area and is not constructed to achieve orgasm. It is the clitoris which is the center of sexual sensitivity and which is the female equivalent of the penis.
"The Myth of the Vaginal Orgasm," Notes from the First Year (1968)

Ted Koehler

U.S. songwriter, 1894–1973

- 1 Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea.
Title of song (1931)
- 2 Don't know why there's no sun up in the sky.
Stormy weather,
Since my man and I ain't together.
"Stormy Weather" (song) (1933)

Arthur Koestler

Hungarian-born English writer, 1905–1983

- 1 The definition of the individual was: a multitude of one million divided by one million.
Darkness at Noon (1941) (translation by Daphne Hardy)
- 2 The God That Failed.
Title of book (1949). Koestler collaborated on the book, whose title referred to Communism, with five other writers.
- 3 Behaviorism is indeed a kind of flat-earth view of the mind . . . it has substituted for the erstwhile anthropomorphic view of the rat, a ratomorphic view of man.
The Ghost in the Machine pt. I, ch. I (1967)

The Koran

Quotations are taken from the translation by Arthur J. Arberry, The Koran Interpreted (1955).

- 1 In the Name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate.
Sura 1
- 2 We believe in God, and in that which has been sent down on us and sent down on Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, and Jacob, and the Tribes, and that which was given to Moses and Jesus and the Prophets, of their Lord; we make no division between any of them, and to Him we surrender.
Sura 2
- 3 The month of Ramadan, wherein the Koran was sent down to be a guidance to the people, and as clear signs of the Guidance and the Salvation. So let those of you, who are present at the month, fast it.
Sura 2
- 4 God there is no god but He, the Living, the Everlasting. Slumber seizes Him not, neither sleep; to Him belongs all that is in the heavens and the earth. Who is there that shall intercede with Him save by His leave?
He knows what lies before them and what is after them, and they comprehend not anything of His knowledge save such as He wills. His Throne comprises the heavens and earth; the preserving of them oppresses Him not; He is the All-high, the All-glorious.
Sura 2
- 5 No compulsion is there in religion.
Sura 2
- 6 God charges no soul save to its capacity . . . Our Lord, do Thou not burden us beyond what we have the strength to bear. And pardon us, and forgive us, and have mercy on us; Thou art our Protector. And help us against the people of the unbelievers.
Sura 2
- 7 There is no god but God.
Sura 3. "There is no god but God, and Muhammad is his messenger" is the creed known as the Shahada.
- 8 Men are the managers of the affairs of women.
Sura 4
- 9 Righteous women are therefore obedient, guarding the secret for God's guarding. And those you fear may be rebellious admonish; banish them to their couches, and beat them.
Sura 4
- 10 Whosoever fights in the way of God and is slain, or conquers, We shall bring him a mighty wage.
Sura 4
- 11 Glory be to Him, who carried His servant by night from the Holy Mosque to the Further Mosque the precincts of which We have blessed, that We might show him some of Our signs.
Sura 17
- 12 God is the Light of the heavens and the earth; the likeness of His Light is as a niche wherein is a lamp . . . kindled from a Blessed Tree, an olive that is neither of the East nor of the West whose oil wellnigh would shine, even if no fire touched it;

Light upon Light.

Sura 24

- 13 We indeed created man; and We know
what his soul whispers within him,
and We are nearer to him than the jugular vein.
Sura 50

- 14 He [God] is the First and the Last, the Outward and the Inward.
Sura 57

- 15 Recite: In the Name of thy Lord who created, created Man of a blood-clot.
Recite: And thy Lord is the Most Generous,
who taught by the Pen,
taught man that he knew not.
Sura 96

Alexander Korda (Sáncor László Kellner)

Hungarian-born English film director and producer, 1893–1956

- 1 It's not enough to be Hungarian, you must have talent too.
Quoted in Karol Kulik, *Alexander Korda: The Man
Who Could Work Miracles* (1975)

Alfred Korzybski

Polish-born U.S. philosopher of language, 1879–1950

- 1 A map is not the territory.
Science and Sanity (1933). This phrase was used in “A Non-Aristotelian System and Its Necessity for Rigour in Mathematics and Physics,” a paper presented before the American Mathematical Society, New Orleans, La., 28 Dec. 1931.
See Baudrillard 1

Jerzy Kosinski (Jerzy Lewinkopf)

Polish-born U.S. novelist, 1933–1991

- 1 I like to watch.
Being There pt. 5 (1971)

Larry Kramer

U.S. playwright and novelist, 1935–2020

- 1 We're all going to go crazy, living this epidemic [AIDS] every minute, while the rest of the world goes on out there, all around us, as if nothing is happening, going on with their own lives and not knowing what it's like, what we're going through. We're living through war, but where they're living it's peacetime, and we're all in the same country.

The Normal Heart act 2, sc. 11 (1985)

Stanley Kramer

U.S. film director, 1913–2001

- 1 Guess Who's Coming to Dinner.
Title of motion picture (1967)

Karl Kraus

Austrian satirist, 1874–1936

- 1 Intercourse with a woman is sometimes a satisfactory substitute for masturbation. But it takes a lot of imagination to make it work.

Die Fackel, 2 July 1907

- 2 There is no more unfortunate creature under the sun than a fetishist who yearns for a woman's shoe and has to settle for the whole woman.

Beim Wort Genommen (1909) (translation by Harry Zohn)

Herbert Kretzmer

South African–born English journalist and songwriter, 1925–2020

- 1 To love another person
Is to see the face of God!
“Wedding Chorale” (song) (1985). Appeared in the English version of the musical play Les Misérables.
There is a similar quotation in Victor Hugo's novel
Les Misérables, vol. 4, bk. 5, ch. 4: “Dieu est derrière tout, mais tout cache Dieu. Les choses sont noires, les créatures sont opaques. Aimer un être, c'est le rendre transparent” (God is behind everything, but everything hides God. Things are dark, creatures are opaque. To love a being is to render that being transparent).

Seymour Krim

U.S. writer and journalist, 1922–1989

- 1 [The New Yorker magazine stretches] its now rubber conscience to include tokens of radical chic and impressiveness on top but not at the bottom where it counts.

Shake It for the World, Smartass (1970). This book was published in January 1970, and the essay in question was written in 1962 (although not published at that time). Therefore it was Krim, and not Tom Wolfe, who coined the term radical chic, since Wolfe's usage was in June 1970.

See Tom Wolfe 1

Jiddu Krishnamurti

Indian theosophist, 1895–1986

- 1 Meditation is not a means to an end. It is both the means and the end.

Quoted in The Penguin Krishnamurti Reader, ed. Mary Lutyens (1970)

Julia Kristeva

Bulgarian-born French philosopher and literary critic, 1941–

- 1 Any text is constructed as a mosaic of quotations; any text is the absorption and transformation of another. The notion of intertextuality replaces that of intersubjectivity. “Word, Dialogue and Novel” (1969)

Kris Kristofferson

U.S. singer and actor, 1936–

- 1 Freedom's just another word for nothin' left to lose, Nothin' ain't worth nothin', but it's free.
“Me and Bobby McGee” (song) (1969). Cowritten with Fred L. Foster.

Irving Kristol

U.S. journalist and author, 1920–2009

- 1 History does not provide us with any instance of a society that repressed the economic liberties of the individual while being solicitous of his other liberties.
Two Cheers for Capitalism preface (1978)
- 2 If you believe that no one was ever corrupted by a book, you have also to believe that no one was ever improved by a book (or a play or a movie).
Reflections of a Neoconservative ch. 4 (1983)
- 3 [A neoconservative is] a liberal who has been mugged by reality.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 6 Dec. 1981

Ray Kroc

U.S. business executive, 1902–1984

- 1 What do you do when your competitor is drowning? Get a live hose and stick it in his mouth.
Quoted in Fortune, 28 Oct. 1996

Arthur Krock

U.S. journalist, 1886–1974

- 1 New Dealers and conservatives . . . are together in their opposition to what a press gallery wit has called “government by crony.”
N.Y. Times, 10 Feb. 1946. Krock later stated that “the press gallery wit” was himself.

Leopold Kronecker

German mathematician, 1823–1891

- 1 God made integers, all else is the work of man.
Quoted in Jahresbericht der Deutschen Mathematiker-Vereinigung (1893). Kronecker made this statement in a speech before the Society of German Scientists and Doctors in Berlin in 1886.

Pyotr Alexeevich Kropotkin

Russian revolutionary, geographer, and philosopher, 1842–1921

- 1 Sociability is as much a law of nature as mutual struggle . . . mutual aid is as much a law of animal life as mutual struggle.
Mutual Aid (1902)

Joseph Wood Krutch

U.S. critic and naturalist, 1893–1970

- 1 The most serious charge which can be brought against New England is not Puritanism but February.
The Twelve Seasons: A Perpetual Calendar for the Country “February: The One We Could Do Without” (1949)
- 2 Cats seem to go on the principle that it never does any harm to ask for what you want.
The Twelve Seasons: A Perpetual Calendar for the Country “February: The One We Could Do Without” (1949)

Stanley Kubrick

U.S. film director, 1928–1999

No Stone Unturned ch. 7 (1991)

Thomas S. Kuhn

U.S. historian of science, 1922–1996

- 1 “Normal science” means research firmly based upon one or more past scientific achievements, achievements that some particular scientific community acknowledges for a time as supplying the foundation for its further practice.
The Structure of Scientific Revolutions ch. 2 (1962)
- 2 As in political revolutions, so in paradigm choice—there is no standard higher than the assent of the relevant community. To discover how scientific revolutions are effected, we shall therefore have to examine not only the impact of nature and of logic, but also the techniques of persuasive argumentation effective within the quite special groups that constitute the community of scientists.
The Structure of Scientific Revolutions ch. 9 (1962)
- 3 In a sense that I am unable to explicate further, the proponents of competing paradigms practice their trades in different worlds.
The Structure of Scientific Revolutions ch. 12 (1962)

Maxine Kumin

U.S. poet, 1925–2014

- 1 I took the lake between my legs.
“Morning Swim” l. 10 (1965)

Milan Kundera

Czech novelist, 1929–

- 1 The struggle of man against power is the struggle of memory against forgetting.
The Book of Laughter and Forgetting pt. 1, sec. 2 (1980) (translation by Michael Henry Heim)

- 2 The only reason people want to be masters of the future is to change the past.

The Book of Laughter and Forgetting pt. 1, sec. 17 (1980) (translation by Michael Henry Heim)

- 3 Her drama was a drama not of heaviness but of lightness. What fell to her lot was not the burden but the unbearable lightness of being.

The Unbearable Lightness of Being pt. 3, ch. 10 (1984) (translation by Michael Henry Heim)

- 4 Up out of the lampshade, startled by the overhead light, flew a large nocturnal butterfly that began circling the room. The strains of the piano and violin rose up weakly from below.

The Unbearable Lightness of Being pt. 7, ch. 7 (1984) (translation by Michael Henry Heim)

Andrei, Prince Kurbsky

Russian military leader, 1528–1583

- 1 Oh, Satan! . . . Why have you planted such a godless seed in the heart of a Christian tsar [Ivan the Terrible], from which such a fire swept over all the Holy Russian land.
History of the Grand Prince of Moscow (ca. 1580)

Harvey Kurtzman

U.S. cartoonist and magazine editor, 1924–1993

- 1 What—me worry?
Mad, July 1955. Catchphrase of the Mad magazine mascot Alfred E. Neuman. It may have had a prehistory as an advertising slogan in the early 1900s.

Raymond Kurzweil

U.S. inventor, 1948–

- 1 The fate of the universe is a decision yet to be made, one which we will intelligently consider when the time is right.
The Age of Spiritual Machines epilogue (1999)

Harold S. Kushner

U.S. author and rabbi, 1935–

- 1 There is only one question which really matters: why do bad things happen to good people?
When Bad Things Happen to Good People ch. 1 (1981)

Tony Kushner

U.S. playwright, 1956–

- I There are no gods here, no ghosts and spirits in America, there are no angels in America, no spiritual past, no racial past, there's only the political, and the decoys and the ploys to maneuver around the inescapable battle of politics.

Angels in America: Millennium Approaches act 3, sc. 2 (1992)

Mikhail I. Kutuzov

Russian military leader, 1745–1813

- I [Remark, 13 Sept. 1812:] Napoleon is like a stormy torrent which we are as yet unable to stop. Moscow will be the sponge that will suck him in.

Quoted in Eugene Tarle, Napoleon's Invasion of Russia, 1812 (1942)

Jean de la Bruyère

French moralist, 1645–1696

- 1 Most men employ the first years of their life in making the last miserable.
The Characters “Of Mankind” (1688) (translation by Henri Van Laun)
- 2 There are but three events which concern man: birth, life, and death. They are unconscious of their birth, they suffer when they die, and they neglect to live.
The Characters “Of Mankind” (1688) (translation by Henri Van Laun)
- 3 The common people have scarcely any culture, the great have no soul. . . . Were I to choose between the two, I should select, without hesitation, being a plebeian.
The Characters “Of the Great” (1688) (translation by Henri Van Laun)

Jacques Lacan

French psychologist, 1901–1981

- 1 The unconscious is structured like a language.
“The Agency of the Letter in the Unconscious, or Reason Since Freud” (1957)

Pierre Choderlos de Laclos

French novelist and general, 1741–1803

- 1 A man enjoys the happiness he feels, a woman the happiness she gives.
Les Liaisons Dangereuses letter 130 (1782)

Lady Gaga (Stefani Joanne Angelina Germanotta)

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1986–

- 1 I was born this way.
“Born This Way” (song) (2011). Cowritten with Jeppe Laursen.

Robert M. La Follette, Sr.

U.S. politician, 1855–1925

- 1 Every nation has its war party. It is not the party of democracy. It is the party of autocracy. It seeks to dominate absolutely. It is commercial, imperialistic, ruthless. . . . If there is not sufficient reason for war, the war party will make war on one pretext, then invent another.
Quoted in The Progressive, June 1917

Suzanne LaFollette

U.S. editor and author, 1893–1983

- 1 Most people, no doubt, when they espouse human rights, make their own mental reservations about the proper application of the word “human.”
Concerning Women “The Beginnings of Emancipation” (1926)
- 2 There is nothing more innately human than the tendency to transmute what has become customary into what has been divinely ordained.
Concerning Women “The Beginnings of Emancipation” (1926)
- 3 What its children become, that will the community become.
Concerning Women “Woman and Marriage” (1926)

Jean de la Fontaine

French poet, 1621–1695

- 1 You were singing? I’m very glad, very well, start dancing now.
Fables bk. 1, Fable 1 (1668)
- 2 The opinion of the strongest is always the best.
Fables bk. 1, Fable 10 (1668)
- 3 I bend but do not break.
Fables bk. 1, Fable 22 (1668)

Selma Lagerlöf

Swedish novelist, 1858–1940

- I If you have learned anything at all from us [wild geese], Tummetott, you no longer think that the humans should have the whole earth to themselves.

The Further Adventures of Nils (1907) (translation by Velma Swanston Howard)

Joseph Louis Lagrange

French mathematician and astronomer, 1736–1813

- I [Remark the day after the guillotining of the great chemist Antoine Lavoisier on 8 May 1794:] Il ne leur a fallu qu'un moment pour faire tomber cette tête, et cent années, peut-être, ne suffiront pas pour en reproduire une semblable.

It took them only an instant to cut off that head, but it is unlikely that a hundred years will suffice to reproduce a similar one.

Quoted in J. B. Delambre, “Éloge de Lagrange,” Mémoires de l'Institut (1812)

Fiorello H. La Guardia

U.S. politician, 1882–1947

- I [Looking back on his appointment of Herbert O'Brien as a judge:] When I make a mistake, it's a beaut.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 12 Feb. 1941

Nilanjana Sudeshna “Jhumpa” Lahiri

English-born U.S. writer, 1967–

- I In a few minutes he will go downstairs, join the party, his family. But for now his mother is distracted, laughing at a story a friend is telling her, unaware of her son's absence. For now, he starts to read.

The Namesake ch. 12 (2003)

R. D. Laing

Scottish psychiatrist, 1927–1989

- I Madness need not be all breakdown. It may also be break-through.

The Politics of Experience ch. 6 (1967)

Jess Lair

U.S. author, 1926–2000

- I If you want something very, very badly, let it go free. If it comes back to you, it's yours forever. If it doesn't, it was never yours to begin with.

I Ain't Much Baby—But I'm All I've Got ch. 19 (1969).

Lair had his students at Montana State University write comments, questions, or feelings on index cards. This passage appeared on one of the students' cards, although it might have been copied by the student from another source. When these words became famous, a harsh parody arose: “If you want something very very badly, let it go free. If it doesn't come back to you, hunt it down and kill it.”

Jean-Baptiste Lamarck

French naturalist, 1744–1829

- I It is interesting to observe the result of habit in the peculiar shape and size of the giraffe (Camelo-pardalis): this animal, the largest of the mammals, is known to live in the interior of Africa in places where the soil is nearly always arid and barren, so that it is obliged to browse on the leaves of trees and to make constant efforts to reach them. From this habit long maintained in all its race, it has resulted that the animal's fore-legs have become longer than its hind legs, and that its neck is lengthened to such a degree that the giraffe, without standing up on its hind legs, attains a height of six metres.

Philosophie Zoologique pt. 1, ch. 7 (1809)

- 2 FIRST LAW. In every animal . . . a more frequent and continuous use of any organ gradually strengthens, develops, and enlarges that organ . . . while the permanent disuse of any organ imperceptibly weakens and deteriorates it, and progressively diminishes its functional capacity, until it finally disappears.

Philosophie Zoologique pt. 2, ch. 7 (1809)

- 3 SECOND LAW. All the acquisitions or losses wrought by nature in individuals . . . are preserved by reproduction to the new individuals which arise.

Philosophie Zoologique pt. 2, ch. 7 (1809)

- 4 Habits form a second nature.

Philosophie Zoologique pt. 2, ch. 7 (1809)

Hedy Lamarr (Hedwig Eva Maria Kiesler)

Austrian-born U.S. actress, 1913–2000

- 1 Any girl can be glamorous. All you have to do is stand still and look stupid.
Quoted in Hartford Daily Courant, 1 Aug. 1941

Alphonse de Lamartine

French poet, 1790–1869

- 1 Only one being is wanting, and your whole world is bereft of people.
“L’Isolement” (1820)
- 2 O Time! arrest your flight, and you, propitious hours, stay your course.
“Le Lac” (1820)

Arthur J. Lamb

U.S. songwriter, 1870–1928

- 1 Her beauty was sold for an old man’s gold,
She’s a bird in a gilded cage.
“A Bird in a Gilded Cage” (song) (1900)

Caroline Lamb

English writer, 1785–1828

- 1 [Of Lord Byron after their first meeting:] Mad, bad, and dangerous to know.
Diary, Mar. 1812

Charles Lamb

English writer, 1775–1834

- 1 I have had playmates, I have had companions,
In my days of childhood, in my joyful school days,—
All, all are gone, the old familiar faces.
“The Old Familiar Faces” l. 1 (1798)
- 2 [Of Samuel Taylor Coleridge:] An Archangel a little damaged.
Letter to William Wordsworth, 26 Apr. 1816
- 3 Lawyers, I suppose, were children once.
Essays of Elia “The Old Benchers of the Inner Temple” (1823)

Anne Lamott

U.S. writer, 1954–

- 1 You can safely assume you’ve created God in your own image when it turns out that God hates all the same people you do.
Bird by Bird pt. 1 (1994). Lamott attributed this quotation to “my priest friend Tom.”

- 2 Lighthouses don’t go running all over an island looking for boats to save; they just stand there shining.

Bird by Bird pt. 5 (1994)Giuseppe di Lampedusa

Italian writer, 1896–1957

- 1 If we want things to stay as they are, things will have to change.
The Leopard ch. 1 (1957) (translation by Archibald Colquhoun)

Bert Lance

U.S. politician, 1931–2013

- 1 If it ain’t broke, don’t fix it.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 23 Dec. 1976. Lance popularized this expression, but Approach: The Naval Aviation Safety Review, Apr. 1964, printed the following: “As someone recently said, ‘if it ain’t broke don’t fix it.’”

Elsa Lanchester

English-born U.S. actress, 1902–1986

- 1 [Of Maureen O’Hara:] She looked as if butter wouldn’t melt in her mouth—or anywhere else.
Quoted in Gary Herman, *The Book of Hollywood
Quotes* (1979)

Edwin H. Land

U.S. inventor and businessman, 1909–1991

- 1 The bottom line is in heaven.
Speech at shareholders’ meeting of Polaroid Corporation, 26 Apr. 1977

Jon Landau

U.S. music critic and record producer, 1947–

- 1 Last Thursday, at the Harvard Square theatre,
I saw my rock’n’roll past flash before my eyes.
And I saw something else: I saw rock and roll future and its name is Bruce Springsteen. And on a night when I needed to feel young, he made me feel like I was hearing music for the very first time.
The Real Paper, 22 May 1974

Ann Landers (Esther Pauline “Eppie” Lederer)

U.S. newspaper columnist, 1918–2002

- 1 Wake up and smell the coffee.
Chicago Tribune, 21 Dec. 1955. Landers popularized this expression, but an earlier anonymous usage is found in the Chicago Daily Tribune, 18 Jan. 1943.
- 2 [Announcing her divorce in her newspaper advice column:] One of the world’s best marriages that didn’t make it to the finish line.
Quoted in Newsweek, 14 July 1975
- 3 Television has proved that people will look at anything rather than each other.
Quoted in Barbara Rowes, The Book of Quotes (1979)

Walter Savage Landor

English poet, 1775–1864

- 1 I strove with none; for none was worth my strife;
Nature I loved, and, next to Nature, Art.
“Dying Speech of an Old Philosopher” l. 1 (1853)

Wanda Landowska

Polish musician, 1877–1959

- 1 [To another musician:] Oh, well, you play Bach your way. I’ll play him his.
Quoted in Harold C. Schonberg, The Great Pianists (1963)

Andrew Lang

Scottish author, 1844–1912

- 1 He uses statistics as a drunken man uses lampposts—for support rather than for illumination.
Attributed in Reader’s Digest, Apr. 1937

Christopher C. Langdell

U.S. legal scholar, 1826–1906

- 1 Law is a science, and . . . all the available materials of that science are contained in printed books. . . . The library is the proper workshop of professors and students alike; . . . it is to us all that the laboratories of the university are to the chemists and physicists, the museum of natural history to the zoologists, the botanical garden to the botanists.
Speech at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., 1887

Susanne K. Langer

U.S. philosopher, 1895–1985

- 1 Art is the objectification of feeling, and the subjectification of nature.
Mind: An Essay in Human Feeling vol. 1, pt. 2, ch. 4 (1967)

William Langland

English poet, ca. 1330–ca. 1400

- 1 In a somer seson, whan softe was the sonne.
The Vision of Piers Plowman B text, prologue, l. 1 (1362–1390)
- 2 Grammer, the ground of al.
The Vision of Piers Plowman B text, Passus 15, l. 370 (1362–1390)

Meyer Lansky

Russian-born U.S. mobster, 1902–1983

- 1 [Of organized crime:] We’re bigger than U.S. Steel.
Attributed in N.Y. Times, 5 Sept. 1967. In “Nice Guys Finish Seventh” (1992), Ralph Keyes describes this as a paraphrase of a somewhat inaudible comment recorded by FBI surveillance.

Lao Tzu

Chinese philosopher, ca. 604 B.C.–ca. 531 B.C.

- 1 The Tao [Way] that can be told of is not the eternal Tao.
Tao-te Ching ch. 1 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)
- 2 Heaven and earth are not humane
They regard all things as straw dogs.
The sage is not humane,
He regards all people as straw dogs.
Tao-te Ching ch. 5 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)
- 3 The best [rulers] are those whose existence is [merely] known by the people.
The next best are those who are loved and praised.
The next are those who are feared.
And the next are those who are reviled . . .
[The great rulers] accomplish their task; they complete their work.
Nevertheless their people say that they simply follow Nature.
Tao-te Ching ch. 17 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)
- 4 Let people hold on to these:
Manifest plainness,

- Embrace simplicity,
Reduce selfishness,
Have few desires.
Tao-te Ching ch. 19 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)
- 5 Reversion is the action of the Tao.
Weakness is the function of the Tao.
All things in the world come from being.
And being comes from non-being.
Tao-te Ching ch. 40 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)
- 6 One may know the world without going out of doors.
One may see the Way of Heaven without looking through windows.
The further one goes, the less one knows.
Tao-te Ching ch. 47 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)
- 7 He who knows does not speak.
He who speaks does not know.
Tao-te Ching ch. 56 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)
- 8 The more laws and orders are made prominent,
The more thieves and bandits there will be.
Tao-te Ching ch. 57 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)
- 9 The journey of a thousand li starts from where one stands.
Tao-te Ching ch. 64 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan).
Commonly rendered as "A journey of a thousand miles must begin with a single step."
- 10 Heaven's net is indeed vast.
Though its meshes are wide, it misses nothing.
Tao-te Ching ch. 73 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)
- 11 There is nothing softer and weaker than water.
And yet there is nothing better for attacking hard and strong things.
For this reason there is no substitute for it.
All the world knows that the weak overcomes the strong and the soft overcomes the hard.
But none can practice it.
Tao-te Ching ch. 78 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)
- 12 The sage does not accumulate for himself.
The more he uses for others, the more he has himself.
The more he gives to others, the more he possesses of his own.
The Way of Heaven is to benefit others and not to injure.
The Way of the sage is to act but not to compete.
Tao-te Ching ch. 81 (translation by Wing-Tsit Chan)

Wayne LaPierre

U.S. gun rights advocate, 1949–

- 1 The only thing that's stopping these bad guys with a gun is a good guy with a gun.
Quoted in USA Today, 21 Dec. 2007

Pierre Simon de Laplace

French astronomer and mathematician, 1749–1827

- 1 Given for one instant an intelligence which could comprehend all the forces by which nature is animated and the respective positions of the beings which compose it, if moreover this intelligence were vast enough to submit these data to analysis, it would embrace in the same formula both the movements of the largest bodies in the universe and those of the lightest atom; to it nothing would be uncertain, and the future as the past would be present to its eyes.
Oeuvres vol. 7, introduction (1812–1820)
- 2 [Replying to Napoleon Bonaparte's comment upon receiving a copy of Laplace's Système du monde, "M. Laplace, they tell me you have written this large book on the system of the universe, and have never even mentioned its Creator":] Je n'avais pas besoin de cette hypothèse-là.

I have no need for that hypothesis.

Quoted in Augustus De Morgan, A Budget of Paradoxes (1872). An earlier version of the anecdote appeared in Mémoires du Docteur F. Antommarchi (1825). Laplace may have been denying that God occasionally intervenes to maintain the workings of the universe, rather than denying that God exists. Napoleon is said to have repeated Laplace's reply to the mathematician Joseph Louis Lagrange, who responded, "Ah! c'est une belle hypothèse; ça explique beaucoup de choses." (Ah! It is a beautiful hypothesis; it explains many things.)

Ring Lardner

U.S. writer, 1885–1933

- 1 Are you lost daddy I arsked tenderly.
Shut up he explained.
The Young Immigrants ch. 10 (1920)
- 2 A good many young writers make the mistake of enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, big enough for the manuscript to come back in. This is too much of a temptation to the editor.
How to Write Short Stories preface (1924)

3 [After reading a poem written by someone twenty years dead:] Did he write it before or after he died?

Quoted in The Algonquin Wits, ed. Robert E. Drennan (1968)

Philip Larkin

English poet, 1922–1985

- 1 What will survive of us is love.
“An Arundel Tomb” l. 42 (1964)
- 2 Sexual intercourse began
In nineteen sixty-three
(Which was rather late for me)—
Between the end of the Chatterley ban
And the Beatles’ first LP.
“Annus Mirabilis” l. 1 (1974)
- 3 They fuck you up, your mum and dad,
They may not mean to, but they do.
They fill you with the faults they had
And add some extra, just for you.
“This Be the Verse” l. 1 (1974)

François, Sixth Duc de la Rochefoucauld

French writer, 1613–1680

- 1 In the misfortune of our best friends, we always find something which is not displeasing to us.
Réflexions ou Maximes Morales maxim 99 (1665)
- 2 Self-love is the greatest of all flatterers.
Maximes no. 2 (1678)
- 3 We are all strong enough to bear the misfortunes of others.
Maximes no. 19 (1678)
- 4 There are good marriages, but no delightful ones.
Maximes no. 113 (1678)
- 5 L’hypocrisie est un hommage que le vice rend à la vertu.
Hypocrisy is a tribute which vice pays to virtue.
Maximes no. 218 (1678)
- 6 Absence diminishes commonplace passions and increases great ones, as the wind extinguishes candles and kindles fire.
Maximes no. 276 (1678)

7 In most of mankind gratitude is merely a secret hope for greater favors.

Maximes no. 298 (1678)

8 L’enfer des femmes, c’est la vieillesse.

The hell of women is old age.

Maximes Posthumes no. 562 (1696)

François Alexandre Frédéric, Duc de la Rochefoucauld-Liancourt

French reformer, 1747–1827

1 [Responding to Louis XVI’s July 1789 statement upon hearing of the fall of the Bastille, “C’est une grande révolte” (It is a big revolt):] *Non,
Sire, c’est une grande révolution.*

No, Sire, it is a big revolution.

Attributed in Ferdinand-Dreyfus, Un Philanthrope d’Autrefois: La Rochefoucauld-Liancourt (1903).

Although Louis XVI was indeed awakened in the middle of the night of 14–15 July 1789 to be told of the uprising, Rochefoucauld-Liancourt’s statement is probably an embellishment.

Harold J. Laski

English politician and political scientist, 1893–
1950

- 1 [Of sitting next to Virginia Woolf at lunch:]
It was like watching someone organize her own immortality. Every phrase and gesture was studied. Now and again, when she said something a little out of the ordinary, she wrote it down herself in a notebook.
Letter to Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., 30 Nov. 1930

Ferdinand Lassalle

German socialist and labor leader, 1825–1864

- 1 Wages . . . cannot fall with anything like permanence below the ordinary rate of living.
. . . This is the cruel, rigorous law that governs wages under the present system.
“Open Letter to the National Labor Association of Germany” (1862)

Harold D. Lasswell

U.S. political scientist, 1902–1978

- 1 Politics is the study of *who gets what, when,
and how.*
World Politics and Personal Insecurity ch. 1 (1935)

Hugh Latimer

English bishop, 1485–1555

- 1 [To fellow martyr Nicholas Ridley, as they were about to be burned at the stake for heresy, Oxford, England, 16 Oct. 1555:] Be of good comfort Master Ridley, and play the man. We shall this day light such a candle by God's grace in England, as (I trust) shall never be put out. Quoted in John Foxe, Actes and Monuments (1570)

Harry Lauder

Scottish entertainer, 1870–1950

- 1 I love a lassie, a bonnie, bonnie lassie.
"I Love a Lassie" (song) (1905)
- 2 Roamin' in the Gloamin'.
Title of song (1911)

John Keith Laumer

U.S. science fiction writer, 1925–1993

- 1 Only a free society . . . can produce the technology that makes tyranny possible.
"Test to Destruction" (1967)

Stan Laurel

English-born U.S. comedian, 1890–1965

- 1 [Ollie, played by Oliver Hardy, speaking to Stan Laurel:] Here's another nice mess you've gotten us into.
The Laurel-Hardy Murder Case (motion picture) (1930). First appearance of Laurel and Hardy's catchphrase, usually quoted as "another fine mess."

Ralph Lauren (Ralph Lifshitz)

U.S. fashion designer, 1939–

- 1 I don't design clothes, I design dreams.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 19 Apr. 1986

William L. Laurence

U.S. journalist, 1888–1977

- 1 [Reporting on the first atomic bomb explosion, 16 July 1945:] A great ball of fire about a mile in diameter, changing colors as it kept shooting upward, from deep purple to orange, expanding, growing bigger, rising as it was expanding, an elemental force freed from its bonds after being chained for billions of years. N.Y. Times, 26 Sept. 1945

- 2 At first it was a giant column that soon took the shape of a supramundane mushroom.
N.Y. Times, 26 Sept. 1945

Wilfrid Laurier

Canadian prime minister, 1841–1919

- 1 The nineteenth century was the century of the United States. I think we can claim that it is Canada that shall fill the twentieth century.
Address to Canadian Club, Ottawa, 18 Jan. 1904. Commonly quoted as "The twentieth century belongs to Canada."

Johann Kaspar Lavater

Swiss theologian and poet, 1741–1801

- 1 Say not you know another entirely, till you have divided an inheritance with him.
Aphorisms on Man no. 157 (ca. 1788)

Frank Lawler

U.S. politician, 1842–1896

- 1 Gentlemen you should not get impatient with nature. All things equalize themselves—the rich man gets his ice in summer and the poor man gets his in winter.
Quoted in Kansas City Times, 18 Dec. 1886

D. H. Lawrence

English novelist and poet, 1885–1930

- 1 Not I, not I, but the wind that blows through me!
A fine wind is blowing the new direction of Time.
"Song of a Man Who Has Come Through" l. 1 (1920)
- 2 It is the three strange angels.
Admit them, admit them.
"Song of a Man Who Has Come Through" l. 17 (1920)
- 3 Sin is a queer thing. It isn't the breaking of divine commandments. It is the breaking of one's own integrity.
Studies in Classic American Literature ch. 8 (1923)
- 4 Why were we crucified into sex?
Why were we not left rounded off, and finished in ourselves,
As we began,
As he certainly began, so perfectly alone?
"Tortoise Shout" l. 9 (1923)

- 5 There are only two great diseases in the world today—Bolshevism and Americanism; and Americanism is the worse of the two, because Bolshevism only smashes your house or your business or your skull, but Americanism smashes your soul.
The Plumed Serpent ch. 2 (1926)
- 6 John Thomas says good-night to Lady Jane, a little droopingly, but with a hopeful heart.
Lady Chatterley's Lover ch. 19 (1928). "John Thomas" and "Lady Jane" are euphemisms for the male and female genitalia.
- 7 How beastly the bourgeois is Especially the male of the species.
"How Beastly the Bourgeois Is" l. 1 (1929)
- 8 And if tonight my soul may find her peace
In sleep, and sink in good oblivion,
And in the morning wake like a new-opened flower
Then I have been dipped again in God, and new-created.
"Shadows" l. 1 (1932)
- 9 Now it is autumn and the falling fruit
And the long journey towards oblivion.
"The Ship of Death" l. 1 (1932)
- 10 Have you built your ship of death, O have you?
O build your ship of death, for you will need it.
"The Ship of Death" l. 8 (1932)
- 11 We are dying, we are dying, we are all of us dying.
"The Ship of Death" l. 43 (1932)
- 12 Pornography is the attempt to insult sex, to do dirt on it.
Phoenix "Pornography and Obscenity" ch. 3 (1936)

Jerome Lawrence (Jerome Lawrence Schwartz)

U.S. playwright, 1915–2004

- 1 Life is a banquet, and most poor sons-of-bitches are starving to death! Live!
Auntie Mame act 2, sc. 6 (1957). Coauthored with Robert E. Lee.

T. E. Lawrence

British military leader and writer, 1888–1935

- 1 I loved you, so I drew these tides of men into my hands and wrote my will across the sky in stars

To earn you freedom, the seven pillared worthy house, that your eyes might be shining
for me

When we came.

The Seven Pillars of Wisdom dedication, l. 1 (1926)

- 2 Men prayed me that I set our work, the inviolable house,
As a memory of you.
But for fit monument I shattered it, unfinished:
and now
The little things creep out to patch themselves hovels
In the marred shadow
Of your gift.
The Seven Pillars of Wisdom dedication, l. 16 (1926)

- 3 All men dream, but not equally. Those who dream by night in the dusty recesses of their minds wake in the day to find that it was vanity;
but the dreamers of the day are dangerous men, for they may act their dream with open eyes, to make it possible. This I did.

The Seven Pillars of Wisdom suppressed introductory chapter (1926).

- 4 There could be no honor in a sure success, but much might be wrested from a sure defeat.
Revolt in the Desert ch. 19 (1927)

Henry Lawson

Australian writer, 1867–1922

- 1 And the sun sank again on the grand Australian bush—the nurse and tutor of eccentric minds, the home of the weird, and of much that is different from things in other lands.
"The Bush Undertaker" (1896)

Irving Layton

Romanian-born Canadian poet, 1912–2006

- 1 Only the tiniest fraction of mankind want freedom.
All the rest want someone to tell them
they are free.
The Whole Bloody Bird "Aphs" (1969)

Emma Lazarus

U.S. poet, 1849–1887

- 1 Not like the brazen giant of Greek fame,
With conquering limbs astride from land to land,
Here at our sea-washed, sunset gates shall stand
A mighty woman with a torch, whose flame
Is the imprisoned lightning, and her name
Mother of Exiles.
“The New Colossus” l. 1 (1883). Inscribed on a plaque in the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor.
- 2 Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door!
“The New Colossus” l. 10 (1883). Inscribed on a plaque in the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor.

Stephen Leacock

English-born Canadian humorist, 1869–1944

- 1 Lord Ronald said nothing; he flung himself from the room, flung himself upon his horse, and rode madly off in all directions.
Nonsense Novels “Gertrude the Governess; or, Simple Seventeen” (1911)
- 2 Advertising may be described as the science of arresting human intelligence long enough to get money from it.
Garden of Folly “The Perfect Salesman” (1924)
- 3 I am what is called a professor emeritus—from the Latin e, “out,” and meritus, “so he ought to be.”
Here Are My Lectures ch. 14 (1938)

Frank Leahy

U.S. football coach, 1908–1973

- 1 When the going gets tough, the tough get going.
Quoted in Charleston (W.V.) Daily Mail, 4 May 1954.
Frequently attributed to Joseph P. Kennedy, but Leahy’s usage is eight years earlier than the earliest known Kennedy reference. This 1954 article refers to the quotation as “his own personal football motto.”
There was a still earlier occurrence, in the *Boston
Herald*, 10 Oct. 1949, in an advertisement with no attribution to any individual.

William D. Leahy

U.S. military leader, 1875–1959

- 1 The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children.
I Was There ch. 23 (1950)

Edward Lear

English artist and humorous writer, 1812–1888

- 1 There was an Old Man with a beard,
Who said, “It is just as I feared!—
Two Owls and a Hen,
Four Larks and a Wren,
Have all built their nests in my beard!”
A Book of Nonsense (1846)
- 2 Far and few, far and few,
Are the lands where the Jumblies live;
Their heads are green, and their hands are
blue,
And they went to sea in a Sieve.
“The Jumblies” l. 11 (1871)
- 3 “How pleasant to know Mr. Lear!”
Who has written such volumes of stuff!
Some think him ill-tempered and queer,
But a few think him pleasant enough.
Nonsense Songs preface (1871)
See T. S. Eliot 89
- 4 The Owl and the Pussy-Cat went to sea
In a beautiful pea-green boat.
They took some honey, and plenty of money,
Wrapped up in a five-pound note.
“The Owl and the Pussy-Cat” l. 1 (1871)
- 5 The Owl looked up to the Stars above
And sang to a small guitar,
“Oh lovely Pussy! O Pussy, my love,
What a beautiful Pussy you are.”
“The Owl and the Pussy-Cat” l. 5 (1871)
- 6 Pussy said to the Owl, “You elegant fowl!
How charmingly sweet you sing!
O let us be married! too long we have tarried:
But what shall we do for a ring?”
They sailed away for a year and a day,
To the land where the Bong-tree grows,

And there in a wood a Piggy-wig stood
With a ring at the end of his nose.

“The Owl and the Pussy-Cat” l. 9 (1871)

- 7 They dined on mince, and slices of quince,
Which they ate with a runcible spoon;
And hand in hand, on the edge of the sand,
They danced by the light of the moon.
“The Owl and the Pussy-Cat” l. 21 (1871)

Timothy Leary

U.S. psychologist and countercultural activist,
1920–1996

- 1 Turn on, tune in, and drop out.
Quoted in East Village Other, 15 Apr.–1 May 1966.
Leary stated that this slogan was given to him by Marshall McLuhan in conversation.

Mary Lease

U.S. reformer, 1850–1933

- 1 [Addressed to Kansas farmers:] Raise less corn and more hell.
Quoted in L.A. Times, 30 Oct. 1903. The attribution to Lease may be apocryphal.

John le Carré (David John Moore Cornwell)

English novelist, 1931–2020

- 1 The Spy Who Came in from the Cold.
Title of book (1963)
- 2 We have to live without sympathy, don’t we?
That’s impossible of course. We act it to one another, this hardness; but we aren’t like that really. I mean . . . one can’t be out in the cold all the time; one has to come in from the cold . . .
do you see what I mean?
The Spy Who Came in from the Cold ch. 2 (1963)

- 3 We do disagreeable things so that ordinary people here and elsewhere can sleep safely in their beds at night.

William E. H. Lecky

Irish historian, 1838–1903

- 1 The Augustinian doctrine of the damnation of unbaptized infants and the Calvinistic doctrine of reprobation . . . surpass in atrocity any tenets that have ever been admitted into any pagan creed.

History of European Morals vol. 1, ch. 1 (1869)

- 2 It had been boldly predicted by some of the early Christians that the conversion of the world would lead to the establishment of perpetual peace. In looking back, with our present experience, we are driven to the melancholy conclusion that, instead of diminishing the number of wars, ecclesiastical influence has actually and very seriously increased it.

U.S. author, 1912–2009

- 1 The Ugly American.
Title of book (1958). Coauthored with Eugene Burdick.

Alexandre Auguste Ledru-Rollin

French politician, 1807–1874

- 1 Ah well! I am their leader, I really had to follow them!

Attributed in Eugène de Mirecourt, Les Contemporains (1857). May be apocryphal.

Bruce Lee (Lee Jun-fan)

U.S. martial artist and actor, 1940–1973

- 1 I fear not the man who has practiced 10,000 kicks once, but I fear the man who has practiced one kick 10,000 times.

Quoted in Baltimore Sun, 6 Nov. 2011

Gypsy Rose Lee (Rose Louise Hovick)

U.S. striptease artist, 1914–1970

- 1 God is love, but get it in writing.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 1 Dec. 1988

See Bible 388; Samuel Butler (1835–1902) 10

Harper Lee

U.S. novelist, 1926–2016

- 1 Mockingbirds don't do one thing but make music for us to enjoy . . . but sing their heart out for us. That's why it's a sin to kill a mockingbird.

To Kill a Mockingbird ch. 10 (1960)

- 2 The one thing that doesn't abide by majority rule is a person's conscience.

To Kill a Mockingbird ch. 11 (1960)

- 3 But there is one way in this country in which all men are created equal—there is one human institution that makes a pauper the equal of a Rockefeller, the stupid man the equal of an Einstein, and the ignorant man the equal of any college president. That institution, gentlemen, is a court.

To Kill a Mockingbird ch. 20 (1960)

- 4 I'm no idealist to believe firmly in the integrity of our courts and in the jury system—that is no ideal to me, it is a living, working reality. Gentlemen, a court is no better than each man of you sitting before me on this jury. A court is only as sound as its jury, and a jury is only as sound as the men who make it up.

To Kill a Mockingbird ch. 20 (1960)

- 5 As you grow older, you'll see white men cheat black men every day of your life, but let me tell you something and don't you forget it—whenever a white man does that to a black man, no matter who he is, how rich he is, or how fine a family he comes from, that white man is trash.

To Kill a Mockingbird ch. 23 (1960)

Henry “Light-Horse Harry” Lee

U.S. soldier and politician, 1756–1818

- I First in war—first in peace—and first in the hearts of his countrymen.
Funeral oration on the death of George Washington, Philadelphia, Pa., 1800
See Charles Dryden 1

Nathaniel Lee

English playwright, ca. 1653–1692

- I When Greeks joined Greeks, then was the tug of war!
The Rival Queens act 4, sc. 2 (1677)

Richard Henry Lee

U.S. political leader, 1732–1794

- I That these colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown; and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved.
Resolution presented to Continental Congress, 7 June 1776

Robert E. Lee

U.S. Confederate military leader, 1807–1870

- I [Remark to General James Longstreet at Battle of Fredericksburg, Va., 13 Dec. 1862]: It is well this [war] is so terrible—we would grow too fond of it!
Quoted in John Esten Cooke, Surry of Eagle’s-Nest (1866)
- 2 [“Last words,” 12 Oct. 1870]: Strike the tent.
Quoted in J. W. Jones, Personal Reminiscences of General Robert E. Lee (1874)

Stan Lee (Stanley Lieber)

U.S. comic book creator, 1922–2018

- I With great power there must also come—great responsibility!
Amazing Fantasy no. 15 (comic book), Aug. 1962.
Used in the original Spider-Man story. “The possession of great power necessarily implies great responsibility” appeared much earlier in Thomas C. Hansard, Parliamentary Debates, 27 June 1817.

- 2 [First words of character Mary Jane Watson to Peter Parker]: Face it, tiger . . . you just hit the jackpot!

The Amazing Spider-Man (comic book) #42, Nov. 1966. Ellipses are in original.

Antoni van Leeuwenhoek

Dutch naturalist, 1632–1723

- I [First observation of protozoa]: Examining this water . . . I found floating therein divers earthy particles, and some green streaks, spirally wound serpent-wise. . . . I judge that some of these little creatures were above a thousand times smaller than the smallest ones I have ever yet seen, upon the rind of cheese, in wheaten flour, mould, and the like.
Letter to Henry Oldenburg, 7 Sept. 1674

Gershon Legman

U.S. folklorist, 1917–1999

- I Murder is a crime. Describing murder is not. Sex is not a crime. Describing sex is.
Love & Death: A Study in Censorship (1949)
- 2 Make love not war.
Speech at Ohio University, Athens, Ohio, Nov. 1963. This speech was attested, in correspondence with the editor of this book, by Legman’s widow Judith Legman; however, no actual documentation has ever been unearthed. The earliest verified citation is Oakland Tribune, 12 Mar. 1965.

Ursula Le Guin

U.S. science fiction writer, 1929–2018

- I You must not change one thing, one pebble, one grain of sand, until you know what good and evil will follow on that act.
A Wizard of Earthsea ch. 3 (1968)
- 2 When action grows unprofitable, gather information; when information grows unprofitable, sleep.
The Left Hand of Darkness ch. 3 (1969)
- 3 The only thing that makes life possible is permanent, intolerable uncertainty: not knowing what comes next.
The Left Hand of Darkness ch. 5 (1969)
- 4 The king was pregnant.
The Left Hand of Darkness ch. 8 (1969)

5 He had grown up in a country run by politicians who sent the pilots to man the bombers to kill the babies to make the world safe for children to grow up in.

The Lathe of Heaven ch. 6 (1971)

6 Love doesn't just sit there, like a stone, it has to be made, like bread; re-made all the time, made new.

The Lathe of Heaven ch. 10 (1971)

7 A man can endure the entire weight of the universe for eighty years. It is unreality that he cannot bear.

The Lathe of Heaven ch. 11 (1971)

8 If you want your writing to be taken seriously, don't marry and have kids, and above all, don't die. But if you have to die, commit suicide. They approve of that.

"Prospects for Women in Writing" (speech), Portland, Me., Sept. 1986

Ernest Lehman

U.S. screenwriter, 1915–2005

1 I allowed the soothing music and the muted sounds of the city and the rich, sweet smell of success that permeated the room to lull my senses.

"Tell Me About It Tomorrow" (1950)

Tom Lehrer

U.S. satirist, 1928–

1 Be prepared! That's the Boy Scouts' solemn creed,
Be prepared! And be clean in word and deed.
Don't solicit for your sister, that's not nice,
Unless you get a good percentage of her price.

"Be Prepared" (song) (1953)

2 Plagiarize! Let no one else's work evade your eyes,
Remember why the good Lord made your eyes.

"Lobachevski" (song) (1953)

3 Oh, the poor folks hate the rich folks,
And the rich folks hate the poor folks.
All of my folks hate all of your folks,
It's American as apple pie.

"National Brotherhood Week" (song) (1965)

4 If you visit American city,
You will find it very pretty.
Just two things of which you must beware:
Don't drink the water and don't breathe the air!
"Pollution" (song) (1965)

5 So long, mom,
I'm off to drop the bomb,
So don't wait up for me.
"So Long, Mom (A Song for World War III)" (song) (1965)

6 I'll look for you when the war is over,
An hour and a half from now!
"So Long, Mom (A Song for World War III)" (song) (1965)

7 It is a sobering thought . . . that when Mozart was my age he had been dead for two years.
That Was the Year That Was (record album) (1965)

8 First you get down on your knees,
Fiddle with your rosaries,
Bow your heads with great respect,
And genuflect, genuflect, genuflect!
"The Vatican Rag" (song) (1965)

Title of song (1976)

Erwin Leiser

German film director, 1923–1996

- 1 [Of the Holocaust.:] It must never happen again—never again.
Den Blodiga Tiden (motion picture) (1960)

Curtis E. LeMay

U.S. Air Force officer, 1906–1990

- 1 My solution to the problem [of North Vietnam] would be to tell them frankly that they've got to draw in their horns and stop their aggression, or we're going to bomb them back into the Stone Age.

Mission with LeMay: My Story bk. 8 (1965)

Raphael Lemkin

Polish legal scholar, 1900–1959

- 1 By genocide we mean the destruction of a nation or of an ethnic group.
Axis Rule in Occupied Europe preface (1944). This represents the coinage of the word genocide.

Madeleine L'Engle

U.S. writer, 1918–2007

- 1 A Wrinkle in Time.
Title of book (1963)

Nikolai Lenin (Vladimir Ilyich Ulyanov)

Russian revolutionary and political leader, 1870–1924

- 1 One Step Forward, Two Steps Back.
Title of pamphlet (1904). The Oxford English Dictionary records an earlier usage: “When a man has fully made up his mind to retreat, he bluster the most; and one step forward often promises two backward” (James Fenimore Cooper, Homeward Bound [1838]).
- 2 “The revolution's decisive victory over tsarism” means the establishment of the revolutionary-democratic dictatorship of the proletariat and the peasantry.
Two Tactics of Social-Democracy ch. 6 (1905)
- 3 Imperialism is the monopoly stage of capitalism.
Imperialism, the Highest Stage of Capitalism ch. 7 (1916)
- 4 We shall now proceed to construct the socialist order.
Speech at Congress of Soviets, 26 Oct. 1917
- 5 Communism is Soviet power plus the electrification of the whole country.
Report on the Work of the Council of People's Commissars, 22 Dec. 1920
- 6 [Of George Bernard Shaw.:] A good man fallen among Fabians.
Quoted in Arthur Ransome, Six Weeks in Russia in 1919 (1919)

- 7 They [capitalists] will furnish credits which will serve us for the support of the Communist Party in their countries and, by supplying us materials and technical equipment which we lack, will restore our military industry necessary for our future attacks against our suppliers. To put it in other words, they will work on the preparation of their own suicide.
Quoted in Novyi Zhurnal/New Review, Sept. 1961. According to Respectfully Quoted, ed. Suzy Platt, this was copied by I. U. Annenkov from Lenin manuscripts he examined shortly after Lenin's death. Platt notes, "The popular and widely-quoted paraphrase, 'The capitalists are so hungry for profits that they will sell us the rope to hang them with,' has often been considered spurious because it had not been found in Lenin's published works."
- 8 [Definition of political science:] Who masters whom?
Quoted in Polnoe Sobranie Sochinenii (1970) (entry for 17 Oct. 1921)
- 9 It is true that liberty is precious—so precious that it must be rationed.
Attributed in Sidney and Beatrice Webb, Soviet Communism: A New Civilization (1936)
- 10 [The United States will fall] like an over-ripe fruit into our hands.
Attributed in Wash. Post, 5 Sept. 1951. Long a popular quotation in anti-Communist circles, but diligent efforts by the Library of Congress and other researchers have failed to unearth anything by Lenin resembling it. The saying is undoubtedly fallacious.
- 11 [Of left-liberals in the West:] Useful idiots.
Attributed in Italy Today (1951). The phrase appeared in the New York Times, 21 June 1948, without reference to Lenin. Anti-Communists have often used this to attack those thought to be Soviet sympathizers, but the Library of Congress has never been able to trace the phrase in Lenin's writings. Like many other putative Leninisms, it seems to be a myth.
- 12 In dictatorships the masses vote with their feet.
Attributed in N.Y. Times, 4 Nov. 1954. Appeared in the Times without quotation marks and may have been a paraphrase.
- John Lennon
English rock singer and songwriter, 1940–1980
- 1 Will the people in the cheaper seats clap your hands? All the rest of you, if you'll just rattle your jewelry.
Royal Variety Performance, 4 Nov. 1963
- 2 There was no reason for Michael to be sad that morning, (the little wretch); everyone liked him, (the scab). He'd had a hard day's night that day, for Michael was a Cocky Watchtower.

- 3 God is a concept
By which we measure
Our pain.
"God" (song) (1970)
- 4 I don't believe in Elvis
I don't believe in Zimmerman
I don't believe in Beatles
I just believe in me
Yoko and me
And that's reality.
"God" (song) (1970). "Zimmerman" refers to singer Bob Dylan, whose original name is Robert Zimmerman.
- 5 The dream is over . . .
I was the Dreamweaver
But now I'm reborn
I was the Walrus
But now I'm John.
"God" (song) (1970)
- 6 They hurt you at home and they hit you at school
They hate you if you're clever and they despise a fool
Till you're so fucking crazy you can't follow their rules
A working class hero is something to be.
"Working Class Hero" (song) (1970)
- 7 There's room at the top they are telling you still
But first you must learn how to smile as you kill.
"Working Class Hero" (song) (1970)
- 8 Imagine there's no heaven
It's easy if you try
No hell below us
Above us only sky
Imagine all the people Living for today.
"Imagine" (song) (1971)
- 9 Imagine there's no countries
It isn't hard to do
Nothing to kill or die for.
"Imagine" (song) (1971)

- 10 You may say that I'm a dreamer
But I'm not the only one
I hope someday you'll join us
And the world will be as one.
"Imagine" (song) (1971)
- 11 Mind Games.
Title of song (1973)
- 12 Whatever Gets You Thru the Night.
Title of song (1974)
- 13 [Of the Beatles:] We're more popular than

Title of song (1963)
- 2 She loves you yeah, yeah, yeah.
"She Loves You" (song) (1963)
- 3 For I don't care too much for money,
For money can't buy me love.
"Can't Buy Me Love" (song) (1964)
- 4 It's been a hard day's night,
And I've been working like a dog,
It's been a hard day's night,
I should be sleeping like a log.
"A Hard Day's Night" (song) (1964)
See Lennon 2
- 5 Michelle ma belle
These are words that go together well, my Michelle,
- Michelle ma belle,
Sont des mots qui vont très bien ensemble.
"Michelle" (song) (1965)
- 6 He's a real Nowhere Man,
Sitting in his Nowhere Land,
Making all his Nowhere plans for nobody.
"Nowhere Man" (song) (1965)
- 7 Yesterday,
All my troubles seemed so far away,
Now it looks as though they're here to stay,
Oh, I believe in yesterday.
"Yesterday" (song) (1965)
- 8 All the lonely people, where do they all come from?
All the lonely people, where do they all belong?
"Eleanor Rigby" (song) (1966)
- 9 Eleanor Rigby died in the church and was buried along with her name.
Nobody came.
Father McKenzie, wiping the dirt from his hands as he walks from the grave.
No one was saved.
"Eleanor Rigby" (song) (1966)
- 10 We all live in a yellow submarine.
"Yellow Submarine" (song) (1966)
- 11 All You Need Is Love.
Title of song (1967)
- 12 I heard the news today oh boy
Four thousand holes in Blackburn, Lancashire
And though the holes were rather small
They had to count them all
Now they know how many holes it takes To fill the Albert Hall.
"A Day in the Life" (song) (1967). According to Nigel Rees, Cassell Companion to Quotations, John Lennon was inspired by an item in the Daily Mail, 17 Jan. 1967: "There are 4,000 holes in the road in Blackburn, Lancashire."

"With a Little Help from My Friends" (song) (1967)
- 19 Helter Skelter.
Title of song (1968)
- 20 You say you want a revolution
Well, you know
We all want to change the world.
"Revolution" (song) (1968)
- 21 But when you talk about destruction,
Don't you know that you can count me out.
"Revolution" (song) (1968)
- 22 You say you got a real solution
Well, you know
We'd all love to see the plan.
"Revolution" (song) (1968)
- 23 Christ, you know it ain't easy,
You know how hard it can be,
The way things are going
They're going to crucify me.
"The Ballad of John and Yoko" (song) (1969)
- 24 And in the end the love you take is equal to the love you make.
"The End" (song) (1969)

Annie Lennox

Scottish rock musician, 1954–

- 1 Some of them want to use you
Some of them want to get used by you
Some of them want to abuse you
Some of them want to be abused
Sweet dreams are made of this
Who am I to disagree?
"Sweet Dreams (Are Made of This)" (song) (1983).
Cowritten with David A. Stewart.
- 2 Sisters Are Doin' It for Themselves.
Title of song (1985). Cowritten with Dave Stewart.

Leo XIII

Italian pope, 1810–1903

- 1 It is one thing to have a right to the possession of money and another to have a right to use money as one wills.
Rerum Novarum (1891)
- 2 Every man has by nature the right to possess property as his own.
"Rights and Duties of Capital and Labor" art. 6 (1891)

Elmore Leonard

U.S. novelist, 1925–2013

- 1 If work was a good thing the rich would have it all and not let you do it.
Split Images ch. 1 (1981)
- 2 I asked him one time what type of writing brought the most money and the agent says,
"Ransom notes."
Get Shorty ch. 9 (1990)
- 3 [Of his writing:] I try to leave out the parts that people skip.
Quoted in Publishers Weekly, 8 Mar. 1985

Leonardo da Vinci

Italian artist and engineer, 1452–1519

- 1 The span of a man's outstretched arms is equal to his height.
The Notebooks of Leonardo da Vinci (translation by Edward MacCurdy)
- 2 A bird is an instrument working according to mathematical law, which instrument it is within the capacity of man to reproduce with all its movements.
The Notebooks of Leonardo da Vinci (translation by Edward MacCurdy)
- 3 [Text accompanying sketch of man with parachute:] If a man have a tent made of linen of which the apertures have all been stopped up, and it be twelve braccia across and twelve in depth, he will be able to throw himself down from any height without sustaining any injury.
The Notebooks of Leonardo da Vinci (translation by Edward MacCurdy)
- 4 Whoever in discussion adduces authority uses not intellect but rather memory.
The Notebooks of Leonardo da Vinci (translation by Edward MacCurdy)

5 In her [Nature's] inventions nothing is lacking, and nothing is superfluous.

The Notebooks of Leonardo da Vinci (translation by Edward MacCurdy)

Ruggiero Leoncavallo

Italian composer, 1858–1919

1 Vesti la giubba e la faccia infarina. Le gente paga e rider vuole qua. Ridi, Pagliacci, sul tuo amore in franto!

Put on your make-up and then smear on the powder! The people pay you and they must have their laugh. Laugh now, Pagliacci, for the love that is gone now.

I Pagliacci (opera) act 1, sc. 4 (1892)

2 La commedia è finita.

The comedy is finished.

I Pagliacci (opera) act 2, sc. 2 (1892)

Sergio Leone

Italian film director, 1929–1989

1 Il Buono, il Brutto, il Cattivo.

The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly.

Title of motion picture (1966)

Aldo Leopold

U.S. ecologist, 1886–1948

1 When we see land as a community to which we belong, we may begin to use it with love and respect.

A Sand County Almanac foreword (1949)

2 A thing is right when it tends to preserve the integrity, stability, and beauty of the biotic community. It is wrong when it tends otherwise.

A Sand County Almanac pt. 3 (1949)

3 If the land mechanism as a whole is good, then every part is good, whether we understand it or not. If the biota, in the course of aeons, has built something we like but do not understand, then who but a fool would discard seemingly useless parts? To keep every cog and wheel is the first precaution of intelligent tinkering.

Round River: From the Journals of Aldo Leopold "Conservation" (1953). Usually quoted as "The first rule of intelligent tinkering is to save all the parts."

Mikhail Lermontov

Russian novelist and poet, 1814–1841

1 I was traveling post from Tiflis. My cart's entire load consisted of one small valise, which was half filled with travel notes about Georgia. Of these, the greater part, fortunately for you, have been lost.

A Hero of Our Time pt. 1, ch. 1 (1840) (translation by Marian Schwartz)

2 Of two friends, one is always the other's slave.

A Hero of Our Time pt. 2, ch. 2 (1840) (translation by Marian Schwartz)

Alan Jay Lerner

U.S. songwriter, 1918–1986

1 What a day this has been!

What a rare mood I'm in!

Why, it's . . . almost like being in love!

"Almost Like Being in Love" (song) (1947). Ellipsis in the original.

2 I'm getting married in the morning!

Ding dong! the bells are gonna chime.

Pull out the stopper!

Let's have a whopper!

But get me to the church on time!

"Get Me to the Church on Time" (song) (1956)

3 Why can't a woman be more like a man?

"A Hymn to Him" (song) (1956)

4 I could have danced all night!

And still have begged for more.

I could have spread my wings

And done a thousand things

I've never done before.

"I Could Have Danced All Night" (song) (1956)

5 I'd be equally as willing

For a dentist to be drilling

Than to ever let a woman in my life!

"I'm an Ordinary Man" (song) (1956)

6 I've grown accustomed to her face!

She almost makes the day begin.

I've grown accustomed to the tune

She whistles night and noon.

"I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face" (song) (1956)

7 "Thanks a lot, King," says I, in a manner well-bred;

"But all I want is 'enry 'iggins' 'ead!"

"Just You Wait" (song) (1956)

- 8 I have often walked down this street before,
But the pavement always stayed beneath my feet before.
All at once am I
Several storeys high,
Knowing I'm on the street where you live.
"On the Street Where You Live" (song) (1956)
- 9 Why can't the English teach their children how to speak?
This verbal class distinction by now should be antique.
If you spoke as she does, sir,
Instead of the way you do,
Why, you might be selling flowers, too.
"Why Can't the English?" (song) (1956)
- 10 There even are places where English completely disappears.
In America, they haven't used it for years!
"Why Can't the English?" (song) (1956)
- 11 The Lord above made man to help his neighbor,
No matter where, on land, or sea, or foam.
The Lord above made man to help his neighbor—but
With a little bit of luck . . .
When he comes around you won't be home!
"With a Little Bit of Luck" (song) (1956)
- 12 There'll be spring ev'ry year without you.
England still will be here without you.
"Without You" (song) (1956)
- 13 All I want is a room somewhere,
Far away from the cold night air;
With one enormous chair
Oh, wouldn't it be louverly?
"Wouldn't It be Louverly?" (song) (1956)
- 14 Oh, Gigi, have I been standing up too close
Or back too far?
When did your sparkle turn to fire?
And your warmth become desire?
Oh, what miracle has made you the way you are?
"Gigi" (song) (1958)
- 15 Thank heaven for little girls!
For little girls get bigger every day.
Thank heaven for little girls!
They grow up in the most delightful way.
"Thank Heaven for Little Girls" (song) (1958)

- 16 The winter is forbidden till December,
And exits March the second on the dot.
By order summer lingers through September
In Camelot.
"Camelot" (song) (1960)
- 17 Don't let it be forgot
That once there was a spot
For one brief shining moment that was known As Camelot.
"Camelot" (song) (1960)

Sammy Lerner

Romanian-born U.S. songwriter, 1903–1989

- 1 I'm Popeye the sailor man.
I'm strong to the "fin-ich"
'Cause I eats me spinach;
I'm Popeye the sailor man.
"I'm Popeye the Sailor Man" (song) (1934)

Edgar Leslie

U.S. songwriter, 1885–1976

- 1 The bells are ringing
For me and my gal.
The birds are singing
For me and my gal.
"For Me and My Gal" (song) (1917). Cowritten with E. Ray Goetz.

Doris Lessing

Iranian-born British novelist, 1919–2013

- 1 There's only one real sin, and that is to persuade oneself that the second-best is anything but the second-best.
The Golden Notebook "Free Women: 5" (1962)
- 2 None of you [men] ask for anything—except everything, but just for so long as you need it.
The Golden Notebook "Free Women: 5" (1962)

Gotthold Ephraim Lessing

German playwright and critic, 1729–1781

- 1 Ein einziger dankbarer Gedanke gen Himmel ist das vollkommenste Gebet.
One single grateful thought raised to heaven is the most perfect prayer.
Minna von Barnhelm act 2, sc. 7 (1767)

2 No person must have to.
Nathan der Weise act 1, sc. 3 (1779)

3 The true beggar is . . . the true king!
Nathan der Weise act 2 (1779)

Julius Lester

U.S. author, 1939–2018

1 To be a slave was to be a human being under conditions in which humanity was denied. They were not slaves. They were people. Their condition was slavery.
To Be a Slave ch. 1 (1968)

Kathy Lette

Australian-born English novelist, 1958–

1 I didn't "fall" pregnant! I was bloody well pushed.
Foetal Attraction pt. 1 (1993)

Oscar Levant

U.S. pianist and actor, 1906–1972

1 An epigram is a gag that's played Carnegie Hall.
Quoted in Edmund Fuller, Thesaurus of Quotations (1941). In later occurrences, the word wisecrack was used rather than gag.

2 Strip away the phony tinsel of Hollywood and you find the real tinsel underneath.
Quoted in L.A. Times, 17 Sept. 1961. A very similar remark about Hollywood was attributed to Ed Gardner in the L.A. Times, 27 Nov. 1947: "Scratch beneath the phony tinsel and you will find the real tinsel."

Sam Levenson

U.S. humorist, 1911–1980

1 Insanity is hereditary. You can get it from your children.
Quoted in Ada (Okla.) Weekly News, 6 Apr. 1961

Denise Levertov

English-born U.S. poet, 1923–1997

1 Two by two in the ark of the ache of it.
"The Ache of Marriage" l. 10 (1963)

Carlo Levi

Italian writer and painter, 1902–1975

1 To this shadowy land, that knows neither sin nor redemption from sin, where evil is not moral but is only the pain residing forever in earthly things, Christ did not come. Christ stopped at Eboli.

Christ Stopped at Eboli ch. 1 (1945)

2 Christ never came this far, nor did time, nor the individual soul, nor hope, nor the relation of cause to effect, nor reason nor history.

Christ Stopped at Eboli ch. 1 (1945)

Primo Levi

Italian novelist and poet, 1919–1987

1 [Of the Auschwitz concentration camp.] Our language lacks words to express this offence, the demolition of a man.

If This Is a Man (1958). Newsman Edward R. Murrow, in his CBS radio broadcast from the Buchenwald concentration camp, 15 Apr. 1945, said, "For most of it I have not words."

2 Today I think that if for no other reason than that an Auschwitz existed, no one in our age should speak of Providence.

Survival in Auschwitz ch. 17 (1960) (translation by Stuart Woolf)

Irwin Levine

U.S. songwriter, 1938–1997

1 Whoa tie a yellow ribbon
'Round the old oak tree
It's been three long years
Do ya still want me?

"Tie a Yellow Ribbon 'Round the Old Oak Tree" (song) (1972). Cowritten with L. Russell Brown. See Folk and Anonymous Songs 70

Duc de Lévis

French soldier and writer, 1764–1830

1 Noblesse oblige.
Nobility has its obligations.
Maximes et Réflexions (1808)

Claude Lévi-Strauss

French anthropologist, 1908–2009

- 1 The world began without man, and it will end without him.

Tristes Tropiques pt. 9, ch. 40 (1955)

- 2 I therefore claim to show, not how men think in myths, but how myths operate in men's minds without their being aware of the fact.

The Raw and the Cooked (1964)

Monica Lewinsky

U.S. White House intern, 1973–

- 1 I would just like to say that no one ever asked me to lie and I was never promised a job for my silence. And that I'm sorry. I'm really sorry for everything that's happened. And I hate Linda Tripp.

Grand jury testimony, 6 Aug. 1998

C. S. Lewis

English novelist and essayist, 1898–1963

- 1 The safest road to Hell is the gradual one—the gentle slope, soft underfoot, without sudden turnings, without milestones, without signposts.

The Screwtape Letters ch. 12 (1941)

- 2 The Future . . . something which everyone reaches at the rate of sixty minutes an hour, whatever he does, whoever he is.

The Screwtape Letters ch. 25 (1941)

- 3 Either this man [Jesus] was, and is, the Son of God: or else a madman or something worse. You can shut Him up for a fool, you can spit at Him and kill Him as a demon; or you can fall at His feet and call Him Lord and God. But let us not come with any patronizing nonsense about His being a great human teacher. He has not left that open to us. He did not intend to.

Broadcast Talks "The Shocking Alternative" (1942). This argument, now known as "Lewis's trilemma," was anticipated by nineteenth-century preachers such as Mark Hopkins and John Duncan.

- 4 Though the Witch knew the Deep Magic, there is a magic deeper still which she did not know. Her knowledge goes back only to the dawn of Time.

The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe ch. 15 (1950)

- 5 There was a boy called Eustace Clarence Scrubb, and he almost deserved it.

The Voyage of the Dawn Treader ch. 1 (1952)

Joe E. Lewis

U.S. comedian, 1902–1971

- 1 [A banker is] a man who will lend you money if you can prove to him that you don't need it.

Quoted in Wash. Post, 16 Oct. 1944. The same thought was expressed by Ogden Nash in his 1938 poem "Bankers Are Just like Anybody Else, Except Richer."

See Benchley 11; Galsworthy 2; Lincoln 2; Groucho Marx 41; Twain 4

- 2 Rooting for the Yankees is like rooting for U.S. Steel.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 29 June 1958. The 1958 usage does not attribute these words to Lewis, but Paul Dickson states in Baseball's Greatest Quotations (1991) that "the wide-mouthed comic appears to have said it first." The variation "Rooting against the Yankees is like rooting against U.S. Steel" appears in Sporting News, 21 Oct. 1953.

Paul Lewis

U.S. literary scholar, 1949–

- 1 Ever since Mary Shelley's baron rolled his improved human out of the lab, scientists have been bringing just such good things to life. If they want to sell us Frankenfood, perhaps it's time to gather the villagers, light some torches, and head to the castle.

Letter to the editor, N.Y. Times, 16 June 1992

Richard Lewis

U.S. comedian, 1947–

- 1 [Self-description.] Comedian from hell.

Quoted in Chicago Tribune, 20 Apr. 1986. Lewis popularized the expression "the ——— from hell."

Sam M. Lewis

U.S. songwriter, 1885–1959

- 1 How 'Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm (After They've Seen Patee)?

Title of song (1919). Cowritten with Joe Young.

- 2 Five foot two, eyes of blue,
But oh! what those five feet could do,
Has anybody seen my girl?

"Five Foot Two, Eyes of Blue" (song) (1925).
Cowritten with Joe Young.

Sinclair Lewis

U.S. novelist, 1885–1951

- 1 Main Street.
Title of book (1920)
- 2 His name was George F. Babbitt. He was 46 years old now, in April 1920, and he made nothing in particular, neither butter nor shoes nor poetry, but he was nimble in the calling of selling houses for more than people could afford to pay.
Babbitt ch. 1 (1922)
- 3 Every compulsion is put upon writers to become safe, polite, obedient, and sterile. In protest I declined election to the National Institute of Arts and Letters some years ago, and now I must decline the Pulitzer Prize. Letter declining Pulitzer Prize in fiction (1926)
- 4 Our American professors like their literature clear and cold and pure and very dead.
Nobel Prize address, Stockholm, 12 Dec. 1930
- 5 It Can't Happen Here.
Title of book (1935)

Wyndham Lewis

English writer and painter, 1882–1957

A daring young man on the flying trapeze.
"The Flying Trapeze" (song) (1868)

Liberace (Wladziu Valentino Liberace)

U.S. entertainer, 1919–1987

- 1 After reading [a] bitter attack on the Liberace show, the famous Milwaukee piano player wrote the critic, "My manager and I laughed all the way to the bank."
Reported in San Mateo (Calif.) Times, 7 Nov. 1953. The sentence "Some of them heard Mason laugh all the way to the bank" appeared in F. Hopkinson Smith, Peter (1908).
- 2 He [Liberace] repeated his crack that when his brother read Crosby's insults, he "cried all the way to the bank."
Reported in Detroit Free Press, 7 May 1954. An earlier version appeared in Walter Winchell's column in the Cincinnati Enquirer, 2 Sept. 1946: "Eddie Walker perhaps is the wealthiest fight manager in the fight game . . . The other night when his man Belloise lost, Eddie had the miseries . . . He felt so terrible that he cried all the way to the bank" [ellipses in original].

Georg Christoph Lichtenberg

German scientist and satirist, 1742–1799

- 1 To do just the opposite is also a form of imitation.
Aphorisms (1775–1779) (translation by Franz H. Mautner and Henry Hatfield)
- 2 A book is a mirror: when a monkey looks in, no apostle can look out.
Aphorisms (1775–1779) (translation by Franz H. Mautner and Henry Hatfield)
- 3 Everyone is a genius at least once a year. The real geniuses simply have their bright ideas closer together.
Aphorisms (1779–1788) (translation by Franz H. Mautner and Henry Hatfield)
- 4 A donkey appears to me like a horse translated into Dutch.
Aphorisms (1779–1788) (translation by Franz H. Mautner and Henry Hatfield)

J. C. R. Licklider

U.S. computer scientist, 1915–1990

- 1 It seems reasonable to envision, for a time 10 or 15 years hence, a "thinking center" that will incorporate the functions of present-day libraries together with anticipated advances in information storage and retrieval. . . . The picture readily enlarges itself into a network of such centers, connected to one another by wide-band communication lines and to individual users by leased-wire services.

“Man-Computer Symbiosis” (1960)

A. J. Liebling

U.S. journalist, 1904–1963

- 1 Freedom of the press is guaranteed only to those who own one.
New Yorker, 14 May 1960
- 2 I can write faster than anyone who can write better, and I can write better than anyone who can write faster.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 19 Jan. 1964

Gordon Lightfoot

Canadian folk singer and songwriter, 1938–

- 1 The legend lives on from the Chippewa on down
Of the big lake they call “Gitche Gumee.”
Superior, they said, never gives up her dead
When the gales of November come early!
“The Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald” (song) (1976)
- 2 Does anyone know where the love of God goes
When the waves turn the minutes to hours?
“The Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald” (song) (1976)

Lydia Kamekeha Liliuokalani

Hawaiian queen and songwriter, 1838–1917

- 1 Farewell to thee, farewell to thee . . .
Until we meet again.
“Aloha Oe” (song) (1878)

Beatrice Lillie

Canadian comedian, 1898–1989

- 1 Every Other Inch a Lady.
Title of book (1927)
See Woollcott 5

Never darken my Dior again.
Quoted in Lore and Maurice Cowan, The Wit of Women (1969)

Maya Lin

U.S. architect and sculptor, 1959–

- 1 I saw the Vietnam Veterans Memorial not as an object placed into the earth but as a cut in the earth that has then been polished, like a geode.
Quoted in Smithsonian Magazine, Aug. 1996

Abraham Lincoln

U.S. president, 1809–1865

- 1 There is no grievance that is a fit object of redress by mob law.
Address before the Young Men's Lyceum, Springfield, Ill., 27 Jan. 1838
- 2 I have now come to the conclusion never again to think of marrying; and for this reason; I can never be satisfied with any one who would be blockhead enough to have me.

- 3 Any people anywhere, being inclined and having the power, have the right to rise up, and shake off the existing government, and form a new one that suits them better.
Speech in House of Representatives, 12 Jan. 1848
- 4 Discourage litigation. Persuade your neighbors to compromise whenever you can. Point out to them how the nominal winner is often a real loser—in fees, expenses, and waste of time. As a peacemaker the lawyer has a superior opportunity of being a good man. There will still be business enough.
“Notes for a Law Lecture,” ca. 1 July 1850
- 5 The ant, who has toiled and dragged a crumb to his nest, will furiously defend the fruit of his labor, against whatever robber assails him. So plain, that the most dumb and stupid slave that ever toiled for a master, does constantly know that he is wronged. So plain that no one, high or low, ever does mistake it, except in a plainly

- selfish* way; for although volume upon volume is written to prove slavery a very good thing, we never hear of the man who wishes to take the good of it, by being a slave himself.
“Fragment on Slavery” ca. 1 July 1854
- 6 We were proclaiming ourselves political hypocrites before the world, by thus fostering Human Slavery and proclaiming ourselves, at the same time, the sole friends of Human Freedom.
Speech, Springfield, Ill., 4 Oct. 1854
- 7 This declared indifference, but as I must think, covert real zeal for the spread of slavery, I can not but hate. I hate it because of the monstrous injustice of slavery itself. I hate it because it deprives our Republican example of its just influence in the world—enables the enemies of free institutions, with plausibility, to taunt us as hypocrites—causes the real friends of freedom to doubt our sincerity, and especially because it forces so many really good men amongst ourselves into an open war with the very fundamental principles of civil liberty—criticizing the Declaration of Independence, and insisting that there is no right principle of action but self-interest.
Speech, Peoria, Ill., 16 Oct. 1854
- 8 No man is good enough to govern another man, without that other's consent. I say this is the leading principle—the sheet anchor of American republicanism.
Speech, Peoria, Ill., 16 Oct. 1854
- 9 Our progress in degeneracy appears to me to be pretty rapid. As a nation, we began by declaring that “all men are created equal.” We now practically read it “all men are created equal, except Negroes.” When the Know-Nothings get control, it will read “all men are created equal, except Negroes and foreigners and Catholics.” When it comes to this, I shall prefer emigrating to some country where they make no pretense of loving liberty—to Russia, for instance, where despotism can be taken pure and without the base alloy of hypocrisy.
Letter to Joshua F. Speed, 24 Aug. 1855
- 10 To give the victory to the right, not bloody bullets, but peaceful ballots only, are necessary.
- “Fragment of a Speech” ca. 18 May 1858. This is the closest documented Lincoln passage to the frequently quoted “The ballot is stronger than the bullet.”
- 11 “A house divided against itself cannot stand.” I believe this government cannot endure, permanently half slave and half free. I do not expect the Union to be dissolved—I do not expect the house to fall—but I do expect it will cease to be divided. It will become all one thing, or all the other.

- 12 They have seen in his [Senator Stephen A. Douglas's] round, jolly, fruitful face, post offices, land offices, marshalships, and cabinet appointments, chargeships and foreign missions, bursting and sprouting out in wonderful exuberance ready to be laid hold of by their greedy hands. . . . Nobody has ever expected me to be President. In my poor, lean, lank face nobody has ever seen that any cabbages were sprouting out.
Speech, Springfield, Ill., 17 July 1858
- 13 As I would not be a slave, so I would not be a master. This expresses my idea of democracy. Whatever differs from this, to the extent of the difference, is no democracy.
“Definition of Democracy,” ca. 1 Aug. 1858
- 14 I am not, nor ever have been in favor of bringing about in any way the social and political equality of the white and black races. . . . I am not nor ever have been in favor of making voters or jurors of negroes, nor of qualifying them to hold office, nor to intermarry with white people; and I will say in addition to this that there is a physical difference between the white and black races which I believe will for ever forbid the two races living together on terms of social and political equality. And inasmuch as they cannot so live, while they do remain together there must be the position of superior and inferior, and I as much as any other man am in favor of having the superior assigned to the white race.
Fourth Debate with Stephen A. Douglas, Charleston, Ill., 18 Sept. 1858

- 15 I have never seen to my knowledge a man, woman, or child who was in favor of producing a perfect equality, social and political, between negroes and white men.
Fourth Debate with Stephen A. Douglas, Charleston, Ill., 18 Sept. 1858
- 16 [Referring to Senator Stephen A. Douglas's argument about popular sovereignty:] Has it not got down as thin as the homeopathic soup that was made by boiling the shadow of a pigeon that had starved to death?
Sixth Debate with Stephen A. Douglas, Quincy, Ill., 13 Oct. 1858
- 17 This is a world of compensations; and he who would be no slave, must consent to have no slave. Those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves and under a just God, can not long retain it.
Letter to Henry L. Pierce and Others, 6 Apr. 1859
- 18 Negro equality! Fudge!! How long, in the government of a God great enough to make and maintain this Universe, shall there continue knaves to vend, and fools to gulp, so low a piece of demagogueism as this.
Notes for Speech, ca. Sept. 1859
- 19 I hold that if the Almighty had ever made a set of men that should do all the eating and none of the work, he would have made them with mouths only and no hands, and if he had ever made another class that he intended should do all the work and none of the eating, he would have made them without mouths and with all hands.

- 20 It is said an Eastern monarch once charged his wise men to invent him a sentence, to be ever in view, and which should be true and appropriate in all times and situations. They presented him the words: "And this, too, shall pass away."

- 22 Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith, let us, to the end, dare to do our duty as we understand it.
Address at Cooper Institute, New York, N.Y., 27 Feb. 1860
- 23 I am glad to know that there is a system of labor where the laborer can strike if he wants to! I would to God that such a system prevailed all over the world.
Speech, Hartford, Conn., 5 0-Mar. 1860
- 24 Whether the owners of this species of property [slavery] do really see it as it is, it is not for me to say, but if they do, they see it as it is through 2,000,000,000 of dollars, and that is a pretty thick coating.
Speech, New Haven, Conn., 5 Mar. 1860
- 25 Why should there not be a patient confidence in the ultimate justice of the people? Is there any better or equal hope, in the world?
First Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1861
- 26 It is safe to assert that no government proper ever had a provision in its organic law for its own termination. Continue to execute all the express provisions of our national Constitution, and the Union will endure forever—it being impossible to destroy it, except by some action not provided for in the instrument itself.
First Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1861
- 27 If, by the mere force of numbers, a majority should deprive a minority of any clearly written constitutional right, it might, in a moral point of view, justify revolution—certainly would, if such right were a vital one.
First Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1861
- 28 Physically speaking, we cannot separate. We cannot remove our respective sections from each other, nor build an impassable wall between them. A husband and wife may be divorced, and go out of the presence, and beyond the reach of each other; but the different parts of our country cannot do this. They cannot but remain face to face; and intercourse, either amicable or hostile, must continue between them.
First Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1861

- 29 This country, with its institutions, belongs to the people who inhabit it. Whenever they shall grow weary of the existing government, they can exercise their constitutional right of amending it, or their revolutionary right to dismember, or overthrow it.
First Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1861
- 30 We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic chords of memory, stretching from every battle-field, and patriot grave, to every living heart and hearthstone, all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union, when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature.
First Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1861
- 31 Labor is prior to, and independent of, capital. Capital is only the fruit of labor, and could never have existed if labor had not first existed. Labor is the superior of capital, and deserves much the higher consideration.
Annual Message to Congress, 3 Dec. 1861
- 32 If there be those who would not save the Union, unless they could at the same time save slavery, I do not agree with them. If there be those who would not save the Union unless they could at the same time destroy slavery, I do not agree with them. My paramount object in this struggle is to save the Union, and is not either to save or to destroy slavery. If I could save the Union without freeing any slave I would do it, and if I could save it by freeing all the slaves I would do it; and if I could save it by freeing some and leaving others alone I would also do that. What I do about slavery, and the colored race, I do because I believe it helps to save the Union; and what I forbear, I forbear because I do not believe it would help to save the Union.
Letter to Horace Greeley, 22 Aug. 1862
- 33 In great contests each party claims to act in accordance with the will of God. Both may be, and one must be, wrong. God can not be for and against the same thing at the same time.
“Meditation on the Divine Will,” ca. 2 Sept. 1862
- 34 On the first day of January in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-
- three, all persons held as slaves within any state, or designated part of a state, the people whereof shall then be in rebellion against the United States shall be then, thenceforward, and forever free.
Preliminary Emancipation Proclamation, 22 Sept. 1862
- 35 I have just read your dispatch about sore tongued and fatigued horses. Will you pardon me for asking what the horses of your army have done since the battle of Antietam that fatigue anything?
Letter to George B. McClellan, 24 Oct. 1862
- 36 The dogmas of the quiet past are inadequate to the stormy present. The occasion is piled high with difficulty, and we must rise with the occasion. As our case is new, so we must think anew, and act anew. We must disenthrall ourselves, and then we shall save our country.
Annual Message to Congress, 1 Dec. 1862
- 37 Fellow-citizens, we cannot escape history. We of this Congress and this administration, will be remembered in spite of ourselves. No personal significance, or insignificance, can spare one or another of us. The fiery trial through which we pass, will light us down, in honor or dishonor, to the latest generation. We say we are for the Union. The world will not forget that we say this. We know how to save the Union. The world knows we do know how to save it. We—even we here—hold the power, and bear the responsibility. In giving freedom to the slave, we assure freedom to the free—honorable alike in what we give, and what we preserve. We shall nobly save, or meanly lose, the last best, hope of earth.
Annual Message to Congress, 1 Dec. 1862
- 38 I do order and declare that all persons held as slaves within said designated States, and part of States, are, and henceforward shall be free; . . . And upon this act, sincerely believed to be an act of justice, warranted by the Constitution, upon military necessity, I invoke the considerate judgment of mankind, and the gracious favor of Almighty God.
Emancipation Proclamation, 1 Jan. 1863

- 39 The signs look better. The Father of Waters [the Mississippi River] again goes unvexed to the sea.
Letter to James C. Conkling, 26 Aug. 1863
- 40 I do, therefore, invite my fellow citizens . . . to set apart and observe the last Thursday of November next, as a day of Thanksgiving and Praise to our beneficent Father who dwelleth in the Heavens.
Proclamation, 3 Oct. 1863
- 41 Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.
Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.
Gettysburg Address, Gettysburg, Pa., 19 Nov. 1863
- 42 But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.
Gettysburg Address, Gettysburg, Pa., 19 Nov. 1863. Burton E. Stevenson notes in The Home Book of Quotations that “Herndon, in his Life of Lincoln, asserts that he gave a copy of this pamphlet [Theodore Parker’s On the Effect of Slavery on the American People, printing Parker’s 1858 sermon] to Lincoln, who marked” the passage there with the words “over all the people, for all the people, by all the people.” Henry Wilson, in a letter to James Redpath et al., 27 Nov. 1860 (printed in the Evening Transcript [Boston], 4 Dec. 1860), wrote, “Ours is a government of constitutions and laws, . . . a government of the people, by the people, for the people.”
See Theodore Parker 1; Theodore Parker 3; Daniel Webster 5
- 43 I am naturally anti-slavery. If slavery is not wrong, nothing is wrong. I can not remember when I did not so think, and feel.
Letter to Albert G. Hodges, 4 Apr. 1864
- 44 By general law life and limb must be protected; yet often a limb must be amputated to save a life; but a life is never wisely given to save a limb.
Letter to Albert G. Hodges, 4 Apr. 1864
- 45 I claim not to have controlled events, but confess plainly that events have controlled me.
Letter to Albert G. Hodges, 4 Apr. 1864
- 46 The world has never had a good definition of the word liberty, and the American people, just now, are much in want of one. We all declare for liberty; but in using the same word we do not all mean the same thing. . . . The shepherd drives the wolf from the sheep’s throat, for which the sheep thanks the shepherd as a liberator, while the wolf denounces him for the same act as the destroyer of liberty, especially as the sheep was a black one. Plainly the sheep and the wolf are not agreed upon a definition of the word liberty; and precisely the same difference prevails today among us human creatures.
Address at Sanitary Fair, Baltimore, Md., 18 Apr. 1864
- 47 [On the possibility of his reelection:] I have not permitted myself, gentlemen, to conclude that I am the best man in the country; but I am reminded, in this connection, of a story of an old Dutch farmer, who remarked to a companion once that “it was not best to swap horses when crossing streams.”
Reply to Delegation from National Union League, 9 June 1864. A precursor of this expression appeared in the New-Hampshire Sentinel, 19 Feb. 1840 (citing the Albany Advertiser): “An Irishman, (said Mr. Hamer) in crossing a river in a boat, with his mare and colt, was thrown into the river, and clung to the colt's tail. The colt showed signs of exhaustion, and a man on shore told him to leave the colt and cling to the mare's tail. 'Och! faith honey! this is no time to swap horses,' was his reply."

- 48 Dear Madam,—I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts, that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any words of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering to you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the Republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours, to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of Freedom.
Letter to Lydia Bixby, 21 Nov. 1864. Later information corrected the records of Mrs. Bixby's loss from five sons to two sons.
- 49 It may seem strange that any men should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing their bread from the sweat of other men's faces; but let us judge not that we be not judged.
Second Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1865
See Bible 221
- 50 Fondly do we hope—ferently do we pray—that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue, until all the wealth piled by the bond-man's two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash, shall be paid by another drawn with the sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still it must be said "the judgments of the Lord, are true and righteous altogether."
Second Inaugural Address, 4 Mar. 1865
- 51 With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan—to do all which may achieve and cherish a just, and a lasting peace, among ourselves, and with all nations.

- 53 [Commenting on his loss to Stephen A. Douglas for senator from Illinois in 1858:] I feel just like the boy who stubbed his toe—too d——d badly hurt to laugh and too d——d proud to cry!
Quoted in Cincinnati Enquirer, 16 Sept. 1859
- 54 Common looking people are the best in the world: that is the reason the Lord makes so many of them.
Quoted in John Hay, Diary, 24 Dec. 1863. Hay's diary relates that Lincoln said these words in a dream, in response to someone in the dream saying of him, "He is a very common-looking man." The more familiar version of the quotation, "God must love the common people, He's made so many of 'em," appeared in the New York Tribune, 20 Dec. 1903.
- 55 If I were to try to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for other business.
Quoted in Francis B. Carpenter, The Inner Life of Abraham Lincoln: Six Months at the White House (1869)
- 56 If the end brings me out all right, what's said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference.
Quoted in Francis B. Carpenter, The Inner Life of Abraham Lincoln: Six Months at the White House (1869)
- 57 [Recollection of comment by an old man at an Indiana church meeting, ca. 1810:] When I do good, I feel good, when I do bad, I feel bad, and that's my religion.
Quoted in William H. Herndon and Jesse W. Weik, Herndon's Lincoln: The True Story of a Great Life (1889)
See Hemingway 13
- 58 That [man] can compress the most words in the fewest ideas of any man I ever knew.
Quoted in Henry Clay Whitney, Life on the Circuit with Lincoln (1892)

- 59 [Critique of book:] People who like this sort of thing will find this the sort of thing they like.
Quoted in G. W. E. Russell, Collections and Recollections (1898). David Mearns suggests in the Lincoln Herald (1965) that the source for this remark was a mock testimonial by Artemus Ward: “For people who like the kind of lectures you deliver, they are just the kind of lectures such people like” (these exact words by Ward appeared in the Daily Eastern Argus [Portland, Me.], 23 Oct. 1863).
- 60 [Upon meeting Harriet Beecher Stowe, Nov. 1862:] So you’re the little woman who wrote the book that made this great war!
Quoted in McClure’s Magazine, Apr. 1911. McClure’s adds: “Mr. Charles Edward Stowe, one of the authors of this article, accompanied his mother on this visit to Lincoln, and remembers this occasion distinctly.”
- 61 Folks are usually about as happy as they make up their minds to be.
Quoted in Syracuse Herald, 1 Jan. 1914
- 62 [Remark at conference of cabinet members and generals, 10 Jan. 1862:] If General McClellan did not want to use the army, he would like to borrow it.
Reported in Henry J. Raymond, The Life and Public Services of Abraham Lincoln (1865)
- 63 He [Lincoln] used to liken the case to that of the boy who, when asked how many legs his calf would have if he called its tail a leg, replied, “Five,” to which the prompt response was made that calling the tail a leg would not make it a leg.
Reported in Reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln, ed. A. T. Rice (1886). Garson O’Toole has found an earlier version of this Lincoln anecdote told in the Daily Milwaukee News, 23 Sept. 1862, and he has found a very similar, non-Lincoln precursor of the “five legs” riddle in the Berkshire (Mass.) Star, 28 Apr. 1825.
- 64 Mr. Lincoln [told] the story of the young man who had an aged father and mother owning considerable property. The young man being an only son and believing that the old people had lived out their usefulness assassinated them both. He was accused, tried, and convicted of the murder. When the judge came to pass sentence upon him and called upon him to give any reason he might have why the sentence of death should not be passed upon him, he with great promptness replied he hoped the court would be lenient upon him because he was a poor orphan.
Reported in Ward Hill Lamon, Administration of Lincoln (1886)
See Artemus Ward 1
- 65 [After being requested to remove Ulysses S. Grant from command because he drank too much:] Can you tell me where he gets his whiskey? . . . Because, if I can only find out, I will send a barrel of this wonderful whiskey to every general in the army.
Attributed in N.Y. Herald, 18 Sept. 1863. P. M. Zall notes in Abe Lincoln Laughing (1982): “This is a switch on an old jestbook favorite, appearing, for instance, in Joe Miller’s Complete Jest Book (1845), p. 494, where the King of England makes the comment about General James Wolfe.” Zall also cites evidence that Lincoln on one occasion denied having invented it, specifically referring to a King George–General Wolfe original in which the King, told that Wolfe was mad, replied, “I wish he would bite some of my other generals then.”
See George II 1
- 66 You can fool part of the people some of the time, you can fool some of the people all of the time, but you cannot fool all the people all of the time.
Attributed in Albany Times, 8 Mar. 1886. According to The Collected Works of Abraham Lincoln, ed. Roy P. Basler, “Tradition has come to attribute to the Clinton [Illinois] speeches [2 September 1858]” this “most famous” of Lincoln’s utterances. Basler indicates, however, that there is no evidence of this saying in Lincoln documents. P. T. Barnum has also been a putative source for the quotation. Garson O’Toole has found “You can fool all the people part of the time, or you can fool some people all the time, but you cannot fool all people all the time,” without attribution to any individual, in the Syracuse Daily Standard, 9 Sept. 1885.

Attributed in Bulletin, Lincoln National Life Foundation, 11 July 1949. Michael J. Musmanno notes in his dissenting opinion in Sterling v. Philadelphia (1954): “A study of Lincoln’s accredited writings fails to produce this aphorism. . . . The Lincoln National Life Foundation, which makes an effort to trace the origin of supposed Lincoln sayings, reports that this one . . . apparently came to life in a plaque produced by the Allen Smith Company in Indianapolis . . . (Bulletin, Lincoln National Life Foundation No. 1057, July 11, 1949.)”

- 1 I ask you and the whole world for a generic differentia between man and ape which conforms to the principles of natural history. I certainly know of none.
Letter to J. G. Gmelin, 14 Jan. 1747 (translation by Gunnar Broberg)
- 2 Nature does not make jumps.
Philosophia Botanica aphorism 77 (1751)

Lin Yutang

Chinese author and linguist, 1895–1976

- 1 The Chinese do not draw any distinction between food and medicine.
The Importance of Living ch. 9 (1938)

Li Po

Chinese poet, 701–762

- 1 Since Life is but a Dream,
Why toil to no avail?
“A Homily on Ideals in Life, Uttered in Springtime on Rising from a Drunken Slumber” (ca. 750)
See Calderón de la Barca 1; Carroll 44; Folk and Anonymous Songs 67; Proverbs 169
- 2 Beneath the blossoms with a pot of wine,
No friends at hand, so I poured alone;

I raised my cup to invite the moon,
Turned to my shadow, and we became three.
“Drinking Alone in the Midnight” (eighth cent.)
(translation by Elling Eide)

Walter Lippmann

U.S. journalist, 1889–1974

- I The newspaper is in all literalness the bible of democracy, the book out of which a people determines its conduct. It is the only serious book most people read. It is the only book they read every day.
Liberty and the News ch. 2 (1920)
- 2 The subtlest and most pervasive of all influences are those which create and maintain the repertory of stereotypes. We are told about the world before we see it. We imagine most things before we experience them.
Public Opinion ch. 6 (1922)
- 3 Franklin D. Roosevelt is no crusader. He is no tribune of the people. He is no enemy of entrenched privilege. He is a pleasant man who, without any important qualifications for the office, would very much like to be President.
N.Y. Herald Tribune, 8 Jan. 1932

Franz Liszt

Hungarian composer and pianist, 1811–1886

- I [In response to the suggestion that his music was being neglected:] I can wait.
Quoted in Frederic Lamond, Memoirs (1949)

Little Richard (Richard Penniman)

U.S. rock musician, 1932–2020

- I A-wop-bop-a-loo-bop-a-lop-bam-boo.
Tutti Frutti, aw-rootie.
“Tutti-Frutti” (song) (1955). Cowritten with J. Lubin and Dorothy La Bostrie.

Maxim Litvinov

Soviet diplomat, 1876–1951

- I Peace is indivisible.
Note to Allies, 25 Feb. 1920

Jay Livingston

U.S. songwriter, 1915–2001

- I Que sera, sera,
Whatever will be will be;
The future’s not ours to see.
“Whatever Will Be, Will Be (Que Sera, Sera)” (song) (1955). Cowritten with Ray Evans.
See Proverbs 203

LL Cool J (James Todd Smith)

U.S. musician and actor, 1968–

- I Don’t call it a comeback
I’ve been here for years.
“Mama Said Knock You Out” (song) (1991)

Richard Llewellyn

Welsh novelist and playwright, 1907–1983

- I How green was my Valley . . . and the Valley of them that have gone.
How Green Was My Valley ch. 42 (1939)

Alain Locke

U.S. writer and philosopher, 1885–1954

- I Of all the voluminous literature on the Negro, so much is mere external view and commentary that we may warrantably say that nine-tenths of it is about the Negro rather than of him, so that it is the Negro problem rather than the Negro that is known.
The New Negro foreword (1925)

John Locke

English philosopher, 1632–1704

- I New opinions are always suspected, and usually opposed, without any other reason but because they are not already common.
An Essay Concerning Human Understanding
“Dedicatory Epistle” (1690)
- 2 Let us suppose the mind to be, as we say, white paper, void of all characters, without any ideas; how comes it to be furnished? Whence comes it by that vast store which the busy and boundless fancy of man has painted on it with an almost endless variety? Whence has it all the materials of reason and knowledge? To this I answer, in one word, from experience.
An Essay Concerning Human Understanding bk. 2, ch. 1, sec. 2 (1690)

- 3 It is one thing to show a man that he is in error, and another to put him in possession of truth.
An Essay Concerning Human Understanding bk. 4, ch. 7, sec. 11 (1690)
- 4 All men are liable to error; and most men are, in many points, by passion or interest, under temptation to it.
An Essay Concerning Human Understanding bk. 4, ch. 20, sec. 17 (1690)
- 5 In the beginning all the World was America.
Second Treatise of Civil Government ch. 5, sec. 49 (1690)
- 6 The end of law is, not to abolish or restrain, but to preserve and enlarge freedom.
Second Treatise of Civil Government ch. 6, sec. 57 (1690)
- 7 Man being . . . by nature all free, equal, and independent, no one can be put out of this estate, and subjected to the political power of another, without his own consent.
Second Treatise of Civil Government ch. 8, sec. 95 (1690)
- 8 The great and chief end, therefore, of men's uniting into commonwealths, and putting themselves under government, is the preservation of their property.
Second Treatise of Civil Government ch. 9, sec. 124 (1690)
- 9 Wherever Law ends, Tyranny begins.
Second Treatise of Civil Government ch. 18, sec. 202 (1690)
- 10 Good and evil, reward and punishment, are the only motives to a rational creature: these are the spur and reins whereby all mankind are set on work, and guided.
Some Thoughts Concerning Education sec. 54 (1693)
- 11 Virtue is harder to be got than a knowledge of the world; and, if lost in a young man, is seldom recovered.
Some Thoughts Concerning Education sec. 70 (1693)
- 12 The only fence against the world is a thorough knowledge of it.
Some Thoughts Concerning Education sec. 88 (1693)

Belva Lockwood

U.S. lawyer and feminist, 1830–1917

- 1 [Arguing for the admittance of women to practice law before the U.S. Supreme Court:] The glory of each generation is to make its own precedents.
Speech to National Convention of Woman Suffrage Association, Washington, D.C., 16–17 Jan. 1877

David Lodge

English novelist, 1935–

- 1 Literature is mostly about having sex and not much about having children. Life is the other way around.
The British Museum Is Falling Down ch. 4 (1965)

Frank Loesser

U.S. songwriter, 1910–1969

- 1 See what the boys in the backroom will have
And tell them I'm having the same.
"The Boys in the Backroom" (song) (1939)
- 2 I'd love to get you
On a slow boat to China.
All to myself alone.
"On a Slow Boat to China" (song) (1948). The expression "slow boat to China" predated Loesser. The Washington Post, 23 Dec. 1947, for example, states, "As the old proverb says, I'd like to get him on a slow boat to China."
- 3 Once in love with Amy,
Always in love with Amy.
"Once in Love with Amy" (song) (1948)
- 4 I got the horse right here,
The name is Paul Revere.
"Fugue for Tinorns" (song) (1950)
- 5 When you meet a gent
Paying all kinds of rent
For a flat
That could flatten the Taj Mahal.
Call it sad, call it funny,
But it's better than even money
That the guy's only doing it for some doll.
"Guys and Dolls" (song) (1950)
- 6 Luck Be a Lady Tonight.
Title of song (1950)
- 7 Sit Down, You're Rockin' the Boat.
Title of song (1950)

Frederick Loewe

German-born U.S. composer, 1904–1988

- 1 I don't like my music, but what is my opinion against that of millions of others.
Quoted in Nat Shapiro, An Encyclopedia of Quotations About Music (1978)

Logan

Native American leader, 1725–1780

- 1 I appeal to any white man to say, if ever he entered Logan's cabin hungry, and he gave him not meat; if ever he came cold and naked, and he clothed him not.
Address to council with Governor of Virginia, 11 Nov. 1774

Horace Logan

U.S. radio producer, ca. 1916–2002

- 1 Elvis has left the building.
Announcement at end of Elvis Presley concert, Shreveport, La., 15 Dec. 1956. This became a habitual close to Presley's concerts and more generally a phrase connoting finality.

Friedrich von Logau

German poet, 1604–1655

- 1 Though the mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding small.
Sinnegedichte no. 3224 (1654) (translation by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow). The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations notes that this is a "translation of an anonymous verse in Sextus Empiricus Adversus Mathematicos bk. 1, sect. 287."
See Proverbs 192

Christopher Logue

English poet, 1926–2011

- 1 Come to the edge.
We might fall.
Come to the edge.
It's too high!
COME TO THE EDGE!
And they came and he pushed
and they flew . . .
"Come to the Edge" l. 1 (1969)

Vince Lombardi

U.S. football coach, 1913–1970

- 1 Winning isn't everything, but wanting to win is!
Quoted in Esquire, Nov. 1962
See Modern Proverbs 99; "Red" Sanders 1

Jack London (John Griffith Chaney)

U.S. novelist, 1876–1916

- 1 The Call of the Wild.
Title of book (1903)
- 2 I would rather be ashes than dust! I would rather that my spark should burn out in a brilliant blaze than it should be stifled by dry-rot. I would rather be a superb meteor, every atom of me in magnificent glow, than a sleepy and permanent planet. The proper function of man is to live, not to exist. I shall not waste my days in trying to prolong them. I shall use my time.
Quoted in Bulletin (San Francisco), 2 Dec. 1916.
Known as London's Credo.

Huey Long

U.S. politician, 1893–1935

- 1 Every Man a King.
Title of book (1933). Long was quoting William Jennings Bryan, who had said, "every man a king, but no one wears a crown."
- 2 For the present you can just call me the Kingfish.
Every Man a King ch. 27 (1933)
- 3 Huey Long once remarked that America probably would have Fascism some day, but, he added, "when we get it we won't call it Fascism, we'll call it anti-Fascism."
Reported in Owosso (Mich.) Argus-Press, 11 Oct. 1938. Norman Thomas, in a speech in Cincinnati, attributed a similar remark to Long, according to the Cincinnati Enquirer, 22 Feb. 1936.

Russell B. Long

U.S. politician, 1918–2003

- 1 [Describing tax reform.:] Don't tax you, don't tax me, tax that fellow behind the tree.
Quoted in Forbes, 15 Dec. 1976

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

U.S. poet, 1807–1882

- 1 Tell me not, in mournful numbers,
Life is but an empty dream!
For the soul is dead that slumbers,
And things are not what they seem.
Life is real! Life is earnest!
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul.
“A Psalm of Life” st. 1–2 (1838)
See Bible 22
- 2 Art is long, and Time is fleeting,
And our hearts, though stout and brave,
Still, like muffled drums, are beating
Funeral marches to the grave.
“A Psalm of Life” st. 4 (1838)
See Chaucer 4; Hippocrates 1
- 3 Trust no Future, howe’er pleasant!
Let the dead Past bury its dead!
Act,—act in the living Present!
Heart within, and God o’rhead!
“A Psalm of Life” st. 6 (1838)
See Bible 233
- 4 Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.
“A Psalm of Life” st. 7 (1838)
- 5 Let us, then, be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait.
“A Psalm of Life” st. 9 (1838)
- 6 There is a Reaper whose name is Death,
And, with his sickle keen,
He reaps the bearded grain at a breath,
And the flowers that grow between.
“The Reaper and the Flowers” st. 1 (1839)
- 7 Under a spreading chestnut tree
The village smithy stands;
The smith, a mighty man is he,
With large and sinewy hands;
And the muscles of his brawny arms
Are strong as iron bands.
“The Village Blacksmith” st. 1 (1839)
- 8 His brow is wet with honest sweat,
He earns whate’er he can,
And looks the whole world in the face,
For he owes not any man.
“The Village Blacksmith” st. 2 (1839)
- 9 Each morning sees some task begin,
Each evening sees it close;
Something attempted, something done,
Has earned a night’s repose.
“The Village Blacksmith” st. 7 (1839)
- 10 The shades of night were falling fast,
As through an Alpine village passed
A youth, who bore, ’mid snow and ice,
A banner with the strange device,
Excelsior!
“Excelsior” st. 1 (1841)
- 11 Into each life some rain must fall,
Some days must be dark and dreary.
“The Rainy Day” st. 3 (1842)
- 12 The bards sublime,
Whose distant footsteps echo
Through the corridors of Time.
“The Day Is Done” st. 5 (1844)
- 13 And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares, that infest the day,
Shall fold their tents, like the Arabs,
And as silently steal away.
“The Day Is Done” st. 11 (1844)

- 14 I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to earth, I know not where.
"The Arrow and the Song" st. 1 (1845)
- 15 This is the forest primeval. The murmuring pines and the hemlocks,
Bearded with moss, and in garments green,
indistinct in the twilight,
Stand like Druids of old, with voices sad and prophetic.
Evangeline introduction (1847)
- 16 Thou too, sail on, O Ship of State!
Sail on, O Union, strong and great!
Humanity with all its fears,
With all the hopes of future years,
Is hanging breathless on thy fate!
"The Building of the Ship" l. 378 (1849)
- 17 By the shores of Gitche Gumee,
By the shining Big-Sea-Water,
Stood the wigwam of Nokomis,
Daughter of the Moon, Nokomis.
The Song of Hiawatha pt. 3 (1855)
- 18 From the waterfall he named her,
Minnehaha, Laughing Water.
The Song of Hiawatha pt. 4 (1855)
- 19 As unto the bow the cord is,
So unto the man is woman,
Though she bends him, she obeys him,
Though she draws him, yet she follows,
Useless each without the other!
The Song of Hiawatha pt. 10 (1855)
- 20 A Lady with a Lamp shall stand
In the great history of the land,
A noble type of good,
Heroic womanhood.
"Santa Filomena" st. 10 (1858). Longfellow was writing here of Florence Nightingale.
- 21 Between the dark and the daylight,
When the night is beginning to lower,
Comes a pause in the day's occupations,
That is known as the Children's Hour.
"The Children's Hour" st. 1 (1859)
- 22 I hear in the chamber above me
The patter of little feet.
"The Children's Hour" st. 2 (1859)
- 23 Listen, my children, and you shall hear
Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere,
On the eighteenth of April in Seventy-five;
Hardly a man is now alive
Who remembers that famous day and year.
Tales of a Wayside Inn pt. 1 "The Landlord's Tale: Paul Revere's Ride" st. 1 (1863)
- 24 One if by land and two if by sea;
And I on the opposite shore will be,
Ready to ride and sound the alarm
Through every Middlesex village and farm.
Tales of a Wayside Inn pt. 1 "The Landlord's Tale: Paul Revere's Ride" st. 2 (1863)
See Revere 1
- 25 The fate of a nation was riding that night.
Tales of a Wayside Inn pt. 1 "The Landlord's Tale: Paul Revere's Ride" st. 8 (1863)
- 26 Ships that pass in the night, and speak each other in passing;
Only a signal shown and a distant voice in the darkness;
So on the ocean of life we pass and speak one another,
Only a look and a voice; then darkness again
and a silence.
Tales of a Wayside Inn pt. 3 "The Theologian's Tale: Elizabeth" pt. 4 (1874)
- 27 The love of learning, the sequestered nooks,
And all the sweet serenity of books.
"Morituri Salutamus" st. 21 (1875)
- 28 There was a little girl
Who had a little curl
Right in the middle of her forehead,
When she was good
She was very, very good,
But when she was bad she was horrid.
Attributed in Blanche Roosevelt Tucker Macchetta,
The Home Life of Henry W. Longfellow (1882).
Longfellow is said to have composed a version of this and sung it to his young daughter in the 1850s. In the
Macchetta book the exact wording is as follows:
There was a little durl,
And she had a little curl
That hung in the middle of her forehead,
When she was dood,
She was very dood indeed,
But when she was bad she was horrid.
The Oxford Dictionary of Nursery Rhymes, however, casts doubt on Longfellow's authorship, suggesting a possible British origin. The earliest known printing was in a pre-1870 broadside titled "Wrong Side Up.
A Poem."
See Mae West 6

Alice Roosevelt Longworth

U.S. socialite, 1884–1980

- 1 [Calvin Coolidge looks as if he was] weaned on a pickle.

Quoted in Wash. Post, 12 Oct. 1924

- 2 [Of Thomas E. Dewey:] How can you vote for a man who looks like the bridegroom on a wedding cake?

Quoted in Time, 10 July 1944. This was later usually phrased as “the little man on the wedding cake.” Longworth herself said she had taken this witticism from Ethel Barrymore or someone else, and Walter Winchell claimed coinage.

- 3 [Of Thomas E. Dewey's second nomination for president, 1948:] You can't make a soufflé rise twice.

Quoted in Philadelphia Inquirer, 8 Nov. 1948

- 4 [Motto embroidered on sofa pillow:] If you can't say something good about someone, sit right here by me.

Quoted in Saturday Evening Post, 4 Dec. 1965
See Modern Proverbs 78

- 5 I have a simple philosophy. Fill what's empty, empty what's full, and scratch where it itches.

Quoted in Peter Passell and Leonard Ross, The Best (1974)

Nicholas Longworth

U.S. politician, 1869–1931

- 1 Perhaps his most crushing riposte was directed at a presumptuous Congressman who passed his hand over Longworth's bald head and remarked, “Feels just like my wife's bottom.” Longworth passed his own hand over his own head, and then said thoughtfully: “By golly, it does, doesn't it?”

Reported in Stewart Alsop, The Center: People and Power in Political Washington (1968). Although this anecdote is now associated with Longworth, Garson O'Toole has traced precursors as far back as 1924, when the Roswell (N.M.) Daily Record, 12 July, printed a version referring to “my wife's cheek.”

Anita Loos

U.S. writer, 1893–1981

- 1 Gentlemen Prefer Blondes.
Title of book (1925)

- 2 So I really think that American gentlemen are the best after all, because kissing your hand may make you feel very very good but a diamond and safire bracelet lasts forever.

Gentlemen Prefer Blondes ch. 4 (1925)
See Advertising Slogans 38; Robin 2

Lisa “Left Eye” Lopes

U.S. rhythm and blues musician, 1971–2002

- 1 Don't go chasing waterfalls
Please stick to the rivers and the lakes that you're used to
I know that you're gonna have it your way or nothing at all
But I think you're moving too fast.
“Waterfalls” (song) (1994)

Lorde (Ella Marija Lani Yelich-O'Connor)

New Zealand singer and songwriter, 1996–

- 1 I've never seen a diamond in the flesh
I cut my teeth on wedding rings in the movies.
“Royals” (song) (2013)

Audre Lorde

West Indian–born U.S. writer and educator, 1934–1992

- 1 The Master's Tools Will Never Dismantle the Master's House.
Title of essay (1979)
- 2 Pain is an event, an experience that must be recognized, named, and then used in some way in order for the experience to change, to be transformed into something else, strength or knowledge or action.
Sister Outsider “Eye to Eye: Black Women, Hatred, and Anger” (1984)

Sophia Loren

Italian actress, 1934–

- 1 Sex appeal is 50 per cent what you've got and 50 per cent what people think you've got.
Quoted in Anniston (Ala.) Star, 13 Dec. 1957
- 2 Everything you see I owe to spaghetti.
Quoted in Mansfield (Ohio) News Journal, 10 Nov.
1963

Edward N. Lorenz

U.S. meteorologist, 1917–2008

- 1 Predictability: Does the Flap of a Butterfly's Wings in Brazil Set Off a Tornado in Texas?
Title of paper delivered to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Washington, D.C., 29 Dec. 1972
See Farmer 2; Gleick 1

Konrad Lorenz

Austrian zoologist, 1903–1989

- 1 It is a good morning exercise for a research scientist to discard a pet hypothesis every day before breakfast.
On Aggression ch. 2 (1966)
- 2 Man appears to be the missing link between anthropoid apes and human beings.
Quoted in N.Y. Times Magazine, 11 Apr. 1965

Trent Lott

U.S. politician, 1941–

- 1 I want to say this about my state: When Strom Thurmond ran for president, we voted for him. We're proud of it. And if the rest of the country had followed our lead, we wouldn't have had all these problems over all these years, either.
Remarks at Strom Thurmond's one-hundredth birthday party, Washington, D.C., 5 Dec. 2002. These comments, apparently endorsing Thurmond's legacy of racism, caused a furor culminating in Lott's resignation as Senate majority leader (Republican).

Louis XIV

French king, 1638–1715

- 1 Every time I fill an office I make a hundred malcontents and one ingrate.
Quoted in Voltaire, Siècle de Louis XIV (1753)
- 2 [Probably apocryphal remark before the Parlement de Paris, 13 Apr. 1655:] L'État c'est moi.
I am the State.
Attributed in Charles Pinot Duclos, Mémoires Secrets sur les Règnes de Louis XIV et de Louis XV (1791)
- 3 [Remark after a coach he had ordered arrived barely in time for him.] I almost had to wait.
Attributed in Edouard Fournier, L'Esprit dans l'Histoire (1857)

Louis XVI

French king, 1754–1793

- 1 [Diary entry on the day of the storming of the Bastille, 14 July 1789:] Rien.
Nothing.
Quoted in Simon Schama, Citizens (1989)

Louis XVIII

French king, 1755–1824

- 1 Rappelez-vous bien qu'il n'est aucun de vous qui n'ait dans sa giberne le bâton de maréchal du duc de Reggio.
Remember that there is not one of you who does not carry in his cartridge-pouch the marshal's baton of the duke of Reggio.
Speech to cadets of St. Cyr, 9 Aug. 1819
- 2 L'exactitude est la politesse des rois.
Punctuality is the politeness of kings.
Attributed in Souvenirs de J. Lafitte (1844)

Joe Louis (Joseph Louis Barrow)

U.S. boxer, 1914–1981

- 1 [Of World War II.] We're goin' to do our part, and we'll win 'cause we're on God's side.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 16 Mar. 1942. Popularly quoted as "God's on our side."
- 2 [Remark to reporter before his June 1946 heavyweight championship fight against Billy Conn.] He can run but he can't hide.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 20 June 1946. The Times story stated, "That bit of homespun philosophy was offered in his training camp by Joe Louis less than a fortnight ago." Earlier, the Los Angeles Times, 3 July 1939, had quoted Louis: "Remember one thing—when you're in the ring you can run—but you can't hide."

Louis Philippe

French king, 1773–1850

- 1 [Offriendly relations between France and England.] L'entente cordiale.
Speech from the throne, 27 Dec. 1843

Richard Louv

U.S. author and journalist, 1949–

- 1 When I talk about nature-deficit disorder with groups of parents and educators, the meaning of the phrase is clear. Nature-deficit disorder describes the human costs of alienation from nature, among them: diminished use of the senses, attention difficulties, and higher rates of physical and emotional illnesses.

Last Child in the Woods ch. 3 (2005)

H. P. Lovecraft

U.S. writer, 1890–1937

- 1 The most merciful thing in the world, I think, is the inability of the human mind to correlate all its contents.

The Call of Cthulhu ch. 1 (1928)

- 2 [On Ambrose Bierce's Devil's Dictionary:] That sort of thing wears thin—for when one's cynicism becomes perfect and absolute, there is no longer anything amusing in the stupidity and hypocrisy of the herd. It is all to be expected—what else could human nature produce?—so irony annuls itself by means of its own victories!

Letter to August W. Derleth, Jan. 1928

Augusta Ada King, Countess of Lovelace

English mathematician, 1815–1852

- 1 The Analytical Engine [Charles Babbage's visionary computer] has no pretensions whatever to originate anything. It can do whatever we know how to order it to perform. It can follow analysis; but it has no power of anticipating any analytical relations or truths.

Taylor's Scientific Memoirs, Sept. 1843
See Babbage 1; Modern Proverbs 33

- 2 We may say most aptly that the Analytical Engine [Charles Babbage's visionary computer] weaves algebraical patterns just as the Jacquard loom weaves flowers and leaves.

Taylor's Scientific Memoirs, Sept. 1843

Richard Lovelace

English poet, 1618–1658

- 1 Stone walls do not a prison make,
Nor iron bars a cage.
“To Althea, from Prison” l. 25 (1649)
- 2 I could not love thee, Dear, so much,
Loved I not honor more.
“To Lucasta, Going to the Wars” l. 11 (1649)

James Lovell

U.S. astronaut, 1928–

- 1 Houston, we've had a problem.

Transmission on Apollo 13 mission to the moon, 13 Apr. 1970. This sentence was made famous by the 1995 motion picture Apollo 13, where it was spoken as “Houston, we have a problem.” Lovell's command module pilot, Jack Swigert, actually preceded Lovell's line by saying, “Hey, we've got a problem here. . . . Okay, Houston, we've had a problem here.”

James Lovelock

English environmentalist, 1919–

- 1 We have . . . defined Gaia as a complex entity involving the Earth's biosphere, atmosphere, oceans, and soil: the totality constituting a feedback or cybernetic system which seeks an optimal physical and chemical environment for life on this planet.

Gaia: A New Look at Life on Earth ch. 1 (1979). Lovelock credited writer William Golding with suggesting the goddess Gaia as the name of the hypothetical entity.
See Goethe 23

David Low

New Zealand–born British political cartoonist, 1891–1963

- 1 Very well, alone.

Caption of cartoon, Evening Standard (London), 18 June 1940. Low's cartoon showed a British soldier gesturing defiantly to a sky full of bombers after the fall of France to Germany.

- 2 I have never met anyone who wasn't against war. Even Hitler and Mussolini were, according to themselves.

Quoted in N.Y. Times Magazine, 10 Feb. 1946

A. Lawrence Lowell

U.S. university president, 1856–1943

- 1 [On why universities have so much learning:] The freshmen bring a little in and the seniors take none out, so it accumulates through the years. Quoted in Reader's Digest, May 1949. Although this line is associated with Lowell, James Pycroft, A Course of English Reading (1844), included the following attribution: “[Jonathan] Swift said that the reason a certain university was a learned place was, that most persons took some learning there, and few brought any away with them, so it accumulated.”

Amy Lowell

U.S. poet, 1874–1925

- 1 All books are either dreams or swords,
You can cut, or you can drug, with words.
“Sword Blades and Poppy Seeds” l. 291 (1914)
- 2 For the man who should loose me is dead,
Fighting with the Duke in Flanders,
In a pattern called a war.
Christ! What are patterns for?
“Patterns” l. 104 (1916)

James Russell Lowell

U.S. writer and diplomat, 1819–1891

- 1 Blessed are the horny hands of toil!
“A Glance Behind the Curtain” l. 205 (1843)
See Salisbury 2
- 2 Truth forever on the scaffold, Wrong forever on the throne.
“The Present Crisis” st. 8 (1845)
- 3 And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days.
“The Vision of Sir Launfal” prelude to pt. 1, st. 5
(1848)
- 4 Democ’acy gives every man
The right to be his own oppressor.
The Biglow Papers, Second Series, “Ef I a song or two could make” l. 97 (1867)
- 5 Though old the thought and oft expressed,
’Tis his at last who says it best.
“For an Autograph” st. 5 (1868)

Robert Lowell

U.S. poet, 1917–1977

- 1 These are the tranquillized Fifties, and I am forty. Ought I to regret my seedtime?
I was a fire-breathing Catholic C.O.,
and made my manic statement, telling off the state and president, and then sat waiting sentence in the bull pen beside a negro boy with curlicues of marijuana in his hair.
“Memories of West Street and Lepke” l. 12 (1959)
- 2 Their monument sticks like a fishbone in the city’s throat.
“For the Union Dead” l. 29 (1964)

- 3 Everywhere,
giant finned cars nose forward like fish;
a savage servility
slides by on grease.
“For the Union Dead” l. 65 (1964)

Janette Sebring Lowrey

U.S. children’s book writer, 1892–1986

- 1 Five little puppies dug a hole under the fence and went for a walk in the wide, wide world.
The Poky Little Puppy (1942)
- 2 “Now where in the world is that poky little puppy?” they wondered.
The Poky Little Puppy (1942)

Malcolm Lowry

English novelist, 1909–1957

- 1 How alike are the groans of love to those of the dying.
Under the Volcano ch. 12 (1947)

Robert Lowry

U.S. songwriter and theologian, 1826–1899

- 1 Yes, we’ll gather at the river,
The beautiful, the beautiful river—
Gather with the saints at the river
That flows by the throne of God.
“Beautiful River” (song) (1864)

Lucan (Marcus Annaeus Lucanus)

Roman poet, 39–65

- 1 It is not granted to know which man took up arms with more right on his side. Each pleads his cause before a great judge: the winning cause pleased the gods, but the losing cause pleased Cato.

George Lucas

U.S. film director, 1944–

- 1 Star Wars.
Title of motion picture (1977)
- 2 [Opening title:] A long time ago in a galaxy far, far away . . .
Star Wars (motion picture) (1977)
- 3 [Obi-Wan Kenobi, played by Alec Guinness, speaking:] Vader was seduced by the dark side of the Force. . . . The Force is what gives the Jedi his power. It's an energy field created by all living things. It surrounds us, it permeates us, it binds the galaxy together.
Star Wars (motion picture) (1977)
- 4 [Obi-Wan Kenobi, played by Alec Guinness, speaking:] Mos Eisley Spaceport. You will never find a more wretched hive of scum and villainy.
Star Wars (motion picture) (1977)
- 5 [Obi-Wan Kenobi, played by Alec Guinness, speaking:] There is a great disturbance in the Force.
Star Wars (motion picture) (1977)
- 6 [Obi-Wan Kenobi, played by Alec Guinness, speaking:] May the Force be with you!
Star Wars (motion picture) (1977)
- 7 [Obi-Wan Kenobi, played by Alec Guinness, speaking:] Use the Force, Luke.
Star Wars (motion picture) (1977)
- 8 [Darth Vader, voiced by James Earl Jones, speaking about Luke Skywalker:] The Force is strong with this one!
Star Wars (motion picture) (1977)
- 9 [Obi-Wan Kenobi, played by Alec Guinness, speaking:] The Force will be with you—always.
Star Wars (motion picture) (1977)
- 10 The Empire Strikes Back.
Title of motion picture (1980). Coauthored with Leigh Brackett and Lawrence Kasdan.
- 11 [Opening title:] It is a period of civil war. Rebel spaceships, striking from a hidden base, have won their first victory against the evil Galactic Empire.
The Empire Strikes Back (motion picture) (1980)
See Ronald Reagan 6
- 12 [Yoda, voiced by Frank Oz, speaking:] My ally is the Force, and a powerful ally it is. . . . Its energy surrounds us and binds us. Luminous beings are we, not this crude matter. You must feel the Force around you, between you, me, the tree, the rock, everywhere. Yes, even between the land and the ship.
The Empire Strikes Back (motion picture) (1980).
Coauthored with Leigh Brackett and Lawrence Kasdan.
- 13 [Han Solo, played by Harrison Ford, speaking:] Never tell me the odds!
The Empire Strikes Back (motion picture) (1980).
Coauthored with Leigh Brackett and Lawrence Kasdan.
- 14 [Yoda, voiced by Frank Oz, speaking:] Do. Or do not. There is no try.
The Empire Strikes Back (motion picture) (1980).
Coauthored with Leigh Brackett and Lawrence Kasdan.
- 15 [Darth Vader, voiced by James Earl Jones, speaking to Luke Skywalker, played by Mark Hamill:] I am your father.
The Empire Strikes Back (motion picture) (1980).
Coauthored with Leigh Brackett and Lawrence Kasdan.
- 16 [Darth Vader, voiced by James Earl Jones, speaking to Luke Skywalker, played by Mark Hamill:] Join me, and together we can rule the galaxy as father and son.
The Empire Strikes Back (motion picture) (1980).
Coauthored with Leigh Brackett and Lawrence Kasdan.
- 17 [Yoda, voiced by Frank Oz, speaking:] When nine hundred years old you reach, look as good you will not.
Return of the Jedi (motion picture) (1983)
- 18 [Padmé, played by Natalie Portman, speaking:] This is how liberty dies—with thunderous applause.
Revenge of the Sith (motion picture) (2005)

Clare Boothe Luce

U.S. politician and writer, 1903–1987

- 1 Nature abhors . . . a virgin—a frozen asset.
The Women act 1, sc. 1 (1937)
- 2 You know, that's the only good thing about divorce; you get to sleep with your mother.
The Women act 2, sc. 4 (1937)

3 But much of what Mr. [Vice-President Henry] Wallace calls his global thinking is, no matter how you slice it, still “globaloney.” Mr. Wallace’s warp of sense and his woof of nonsense is very tricky cloth out of which to cut the pattern of a post-war world.

Remarks in House of Representatives, 9 Feb. 1943

4 But if God had wanted us to think just with our wombs, why did He give us a brain?

Slam the Door Softly (1970)

5 All history shows that the hand that cradles the rock has ruled the world, not the hand that rocks the cradle!

Slam the Door Softly (1970)

See Proverbs 133

6 Whenever a Republican leaves one side of the aisle and goes to the other [Democratic side], it raises the intelligence quotient of both parties.

Quoted in James C. Humes, Speaker’s Treasury of Anecdotes About the Famous (1978)

7 No good deed goes unpunished.

Attributed in Miami Daily News, 27 July 1949.

Usually associated with Luce, but there is an earlier occurrence in Walter Winchell’s column, Cincinnati Enquirer, 2 Oct. 1942: “Reminds me of the line diplomats use: ‘No good deed goes unpunished in Washington.’” The saying may in fact be proverbial; the Oxford Dictionary of Proverbs cites “1938 J. AGATE Ego 3 25 Jan. 275 Pavia was in great form to-day: ‘Every good deed brings its own punishment.’”

Henry R. Luce

U.S. editor and publisher, 1898–1967

1 The world of the 20th century, if it is to come to life in any viability of health and vigor, must be to a significant degree an American century.

Life, 17 Feb. 1941

Lucretius (Titus Lucretius Carus)

Roman poet, ca. 94 B.C.–55 B.C.

1 Tantum religio potuit suadere malorum.
So much wrong could religion induce.

De Rerum Natura bk. 1, l. 101

2 Nil posse creari de nilo.

Nothing can be created out of nothing.

De Rerum Natura bk. 1, l. 155

3 Augescunt aliae gentes, aliae minuuntur,

Inque brevi spatio mutantur saecula animantium

Et quasi cursores vitae lampada tradunt.

Some races increase, others are reduced, and in a short while the generations of living creatures are changed and like runners relay the torch of life.

De Rerum Natura bk. 2, l. 8

4 Ut quod ali cibis est aliis fuit acre venenum.

What is food to one, is to others bitter poison.

De Rerum Natura bk. 4, l. 637

See Proverbs 190

Fray Luis de León

Spanish poet and religious writer, ca. 1527–1591

1 [Words upon resuming a lecture after being imprisoned for five years, Salamanca University, 1577:] We were saying yesterday . . .

Attributed in Aubrey F. G. Bell, Luis de León (1925).

Bell states, “The story was first recorded by Nicolas Cruesen, a Flemish Augustinian, acquainted with Spain personally and by report; it was written by him not later than 1612 and published in 1623.”

Luiz Inácio Lula da Silva

Brazilian president, 1945–

1 A war can perhaps be won single-handedly.

But peace—lasting peace—cannot be secured without the support of all.

Speech to United Nations General Assembly, New York, N.Y., 23 Sept. 2003

Saville Lumley

English artist, 1876–1960

1 What did you do in the Great War, Daddy?

British World War I recruiting poster (1917)

Patrice Lumumba

Congolese independence leader, 1925–1961

1 History will one day have its say, but it will not be the history that Brussels, Paris, Washington, or the United Nations will teach, but that which they will teach in the countries emancipated from colonialism and its puppets. Africa will write its own history, and it will be, to the north and to the south of the Sahara, a history of glory and dignity.

Letter to Pauline Lumumba, 8 Jan. 1961

2 A minimum of comfort is necessary for the practice of virtue.

Congo, My Country ch. 16 (1962)

Martin Luther

German religious leader, 1483–1546

- 1 Hier stehe ich. Ich kann nicht anders. Gott helfe mir. Amen.

Here I stand. I can do no other. God help me.
Amen.

Speech at Diet of Worms, 18 Apr. 1521. This is the commonly attributed wording, but Richard Marius states in Luther (1974): “Later on the words ‘Here I stand; I can do no other’ were inserted before ‘God help me’ in printed editions of this speech. They do not appear in the extensive stenographic accounts taken down as Luther spoke.”

- 2 For, where God built a church, there the devil would also build a chapel. . . . In such sort is the devil always God’s ape.

Colloquia Mensalia ch. 2 (1566) (translation by Henry Bell)

- 3 So our Lord God commonly gives riches to those gross asses to whom He vouchsafes nothing else.

Quoted in Tischreden oder Colloquia, ed. Johann Aurifaber (1566)
See Steele 2; Jonathan Swift 8

- 4 *Wer nicht liebt Wein, Weib, und Gesang,
Der bleibt ein Narr sein Lebenlang.*

Who loves not wine, woman, and song,
Remains a fool his whole life long.

Attributed in Matthias Claudius, Der Wandsbecker Bothe (1775). According to Wolfgang Mieder, the triad “Wein, Weib, und Gesang” first appeared in print in a German folk song recorded in 1602.

Rosa Luxemburg

German revolutionary, 1871–1919

- 1 Bourgeois society stands at the crossroads, either transition to Socialism or regression into Barbarism.

“The Junius Pamphlet” (1916)

- 2 Freiheit ist immer nur Freiheit des anders Denkenden.
Freedom is always and exclusively freedom for the one who thinks differently.

Die Russische Revolution sec. 4 (1918)

Lu Xun (Chou Shu Jen)

Chinese writer, 1881–1936

- 1 Hope is like a road in the country; there was never a road, but when many people walk on it, the road comes into existence.

Quoted in Lin Yutang, The Wisdom of China (1944)

John Lyly

English poet and playwright, ca. 1554–1606

- 1 What bird so sings, yet so does wail?

O ’tis the ravished nightingale.

Jug, jug, jug, jug, tereu, she cries,
And still her woes at midnight rise.

Campaspe act 5, sc. 1 (1584)

See T. S. Eliot 46

- 2 Night hath a thousand eyes.

The Maydes Metamorphosis act 3, sc. 1 (1600)

Peter Lynch

U.S. businessman and investor, 1944–

- 1 [Investment advice.] Go for a business that any idiot can run—because sooner or later any idiot probably is going to be running it.

Quoted in USA Today, 7 Mar. 1989

Robert S. Lynd

U.S. sociologist, 1892–1970

- 1 It is characteristic of mankind to make as little adjustment as possible in customary ways in the face of new conditions; the process of social change is epitomized in the fact that the first Packard car body delivered to the manufacturers had a whipstock on the dashboard.

Middletown ch. 29 (1929). Coauthored with Helen M. Lynd.

Loretta Lynn

U.S. country singer, 1932–

- 1 Well, I was born a coal miner’s daughter

In a cabin on a hill in Butcher Holler

We were poor but we had love

That’s the one thing my Daddy made sure of.

“Coal Miner’s Daughter” (song) (1970)

Henry Francis Lyte

English hymnwriter, 1793–1847

- 1 Abide with me: fast falls the eventide;

The darkness deepens; Lord, with me abide:

When other helpers fail, and comforts flee,

Help of the helpless, O abide with me.

“Abide with Me” l. 1 (1847)

Jackie “Moms” Mabley (Loretta

Mary Aiken)

U.S. comedian, 1899–1975

- 1 An old man can't do nothin' for me except to bring me a message from a young man.
Quoted in Joe Franklin, Joe Franklin's Encyclopedia of Comedians (1979)

Douglas MacArthur

U.S. military leader, 1880–1964

- 1 I have returned. By the grace of Almighty God our forces stand again on Philippine soil.
Broadcast to Filipino people, 21 Oct. 1944
- 2 I still remember the refrain of one of the most popular barracks ballads of that day, which proclaimed most proudly that old soldiers never die; they just fade away. I now close my military career and just fade away.
Address to joint meeting of Congress, 19 Apr. 1951
See Foley 1
- 3 It is fatal to enter any war without the will to win it.
Speech at Republican National Convention, Chicago, Ill., 7 July 1952
- 4 But in the evening of my memory always I come back to West Point. Always there echoes and re-echoes: Duty, honor, country.
Farewell address to cadets of U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y., 12 May 1962
- 5 Today marks my final roll call with you. But I want you to know that when I cross the river, my last conscious thoughts will be of the corps, and the corps, and the corps.
Farewell address to cadets of U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y., 12 May 1962

- 6 [Statement, Adelaide, Australia, 20 Mar. 1942:]
The President of the United States ordered me to break through the Japanese lines and proceed from Corregidor to Australia for the purpose, as I understand it, of organizing the American offensive against Japan, a primary object of which is the relief of the Philippines. I came through and I shall return.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 21 Mar. 1942

- 7 Eisenhower was the best clerk I ever had.
Quoted in N.Y. Times Magazine, 6 July 1952

Harry Macarthy

English-born U.S. entertainer, 1834–1888

- 1 Hurrah! Hurrah!
For Southern rights hurrah!
Hurrah for the Bonnie Blue Flag
That bears a single star.
“The Bonnie Blue Flag” (song) (ca. 1861)

Rose Macaulay

English writer, 1881–1958

- 1 “Take my camel, dear,” said my aunt Dot, as she climbed down from this animal on her return from High Mass.
The Towers of Trebizond ch. 1 (1956)

Thomas Babington Macaulay

British author and statesman, 1800–1859

- 1 As civilization advances, poetry almost necessarily declines. . . . In proportion as men know more and think more, they look less at individuals and more at classes. They therefore make better theories and worse poems.
“Milton” (1825)
- 2 There is only one cure for the evils which newly acquired freedom produces; and that cure is freedom.
“Milton” (1825)
- 3 Many politicians of our time are in the habit of laying it down as a self-evident proposition, that no people ought to be free till they are fit to use their freedom. The maxim is worthy of the fool in the old story, who resolved not to go into the water till he had learnt to swim. If men are to wait for liberty till they become wise and good in slavery, they may indeed wait forever.
“Milton” (1825)

- 4 The gallery in which the reporters sit has become a fourth estate of the realm.
“Hallam’s Constitutional History” (1828)
See Thomas Carlyle 14; Hazlitt 4; Thackeray 10
- 5 Facts are the mere dross of history. It is from the abstract truth which interpenetrates them, and lies latent among them, like gold in the ore, that the mass derives its whole value: and the precious particles are generally combined with the baser in such a manner that the separation is a task of the utmost difficulty.
“History” (1828)
- 6 We know no spectacle so ridiculous as the British public in one of its periodical fits of morality.
“Moore’s Life of Lord Byron” (1830)
- 7 No particular man is necessary to the State. We may depend on it that, if we provide the country with popular institutions, those institutions will provide it with great men.
Speech in House of Commons, 2 Mar. 1831
- 8 Every schoolboy knows who imprisoned Montezuma, and who strangled Atahualpa.
“Lord Clive” (1840)
See Jonathan Swift 23; Jeremy Taylor 1
- 9 She [the Catholic Church] may still exist in undiminished vigor when some traveller from New Zealand shall, in the midst of a vast solitude, take his stand on a broken arch of London Bridge to sketch the ruins of St. Paul’s.
“Ranke’s History of the Popes” (1840)
See Walpole 2
- 10 The Church of Rome . . . thoroughly understands, what no other church has ever understood, how to deal with enthusiasts. In some sects, particularly in infant sects—enthusiasm is suffered to be rampant. In other sects, particularly in sects long established and richly endowed, it is regarded with aversion. The Catholic Church neither submits to enthusiasm nor proscribes it, but uses it.
“Ranke’s History of the Popes” (1840)
- 11 [Of Richard Rumbold:] He never would believe that Providence had sent a few men into the world ready booted and spurred to ride, and millions ready saddled and bridled to be ridden.
The History of England vol. 1, ch. 1 (1849)
- 12 The Puritan hated bear-baiting, not because it gave pain to the bear, but because it gave pleasure to the spectators.
The History of England vol. 1, ch. 2 (1849)
See Hume 11
- 13 Your constitution [the Constitution of the United States] is all sail and no anchor.
Letter to Henry S. Randall, 23 May 1857
- Ewan MacColl (Jimmie Miller)
English folksinger and songwriter, 1915–1989
- 1 The first time ever I saw your face
I thought the sun rose in your eyes,
And the moon and the stars were the gifts you gave
To the dark and empty skies.
“The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face” (song) (1962)
- Pat MacDonald
U.S. songwriter, 1952–
- 1 The Future’s So Bright I Gotta Wear Shades.
Title of song (1986)
- Joaquim Machado de Assis
Brazilian writer, 1839–1908
- 1 Marcela loved me during fifteen months and three thousand dollars; nothing more.
Posthumous Memoirs of Brás Cubas ch. 17 (1881)
- 2 It is better to fall from above the clouds than from the third floor.
Posthumous Memoirs of Brás Cubas ch. 119 (1881)
- Niccolò Machiavelli
Italian statesman and political philosopher, 1469–1527
- 1 It is necessary for him who lays out a state and arranges laws for it to presuppose that all men are evil and that they are always going to act according to the wickedness of their spirits whenever they have free scope.
Discourse upon the First Ten Books of Livy bk. 1, ch. 3 (written 1513–1517) (translation by Allan Gilbert)
- 2 Men must either be caressed or extinguished; because they avenge themselves of light offenses, but of the grave ones they cannot. So the offense one does to a man must be such that one not fear vengeance for it.

The Prince ch. 3 (1532) (translation by Angelo M. Codevilla)

- 3 Nothing is more difficult to transact, nor more dubious to succeed, nor more dangerous to manage, than to make oneself chief to introduce new orders. Because the introducer has for enemies all those whom the old orders benefit, and has for lukewarm defenders all those who might benefit by the new orders.

The Prince ch. 6 (1532) (translation by Angelo M. Codevilla)

- 4 A prince must not have any objective nor any thought, nor take up any art, other than the art of war and its ordering and discipline; because it is the only art that pertains to him who commands. And it is of such virtue that not only does it maintain those who were born princes, but many times makes men rise to that rank from private station.

The Prince ch. 14 (1532) (translation by Angelo M. Codevilla)

- 5 Many have imagined for themselves republics and principalities that no one has ever seen or known to be in reality. Because how one ought to live is so far removed from how one lives that he who lets go of what is done for that which one ought to do sooner learns ruin than his own preservation.

The Prince ch. 15 (1532) (translation by Angelo M. Codevilla)

- 6 From this springs a dispute: whether it is better to be loved than feared or the reverse. It is answered that one would want to be both; but, because it is difficult to force them together whenever one has to do without either of the two, it is much more secure to be feared than to be loved.

The Prince ch. 17 (1532) (translation by Angelo M. Codevilla)

- 7 Since a prince is constrained by necessity to know well how to use the beast, among [the beasts] he must choose the fox and the lion; because the lion does not defend itself from traps, the fox does not defend itself from the wolves. One therefore needs to be a fox to recognize traps, and a lion to dismay the wolves.

The Prince ch. 18 (1532) (translation by Angelo M. Codevilla)

Charles Mackay

Scottish author, 1814–1889

- 1 Men, it has been well said, think in herds; it will be seen that they go mad in herds, while they only recover their sense slowly, and one by one.

Memoirs of Extraordinary Popular Delusions vol. 1 (1841)

Dorothea Mackellar

Australian writer, 1885–1968

- 1 I love a sunburnt country,
A land of sweeping plains,
Of ragged mountain ranges,
Of droughts and flooding rains.
“My Country” l. 9 (1908)

Halford Mackinder

English geographer and educator, 1861–1947

- 1 Who rules East Europe commands the Heartland:
Who rules the Heartland commands the World-Island:
Who rules the World-Island commands the World.

Democratic Ideals and Reality ch. 6 (1919)

Catharine MacKinnon

U.S. legal scholar, 1946–

- 1 The law sees and treats women the way men see and treat women.

“Feminism, Marxism, Method, and the State: Toward Feminist Jurisprudence,” Signs, Spring 1982

- 2 This has been at the heart of every women’s initiative for civil equality from suffrage to the Equal Rights Amendment: the simple notion that law—only words, words that set conditions as well as express them, words that are their own kind of art, words in power, words in authority, words in life—respond to women as well as men.

Feminism Unmodified afterword (1987)

- 3 In conceiving a cognizable injury from the viewpoint of the reasonable rapist, the rape law affirmatively rewards men with acquittals for not comprehending women's point of view on sexual encounters.

Toward a Feminist Theory of the State ch. 9 (1989)

James Mackintosh

Scottish philosopher and historian, 1765–1832

- 1 The Commons, faithful to their system, remained in a wise and masterly inactivity.

Vindiciae Gallicae sec. 1 (1791)

Charles Macklin

Irish actor and playwright, ca. 1697–1797

- 1 The law is a sort of hocus-pocus science.

Love à la Mode act 2, sc. 1 (1759)

Shirley MacLaine (Shirley MacLean Beaty)

U.S. actress, 1934–

- 1 I've played so many hookers they don't pay me the regular way anymore. They leave it on the dresser.

Quoted in Guardian, 23 May 1977

Ian Maclaren (John Watson)

Scottish author and theologian, 1850–1907

- 1 Be pitiful, for every man is fighting a hard battle.

Quoted in Congregationalist, 6 Jan. 1898. "Pitiful" here is used to mean "feeling pity." This quotation is now frequently worded with "be kind" instead of "be pitiful."

Norman Maclean

U.S. writer, 1902–1990

- 1 In our family, there was no clear line between religion and fly fishing.

"A River Runs Through It" (1976)

- 2 Eventually, all things merge into one, and a river runs through it. The river was cut by the world's great flood and runs over rocks from the basement of time. On some of the rocks are timeless raindrops. Under the rocks are the words, and some of the words are theirs. I am haunted by waters.

"A River Runs Through It" (1976)

Archibald MacLeish

U.S. writer and government official, 1892–1982

- 1 The Oklahoma Ligno and Lithograph Co Weeps at a nude by Michael Angelo.

"Corporate Entity" l. 13 (1924)

- 2 A poem should not mean
But be.

"Ars Poetica" l. 23 (1926)

- 3 To see the earth as we now see it, small and blue and beautiful in that eternal silence where it floats, is to see ourselves as riders on the earth together, brothers on that bright loveliness in the unending night—brothers who see now they are truly brothers.

Riders on the Earth "Bubble of Blue Air" (1978)

Henry Dunning Macleod

Scottish economist, 1821–1902

- 1 The illustrious Gresham, who has the great merit of being, as far as we can discover, the first who discerned the great fundamental law of the currency, that good and bad money cannot circulate together . . . Now, as he was the first to perceive that a bad and debased currency is the cause of the disappearance of the good money, we are only doing what is just in calling this great fundamental law of the currency by his name. We may call it Gresham's law of the currency.

The Elements of Political Economy (1858)

See Aristophanes 8; Gresham 1; Henry Macleod 2

- 2 Bad money drives out good.

A Dictionary of Political Economy vol. 1 (1863). This is the most famous formulation of "Gresham's Law." "The bad money drives out the good money" appeared in Thomas Macaulay, The History of England from the Accession of James the Second (1855). Macleod wrote, "That bad coin will drive out good coin from circulation, is an unerring law of nature," in the first edition of The Theory and Practice of Banking (1856).

See Aristophanes 8; Gresham 1; Henry Macleod 1

Iain Macleod

British politician, 1913–1970

- 1 This new victory for the Nanny State represents the wrong approach. . . . [T]he decision to smoke or not is for the individual, and it should be left to him.

Spectator, 12 Feb. 1965. This is the earliest known use of the term “Nanny State.”

- 2 We now have the worst of both worlds—not just inflation on the one side or stagnation on the other side, but both of them together. We have a sort of “stagflation” situation.
Speech in House of Commons, 17 Nov. 1965

Maurice de MacMahon

French president and soldier, 1808–1893

- 1 [Remark upon the taking of the Malakoff fortress during the Crimean War, 8 Sept. 1855:] J’y suis et j’y reste!

Here I am, and here I stay.

Attributed in Antoine de Castellane, Speech to Tribune de la Chambre, 18 Nov. 1873. According to the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations, “MacMahon later denied that he had expressed himself in such ‘lapidary form.’”

Harold Macmillan

British prime minister, 1894–1986

- 1 Let us be frank about it: most of our people have never had it so good.
Speech, Bedford, England, 20 July 1957
- 2 The wind of change is blowing through the continent [Africa].
Address to South African Parliament, 4 Feb. 1960
- 3 [When asked what worried him most:] Events, dear boy, events.
Quoted in Sunday Times (London), 15 Nov. 1992

Emmanuel Macron

French president, 1977–

- 1 Make our planet great again.
Statement on withdrawal of United States from Paris climate agreement, 1 June 2017

Samuel Madden

Irish writer and philanthropist, 1686–1765

- 1 Words are men’s daughters, but God’s sons are things.
Boulter’s Monument l. 377 (1745)
See Samuel Johnson 5

James Madison

U.S. president, 1751–1836

- 1 It is proper to take alarm at the first experiment on our liberties. . . . Who does not see that the same authority which can establish Christianity, in exclusion of all other Religions, may establish with the same ease any particular sect of Christians, in exclusion of all other Sects?
“Memorial and Remonstrance Against Religious Assessments” (1785)
- 2 By a faction I understand a number of citizens, whether amounting to a majority or minority of the whole, who are united and actuated by some common impulse of passion, or of interest, adverse to the rights of other citizens, or to the permanent and aggregate interests of the community.
The Federalist no. 10 (1788)
- 3 Liberty is to faction what air is to fire, an aliment without which it instantly expires. But it could not be a less folly to abolish liberty, which is essential to political life, because it nourishes faction than it would be to wish the annihilation of air, which is essential to animal life, because it imparts to fire its destructive agency.
The Federalist no. 10 (1788)
- 4 The diversity in the faculties of men, from which the rights of property originate, is not less an insuperable obstacle to a uniformity of interests. The protection of these faculties is the first object of government. From the protection of different and unequal faculties of acquiring property, the possession of different degrees and kinds of property immediately results.
The Federalist no. 10 (1788)
- 5 The most common and durable source of factions, has been the various and unequal distribution of property. Those who hold, and those who are without property, have ever formed distinct interests in society.
The Federalist no. 10 (1788)
- 6 To secure the public good and private rights against the danger of . . . faction, and at the same time to preserve the spirit and the form of popular government, is then the great object to which our inquiries are directed.

The Federalist no. 10 (1788)

- 7 The accumulation of all powers, legislative, executive, and judiciary, in the same hands, whether of one, a few, or many, and whether hereditary, self-appointed, or elective, may justly be pronounced the very definition of tyranny.
The Federalist no. 47 (1788)
- 8 But the great security against a gradual concentration of the several powers in the same department, consists in giving to those who administer each department, the necessary constitutional means, and personal motives, to resist encroachments of the others. . . . Ambition must be made to counteract ambition. . . . If men were angels, no government would be necessary. . . . In framing a government which is to be administered by men over men, the great difficulty lies in this: you must first enable the government to control the governed; and in the next place, oblige it to control itself.
The Federalist no. 51 (1788)
- 9 It will be of little avail to the people that the laws are made by men of their own choice, if the laws be so voluminous that they cannot be read, or so incoherent that they cannot be understood.
The Federalist no. 62 (1788). This number of The Federalist may have been authored by Alexander Hamilton rather than by Madison.
- 10 Since the general civilization of mankind, I believe there are more instances of the abridgment of the freedom of the people, by gradual and silent encroachments of those in power, than by violent and sudden usurpations. Speech at Virginia Convention, 5 June 1788
- 11 I go on the principle that a public debt is a public curse, and in a Republican Government a greater curse than in any other.
Letter to Henry Lee, 13 Apr. 1790
See Alexander Hamilton 3
- 12 In every political society, parties are unavoidable. A difference of interests, real or supposed, is the most natural and fruitful source of them. . . . The great art of politicians lies in making them checks and balances to each other.

“Parties” (1792)

- 13 Some degree of abuse is inseparable from the proper use of every thing; and in no instance is this more true, than in that of the press. It has accordingly been decided by the practice of the states, that it is better to leave a few of its noxious branches, to their luxuriant growth, than by pruning them away, to injure the vigor of those yielding the proper fruits.
“Report on the Virginia Resolutions” (1799–1800)
- 14 A popular Government, without popular information, or the means of acquiring it, is but a Prologue to a Farce or a Tragedy; or perhaps both. Knowledge will forever govern ignorance. Letter to W. T. Barry, 4 Aug. 1822

Madonna (Madonna Louise Ciccone)

U.S. singer, 1958–

- 1 Papa don't preach, I'm in trouble deep
Papa don't preach, I've been losing sleep
But I made up my mind, I'm keeping my baby.
“Papa Don't Preach” (song) (1986). Cowritten with Brian Elliot.
- 2 They had style, they had grace
Rita Hayworth gave good face
Lauren, Katherine, Lana too
Bette Davis, we love you.
“Vogue” (song) (1990). Cowritten with Shep Pettibone.
- 3 I always thought of losing my virginity as a career move.
Quoted in Christopher Andersen, Madonna Unauthorized (1991)

Maurice Maeterlinck

Belgian writer, 1862–1949

- 1 And nowhere, surely, should we discover more painful and absolute sacrifice. . . . The queen bids farewell to freedom, the light of day. . . . The workers give five or six years of their life, and shall never know love, or the joys of maternity.
“The Life of the Bee” (1901)

- 2 Il n'y a pas de morts.
There are no dead.
L'Oiseau Bleu act 4 (1909)

John G. Magee, Jr.

Chinese-born U.S. aviator, 1922–1941

- 1 Oh! I have slipped the surly bonds of Earth
And danced the skies on laughter-silvered wings.
“High Flight” l. 1 (1941). Magee flew with the Royal Canadian Air Force during World War II. Three months before his death during a training mission, he wrote the poem “High Flight.” President Ronald Reagan quoted this passage and the one below in a televized address to the nation after the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger on 28 January 1986.
- 2 And, while with silent lifting mind I've trod
The high untrespassed sanctity of space,
Put out my hand, and touched the face of God.
“High Flight” l. 12 (1941)

Magna Carta

- 1 No free man shall be taken or imprisoned or dispossessed, or outlawed or exiled, or in any way destroyed, nor will we go upon him, nor will we send against him except by the lawful judgement of his peers or by the law of the land.
Clause 39 (1215)
- 2 To no man will we sell, or deny, or delay, right or justice.
Clause 40 (1215)

René Magritte

Belgian painter, 1898–1967

- 1 Ceci n'est pas une pipe.
This is not a pipe.
Writing on painting of pipe (“La Trahison des Images” (1929))

Naguib Mahfouz

Egyptian novelist, 1911–2006

- 1 What I want is to draw inspiration only from the truth. . . . My qualifications for this important role include a large head, an enormous nose, disappointment in love, and expectations of ill health.
Palace of Desire ch. 40 (1957) (translation by William
Maynard Hutchins, Lorne M. Kenny, and Olive E.
Kenny)

- 2 Hating England is a form of self-defense. That kind of nationalism is nothing more than a local manifestation of a concern for human rights.

Palace of Desire ch. 40 (1957) (translation by William
Maynard Hutchins, Lorne M. Kenny, and Olive E.
Kenny)

Gustav Mahler

Austrian composer, 1860–1911

- 1 [On visiting Niagara Falls:] Fortissimo at last!
Quoted in Kurt Blaukopf, Gustav Mahler (1973)
- 2 [Remark to Jean Sibelius, Helsinki, 1907:] The symphony must be like the world. It must embrace everything.
Quoted in Kurt Blaukopf, Mahler: His Life, His Work and His World (1976)

Norman Mailer

U.S. novelist and essayist, 1923–2007

- 1 The hipster has absorbed the existentialist synapses of the Negro, and for practical purposes could be considered a White Negro.
“The White Negro” (1954)
- 2 There is probably no sensitive heterosexual alive who is not preoccupied at one time or another with his latent homosexuality.
“The Homosexual Villain” (1957)
- 3 Once a newspaper touches a story, the facts are lost forever, even to the protagonists.
Esquire, June 1960
- 4 Factoids . . . that is, facts which have no existence before appearing in a magazine or newspaper, creations which are not so much lies as a product to manipulate emotion in the Silent Majority.
Marilyn ch. 1 (1973)
- 5 [Of Marilyn Monroe:] So we think of Marilyn who was every man's love affair with America.
Marilyn Monroe who was blonde and beautiful and had a sweet little rinky-dink of a voice and all the cleanliness of all the clean American backyards. She was our angel, the sweet angel of sex, and the sugar of sex came up from her like a resonance of sound in the clearest grain of a violin.
Marilyn ch. 1 (1973)

6 All the security around the American president is just to make sure the man who shoots him gets caught.

Quoted in Sunday Telegraph, 4 Mar. 1990

Maimonides (Moses ben Maimon)

Spanish Jewish philosopher and scholar,

1135–1204

1 It is better and more satisfactory to acquit a thousand guilty persons than to put a single innocent man to death once in a way.

Sefer Hamitzvot Negative Commandment 290

(translation by Charles B. Chavel) (ca. 1170)

See Blackstone 7; Fortescue 1; Benjamin Franklin 37; Voltaire 3

2 Astrology is a disease, not a science.

Laws of Repentance (ca. 1175)

3 When I find the road narrow, and can see no other way of teaching a well established truth except by pleasing one intelligent man and displeasing ten thousand fools—I prefer to address myself to the man.

The Guide for the Perplexed introduction (ca. 1190)

Henry Maine

English jurist, 1822–1888

1 The movement of the progressive societies has hitherto been a movement from Status to Contract.

Ancient Law ch. 5 (1861)

2 So great is the ascendancy of the Law of Actions in the infancy of Courts of Justice, that substantive law has at first the look of being gradually secreted in the interstices of procedure.

Dissertations on Early Law and Custom ch. 11 (1883)

Natalie Maines

U.S. singer, 1974–

1 [Remark to concert audience, London, 10 Mar. 2003:] Just so you know, we're ashamed the president of the United States is from Texas.

Quoted in Houston Chronicle, 14 Mar. 2003

Joseph de Maistre

French diplomat and writer, 1753–1821

1 Toute nation a le gouvernement qu'elle mérite.

Every country has the government it deserves.

Lettres et Opuscules Inédits vol. 1, no. 53 (1851) (letter of 15 Aug. 1811)

Frederick W. Maitland

British legal historian and jurist, 1850–1906

1 Such is the unity of all history that any one who endeavors to tell a piece of it must feel that his first sentence tears a seamless web.

“Prologue to a History of English Law,” Law Quarterly Review, Jan. 1898. Frequently quoted as “the law is a seamless web.”

2 The forms of action we have buried, but they still rule us from their graves.

Janet Malcolm

U.S. writer, 1934–

1 Every journalist who is not too stupid or too full of himself to notice what is going on knows that what he does is morally indefensible. He is a kind of confidence man, preying on people's vanity, ignorance, or loneliness, gaining their trust and betraying them without remorse.

The Journalist and the Murderer pt. 1 (1990)

Malcolm X (Malcolm Little)

U.S. civil rights leader, 1925–1965

- 1 There is nothing in our book the Koran, that teaches us to suffer peacefully. Our religion teaches us to be intelligent. Be peaceful, be courteous, obey the law, respect everyone; but if someone puts his hand on you, send him to the cemetery. That's a good religion.
"Message to the Grass Roots" (speech), Detroit, Mich., 10 Nov. 1963
- 2 We didn't land on Plymouth Rock, my brothers and sisters—Plymouth Rock landed on us.

See Cole Porter 4
- 3 It [the assassination of John F. Kennedy] was, as I saw it, a case of "the chickens coming home to roost." I said that the hate in white men had not stopped with the killing of defenseless black people, but that hate, allowed to spread unchecked, had finally struck down this nation's Chief Magistrate.
The Autobiography of Malcolm X (as told to Alex Haley) ch. 16 (1964)
- 4 That's our motto. We want freedom by any means necessary. We want justice by any means necessary. We want equality by any means necessary.
Speech at rally of Organization of Afro-American Unity, New York, N.Y., 28 June 1964

François de Malherbe

French poet, 1555–1628

"Consolation à M. du Périer" (1599)

Bronislaw Malinowski

Polish-born U.S. anthropologist, 1884–1942

- 1 There can be no doubt that we have here a new type of linguistic use—phatic communion I am tempted to call it . . .—a type of speech in which ties of union are created by a mere exchange of words.
"The Problem of Meaning in Primitive Languages" (1923)
- 2 There are no peoples however primitive without religion and magic. Nor are there, it must be added at once, any savage races lacking either in the scientific attitude or in science, though this lack has been frequently attributed to them.

"Magic, Science and Religion" (1925)

- 3 The anthropologist must relinquish his comfortable position in the long chair on the veranda of the missionary compound, Government station, or planter's bungalow, where, armed with pencil and notebook and at times with a whisky and soda, he has been accustomed to collect statements from informants. . . . He must go out into the villages, and see the natives at work in gardens, on the beach, in the jungle; he must sail with them to distant sandbanks and to foreign tribes.

See Charles Darwin 5
- 3 A foresight of the difficulties attending the rearing of a family acts as a preventive check, and the actual distresses of some of the lower classes, by which they are disabled from giving the proper food and attention to their children, act as a positive check to the natural increase of population.
An Essay on the Principle of Population ch. 4 (1798)

- 4 Moral restraint . . . may be defined to be, abstinence from marriage, either for a time or permanently, from prudential considerations, with a strictly moral conduct towards the sex in the interval. And this is the only mode of keeping population on a level with the means of subsistence which is perfectly consistent with virtue and happiness.

A Summary View of the Principle of Population (1830)

David Mamet

U.S. writer, 1947–

- 1 Always be closing.

Nelson Mandela

South African president, 1918–2013

- 1 I have fought against white domination, and I have fought against black domination. I have cherished the ideal of a democratic and free society in which all persons live together in harmony with equal opportunities. It is an ideal which I hope to live for, and to see realized. But my lord, if needs be, it is an ideal for which I am prepared to die.
Statement at trial, Johannesburg, South Africa, 20 Apr. 1964
- 2 Only free men can negotiate. Prisoners cannot enter into contracts.
Statement from prison, 10 Feb. 1985
- 3 Out of the experience of an extraordinary human disaster that lasted too long, must be born a society of which all humanity will be proud. . . . Never, never, and never again shall it be that this beautiful land will again experience the oppression of one by another.
Presidential Inaugural Address, 10 May 1994

Winnie Mandela

South African political activist, 1934–

- 1 Together, hand-in-hand with our sticks of matches, with our necklaces, we shall liberate this country.
Speech in black townships, 13 Apr. 1986. The "necklace" was a tire doused with gasoline, placed around the neck of a suspected government collaborator and set afire.

Benoit Mandelbrot

Polish-born French-U.S. mathematician,
1924–2010

- 1 How Long Is the Coast of Britain?
Title of article, Science, 5 May 1967

Nadezhda Mandelstam

Russian writer, 1899–1980

- 1 If nothing else is left, one must scream. Silence is the real crime against humanity.
Hope Against Hope ch. 11 (1970) (translation by Max Hayward)

Osip Mandelstam

Russian poet, 1891–1938

- 1 Our lives no longer feel ground under them.
At ten paces you can't hear our words.
But whenever there's a snatch of talk
It turns to the Kremlin mountaineer.
"The Stalin Epigram" st. 1–2 (1934) (translation by W.
S. Merwin)
- 2 He forges decrees in a line like horseshoes,
One for the groin, one the forehead, temple,
eye,
He rolls the executions on his tongue like berries.
He wishes he could hug them like big friends from home.
"The Stalin Epigram" st. 7–8 (1934) (translation by W. S. Merwin)

Bernard de Mandeville

Dutch-born English satirist and philosopher, 1670–1733

- 1 The Fable of the Bees: or, Private Vices, Publick Benefits.
Title of book (1714)

James Clarence Mangan

Irish poet, 1803–1849

- 1 Solomon! where is thy throne? It is gone in the wind.
Babylon! where is thy might? It is gone in the wind.
Happy in death are they only whose hearts have consigned

All Earth's affections and longings and cares to the wind.

"Gone in the Wind" l. 25 (1842)

Marcus Manilius

Latin poet, First cent.

- 1 [Of human intelligence:] Eripuitque Jovi fulmen viresque tonandi, et sonitum ventis concessit, nubibus ignem.
And snatched from Jove the lightning shaft and power to thunder, and attributed the noise to the winds, the flame to the clouds.
Astronomica bk. 1, l. 104

Herman J. Mankiewicz

U.S. screenwriter, 1897–1953

- 1 [Of Orson Welles:] There, but for the grace of God, goes God.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 29 Nov. 1941. The 1941 newspaper article refers to this only as "someone's comment on Orson Welles," but later writers name Mankiewicz as the source. The quotation is also frequently credited to Winston Churchill, speaking about Stafford Cripps, but the earliest documentation of a Churchill version is dated 1943.
See John Bradford 1
- 2 [Telegram to screenwriter Ben Hecht, 1925, urging Hecht to come to Hollywood:] Millions are to be grabbed out here and your only competition is idiots. Don't let this get around.
Quoted in Ben Hecht, A Child of the Century (1954)

Robert Mankoff

U.S. cartoonist, 1944–

- 1 [Businessman talking into the telephone:] No, Thursday's out. How about never—is never good for you?
Cartoon caption, New Yorker, 3 May 1993

Mary de la Rivière Manley

English novelist and playwright, 1663–1724

- 1 No time like the present.
The Lost Lover act 4, sc. 1 (1696)

Horace Mann

U.S. educator and politician, 1796–1859

- 1 Be ashamed to die until you have won some victory for humanity.
Address at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, 29 June 1859

Thomas Mann

German novelist, 1875–1955

- 1 Beauty can pierce one like a pain.
Buddenbrooks pt. II, ch. 2 (1903)
- 2 Time has no divisions to mark its passage, there is never a thunderstorm or blare of trumpets to announce the beginning of a new month or year. Even when a new century begins it is only we mortals who ring bells and fire off pistols.
The Magic Mountain ch. 4 (1924) (translation by H. T. Lowe-Porter)
- 3 Speech is civilization itself. The word, even the most contradictory word, preserves contact—it is silence which isolates.
The Magic Mountain ch. 6 (1924) (translation by H. T. Lowe-Porter)
- 4 A man's dying is more the survivors' affair than his own.
The Magic Mountain ch. 6 (1924) (translation by H. T. Lowe-Porter)
- 5 What we call mourning for our dead is not so much grief at not being able to call them back as it is grief at not being able to want to do so.
The Magic Mountain ch. 7 (1924) (translation by H. T. Lowe-Porter)
- 6 [Remark after arriving in New York, N.Y., 21 Feb. 1938:] Where I am, there is Germany.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 22 Feb. 1938

Katherine Mansfield (Kathleen Mansfield Beauchamp)

New Zealand–born British short story writer, 1888–1923

- 1 I want, by understanding myself, to understand others. I want to be all that I am capable of becoming. . . . This all sounds very strenuous and serious. But now that I have wrestled with it, it's no longer so. I feel happy—deep down.
All is well.
Journal, 1922

- 2 Whenever I prepare for a journey I prepare as though for death. Should I never return, all is in order. This is what life has taught me.
Journal, 29 Jan. 1922
- 3 Looking back, I imagine I was always writing. Twaddle it was, too. But better far write twaddle or anything, anything, than nothing at all.
Journal, July 1922
- 4 Risk! Risk anything! Care no more for the opinions of others, for those voices. Do the hardest thing on earth for you. Act for yourself. Face the truth.
Journal, 10 Oct. 1922
- 5 But then there comes that moment rare
When, for no cause that I can find,
The little voices of the air
Sound above all the sea and wind.
"Voices of the Air" l. 1 (1923)

William Murray, Lord Mansfield

Scottish lawyer and politician, 1705–1793

- 1 The constitution does not allow reasons of state to influence our judgments: God forbid it should! We must not regard political consequences; however formidable soever they might be: if rebellion was the certain consequence, we are bound to say "fiat justitia, ruat caelum."
Rex v. Wilkes (1768). The Latin maxim here, "Let justice be done though the heavens fall," was popularized by Mansfield's usage.
See Ferdinand I 1; William Watson 1
- 2 The state of slavery is of such a nature, that it is incapable of being introduced on any reasons, moral or political, but only by positive law, which preserves its force long after the reasons, occasion, and time itself from whence it was created, is erased from memory. It is so odious, that nothing can be suffered to support it, but positive law.
Sommersett's Case (1771)
- 3 Most of the disputes of the world arise from words.
Morgan v. Jones (1773)

- 4 Dost not know that old Mansfield, who writes like the Bible,
Says the more 'tis a truth, sir, the more 'tis a libel?

Reported in Robert Burns, "The Libeller's Self-Reproof" (ca. 1787). This legal maxim, usually attributed to Mansfield, is most often formulated as "the greater the truth the greater the libel." The earliest occurrence of this formulation found is in an 1825 Massachusetts case, Commonwealth v. Blanding (in which the precise wording is "the greater the truth is, the greater is the libel").

Mao Tse-tung

Chinese political leader, 1893–1976

- 1 A revolution is not a dinner party.
"Report on an Investigation into the Peasant Movement in Hunan" (1927)
- 2 The enemy advances, we retreat; the enemy camps, we harass; the enemy tires, we attack; the enemy retreats, we pursue.
Letter, 5 Jan. 1930. Respectfully Quoted, ed. Suzy Platt, notes that "Mao was quoting from a letter from the Front Committee to the Central Committee, on guerrilla tactics."
- 3 Many people think it is impossible for the guerrilla to exist long in the enemy's realm. Such a belief reveals a lack of understanding of the relationship that should exist between the people and the troops. The former may be likened to water and the latter to the fish that swim in it.
On Guerrilla Warfare (1937)
- 4 Political power grows out of the barrel of a gun.
Speech at Communist Party Meeting, Hankou, China, 7 Aug. 1927
- 5 The atom bomb is a paper tiger which the United States reactionaries use to scare people. It looks terrible, but in fact it isn't. . . . All reactionaries are paper tigers.
Interview by Anne Louise Strong, Aug. 1946
- 6 Letting a hundred flowers blossom and a hundred schools of thought contend is the policy for promoting progress in the arts and the sciences and a flourishing socialist culture in our land.
Speech, Beijing, China, 27 Feb. 1957. Maurice Cranston, Glossary of Political Terms, traces Mao's use of these words back as far as 1951.

- 7 All erroneous ideas, all poisonous weeds, all ghosts and monsters, must be subjected to criticism; in no circumstance should they be allowed to spread unchecked.

Speech at Chinese Communist Party's National Conference on Propaganda Work, Beijing, China, 12 Mar. 1957

Diego Maradona

Argentinian soccer player, 1960–2020

- 1 [Of a controversial goal in Argentina's World Cup game against England:] That goal was scored a little bit by the hand of God and another bit by Maradona's head.
Quoted in L.A. Times, 24 June 1986

William March

U.S. writer, 1893–1954

- 1 The Bad Seed.
Title of book (1954)

Guglielmo Marconi

Italian physicist and inventor, 1874–1937

- 1 Let it be so.
Wireless telegraph message, 13 May 1897. This was the first wireless transmission across water (across the Bristol Channel between England and Wales).

Marcus Aurelius Antoninus

Roman emperor and philosopher, 121–180

- 1 Nothing happens to anybody which he is not fitted by nature to bear.
Meditations bk. 5, sec. 18

Herbert Marcuse

German-born U.S. philosopher, 1898–1979

- 1 Free election of masters does not abolish the masters or the slaves.
One-Dimensional Man ch. 1 (1964)

William L. Marcy

U.S. politician, 1786–1857

- 1 If they [politicians] are successful, they claim, as a matter of right, the advantages of success. They see nothing wrong in the rule, that to the victor belong the spoils of the enemy.
Remarks in Senate, 25 Jan. 1832

Emilio Filippo Tomasso Marinetti

Italian writer, 1876–1944

- 1 We affirm that the world's magnificence has been enriched by a new beauty: the beauty of speed. A racing car whose hood is adorned with great pipes, like serpents of explosive breath—a roaring car that seems to ride on grapeshot is more beautiful than the Victory of Samothrace. “Manifesto of Futurism” (1909)
- 2 It is from Italy that we launch through the world this violently upsetting incendiary manifesto of ours. With it, today, we establish Futurism, because we want to free this land from its smelly gangrene of professors, archaeologists, ciceroni, and antiquarians. For too long Italy has been a dealer in second-hand clothes. We mean to free her from the numberless museums that cover her like so many graveyards. “Manifesto of Futurism” (1909)

Beryl Markham

English aviator and author, 1902–1986

- 1 I have learned that if you must leave a place that you have lived in and loved and where all your yesterdays are buried deep—leave it any way except a slow way; leave it the fastest way you can. Never turn back and never believe that an hour you remember is a better hour because it is dead. Passed years seem safe ones, vanquished ones, while the future lives in a cloud, formidable from a distance. West with the Night ch. 11 (1942)
- 2 One day the stars will be as familiar to each man as the landmarks, the curves, and the hills on the road that leads to his door, and one day this will be an airborne life. But by then men will have forgotten how to fly; they will be passengers on machines whose conductors are carefully promoted to a familiarity with labelled buttons, and in whose minds knowledge of the sky and the wind and the way of weather will be extraneous as passing fiction. And the days of the clipper ships will be recalled again—and people will wonder if clipper means ancients of the sea or ancients of the air. West with the Night ch. 15 (1942)

Edwin Markham

U.S. poet, 1852–1940

- 1 Bowed by the weight of centuries he leans
Upon his hoe and gazes on the ground,
The emptiness of ages in his face,
And on his back the burden of the world.
Who made him dead to rapture and despair,
A thing that grieves not and that never hopes,
Stolid and stunned, a brother to the ox?
“The Man with the Hoe” l. 1 (1899)

Johnny Marks

U.S. songwriter, 1909–1985

- 1 Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer
Had a very shiny nose,
And if you ever saw it,
You would even say it glows.
“Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer” (song) (1949)

Walter Marks

U.S. songwriter, 1934–

- 1 I want to live, not merely survive
And I won't give up this dream of life that keeps me alive
I've gotta be me.
“I've Gotta Be Me” (song) (1968)
- 2 I'll go it alone, that's how it must be
I can't be right for somebody else if I'm not right for me
I gotta be free, I've gotta be free
Daring to try, to do it or die
I've gotta be me.
“I've Gotta Be Me” (song) (1968)

Sarah Jennings Churchill, Duchess of Marlborough

English noblewoman, 1660–1744

- 1 His Grace returned from the wars this morning and pleased me twice in his top-boots.
Attributed in James Agate, Ego 4 (1940)

Bob Marley

Jamaican reggae musician and songwriter,
1945–1981

- 1 Get up, stand up,
Stand up for your rights.

- Get up, stand up,
Never give up the fight.
“Get Up, Stand Up” (song) (1973). Cowritten with Peter Tosh.
- 2 I shot the sheriff
But I swear it was in self-defence.
“I Shot the Sheriff” (song) (1974)
- 3 Emancipate yourselves from mental slavery.
None but ourselves can free our minds.
“Redemption Song” (song) (1980)
- 4 [“Last words”:] Money can’t buy life.
Quoted in Reggae & African Beat, June 1987

Christopher Marlowe

English playwright and poet, 1564–1593

- 1 Come live with me, and be my love,
And we will all the pleasures prove,
That valleys, groves, hills, and fields,
Woods or steepy mountain yields.
“The Passionate Shepherd to His Love” l. 1
(ca. 1589)
- 2 I count religion but a childish toy,
And hold there is no sin but ignorance.
The Jew of Malta prologue (ca. 1592)
- 3 [Friar Barnardine:] Thou hast committed—[Barabas:] Fornication? But that was in another country: and besides, the wench is dead.
The Jew of Malta act 4, sc. 1 (ca. 1592)
- 4 My men, like satyrs grazing on the lawns,
Shall with their goat feet dance an antic hay.
Edward II act 1, sc. 1 (1593)
- 5 Where both deliberate, the love is slight;
Who ever loved that loved not at first sight?
Hero and Leander First Sestiad, l. 175 (1598). “None ever loved but at first sight they loved” appeared in George Chapman, The Blind Beggar of Alexandria (1596).
- 6 Why, this is hell, nor am I out of it.
Doctor Faustus act 1, sc. 3 (1604)
- 7 Hell hath no limits nor is circumscribed
In one self place, where we are is Hell,
And to be short, when all the world dissolves,
And every creature shall be purified,
All places shall be hell that are not heaven.
Doctor Faustus act 2, sc. 1 (1604)
- 8 Was this the face that launched a thousand ships,
And burnt the topless towers of Ilium?
Doctor Faustus act 5, sc. 1 (1604). Nigel Rees notes in Cassell Companion to Quotations that Marlowe had anticipated this line in Tamburlaine the Great, pt. 2, act 2, sc. 4 (1587): “Helen, whose beauty . . . / Drew a thousand ships to Tenedos.”
- 9 Sweet Helen, make me immortal with a kiss.
Her lips suck forth my soul; see where it flies!
Come, Helen, come, give me my soul again.
Here will I dwell, for heaven be in these lips,
And all is dross that is not Helena.
Doctor Faustus act 5, sc. 1 (1604). Nigel Rees notes in Cassell Companion to Quotations that Marlowe wrote earlier in Dido, Queen of Carthage, act 4, sc. 4 (1594):
“He’ll make me immortal with a kiss.”
- 10 Now hast thou but one bare hour to live,
And then thou must be damned perpetually.
Stand still, you ever-moving spheres of heaven,
That time may cease, and midnight never come.
Doctor Faustus act 5, sc. 2 (1604)
- 11 O lente lente currite noctis equi.
The stars move still, time runs, the clock will strike,
The devil will come, and Faustus must be damned.
O I’ll leap up to my God: who pulls me down?
See, see, where Christ’s blood streams in the firmament.
One drop would save my soul, half a drop, ah
my Christ.
Doctor Faustus act 5, sc. 2 (1604)
See Ovid 1
- 12 Cut is the branch that might have grown full straight,
And burned is Apollo’s laurel bough,
That sometime grew within this learned man.
Doctor Faustus act 5, sc. 3 (1604)

Don Marquis

U.S. humorist, 1878–1937

- 1 an optimist is a guy
that has never had much experience.
archy and mehitabel “certain maxims of archy” (1927)

- 2 When a man tells you that he got rich through hard work, ask him: “Whose?”

Quoted in Edward Anthony, O Rare Don Marquis (1962)

- 3 Poetry is what Milton saw when he went blind.

Quoted in Edward Anthony, O Rare Don Marquis (1962)

Anthony Marriott

English playwright, 1931–2014

- 1 No sex, please—we’re British!!!!!!

No Sex Please, We’re British act 2 (1971). Coauthored with Alistair Foot.

Frederick Marryat

English naval officer and novelist, 1792–1848

- 1 [Excuse made for an illegitimate baby:] If you please, ma’am, it was a very little one.

Mr. Midshipman Easy ch. 3 (1836)

Dave Marsh

U.S. rock music critic, 1950–

- 1 Needless to say, it was impossible, even after two nights running of Tina Turner, to miss such a landmark exposition of punk-rock.

Creem, May 1971. Earliest known use of the term punk rock. A somewhat different usage of the words appeared in the Chicago Tribune, 22 Mar. 1970, where Ed Sanders was quoted describing an album of his as “punk rock—redneck sentimentality.”

Alfred Marshall

English economist, 1842–1924

- 1 Political Economy or Economics is a study of mankind in the ordinary business of life.

Principles of Economics bk. 1, ch. 1 (1890)

George C. Marshall, Jr.

U.S. military leader and statesman, 1880–1959

- 1 [Proposing the “Marshall Plan” to reconstruct Europe after World War II:] Our policy is directed not against any country or doctrine, but against hunger, poverty, desperation, and chaos. Its purpose should be the revival of a working economy in the world so as to permit the emergence of political and social conditions in which free institutions can exist.

Speech at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., 5 June 1947

John Marshall

U.S. judge, 1755–1835

- 1 It is a proposition too plain to be contested, that the constitution controls any legislative act repugnant to it; or, that the legislature may alter the constitution by an ordinary act.

Marbury v. Madison (1803)

- 2 Certainly all those who have framed written constitutions contemplate them as forming the fundamental and paramount law of the nation, and consequently the theory of every such government must be, that an act of the legislature, repugnant to the constitution, is void.

Marbury v. Madison (1803)

- 3 It is emphatically the province and duty of the judicial department to say what the law is.

Marbury v. Madison (1803)

- 4 We must never forget, that it is a constitution we are expounding.

McCulloch v. Maryland (1819)

- 5 This provision is made in a constitution intended to endure for ages to come, and, consequently, to be adapted to the various crises of human affairs.

McCulloch v. Maryland (1819)

- 6 Let the end be legitimate, let it be within the scope of the constitution, and all means which are appropriate, which are plainly adapted to that end, which are not prohibited, but consist with the letter and spirit of the constitution, are constitutional.

McCulloch v. Maryland (1819)

- 7 That the power to tax involves the power to destroy; that the power to destroy may defeat and render useless the power to create; that there is a plain repugnance, in conferring on one government a power to control the constitutional measures of another, which other, with respect to those very measures, is declared to be supreme over that which exerts the control, are propositions not to be denied.

McCulloch v. Maryland (1819)

See Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr. 38; Daniel Webster 2

8 The acme of judicial distinction means the ability to look a lawyer straight in the eyes for two hours and not hear a damned word he says. Quoted in Albert J. Beveridge, Life of John Marshall (1919)

Thomas R. Marshall

U.S. politician, 1854–1925

1 The chief need of the country . . . is a really good 5-cent cigar.

Quoted in Daily Northwestern (Oshkosh, Wis.), 6 Feb. 1914. Marshall is usually said to have uttered this in 1920. In both the 1914 newspaper article and the standard 1920 account, Marshall is responding to a senator's speech about "what this country needs." However, there is a much earlier occurrence in the Hartford Courant, 22 Sept. 1875: "What this country really needs is a good five cent cigar.—New York Mail."

Thurgood Marshall

U.S. judge and lawyer, 1908–1993

1 If the First Amendment means anything, it means that a State has no business telling a man, sitting alone in his own house, what books he may read or what films he may watch. Stanley v. Georgia (1969)

2 We will see that the true miracle was not the birth of the Constitution, but its life, a life nurtured through two turbulent centuries of our own making, and a life embodying much good fortune that was not. Thus, in this bicentennial year, we may not all participate in the festivities with flag-waving fervor. Some may more quietly commemorate the suffering, struggle, and sacrifice that has triumphed over much of what was wrong with the original document, and observe the anniversary with hopes not realized and promises not fulfilled. Speech, Maui, Hawaii, 6 May 1987

Yann Martel

Spanish-born Canadian novelist, 1963–

1 I know zoos are no longer in people's good graces. Religion faces the same problem. Certain illusions about freedom plague them both.

Life of Pi ch. 4 (2001)

2 To choose doubt as a philosophy of life is akin to choosing immobility as a means of transportation.

Life of Pi ch. 7 (2001)

3 I can well imagine an atheist's last words: "White, white! L-L-Love! My God!"—and the deathbed leap of faith. Whereas the agnostic, if he stays true to his reasonable self, if he stays beholden to dry, yeastless factuality, might try to explain the warm light bathing him by saying, "Possibly a f-f-failing oxygenation of the b-b-brain," and, to the very end, lack imagination and miss the better story.

Life of Pi ch. 22 (2001)

José Martí

Cuban patriot and poet, 1853–1895

1 [Our objective is to prevent] the annexation of the nations of our America by the unruly and brutal North which despises them. I have lived in the bowels of the beast and I know it from the inside.

Letter to Manuel Mercado, 18 Mar. 1895

Martial

Roman epigrammatist, ca. 40–ca. 104

1 Non amo te, Sabidi, nec possum dicere quare: Hoc tantum possum dicere, non amo te.

I don't love you, Sabidius, and I can't tell you why; all I can tell you is this, that I don't love you.

Epigrammata bk. 1, no. 32
See Thomas Brown 1

2 Difficilis facilis, iucundus acerbus es idem: Nec tecum possum vivere nec sine te.

Difficult or easy, pleasant or bitter, you are the same you: I cannot live with you—or without you.

Epigrammata bk. 12, no. 46 (47)
See Aristophanes 5

3 Rus in urbe.

Country in the town.

Epigrammata bk. 12, no. 57

Alfred Manuel "Billy" Martin

U.S. baseball manager and player, 1928–1989

- 1 [Of player Reggie Jackson and New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner:] The two of them deserve each other. One's a born liar, the other's convicted.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 24 July 1978. Steinbrenner had been convicted of making illegal campaign contributions.

George R. R. Martin

U.S. novelist, 1948–

- 1 Winter is coming.
A Game of Thrones (1996)
- 2 When you play the game of thrones, you win or you die. There is no middle ground.
A Game of Thrones (1996)
- 3 You know nothing, Jon Snow.
A Storm of Swords (2000)

Harriet Martineau

English novelist and economist, 1802–1876

- 1 Wealth and opinion were practically worshipped before Washington opened his eyes on the sun which was to light him to his deeds, and the worship of Opinion is, to this day, the established religion of the United States.
Society in America vol. 2 (1837)

Andrew Marvell

English poet and satirist, 1621–1678

- 1 The forward Youth that would appear
Must now forsake his Muses dear,
Nor in the Shadows sing
His Numbers languishing.
"An Horatian Ode upon Cromwell's Return from Ireland" l. 1 (written 1650)
- 2 The inglorious Arts of Peace.
"An Horatian Ode upon Cromwell's Return from Ireland" l. 10 (written 1650)
- 3 Though Justice against Fate complain,
And plead the antient Rights in vain:
But those do hold or break
As Men are strong or weak.
"An Horatian Ode upon Cromwell's Return from Ireland" l. 37 (written 1650)

- 4 [On the execution of King Charles I:]
He nothing common did, or mean,
Upon that memorable Scene:
But with his keener Eye
The Axe's edge did try.
"An Horatian Ode upon Cromwell's Return from Ireland" l. 57 (written 1650)

- 5 But bow'd his comely Head Down, as upon a Bed.
"An Horatian Ode upon Cromwell's Return from Ireland" l. 63 (written 1650)

- 6 So much one Man can do,
That does both act and know.
"An Horatian Ode upon Cromwell's Return from Ireland" l. 75 (written 1650)

- 7 March indefatigably on,
And for the last effect
Still keep thy Sword erect:
Besides the force it has to fright
The Spirits of the shady Night;
The same Arts that did gain
A Pow'r must it maintain.
"An Horatian Ode upon Cromwell's Return from Ireland" l. 114 (written 1650)

- 8 Oh! let our voice His praise exalt,
Till it arrive at Heaven's vault,
Which, thence (perhaps) rebounding, may Echo beyond the Mexique Bay.
"Bermudas" l. 33 (ca. 1653)

- 9 Annihilating all that's made
To a green thought in a green shade.
"The Garden" l. 47 (1681)

- 10 Had we but world enough and time,
This coyness, Lady, were no crime.
"To His Coy Mistress" l. 1 (1681)

- 11 I would
Love you ten years before the Flood,
And you should, if you please, refuse
Till the Conversion of the Jews.
My vegetable love should grow
Vaster than empires, and more slow.
"To His Coy Mistress" l. 7 (1681)

- 12 But at my back I always hear Time's winged chariot hurrying near,
And yonder all before us lie
Deserts of vast eternity.
"To His Coy Mistress" l. 21 (1681)
See T. S. Eliot 50

- 13 Then worms shall try
That long preserved virginity,
And your quaint honor turn to dust,
And into ashes all my lust.
"To His Coy Mistress" l. 27 (1681)
- 14 The grave's a fine and private place,
But none, I think, do there embrace.
"To His Coy Mistress" l. 31 (1681)
- 15 Let us roll all our strength and all
Our sweetness up into one ball
And tear our pleasures with rough strife
Thorough the iron gates of life.
Thus, though we cannot make our sun
Stand still, yet we will make him run.
"To His Coy Mistress" l. 41 (1681)

Holt Marvell (Eric Maschwitz)

English songwriter, 1901–1969

- 1 A cigarette that bears a lipstick's traces,
An airline ticket to romantic places,
And still my heart has wings:
These foolish things
Remind me of you.
"These Foolish Things Remind Me of You" (song)

Julius Henry "Groucho" Marx

U.S. comedian, 1890–1977

Lines from Marx Brothers films are listed here, regardless of screenwriter or whether Groucho Marx spoke them.

- 1 [Hammer, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:]
Three years ago I came to Florida without a nickel in my pocket. And now I've got a nickel in my pocket.
The Cocoanuts (motion picture) (1929). Screenplay by George S. Kaufman.
- 2 [Hammer, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:]
I'll meet you tonight under the moon. Oh, I can see you now, you and the moon. You wear a necktie so I'll know you.

The Cocoanuts (motion picture) (1929). Screenplay by George S. Kaufman.

- 3 [Line repeatedly spoken by Chico Marx when Groucho Marx refers to a viaduct:] Why a duck?
The Cocoanuts (motion picture) (1929). Screenplay by George S. Kaufman.
- 4 From the moment I picked up your book until
I put it down, I was convulsed with laughter.
Some day I intend reading it.
Dust jacket for S. J. Perelman, *Dawn Ginsbergh's
Revenge* (1929).
- 5 [*Captain Jeffrey T. Spaulding, played by Groucho
Marx, singing:*] Hello, I must be going.
Animal Crackers (motion picture) (1930). Screenplay by George S. Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind; however, these words actually appeared in a song titled
"Hooray for Captain Spaulding," written by Harry Ruby and Bert Kalmar.
- 6 [Mrs. Whitehead, played by Margaret Irving, speaking:] Why, that's bigamy.
[*Captain Jeffrey T. Spaulding, played by Groucho
Marx, speaking:*] Yes, and it's big of me too.
Animal Crackers (motion picture) (1930). Screenplay by George S. Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind. The same exchange occurred earlier in "the Napoleon sketch," written by Will B. Johnstone and Groucho Marx for the Marx Brothers' 1924 stage play I'll Say She Is!
- 7 [*Captain Jeffrey T. Spaulding, played by Groucho
Marx, speaking:*] One morning I shot an elephant in my pajamas. How he got in my pajamas, I don't know.
Animal Crackers (motion picture) (1930). Screenplay
by George S. Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind.
- 8 [Groucho Marx speaking:] Do you suppose I could buy back my introduction to you?
Monkey Business (motion picture) (1931). Screenplay
by Will B. Johnstone and S. J. Perelman.
- 9 [Groucho Marx, replying to the comment, "You're awfully shy for a lawyer":] You bet I'm shy. I'm a shyster lawyer.
Monkey Business (motion picture) (1931). Screenplay
by Will B. Johnstone and S. J. Perelman.
- 10 [Groucho Marx speaking:] I worked myself up from nothing to a state of extreme poverty.
Monkey Business (motion picture) (1931). Screenplay
by Will B. Johnstone and S. J. Perelman.

- 11 [Groucho Marx speaking after a woman says, "I don't like this innuendo":] That's what I always say. Love flies out the door when money comes innuendo.
Monkey Business (motion picture) (1931). Screenplay by Will B. Johnstone and S. J. Perelman.
- 12 [Groucho Marx speaking:] Come, Kapellmeister, let the violas throb! My regiment leaves at dawn.
Monkey Business (motion picture) (1931). Screenplay by Will B. Johnstone and S. J. Perelman.
- 13 [Professor Wagstaff, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:]
I don't know what they have to say,
It makes no difference anyway,
Whatever it is, I'm against it.
Horse Feathers (motion picture) (1932). Screenplay by Will B. Johnstone, Bert Kalmar, S. J. Perelman, and Harry Ruby.
- 14 [Professor Wagstaff, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] You're a disgrace to our family name of Wagstaff, if such a thing is possible.
Horse Feathers (motion picture) (1932). Screenplay by Will B. Johnstone, Bert Kalmar, S. J. Perelman, and Harry Ruby.
- 15 [Professor Wagstaff, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] I'd horsewhip you if I had a horse.
Horse Feathers (motion picture) (1932). Screenplay by Will B. Johnstone, Bert Kalmar, S. J. Perelman, and Harry Ruby.
- 16 [Professor Wagstaff, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] Baravelli, you've got the brain of a four-year-old boy, and I bet he was glad to get rid of it.
Horse Feathers (motion picture) (1932). Screenplay by Will B. Johnstone, Bert Kalmar, S. J. Perelman, and Harry Ruby.
- 17 [Rufus T. Firefly, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] If you can't get a taxi you can leave in a huff. If that's too soon, you can leave in a minute and a huff.
Duck Soup (motion picture) (1933). Screenplay by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.
- 18 [Rufus T. Firefly, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] You know you haven't stopped talking since I came here? You must have been vaccinated with a phonograph needle.
Duck Soup (motion picture) (1933). Screenplay by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.
- 19 [Rufus T. Firefly, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] Will you marry me? Did he leave you any money? Answer the second question first.
Duck Soup (motion picture) (1933). Screenplay by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.
- 20 [Rufus T. Firefly, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] I could dance with you till the cows come home. On second thought, I'd rather dance with the cows till you come home.
Duck Soup (motion picture) (1933). Screenplay by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.
- 21 [Rufus T. Firefly, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] Clear? Huh! Why, a four-year-old child could understand this report. Run out and find me a four-year-old child. I can't make head or tail out of it.
Duck Soup (motion picture) (1933). Screenplay by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.
- 22 [Ambassador Tarentino, played by Louis Calhern, speaking:] This means war!
Duck Soup (motion picture) (1933). Screenplay by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.
- 23 [Rufus T. Firefly, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] Go, and never darken my towels again!
Duck Soup (motion picture) (1933). Screenplay by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.
- 24 [Chicolini, played by Chico Marx, speaking:] Who you gonna believe, me or your own eyes?
Duck Soup (motion picture) (1933). Screenplay by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.
- 25 [Rufus T. Firefly, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] Chicolini here may talk like an idiot, and look like an idiot, but don't let that fool you. He really is an idiot.
Duck Soup (motion picture) (1933). Screenplay by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.
- 26 [Rufus T. Firefly, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] Remember you're fighting for this woman's honor, which is probably more than she ever did.
Duck Soup (motion picture) (1933). Screenplay by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.
- 27 [Otis B. Driftwood, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] That's—that's in every contract. That's—that's what they call a sanity clause.
[Fiorello, played by Chico Marx, speaking:] You can't fool me. There ain't no Sanity Claus.
A Night at the Opera (motion picture) (1935). Screenplay by George S. Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind.

- 28 ["Doctor" Hugo Z. Hackenbush, played by Groucho Marx, attempting to take Harpo's pulse:] Either he's dead, or my watch has stopped.
A Day at the Races (motion picture) (1937). Screenplay by Robert Pirosh, George Seaton, and George Oppenheimer.
- 29 ["Doctor" Hugo Z. Hackenbush, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] If I hold you any closer, I'll be in back of you.
A Day at the Races (motion picture) (1937). Screenplay by Robert Pirosh, George Seaton, and George Oppenheimer.
- 30 ["Doctor" Hugo Z. Hackenbush, played by Groucho Marx, answering the question, "Are you a man or a mouse?"] You put a piece of cheese down there and you'll find out.
A Day at the Races (motion picture) (1937). Screenplay by Robert Pirosh, George Seaton, and George Oppenheimer.
- 31 ["Doctor" Hugo Z. Hackenbush, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] Don't point that beard at me. It might go off.
A Day at the Races (motion picture) (1937). Screenplay by Robert Pirosh, George Seaton, and George Oppenheimer.
- 32 ["Doctor" Hugo Z. Hackenbush, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] Emily, I have a little confession to make. I really am a horse doctor. But marry me and I'll never look at any other horse.
A Day at the Races (motion picture) (1937). Screenplay by Robert Pirosh, George Seaton, and George Oppenheimer.
- 33 [Gordon Miller, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] Room service? Send up a larger room.
Room Service (motion picture) (1938). Screenplay by Morrie Ryskind.
- 34 [J. Cheever Loophole, played by Groucho Marx, after being told that "the bottom of your shoe creates a suction that holds you up in the ceiling":] No, no, I'd rather not. I have an agreement with the houseflies. The flies don't practice law and I don't walk on the ceiling.
At the Circus (motion picture) (1939). Screenplay by Irving Brecher.
- 35 [J. Cheever Loophole, played by Groucho Marx, speaking:] I bet your father spent the first year of your life throwing rocks at the stork.
At the Circus (motion picture) (1939). Screenplay by Irving Brecher.
- 36 What a revoltin' development this is!
Catchphrase (1940s). Groucho Marx originated this phrase during a telephone conversation with Irving Brecher in the 1940s. Brecher later used it as the catchphrase of Chester A. Riley, played by Jackie Gleason followed by William Bendix, on the television series The Life of Riley (1949–1958). Daffy Duck also uttered this expression in the animated feature Mexican Joyride (1947).
- 37 [Responding to a woman contestant who, explaining why she had twenty-two children, said "because I love children, and I think that's our purpose here on earth, and I love my husband":] I love my cigar too, but I take it out of my mouth once in a while.
Censored line, You Bet Your Life (radio and television program) (1947–1961). Groucho experts are divided about whether this line is real or apocryphal, and Groucho himself at different times remembered it both ways. The strongest evidence for its authenticity is that You Bet Your Life head writer Bernie Smith affirmed it. There was a similar line that is documented to have actually aired on the show: "Well, I like pancakes, but I haven't got closetsful of them" (said in 1955 to a woman with seventeen children).
- 38 [Question asked of losers on quiz show so that they would go away with some money:] Who is buried in Grant's Tomb?
You Bet Your Life (radio and television series) (1947–1961). This question predates Groucho's usage; for example, "What famous general was buried in Grant's tomb" appears in the Pittsburgh Press, 8 June 1925.
- 39 Say the secret word and win a hundred dollars.
Catchphrase, You Bet Your Life (radio and television series) (1947–1961)
- 40 I never forget a face—but I'm going to make an exception in your case.
Quoted in L.A. Times, 16 Feb. 1937
- 41 [Explaining his resignation from the Hollywood chapter of the Friars Club:] I don't want to belong to any club that would accept me as one of its members.
Quoted in Dunkirk (N.Y.) Evening Observer, 20 Oct. 1949.
See Benchley 11; Galsworthy 2; Joe E. Lewis 1; Lincoln 2; Twain 4
- 42 I find television very educating. Every time somebody turns on the set I go into the other room and read a book.
Quoted in Reader's Digest, Aug. 1950.

- 43 I've been around so long, I knew Doris Day before she was a virgin.
Quoted in Max Wilk, The Wit and Wisdom of Hollywood (1972). Oscar Levant had earlier referred to "Doris Day's first picture; that was before she became a virgin" in The Memoirs of an Amnesiac (1965).
- 44 [Responding to a beach club telling him he couldn't join because he was Jewish:] My son's only half Jewish. Would it be all right if he went in the water up to his knees?
Quoted in Arthur Marx, Son of Groucho (1973). The earliest version found by the editor of this book is from Leo Rosten, The Many Worlds of Leo Rosten (1964): "He once expressed interest in joining a certain beach club in Santa Monica. A friend told him uneasily, 'You don't want to apply for membership in that beach club, Groucho.' 'Why not?' asked Marx. 'Well, frankly, they're anti-Semitic.' Marx, a Jew whose wife wasn't, said, 'Will they let my son go into the water up to his knees?'"
- 45 A man is only as old as the woman he feels.
Quoted in Laurence J. Peter, Peter's Quotations (1977)
See Proverbs 185
- 46 These are my principles. If you don't like them I have others.
Quoted in Legal Times, 7 Feb. 1983. Earlier versions go back at least as far as 1873: "Them's my principles; but if you don't like them—I kin change them!" (New Zealand Tablet, Weekly Epitome, 18 Oct.).
- 47 I've had a wonderful evening, but this wasn't it!
Attributed in Reader's Digest, Mar. 1941. Although this is associated with Groucho, an earlier attribution of "I had a lovely evening, but this wasn't it" was made to Hugh Herbert in the Augusta Chronicle, 14 Oct. 1936.
- 48 Military intelligence is a contradiction in terms.
Attributed in N.Y. Times, 21 Feb. 1971. Garson O'Toole has found the following statement in John Charteris, At G.H.Q. (1931): "Curzon did not give much time to intelligence work. I fancy Military Intelligence to him is a contradiction in terms."
- 49 Outside of a dog, a book is a man's best friend. That's because inside a dog, it's too dark to read.
Attributed in Philadelphia Daily News, 5 Apr. 1973. "Clever comic Jimmy Husson's observation: 'Book is man's best friend, outside of a dog. Inside, it's too dark to read anyhow'" appeared in the Tennessean (Nashville), 23 Nov. 1952.

Karl Marx

German political philosopher, 1818–1883

- 1 The criticism of religion is the basis of all criticism.
A Contribution to the Critique of Hegel's Philosophy of Right introduction (1843–1844)
- 2 Religion is the sigh of the oppressed creature, the heart of a heartless world, just as it is the spirit of spiritless conditions. It is the opium of the people.
A Contribution to the Critique of Hegel's Philosophy of Right introduction (1843–1844)
See Joan Robinson 3
- 3 The philosophers have only interpreted the world in various ways; the point is to change it.
Theses on Feuerbach no. 11 (written 1845). This is the epitaph on Marx's tombstone in Highgate Cemetery, London. Although written in 1845, Theses on Feuerbach was not published until 1888.
- 4 Hegel remarks somewhere that all great world-historic facts and personages appear, so to speak, twice. He forgot to add: the first time as tragedy, the second time as farce.
The Eighteenth Brumaire of Louis Napoleon pt. 1 (1852)
See Hegel 5
- 5 Men make their own history, but they do not make it just as they please; they do not make it under circumstances chosen by themselves, but under circumstances directly encountered,

- given, and transmitted from the past. The tradition of all the dead generations weighs like a nightmare on the brain of the living.
The Eighteenth Brumaire of Louis Napoleon pt. 1 (1852)
- 6 My own contribution was: 1. to show that the existence of classes is merely bound up with certain historical phases in the development of production; 2. that the class struggle necessarily leads to the dictatorship of the proletariat; 3. that this dictatorship itself constitutes no more than a transition to the abolition of all classes and to a classless society.
Letter to Joseph Weydemeyer, 5 Mar. 1852. The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations states: "The phrase 'dictatorship of the proletariat' had been used earlier in the Constitution of the World Society of Revolutionary Communists (1850), signed by Marx and others. . . . Marx claimed that the phrase had been coined by Auguste Blanqui (1805–81), but it has not been found in this form in Blanqui's work."
- 7 Society does not consist of individuals; it expresses the sum of connections and relationships in which individuals find themselves.
Grundrisse (1857–1858)
- 8 Nothing can be a value without being an object of utility. If the thing is useless, so is the labor contained in it; the labor does not count as labor, and therefore creates no value.
Das Kapital vol. 1, ch. 1 (1867) (translation by Ben Fowkes)
- 9 [Of John Stuart Mill.:] On a level plain, simple mounds look like hills; and the insipid flatness of our present bourgeoisie is to be measured by the altitude of its "great intellects."
Das Kapital vol. 1, ch. 16 (1867) (translation by Ben Fowkes)
- 10 [The effect of capitalist development is to] distort the worker into a fragment of a man, . . . degrade him to the level of an appendage of a machine, they destroy the actual content of his labor by turning it into a torment.
Das Kapital vol. 1, ch. 25 (1867) (translation by Ben Fowkes)
- 11 The centralization of the means of production and the socialization of labor reach a point at which they become incompatible with their capitalist integument. This integument is burst asunder. The knell of capitalist private property sounds. The expropriators are expropriated.
Das Kapital vol. 1, ch. 32 (1867) (translation by Ben Fowkes)
- 12 From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs.
Critique of the Gotha Program pt. 1 (1875). The North British Review, vol. 10 (1849), included this passage: "The formula of Communism, as propounded by Cabet, may be expressed thus:—'the duty of each is according to his faculties; his right according to his wants.'"
See Blanc 1
- 13 Ce qu'il y a de certain, c'est que moi je ne suis pas Marxiste.
What is certain is that I am no Marxist.
Quoted in Friedrich Engels, Letter to Eduard Bernstein, 2–3 Nov. 1882
- Karl Marx 1818–1883 and Friedrich Engels 1820–1895
German political philosopher; German socialist
- 1 A specter is haunting Europe, the specter of Communism.
The Communist Manifesto introduction (1848)
- 2 The history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles.
The Communist Manifesto sec. 1 (1848)
- 3 The executive of the modern State is but a committee for managing the common affairs of the whole bourgeoisie.
The Communist Manifesto sec. 1 (1848)
- 4 The bourgeoisie, wherever it has got the upper hand, has put an end to all feudal, patriarchal, idyllic relations. It has pitilessly torn asunder the motley feudal ties that bound man to his "natural superiors," and has left remaining no other bond between man and man than naked self-interest, than callous "cash payment."
The Communist Manifesto sec. 1 (1848)
See Thomas Carlyle 11
- 5 The bourgeoisie has subjected the country to the rule of the towns. It has created enormous cities, has greatly increased the urban population as compared with the rural, and has thus rescued a considerable part of the population from the idiocy of rural life.
The Communist Manifesto sec. 1 (1848)

- 6 In this sense, the theory of the Communists may be summed up in the single sentence: Abolition of private property.
The Communist Manifesto sec. 2 (1848)
- 7 What else does the history of ideas prove, than that intellectual production changes in character in proportion as material production is changed? The ruling ideas of each age have ever been the ideas of its ruling class.
The Communist Manifesto sec. 2 (1848)
- 8 The Communists disdain to conceal their views and aims. They openly declare that their ends can be attained only by the forcible overthrow of all existing social conditions. Let the ruling classes tremble at a Communist revolution. The proletarians have nothing to lose but their chains. They have a world to win. Working men of all countries, unite!
The Communist Manifesto sec. 4 (1848). Usually quoted as “Workers of the world, unite!” The party congress of the League of the Just headed its draft articles, dated 9 June 1847: “Proletarier aller Länder, Vereinigt Euch!” (“Proletarians of all countries, unite!”).

Mary I

English queen, 1516–1558

- I When I am dead and opened, you shall find Calis lieng in my hart [“Calais” lying in my heart].
Quoted in Raphael Holinshed, Holinshed’s Chronicles (1587)

Queen Mary

British queen consort, 1867–1953

- I [On the abdication of the Duke of Windsor, formerly Edward VIII, as king:] I do not think you have ever realized the shock, which the attitude you took up caused your family and the whole nation. It seemed inconceivable to those who had made such sacrifices during the war that you, as their King, refused a lesser sacrifice.
Letter to Duke of Windsor, July 1938

Mary, Queen of Scots

Scottish queen, 1542–1587

- I En ma fin git mon commencement.
In my end is my beginning.
Motto. The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations states that this motto was “embroidered with an emblem of her mother, Mary of Guise, and quoted in a letter from William Drummond of Hawthornden to Ben Jonson in 1619.”
See T. S. Eliot 101

John Masefield

English poet, 1878–1967

- I I must go down to the seas again, to the lonely sea and the sky,
And all I ask is a tall ship and a star to steer her by.
“Sea Fever” l. 1 (1902). The word go was mistakenly omitted from the original publication.
- 2 I must go down to the seas again, for the call of the running tide
Is a wild call and a clear call that may not be denied.
“Sea Fever” l. 5 (1902)

Abraham Maslow

U.S. psychologist, 1908–1970

- I It is tempting, if the only tool you have is a hammer, to treat everything as if it were a nail.
The Psychology of Science: A Reconnaissance ch. 2 (1966). Maslow’s formulation was preceded by a similar saying by Abraham Kaplan, who called it “the law of the instrument”: “Give a boy a hammer and everything he meets has to be pounded” (quoted in Journal of Medical Education, June 1962). Silvan S. Tomkins, in Computer Simulation of Personality (1963), wrote “If one has a hammer one tends to look for nails.”

Donald F. Mason

U.S. naval officer, 1913–1990

- I Sighted sub. Sank same.
Radio message to U.S. Navy Department, 28 Jan. 1942. It has subsequently been questioned whether Mason actually sank a submarine on this date.

George Mason

U.S. politician, 1725–1792

- I That all men are by nature equally free and independent, and have certain inherent rights, of which, when they enter into a state of society, they cannot by any compact deprive or divest their posterity; namely, the enjoyment of life and liberty, with the means of acquiring and possessing property, and pursuing and obtaining happiness and safety.

Virginia Bill of Rights article 1 (1776)
See Jefferson 2

- 2 Government is, or ought to be instituted for the common benefit, protection, and security of the people, nation, or community; of all the various modes and forms of government, that is best which is capable of producing the greatest degree of happiness and safety, and is most effectually secured against the danger of maladministration.

Virginia Bill of Rights article 3 (1776)

- 3 The freedom of the press is one of the greatest bulwarks of liberty, and can never be restrained but by despotic governments.

Virginia Bill of Rights article 12 (1776)

Philip Massinger

English playwright, 1583–1640

- 1 A New Way to Pay Old Debts.
Title of play (1632)

Cotton Mather

U.S. clergyman, 1662–1728

- 1 That there is a Devil, is a thing doubted by none but such as are under the influence of the Devil. For any to deny the being of a Devil must be from an ignorance or profaneness, worse than diabolical.

The Wonders of the Invisible World (1692)

Richard Matheson

U.S. writer, 1926–2013

- 1 Robert Neville looked out over the new people of the earth. He knew he did not belong to them; he knew that, like the vampires, he was anathema and black terror to be destroyed. And abruptly, the concept came, amusing to him even in his pain. . . . I am legend.

I Am Legend ch. 21 (1954)

Henri Matisse

French painter, 1869–1954

- 1 I want to reach that state of condensation of sensations which constitutes a picture.

Notes d'un Peintre (1908)

- 2 What I dream of is an art of balance, of purity and serenity devoid of troubling or depressing subject matter . . . a soothing, calming influence on the mind, rather like a good armchair which provides relaxation from physical fatigue.

Notes d'un Peintre (1908)

Leonard Matlovich

U.S. soldier, 1943–1988

- 1 [Inscription on tombstone:] A gay Vietnam veteran . . . they gave me a medal for killing two men—and a discharge for loving one.

Quoted in Wash. Post, 22 Apr. 1988

W. Somerset Maugham

French-born English novelist, 1874–1965

- 1 Like all weak men he laid an exaggerated stress on not changing one's mind.

Of Human Bondage ch. 39 (1915)

- 2 There's always one who loves and one who lets himself be loved.

Of Human Bondage ch. 71 (1915)

- 3 I forget who it was that recommended men for their soul's good to do each day two things they disliked . . . it is a precept that I have followed scrupulously; for every day I have got up and I have gone to bed.

The Moon and Sixpence ch. 2 (1919)

- 4 It is not difficult to be unconventional in the eyes of the world when your unconventionality is but the convention of your set.

The Moon and Sixpence ch. 14 (1919)

- 5 The tragedy of love is indifference.

The Trembling of a Leaf ch. 4 (1921)

- 6 Poor Henry [James], he's spending eternity wandering round and round a stately park and the fence is just too high for him to peep over and they're having tea just too far away for him to hear what the countess is saying.

Cakes and Ale ch. 11 (1930)

- 7 From the earliest times the old have rubbed it into the young that they are wiser than they, and before the young had discovered what nonsense this was they were old too, and it profited them to carry on the imposture.
Cakes and Ale ch. II (1930)
- 8 You cannot imagine the kindness I've received at the hands of perfect strangers.
The Narrow Corner ch. 15 (1932)
See Tennessee Williams 5
- 9 I [Death] was astounded to see him in Baghdad, for I had an appointment with him tonight in Samarra.
Sheppey act 3 (1933). Nigel Rees reports in "Quote . . . Unquote" Newsletter, Apr. 2004, that Maugham's Samarra anecdote traces to a Persian tradition including a version of this legend in Rumi's thirteenth-century epic Masnavi-ye Ma'navi, and to even earlier Jewish and Islamic sources.
- 10 It is a funny thing about life, if you refuse to accept anything but the best, you very often get it: if you utterly decline to make do with what you get, then somehow or other you are very likely to get what you want.
The Mixture as Before "The Treasure" (1940)
- 11 Only a mediocre writer is always at his best.
The Portable Dorothy Parker introduction (1944)
See Beerbohm 2

Bill Mauldin

U.S. cartoonist, 1921–2003

- 1 I feel like a fugitive from th' law of averages.
Up Front cartoon caption (1945)
- 2 Look at an infantryman's eyes, and you can tell how much war he has seen.
Up Front cartoon caption (1945)
- 3 [Infantryman speaking to another:] Why th' hell couldn't you have been born a beautiful woman?
Up Front cartoon caption (1945)
- 4 [Advice from one soldier to another aiming a pistol at a rat:] Aim between th' eyes, Joe. Sometimes they charge when they're wounded.
Up Front cartoon caption (1945)
- 5 [Officer looking at a magnificent mountain vista:] Beautiful view. Is there one for the enlisted men?
Up Front cartoon caption (1945)

- 6 [American soldier looking around a European village in which all the men and women look exactly like himself:] This is th' town my pappy told me about.

Up Front cartoon caption (1945)

Guy de Maupassant

French writer, 1850–1893

- 1 What would have happened if she hadn't lost the necklace? Who knows? Who knows? How strange life is, how full of changes! How little it takes to doom you or save you!
"The Necklace" (1884)

François Mauriac

French author, 1885–1970

- 1 I love Germany so dearly that I hope there will always be two of them.
Quoted in Newsweek, 20 Nov. 1989

Maury Maverick

U.S. politician, 1895–1954

- 1 Stay off gobbledygook language. It only fouls people up. For the Lord's sake, be short and say what you're talking about.
Memorandum to staff of Smaller War Plants Corporation, 24 Mar. 1944. Earliest known usage of the word gobbledygook.

James Clerk Maxwell

Scottish physicist, 1813–1879

- 1 We can scarcely avoid the inference that light consists in the transverse undulations of the same medium which is the cause of electric and magnetic phenomena.
"On Physical Lines of Force" (1862)
- 2 The opinion seems to have got abroad, that in a few years all the great physical constants will have been approximately estimated, and that the only occupation which will be left to men of science will be to carry on these measurements to another place of decimals.
Inaugural Address as Cavendish Professor at Cambridge University, Cambridge, England, Oct. 1871

Vladimir Mayakovsky

Russian poet, 1893–1930

- I If you wish,
I shall grow irreproachably tender:
Not a man, but a cloud in trousers!
“The Cloud in Trousers” (1915) (translation by George Reavey)

Percy Mayfield

U.S. songwriter, 1920–1984

- I Hit the road Jack and don’t you come back no more.
“Hit the Road Jack” (song) (1961)

William J. Mayo

U.S. physician, 1861–1939

- I A specialist is one who knows more and more about less and less.
Quoted in Philadelphia Inquirer, 26 July 1927. This is usually credited to Mayo, but an earlier occurrence without attribution to any individual was in the Canton (Ohio) Repository, 11 June 1926: “The expert . . . becomes a man who knows more and more about less and less.”

Willie Mays

U.S. baseball player, 1931–

- I Say, hey.
Quoted in Newport (R.I.) Daily News, 26 Jan. 1953

Emil Mazey

U.S. labor leader, 1913–1983

- I I can’t prove you are a Communist. But when I see a bird that quacks like a duck, walks like a duck, has feathers and webbed feet and associates with ducks—I’m certainly going to assume that he is a duck.
Quoted in Milwaukee Sentinel, 29 Sept. 1946

Giuseppe Mazzini

Italian revolutionary leader, 1805–1872

- I [Thomas Carlyle] loves silence somewhat platonically.
Quoted in Jane Welsh Carlyle, Letter to Mrs. Stirling, Oct. 1843
See Proverbs 271

William G. McAdoo

U.S. politician, 1863–1941

- I [Of Warren G. Harding:] His speeches leave the impression of an army of pompous phrases moving over the landscape in search of an idea. Sometimes these meandering words would actually capture a straggling thought and bear it triumphantly a prisoner in their midst until it died of servitude and overwork.
Quoted in Leon A. Harris, The Fine Art of Political Wit (1964)

Ward McAllister

U.S. socialite, 1827–1895

- I There are only about 400 people in fashionable New-York society.
Quoted in N.Y. Tribune, 25 Mar. 1888

Anthony McAuliffe

U.S. general, 1898–1975

- I [Replying to the German demand that the 101st Airborne Division, besieged at Bastogne, Belgium, surrender, 22 Dec. 1944:] Nuts!
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 28 Dec. 1944. McAuliffe may have said something stronger, with “Nuts” being an expurgated version. However, some accounts maintain that he did actually say “Nuts.”
See Cambronne 1

John McCain

U.S. politician and naval officer, 1936–2018

- I The fundamentals of America’s economy are strong.
Interview on Bloomberg TV, 17 Apr. 2008
- 2 To fear the world we have organized and led for three-quarters of a century, to abandon the ideals we have advanced around the globe, to refuse the obligations of international leadership and our duty to remain “the last best hope of earth” for the sake of some half-baked, spurious nationalism cooked up by people who would rather find scapegoats than solve problems is as unpatriotic as an attachment to any other tired dogma of the past that Americans consigned to the ash heap of history.
Speech accepting Liberty Medal, Philadelphia, Pa., 16 Oct. 2017

Meghan McCain

U.S. broadcaster, 1984–

- 1 We gather to mourn the passing of American greatness, the real thing, not cheap rhetoric from men who will never come near the sacrifice he gave so willingly, nor the opportunistic appropriation of those that live lives of comfort and privilege while he suffered and served.
Eulogy for John McCain, Washington, D.C., 1 Sept. 2018
- 2 The America of John McCain has no need to be made great again because America was always great.
Eulogy for John McCain, Washington, D.C., 1 Sept. 2018

William McCall

U.S. psychologist, 1891–1982

- 1 Anything that exists in amount can be measured.
How to Measure in Education ch. 1 (1922)

Cormac McCarthy

U.S. novelist, 1933–

- 1 He never sleeps, the judge. He is dancing, dancing. He says that he will never die.
Blood Meridian ch. 23 (1985)
- 2 Scars have the strange power to remind us that our past is real.
All the Pretty Horses ch. 2 (2000)
- 3 What's the most you ever saw lost on a coin toss?
No Country for Old Men ch. 2 (2005)
- 4 It takes very little to govern good people. Very little. And bad people cant be governed at all. Or if they could I never heard of it.
No Country for Old Men ch. 3 (2005)
- 5 It's a mess, aint it Sheriff?
If it aint it'll do till a mess gets here.
No Country for Old Men ch. 3 (2005)
- 6 You never know what worse luck your bad luck has saved you from.
No Country for Old Men ch. 9 (2005)

- 7 He knew only that the child was his warrant. He said: If he is not the word of God God never spoke.
The Road (2006)
- 8 You forget what you want to remember and you remember what you want to forget.
The Road (2006)

Eugene McCarthy

U.S. politician, 1916–2005

- 1 Being in politics is like being a football coach. You have to be smart enough to understand the game and dumb enough to think it's important.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 12 Nov. 1967
See Chesterton 21

John McCarthy

U.S. computer scientist, 1927–2011

- 1 A Proposal for the Dartmouth Summer Research Project on Artificial Intelligence.
Title of proposal (1955). Coinage of artificial intelligence.

Joseph McCarthy

U.S. politician, 1908–1957

- 1 I have here in my hand a list of two hundred and five that were known to the Secretary of State as being members of the Communist Party and who nevertheless are still working and shaping the policy of the State Department.
Speech, Wheeling, W.V., 9 Feb. 1950

Mary McCarthy

U.S. novelist, 1912–1989

- 1 The Man in the Brooks Brothers Shirt.
The Company She Keeps title of story (1942)
- 2 The happy ending is our national belief.
“America the Beautiful: The Humanist in the Bathtub” (1947)
- 3 The immense popularity of American movies abroad demonstrates that Europe is the unfinished negative of which America is the proof.
“America the Beautiful: The Humanist in the Bathtub” (1947)

- 4 You mustn't force sex to do the work of love or love to do the work of sex.

The Group ch. 2 (1954)

- 5 If someone tells you he is going to make "a realistic decision," you immediately understand that he has resolved to do something bad.

On the Contrary "The American Realist Playwrights" (1961)

- 6 [Of Lillian Hellman:] Every word she writes is a lie, including "and" and "the."

Dick Cavett Show (television program), 26 Jan. 1980. McCarthy here was referring to an interview with her published in Paris Metro, 15 Feb. 1978, in which she had actually said of Hellman: "every word she writes is false, including 'and' and 'but.'" The 1980 remark occasioned a $2 million lawsuit by Hellman.

Harry McClintock

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1882–1957

- 1 O—the buzzing of the bees in the cigarette trees

Round the soda-water fountain,

Where the lemonade springs and the bluebird sings

In the Big Rock Candy Mountains.

"The Big Rock Candy Mountains" (song) (1928)

Robert McCloskey

U.S. State Department spokesman, 1922–1996

- 1 [Remark at press briefing during Vietnam War:] I know that you believe that you understood what you think I said, but I am not sure you realize that what you heard is not what I meant.

Quoted in TV Guide, 31 Mar. 1984

Mitch McConnell

U.S. politician, 1942–

- 1 [Silencing Sen. Elizabeth Warren's reading of a letter by Coretta Scott King, criticizing Jeff Sessions, in Senate debate:] Senator Warren was giving a lengthy speech. She had appeared to violate the rule. She was warned. She was given an explanation. Nevertheless, she persisted.

Remarks in United States Senator chamber, 7 Feb.

David McCord

U.S. poet, 1897–1997

- 1 [Epitaph for a waiter:]

By and by

God caught his eye.

"Remainders" (1935)

Peter Dodds McCormick

Scottish-born Australian songwriter, 1834–1916

- 1 In joyful strains then let us sing

Advance Australia fair.

"Advance Australia Fair" (song) (1878). This song is the Australian national anthem.

Frank McCourt

U.S. writer, 1930–2009

- 1 Worse than the ordinary miserable childhood is the miserable Irish childhood, and worse yet is the miserable Irish Catholic childhood.

Angela's Ashes: A Memoir ch. 1 (1996)

- 2 Above all—we were wet.

Angela's Ashes: A Memoir ch. 1 (1996)

Horace McCoy

U.S. novelist, 1897–1955

- 1 "Why did you kill her?" the policeman in the rear seat asked.

"She asked me to," I said. . . .

"Is that the only reason you got?" the policeman in the rear seat asked.

"They shoot horses, don't they?" I said.

They Shoot Horses, Don't They? ch. 13 (1935)

John McCrae

Canadian poet, 1872–1918

- 1 In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row.

"In Flanders Fields" l. 1 (1915)

- 2 To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.

"In Flanders Fields" l. 11 (1915)

- 3 If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

"In Flanders Fields" l. 13 (1915)

Carson McCullers

U.S. writer, 1917–1967

1 The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter.

Title of book (1940)

See Sharp 1

2 Love is a joint experience between two persons—but the fact that it is a joint experience does not mean that it is a similar experience to the two people involved. There are the lover and the beloved, but these two come from different countries. Often the beloved is only a stimulus for all the stored-up love which has lain quiet within the lover for a long time hitherto.

“The Ballad of the Sad Cafe” (1943)

3 The curt truth is that, in a deep secret way, the state of being beloved is intolerable to many. The beloved fears and hates the lover, and with the best of reasons. For the lover is forever trying to strip bare his beloved. The lover craves any possible relation with the beloved, even if this experience can cause him only pain.

“The Ballad of the Sad Cafe” (1943)

Colleen McCullough

Australian novelist, 1937–2015

1 There is a legend about a bird which sings just once in its life, more sweetly than any other creature on the face of the earth. From the moment it leaves the nest it searches for a thorn tree, and does not rest until it has found one. Then, singing among the savage branches, it impales itself upon the longest, sharpest spine. And, dying, it rises above its own agony to out-carol the lark and the nightingale. One superlative song, existence the price. But the whole world stills to listen, and God in His heaven smiles. For the best is only bought at the cost of great pain.

The Thorn Birds epigraph (1977)

2 The bird with the thorn in its breast, it follows an immutable law; it is driven by it knows not what to impale itself, and die singing. At the very instant the thorn enters there is no awareness in it of the dying to come; . . . But we, when we put the thorns in our breasts, we know. We understand. And still we do it. Still we do it.

The Thorn Birds ch. 7 (1977)

Hattie McDaniel

U.S. actress, 1893–1952

1 It has made me feel very, very humble and I shall always hold it as a beacon for anything that I may be able to do in the future. I sincerely hope I shall always be a credit to my race and to the motion picture industry.

Acceptance speech for Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress, 29 Feb. 1940

2 Why should I complain about making seven thousand dollars a week playing a maid? If I didn't, I'd be making seven dollars a week actually being one!

Quoted in Donald Bogle, Toms, Coons, Mulattoes, Mammies, and Bucks (1973)

“Country” Joe McDonald

U.S. rock musician and songwriter, 1942–

1 And it's one, two, three

What are we fighting for

Don't ask me, I don't give a damn

Next stop is Viet Nam.

“Feel Like I'm Fixin' to Die Rag” (song) (1969)

W. J. “Bill” McDonald

U.S. policeman, 1852–1918

1 One riot, one Ranger.

Texas Rangers motto. This motto is a synthesis of two statements by McDonald quoted in biographies by Albert B. Paine. In Captain Bill McDonald: Texas Ranger Paine quotes McDonald, sent to Dallas to prevent a boxing match, as responding to the mayor's question, “Where are the others?,” by saying “Hell! ain't I enough? There's only one prize-fight!” In Paine's 1909 book McDonald's creed is given as “No man in the wrong can stand up against a fellow that's in the right and keeps on a-comin.”

John McEnroe

German-born U.S. tennis player, 1959–

1 [Comment to umpire at Wimbledon tennis tournament.] You can't be serious.

Quoted in N.Y. Post, 22 June 1981. According to the Oxford Dictionary of Catchphrases, this line was first said “during the 1981 Wimbledon tournament, when McEnroe was playing Tom Gullikson in the first round, and had just seen chalk fly up from a serve of his which was called long." Audiotapes of the incident indicate that McEnroe followed "you can't be serious" with the words "you cannot be serious!," and it is the latter form that has become famous.

Ian McEwan

English novelist, 1948–

- 1 It wasn't only wickedness and scheming that made people unhappy, it was confusion and misunderstanding; above all, it was the failure to grasp the simple truth that other people are as real as you.
Atonement (2001)
- 2 But now I must sleep.
Atonement (2001)
- 3 [Of the last messages sent by people trapped by 9/11 terror attacks:] I love you. . . . that is what they were all saying down their phones, from the hijacked planes and the burning towers. There is only love, and then oblivion. Love was all they had to set against the hatred of their murderers.
Guardian, 15 Sept. 2001

Donald McGill

English cartoonist, 1875–1962

- 1 [Caption of postcard:]
He: "Do you like Kipling?"
She: "I don't know, you naughty boy, I've never kippeded."
Quoted in Elfreda Buckland, The World of Donald McGill (1984). This postcard is said to be the bestselling one of all time. The joke seems to have predated McGill; Garson O'Toole has unearthed it dating as early as 1907 (Paul Pierce, Suppers: Novel Suggestions for Social Occasions).

George S. McGovern

U.S. politician, 1922–2012

- 1 [I'm] 1000% for Tom Eagleton . . . [and have] no intention of dropping him from the ticket.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 27 July 1972. Democratic presidential nominee McGovern was affirming his support for his running mate Senator Thomas Eagleton after it was revealed that the latter had undergone electroshock therapy for depression. A few days later, McGovern dropped Eagleton from the ticket.

Frank Edwin "Tug" McGraw

U.S. baseball player, 1944–2004

- 1 You gotta believe.
Quoted in N.Y. Daily News, 2 Oct. 1973. According to Paul Dickson, Baseball's Greatest Quotations, McGraw uttered this phrase after a clubhouse speech by New York Mets chairman M. Donald Grant in July 1973, and it became the slogan of the Mets' miraculous drive to the National League pennant that year. The New York Daily News, 24 Sept. 1973, reported that two nuns at a Mets game held up a sign saying "You Got to Believe." If the McGraw story is true, then the nuns were probably echoing his prior usage of the slogan.

Mark McGwire

U.S. baseball player, 1963–

- 1 [Responding to questions about his steroid use:] I'm not here to talk about the past.
Testimony at House of Representatives Government Reform Committee hearing, 17 Mar. 2005

Jay McInerney

U.S. novelist, 1955–

- 1 You are not the kind of guy who would be at a place like this at this time of the morning. But here you are, and you cannot say that the terrain is entirely unfamiliar, although the details are fuzzy.
Bright Lights, Big City (1984)
- 2 You get down on your knees and tear open the bag. The smell of warm dough envelopes you. The first bite sticks in your throat and you almost gag. You will have to go slowly. You will have to learn everything all over again.
Bright Lights, Big City (1984)

Claude McKay

Jamaican-born U.S. poet and novelist, 1890–1948

- 1 If we must die, let it not be like hogs
Hunted and penned in some inglorious spot.
"If We Must Die" l. 1 (1917)
- 2 What though before us lies the open grave?
Like men we'll face the murderous, cowardly pack,
Pressed to the wall, dying, but fighting back!
"If We Must Die" l. 12 (1917)

Sarah McLachlan

Canadian singer and songwriter, 1968–

- 1 You strut your rasta wear
And your suicide poem
And a cross from a faith that died
Before Jesus came
You're building a mystery.
"Building a Mystery" (song) (1997)

Mignon McLaughlin

U.S. author and editor, 1913–1983

- 1 Hope is the feeling we have that the feeling we have is not permanent.
The Neurotic's Notebook ch. 5 (1963)
- 2 Every society honors its live conformists, and its dead troublemakers.
The Neurotic's Notebook ch. 7 (1963)

Don McLean

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1945–

- 1 Something touched me deep inside
The day the music died.
"American Pie" (song) (1971)
- 2 So bye bye Miss American Pie,
Drove my Chevy to the levee
But the levee was dry.
Them good old boys were drinkin' whisky and rye
Singin', This'll be the day that I die.
"American Pie" (song) (1971)

Marshall McLuhan

Canadian communications theorist, 1911–1980

- 1 But the fury for change is in the form and not the message of the new media.
"Culture Without Literacy," Explorations, Dec. 1953
See McLuhan 5; McLuhan 8
- 2 The media are not toys; they should not be in the hands of Mother Goose and Peter Pan executives. They can be entrusted only to new artists, because they are art forms.
Counterblast (1954). Earliest known usage of the media to refer to all forms of communication.
- 3 The tribe is a unit, which, extending the bounds of the family to include the whole society, becomes the only way of organizing society when it exists in a kind of Global Village pattern. It is important to understand that the Global Village pattern is caused by the instantaneous movement of information from every quarter to every point at the same time.

Letter to Edward S. Morgan, 16 May 1959
See Wyndham Lewis 1; McLuhan 4; McLuhan 6

- 4 Postliterate man's electronic media contract the world to a village or tribe where everything happens to everyone at the same time: everyone knows about, and therefore participates in, everything that is happening the minute it happens. Television gives this quality of simultaneity to events in the global village.
Explorations in Communication introduction (1960).
Coauthored with Edmund Carpenter.
See Wyndham Lewis 1; McLuhan 3; McLuhan 6
- 5 Another way of getting at this aspect of languages as macromyths is to say that the medium is the message.
"Myth and Mass Media," Daedalus, Spring 1959
See McLuhan 1; McLuhan 8
- 6 The new electronic interdependence recreates the world in the image of a global village.

- 7 Dewey in reacting against passive print culture was surf-boarding along on the new electronic wave.
The Gutenberg Galaxy: The Making of Typographic Man (1962)
- 8 The Medium Is the Message.
Understanding Media title of ch. 1 (1964). According to John Robert Colombo, Colombo's All-Time Great Canadian Quotations, "McLuhan first uttered the now-famous formulation on the evening of July 30, 1959, at a reception in the Vancouver home of educator Alan Thomas, following a symposium at the University of British Columbia on the subject of music and the mass media. . . . According to anthropologist Edmund Carpenter, writing in Canadian Notes & Queries, Spring 1992, the talismanic sentence came from a lecture delivered by Ashley Montagu titled "The Method Is the Message."
See McLuhan 1; McLuhan 5
- 9 There is a basic principle that distinguishes a hot medium like radio from a cool one like the telephone, or a hot medium like the movie from a cool one like TV. . . . Hot media . . . are low in participation, and cool media are high in participation or completion by the audience.

Understanding Media ch. 2 (1964)

- 10 Television brought the brutality of war into the comfort of the living room. Vietnam was lost in the living rooms of America—not on the battlefields of Vietnam.

Quoted in Montreal Gazette, 16 May 1975

- 11 Gutenberg made everybody a reader. Xerox makes everybody a publisher.

Quoted in Wash. Post, 15 May 1977

Terry McMillan

U.S. novelist, 1951–

- I I worry about if and when I'll ever find the right man, if I'll ever be able to exhale. The more I try not to think about it, the more I think about it.

Waiting to Exhale (1992)

Scott McNealy

U.S. businessman, 1954–

- I You have zero privacy anyway. Get over it.

Quoted in Wired, 26 Jan. 1999

John McNulty

U.S. writer, 1895–1956

- I They were talking about a certain hangout and Johnny said, "Nobody goes there anymore. It's too crowded."

New Yorker, 10 Feb. 1943. Often erroneously attributed to Yogi Berra. An earlier version, attributed to a "flutterbrained cutie named Suzanne Ridgeway," appeared in the Helena Independent, 10 Sept. 1941 ("Now I know why nobody ever comes here; it's too crowded"). Barry Popik has found an even earlier precursor in the Philadelphia Inquirer, 19 Dec. 1907: "She—'Oh, don't go there on Saturday; it's so frightfully crowded. Nobody goes there then!'"

William H. McRaven

U.S. admiral, 1955–

- I Geronimo EKIA.

Message to Leon Panetta, 2 May 2011. This was a code for "Enemy Killed in Action," referring to the mission to apprehend Osama bin Laden.

Norris McWhirter

English writer and political activist, 1925–2004

- I Ladies and gentlemen, here is the result of event nine, the one mile: first, number forty one, R. G. Bannister, Amateur Athletic Association and formerly of Exeter and Merton Colleges, Oxford, with a time which is a new meeting and track record, and which—subject to ratification—will be a new English Native, British National, All-Comers, European, British Empire and World Record. The time was three . . .

Announcement of winner of one-mile race at track meet, Oxford, England, 6 May 1954. In this race Roger Bannister became the first sub-four-minute miler; his time was drowned out after the word "three" by the roar of the crowd.

Margaret Mead

U.S. anthropologist, 1901–1978

- I As the traveller who has been once from home is wiser than he who has never left his own door step, so a knowledge of one other culture should sharpen our ability to scrutinise more steadily, to appreciate more lovingly, our own. Coming of Age in Samoa introduction (1928)
- 2 Historically our own culture has relied for the creation of rich and contrasting values upon many artificial distinctions, the most striking of which is sex. . . . If we are to achieve a richer culture, rich in contrasting values, we must recognize the whole gamut of human potentialities, and so weave a less arbitrary social fabric, one in which each diverse human gift will find a fitting place. Sex and Temperament in Three Primitive Societies conclusion (1935)
- 3 Warfare . . . is just an invention, older and more widespread than the jury system, but none the less an invention. "Warfare Is Only an Invention—Not a Biological Necessity" (1940)
- 4 Female animals defending their young are notoriously ferocious and lack the playful delight in combat which characterizes the mock combats of males of the same species. There seems very little ground for claiming that the mother of young children is more peaceful, more responsible, and more thoughtful for the welfare of the human race than is her husband or brother.

Male and Female introduction (1955 edition)

- 5 We know of no culture that has said, articulately, that there is no difference between men and women except in the way they contribute to the creation of the next generation.
Male and Female ch. 1 (1949)
- 6 Between the layman's "Naturally no human society" and the anthropologist's "No known human society" lie thousands of detailed and painstaking studies, made by hurricane-lamp and firelight, by explorer and missionary and modern scientists, in many parts of the world.
Male and Female ch. 2 (1949)
- 7 The mind is not sex-typed.
Blackberry Winter ch. 5 (1972)
- 8 Because of their age-long training in human relations—for that is what feminine intuition really is—women have a special contribution to make to any group enterprise, and I feel it is up to them to contribute the kinds of awareness that relatively few men . . . have incorporated through their education.
Blackberry Winter ch. 14 (1972)
- 9 I was brought up to believe that the only thing worth doing was to add to the sum of accurate information in this world.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 9 Aug. 1964
- 10 Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world: indeed, it's the only thing that ever has.
Attributed in Donald Keys, Earth at Omega: Passage to Planetization (1982)

Shepherd Mead

U.S. advertising executive and author, 1914–1994

- 1 How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying.
Title of book (1952)

Hughes Mearns

U.S. writer, 1875–1965

- 1 As I was going up the stair
I met a man who wasn't there.
He wasn't there again today.
I wish, I wish he'd stay away.
The Psycho-ed (1910)

Robert Megarry

English judge, 1910–2006

- 1 Whereas in England all is permitted that is not expressly prohibited, it has been said that in Germany all is prohibited unless expressly permitted and in France all is permitted that is expressly prohibited. In the European Common Market no-one knows what is permitted and it all costs more.
"Law and Lawyers in a Permissive Society" (lecture), 22 Mar. 1972

Henri Meilhac

French playwright, 1830–1897

- 1 L'amour est un oiseau rebelle que nul ne peut apprivoiser.
Love's a rebellious bird that flies so free it cannot be tamed.
Carmen (opera with music by Georges Bizet) act 1 (1875). Cowritten with Ludovic Halévy.
- 2 Toréador en garde! Toréador, Toréador, et songe bien, ou, songe en combatant qu'un oeil noir te regarde.
Toreador, be ready, Toreador, Toreador, and consider well while fighting that a dark eye is watching you.
Carmen (opera with music by Georges Bizet) act 2 (1875). Cowritten with Ludovic Halévy.

Golda Meir

Russian-born Israeli prime minister, 1898–1978

- 1 Let me tell you something that we Israelis have against Moses. He took us 40 years through the desert in order to bring us to the one spot in the Middle East that has no oil.
Speech at state dinner for Willy Brandt, Jerusalem, 10 June 1973
- 2 Don't be so humble—you're not that great.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 18 Mar. 1969

3 There were no such things as Palestinians. When was there an independent Palestinian people with a Palestinian state? . . . It was not as though there was a Palestinian people in Palestine considering itself as a Palestinian people and we came and threw them out and took their country away from them. They did not exist.

Quoted in Sunday Times (London), 15 June 1969

4 Our secret weapon is no alternative.

Quoted in N.Y. Times, 26 Oct. 1969

5 A leader who doesn't hesitate before he sends his nation into battle is not fit to be a leader.

Quoted in Israel and Mary Shenker, As Good as Golda: The Warmth and Wisdom of Israel's Prime Minister (1970)

Nellie Melba

Australian opera singer, 1861–1931

1 [Advice to Dame Clara Butt before the latter's concert tour of Australia, ca. 1901:] Sing 'em muck!

Quoted in John Hetherington, Melba: A Biography (1967)

William Lamb, Second Viscount Melbourne

British prime minister, 1779–1848

1 I wish that I knew any thing as well as Tom Macaulay knows every thing.

Quoted in Graham's Magazine, Aug. 1851. Often quoted later as "I wish I was as cocksure of anything as Tom Macaulay is of everything."

John Mellencamp

U.S. singer and songwriter, 1951–

1 Oh yeah, life goes on long after the thrill of livin' is gone.

"Jack and Diane" (song) (1982)

Herman Melville

U.S. novelist, 1819–1891

1 Genius all over the world stands hand in hand, and one shock of recognition runs the whole circle round.

"Hawthorne and His Mosses" (1850)

2 Call me Ishmael.

Moby-Dick ch. 1 (1851)

3 Better sleep with a sober cannibal than a drunken Christian.

Moby-Dick ch. 3 (1851)

4 A whaleship was my Yale College and my Harvard.

Moby-Dick ch. 24 (1851)

5 And this is what ye have shipped for, men! to chase that white whale on both sides of land, and over all sides of earth, till he spouts black blood and rolls fin out.

Moby-Dick ch. 36 (1851)

6 All visible objects, man, are but as pasteboard masks . . . strike, strike through the mask!

Moby-Dick ch. 36 (1851)

7 All that most maddens and torments; all that stirs up the lees of things; all truth with malice in it; all that cracks the sinews and cakes the brain; all the subtle demonisms of life and thought; all evil, to crazy Ahab, were visibly personified, and made practically assailable in Moby Dick. He piled upon the whale's white hump the sum of all the general rage and hate felt by his whole race from Adam down; and then, as if his chest had been a mortar, he burst his hot heart's shell upon it.

Moby-Dick ch. 41 (1851)

8 Though in many of its aspects this visible world seems formed in love, the invisible spheres were formed in fright.

Moby-Dick ch. 42 (1851)

- 9 To produce a mighty book, you must choose a mighty theme. No great and enduring volume can ever be written on the flea, though many there be who have tried it.
Moby-Dick ch. 104 (1851)
- 10 By heaven, man, we are turned round and round in this world, like yonder windlass, and Fate is the handspike.
Moby-Dick ch. 132 (1851)
- 11 Aye, toil as we may, we all sleep at last on the field. Sleep? Aye, and rust amid greenness; as last year's scythes flung down, and left in the half-cut swaths.
Moby-Dick ch. 132 (1851)
- 12 Towards thee I roll thou all-destroying but unconquering whale; to the last I grapple with thee; from hell's heart I stab at thee; for hate's sake I spit my last breath at thee.
Moby-Dick ch. 135 (1851)
- 13 The great shroud of the sea rolled on as it rolled five thousand years ago.
Moby-Dick ch. 135 (1851)
- 14 It was the devious-cruising Rachel, that in her retracing search after her missing children, only found another orphan.
Moby-Dick epilogue (1851)
- 15 One trembles to think of that mysterious thing in the soul, which seems to acknowledge no human jurisdiction, but in spite of the individual's own innocent self, will still dream horrid dreams, and mutter unmentionable thoughts.
Pierre bk. 4 (1852)
- 16 A smile is the chosen vehicle for all ambiguities.
Pierre bk. 4 (1852)
- 17 I would prefer not to.
"Bartleby the Scrivener" (1856)
- 18 Ah, Bartleby! Ah, humanity!
"Bartleby the Scrivener" (1856)
- 19 Games in which all may win remain as yet in this world uninvented.
The Confidence Man ch. 10 (1857)
- 20 God bless Captain Vere!
Billy Budd, Sailor ch. 25 (1924)

- 21 But me they'll lash in hammock, drop me deep. Fathoms down, fathoms down, how I'll dream fast asleep.
I feel it stealing now. Sentry, are you there?
Just ease these darbies at the wrist,
And roll me over fair!
I am sleepy, and the oozy weeds about me twist.
Billy Budd, Sailor ch. 25 (1924)

Menander

Greek playwright, 342 B.C.–ca. 292 B.C.

- 1 Whom the gods love dies young.
Dis Exapaton fragment 4
- 2 The man who runs may fight again.
Sententiae
- 3 A god from the machine.
The Woman Possessed with a Divinity fragment 227.
The Latin form of this expression is deus ex machina.

Mencius (Meng-tzu)

Chinese philosopher, 371 B.C.–289 B.C.

- 1 The great man is the one who does not lose his child's heart.
The Book of Mencius bk. 4, pt. 2, v. 12
- 2 If you let people follow their feelings, they will be able to do good. This is what is meant by saying that human nature is good.
The Book of Mencius bk. 6, pt. 1, v. 6

H. L. Mencken

U.S. journalist, 1880–1956

- 1 Love is the delusion that one woman differs from another.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 1 (1916)
- 2 Democracy is the theory that the common people know what they want, and deserve to get it good and hard.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 2 (1916)
- 3 An idealist is one who, on noticing that a rose smells better than a cabbage, concludes that it is also more nourishing.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 2 (1916)
- 4 A man is called a good fellow for doing things which, if done by a woman, would land her in a lunatic asylum.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 3 (1916)

- 5 A lawyer is one who protects you against robbers by taking away the temptation.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 4 (1916)
- 6 Archbishop: a Christian ecclesiastic of a rank superior to that attained by Christ.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 4 (1916)
- 7 Conscience: the inner voice which warns us that someone may be looking.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 4 (1916)
- 8 The penalty for laughing in a courtroom is six months in jail. If it were not for this penalty, the jury would never hear the evidence.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 4 (1916)
- 9 Courtroom: a place where Jesus Christ and Judas Iscariot would be equals, with the odds in favor of Judas.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 4 (1916)
- 10 It is a sin to believe evil of others, but it is seldom a mistake.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 5 (1916)
- 11 Suicide: a belated acquiescence in the opinion of one's wife's relatives.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 5 (1916)
- 12 When women kiss it always reminds one of prize-fighters shaking hands.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 6 (1916)
- 13 Alimony is the ransom that the happy pay to the devil.
A Little Book in C Major ch. 6 (1916)
- 14 The virulence of the national appetite for bogus revelation.
A Book of Prefaces ch. 1 (1917)
- 15 Time is a great legalizer, even in the field of morals.
A Book of Prefaces ch. 4 (1917)
- 16 The public . . . demands certainties. . . . But there are no certainties.
Prejudices, First Series ch. 3 (1919)
- 17 The great artists of the world are never Puritans, and seldom even ordinarily respectable.
Prejudices, First Series ch. 16 (1919)
- 18 ADULTERY. Democracy applied to love.
A Book of Burlesques ch. 11 (1920)
- 19 IMMORALITY. The morality of those who are having a better time.
A Book of Burlesques ch. 11 (1920)
- 20 LOVER. An apprentice second husband; victim no. 2 in the larval stage.
A Book of Burlesques ch. 11 (1920)
- 21 PLATITUDE. An idea (a) that is admitted to be true by everyone, and (b) that is not true.
A Book of Burlesques ch. 11 (1920)
- 22 There is always a well-known solution to every human problem—neat, plausible, and wrong.
Prejudices, Second Series ch. 4 (1920). Now usually quoted with “easy solution” instead of “well-known solution.” Some sources trace the quotation to the earliest version of the essay “The Divine Afflatus” by Mencken, published in the New York Evening Mail, 16 Nov. 1917, but it does not appear in the 1917 version.
- 23 To sum up: 1. The cosmos is a gigantic fly-wheel making 10,000 revolutions a minute.
2. Man is a sick fly taking a dizzy ride on it.
3. Religion is the theory that the wheel was designed and set spinning to give him the ride.
Smart Set, Dec. 1920
- 24 How long will the human race sweat under the superstition that, in order to be happy and useful and intelligent, it is necessary to believe in things? What nonsense indeed! Human progress consists, not in acquiring beliefs, but in getting rid of them.
Smart Set, Mar. 1921
- 25 If, after I depart this vale, you ever remember me and have thought to please my ghost, forgive some sinner and wink your eye at some homely girl.
Smart Set, Dec. 1921

- 26 Democracy is grounded upon so childish a complex of fallacies that they must be protected by a rigid system of taboos, else even half-wits would argue it to pieces.
In Defense of Women, rev. ed., introduction (1922)
- 27 Women decide the larger questions of life correctly and quickly, not because they are lucky guessers, not because they are divinely inspired, not because they practise a magic inherited from savagery, but simply and solely because they have sense. They see at a glance what most men could not see with searchlights and telescopes. . . . They are the supreme realists of the race.
In Defense of Women, rev. ed., pt. I, ch. 5 (1922)
- 28 No sane man, employing an American plumber to repair a leaky drain, would expect him to do it at the first trial, and in precisely the same way no sane man, observing an American Secretary of State in negotiation with Englishmen and Japs, would expect him to come off better than second best. Third-rate men, of course, exist in all countries, but it is only here that they are in full control of the state, and with it of all the national standards.
Prejudices, Third Series ch. 1 (1922)
- 29 Injustice is relatively easy to bear; what stings is justice.
Prejudices, Third Series ch. 3 (1922)
- 30 There are no mute, inglorious Miltons, save in the hallucinations of poets. The one sound test of a Milton is that he functions as a Milton.
Prejudices, Third Series ch. 3 (1922)
See Thomas Gray 8
- 31 Faith may be defined briefly as an illogical belief in the occurrence of the improbable.
Prejudices, Third Series ch. 14 (1922)
- 32 The old game, I suspect, is beginning to play out, even in the Bible Belt.
American Mercury, Nov. 1924. Earliest known usage of Bible belt, antedating the previous date of 1926 found in historical dictionaries.
- 33 The difference between a moral man and a man of honor is that the latter regrets a discreditable act, even when it has worked and he has not been caught.
Prejudices, Fourth Series ch. 11 (1924)
- 34 The Klan is actually as thoroughly American as Rotary or the Moose. Its childish mummery is American, its highfalutin bombast is American, and its fundamental philosophy is American. The very essence of Americanism is the doctrine that the other fellow, if he happens to be in a minority, has absolutely no rights—that enough is done for him when he is allowed to live at all.
American Mercury, Mar. 1925
- 35 No one in this world, so far as I know—and I have searched the records for years, and employed agents to help me—has ever lost money by underestimating the intelligence of the great masses of the plain people.
Chicago Tribune, 19 Sept. 1926. Often misquoted as “Nobody ever went broke underestimating the intelligence of the American public.”
- 36 The average man doesn’t want to be free. He wants to be safe.
Notes on Democracy pt. 3 (1926)
- 37 Life may not exactly be pleasant, but at least it is not dull. Heave yourself into Hell today, and you may miss, tomorrow or next day, another Scopes trial, or another War to End War, or perchance a rich and buxom widow with all her first husband’s clothes. There are always more Hardings hatching. I advocate hanging on as long as possible.
American Mercury, Apr. 1928
- 38 Capitalism undoubtedly has certain boils and blotches upon it, but has it as many as government? Has it as many as marriage? Has it as many as religion? I doubt it. It is the only basic institution of modern man that shows any genuine health and vigor.
American Mercury, Aug. 1928
- 39 It might be a good idea to relate strip-teasing in some way . . . to the associated zoölogical phenomenon of molting. . . . A resort to the scientific name for molting, which is ecdysis, produces both ecdysist and ecdysiast.
Letter to Georgia Sothern, 5 Apr. 1940
- 40 When A annoys or injures B on the pretense of saving or improving X, A is a scoundrel.
Newspaper Days: 1899–1906 ch. 2 (1941)

41 Love is the most fun you can have without laughing.
A New Dictionary of Quotations (1942). This quotation is attributed as "Author unidentified." In Walter Winchell's column in the Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Times Leader, 25 Jan. 1938, the following appeared: "The latest definition of necking: How you can have the most fun without laughing."
 See Woody Allen 28

42 Puritanism—The haunting fear that someone, somewhere, may be happy.
A Mencken Chrestomathy ch. 30 (1949). Mencken used this definition earlier, in American Mercury, Jan. 1925.

43 It is now quite lawful for a Catholic woman to avoid pregnancy by a resort to mathematics, though she is still forbidden to resort to physics and chemistry.
Minority Report: H. L. Mencken's Notebooks (1956)

44 There are people who read too much: the bibliobibli. I know some who are constantly drunk on books, as other men are drunk on whiskey or religion. They wander through this most diverting and stimulating of worlds in a haze, seeing nothing and hearing nothing.
Minority Report: H. L. Mencken's Notebooks (1956)

45 We must respect the other fellow's religion, but only in the sense and to the extent that we respect his theory that his wife is beautiful and his children smart.
Minority Report: H. L. Mencken's Notebooks (1956)

Johann Gregor Mendel

Czech geneticist and monk, 1822–1884

- 1 In this generation, along with the dominating traits, the recessive ones also reappear, their individuality fully revealed, and they do so in the decisively expressed average proportion of 3:1, so that among each four plants of this generation three receive the dominating and one the recessive characteristic.
 "Experiments on Plant Hybrids" (1865)
- 2 Those traits that pass into hybrid association entirely or almost entirely unchanged, thus themselves representing the traits of the hybrid, are termed dominating and those that become latent in the association, recessive.
 "Experiments on Plant Hybrids" (1865)

Dmitri Ivanovich Mendeleev

Russian chemist, 1834–1907

- 1 If all the elements are arranged in the order of their atomic weights, a periodic repetition of properties is obtained. This is expressed by the law of periodicity.
Principles of Chemistry vol. 2 (1905)

Robert Menzies

Australian prime minister, 1894–1978

- 1 [Response to a heckler who had yelled, "I wouldn't vote for you if you were the Archangel Gabriel":] If I were the Archangel Gabriel, madam, I'm afraid you would not be in my constituency.
 Quoted in Ray Robinson, The Wit of Robert Menzies (1966)

Johnny Mercer

U.S. songwriter, 1909–1976

- 1 Jeepers creepers!
 Where'd ya get those peepers?
 "Jeepers Creepers" (song) (1937)
- 2 You must have been a beautiful baby,
 You must have been a beautiful child.
 "You Must Have Been a Beautiful Baby" (song) (1938)
- 3 That Old Black Magic.
 Title of song (1942)
- 4 You've got to
 Accent-tchu-ate the positive,
 E-lim-my-nate the negative,
 Latch on to the affirmative,
 Don't mess with Mister In-between.
 "Accentuate the Positive" (song) (1944)
- 5 Moon River,
 Wider than a mile:
 I'm crossin' you in style
 Some day.
 "Moon River" (song) (1961)
- 6 Two drifters
 Off to see the world,
 There's such a lot of world
 To see.
 "Moon River" (song) (1961)

Leigh Mercer

English puzzle composer, 1893–1977

- 1 A man, a plan, a canal—Panama!

Notes and Queries, 13 Nov. 1948. One of the best-known palindromes (a word or words that spell the same thing forward and backward).

Freddie Mercury (Farrokh Bulsara)

Zanzibar-born English rock singer and songwriter, 1946–1991

- 1 Nothing really matters,
Anyone can see,
Nothing really matters, nothing really matters
to me.
“Bohemian Rhapsody” (song) (1975)

George Meredith

English novelist and poet, 1828–1909

- 1 Ah, what a dusty answer gets the soul
When hot for certainties in this our life!
Modern Love st. 50 (1862)
- 2 Enter these enchanted woods,
You who dare.
“The Woods of Westermain” l. 1 (1883)

Owen Meredith (Edward Robert Bulwer Lytton, Lord Lytton)

English poet, 1831–1891

- 1 We may live without friends; we may live without books;
But civilized man can not live without cooks.
Lucile pt. 1, canto 2 (1860)
- 2 Genius does what it must, and Talent does what it can.
“Last Words of a Sensitive Second-Rate Poet” (1868)
See Baring 1

Peter Merholz

U.S. computer scientist, 1972–

- 1 I’ve decided to pronounce the word “weblog” as wee-blog. Or “blog” for short.
Peterme.com website, 23 May 1999. Coinage of the word blog.

Ethel Merman (Ethel Agnes

Zimmermann)

U.S. singer and actress, 1908–1984

- 1 [Of Mary Martin.:] Oh, she’s all right, if you like
talent.
Quoted in Theater Arts, Sept. 1958

Bob Merrill

U.S. songwriter and composer, 1920–1998

- 1 How much is that doggie in the window?
The one with the waggily tail.
“How Much Is That Doggie in the Window?” (song)
(1953)
- 2 People who need people
Are the luckiest people
In the world.
“People” (song) (1963)

James Merrill

U.S. poet, 1926–1995

- 1 Always that same old story—
Father Time and Mother Earth,
A marriage on the rocks.
“The Broken Home” l. 40 (1966)
- 2 What we dream up must be lived down, I think.
“The Book of Ephraim” sec. 1 (1976)

Dixon Lanier Merritt

U.S. humorist, 1879–1972

- 1 Oh, a wondrous bird is the pelican!
His beak holds more than his belican.
He takes in his beak
Food enough for a week.
But I’ll be darned if I know how the helican.
Nashville Banner, 22 Apr. 1913

Robert K. Merton (Meyer R. Schkolnick)

U.S. sociologist, 1910–2003

- 1 Four sets of institutional imperatives—universalism [truth-claims are to be subjected to preestablished impersonal criteria], communism [scientific property is a heritage held in common], disinterestedness, organized skepticism—are taken to comprise the ethos of modern science.
“Science and Technology in a Democratic Order”
(1942). Square brackets are in the original text.

2 The self-fulfilling prophecy is, in the beginning, a false definition of the situation evoking a new behavior which makes the originally false conception come true. The specious validity of the self-fulfilling prophecy perpetuates a reign of error. For the prophet will cite the actual course of events as proof that he was right from the very beginning.

"The Self-Fulfilling Prophecy" (1948)

3 The distinctive intellectual contributions of the sociologist are found primarily in the study of unintended consequences . . . of social practices as well as in the study of anticipated consequences.

Social Theory and Social Structure: Toward the Codification of Theory and Research "Manifest and Latent Functions" (1949)

4 [The] complex pattern of the misallocation of credit for scientific work must quite evidently be described as "the Matthew effect," for . . . the Gospel According to St. Matthew puts it this way: For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath. Put in less stately language, the Matthew effect consists of the accruing of greater increments of recognition for particular scientific contributions to scientists of considerable repute and the withholding of such recognition from scientists who have not yet made their mark.

"The Matthew Effect in Science: The Reward and Communication Systems of Science Are Considered," Science, 5 Jan. 1968. Merton based this principle on analysis of Harriet Zuckerman's interviews with Nobel laureates.

W. S. (William Stanley) Merwin

U.S. poet, 1927–2019

1 who should moor at his edge
And fare on afoot would find gates of no gardens,
But the hill of dark underfoot diving,
Closing overhead, the cold deep, and drowning.
He is called Leviathan, and named for rolling.
"Leviathan" l. 18 (1956)

2 Then I will no longer
Find myself in life as in a strange garment.
"For the Anniversary of My Death" l. 6 (1967)

3 The ghosts of the villages trail in the sky
Making a new twilight.

"The Asians Dying" l. 8 (1967)

4 Rain falls into the open eyes of the dead
Again again with its pointless sound
When the moon finds them they are the color of everything.

"The Asians Dying" l. 10 (1967)

Jean Meslier

French priest, 1664–1729

1 I remember, on this matter, the wish made once by an ignorant, uneducated man . . . that all the great men in the world and all the nobility could be hanged, and strangled with the guts of priests.

John Stuart Mill

English philosopher and economist, 1806–1873

- 1 No man made the land. It is the original inheritance of the whole species. Its appropriation is wholly a question of general expediency. When private property in land is not expedient, it is unjust.
Principles of Political Economy bk. 2, ch. 2 (1848)
- 2 The sole end for which mankind are warranted, individually or collectively, in interfering with the liberty of action of any of their number is self-protection.
On Liberty ch. 1 (1859)
- 3 The only purpose for which power can be rightfully exercised over any member of a civilized community, against his will, is to prevent harm to others. His own good, either physical or moral, is not a sufficient warrant.
On Liberty ch. 1 (1859)
- 4 The only part of the conduct of any one, for which he is amenable to society, is that which concerns others. In the part which merely concerns himself, his independence is, of right, absolute. Over himself, over his own body and mind, the individual is sovereign.
On Liberty ch. 1 (1859)
- 5 If all mankind minus one were of one opinion, and only one person were of the contrary opinion, mankind would be no more justified in silencing that one person, than he, if he had the power, would be justified in silencing mankind.
On Liberty ch. 2 (1859)
- 6 He who knows only his own side of the case, knows little of that.
On Liberty ch. 2 (1859)
- 7 The fatal tendency of mankind to leave off thinking about a thing when it is no longer doubtful is the cause of half their errors.
On Liberty ch. 2 (1859)
- 8 We can never be sure that the opinion we are endeavoring to stifle is a false opinion; and if we were sure, stifling it would be an evil still.
On Liberty ch. 2 (1859)
- 9 The liberty of the individual must be thus far limited; he must not make himself a nuisance to other people.
On Liberty ch. 3 (1859)
- 10 Whatever crushes individuality is despotism, by whatever name it may be called.
On Liberty ch. 3 (1859)
- 11 Everyone who receives the protection of society owes a return for the benefit.
On Liberty ch. 4 (1859)
- 12 The individual is not accountable to society for his actions, insofar as these concern the interests of no person but himself.
On Liberty ch. 5 (1859)
- 13 Liberty consists in doing what one desires.
On Liberty ch. 5 (1859)
- 14 Instead of the function of governing, for which it is radically unfit, the proper office of a representative assembly is to watch and control the government.
Considerations on Representative Government ch. 5 (1861)
- 15 The Conservatives . . . being by the law of their existence the stupidest party.
Considerations on Representative Government ch. 7 (1861)
- 16 It is better to be a human being dissatisfied than a pig satisfied; better to be Socrates dissatisfied than a fool satisfied.
Utilitarianism ch. 2 (1861)
- 17 I will call no being good, who is not what I mean when I apply that epithet to my fellow-creatures; and if such a being can sentence me to hell for not so calling him, to hell I will go.
Examination of Sir William Hamilton's Philosophy ch. 7 (1865)
- 18 Bad men need nothing more to compass their ends than that good men should look on and do nothing.
"On Education" (1867)
See Edmund Burke 1; Edmund Burke 28
- 19 The principle which regulates the existing social relations between the two sexes—the legal subordination of one sex to the other—is wrong in itself, and now one of the chief hindrances to human improvement; and . . . it ought to be replaced by a principle of perfect equality, admitting no power or privilege on the one side, nor disability on the other.

The Subjection of Women ch. 1 (1869)

- 20 So true is it that unnatural generally means only uncustomary, and that everything that is usual appears natural. The subjection of women to men being a universal custom, any departure from it quite naturally appears unnatural.
The Subjection of Women ch. 1 (1869)
- 21 What is now called the nature of women is an eminently artificial thing—the result of forced repression in some directions, unnatural stimulation in others.
The Subjection of Women ch. 1 (1869)
- 22 No slave is a slave to the same lengths, and in so full a sense of the word, as a wife is.
The Subjection of Women ch. 2 (1869)
- 23 Marriage is the only actual bondage known to our law. There remain no legal slaves, except the mistress of every house.
The Subjection of Women ch. 4 (1869)
- 24 Ask yourself whether you are happy, and you cease to be so.
Autobiography ch. 5 (1873)
- 25 Human existence is girt round with mystery: the narrow region of our experience is a small island in the midst of a boundless sea.
Nature, the Utility of Religion, and Theism “The Utility of Religion” (1874)
- 26 Unearned increment of value.
Quoted in Scotsman, 10 Aug. 1871

Margaret Millar

Canadian-born U.S. novelist, 1915–1994

- 1 Most conversations are simply monologues delivered in the presence of a witness.
The Weak-Eyed Bat ch. 8 (1942)

Edna St. Vincent Millay

U.S. poet, 1892–1950

- 1 All I could see from where I stood
Was three long mountains and a wood.
“Renaissance” l. 1 (1917)

2 The heart can push the sea and land
Farther away on either hand;
The soul can split the sky in two,
And let the face of God shine through.
“Renaissance” l. 207 (1917)

3 I forgot in Camelot
The man I loved in Rome.
“Fugitive” l. 3 (1919)

4 My candle burns at both ends;
It will not last the night;
But, ah, my foes, and, oh, my friends—
It gives a lovely light.
A Few Figs from Thistles “First Fig” l. 1 (1920)

5 I would indeed that love were longer-lived,
And vows were not so brittle as they are,
But so it is, and nature has contrived
To struggle on without a break thus far,—
Whether or not we find what we are seeking
Is idle, biologically speaking.
“Four Sonnets—IV” l. 9 (1922)

6 Euclid alone
Has looked on Beauty bare. Fortunate they Who, though once only and then but far away,
Have heard her massive sandal set on stone.
“Euclid Alone Has Looked on Beauty Bare” l. 11 (1923)

7 It’s not true that life is one damn thing after another—it’s one damn thing over and over.
Letter to Arthur Davison Ficke, 24 Oct. 1930
See Modern Proverbs 51

8 Love is not all: it is not meat nor drink
Nor slumber nor a roof against the rain;
Nor yet a floating spar to men that sink.
“Love Is Not All” l. 1 (1931)

9 Childhood Is the Kingdom Where Nobody Dies.
Title of poem (1934)

Arthur Miller

U.S. playwright, 1915–2005

- 1 For a salesman, there is no rock bottom to the life. He don’t put a bolt to a nut, he don’t tell you the law or give you medicine. He’s a man way out there in the blue, riding on a smile and a shoeshine. And when they start not smiling back—that's an earthquake.

Death of a Salesman "Requiem" (1949)

- 2 A salesman is got to dream, boy. It comes with the territory.

Death of a Salesman "Requiem" (1949)

- 3 Willy Loman never made a lot of money. His name was never in the paper. . . . But he's a human being, and a terrible thing is happening to him. So attention must be paid. He's not to be allowed to fall into his grave like an old dog. Attention, attention must be finally paid to such a person.

Death of a Salesman act 1 (1949)

- 4 The structure of a play is always the story of how the birds came home to roost.

Harper's, Aug. 1958

- 5 A suicide kills two people, Maggie, that's what it's for!

After the Fall act 2 (1964)

Bill Miller

U.S. political consultant, 1951–

- 1 Politics is show business for ugly people.
Quoted in Dallas Morning News, 13 Oct. 1991

Edgar E. "Rip" Miller

U.S. football player and coach, 1901–1991

- 1 [A tie in a football game is] just like kissing your sister.

Quoted in Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, 5 Dec. 1946. Although this quotation is often attributed to Duffy Daugherty, the 1946 citation predates any Daugherty evidence. Other metaphors involving sister-kissing go back as far as the nineteenth century.

Henry Miller

U.S. songwriter, fl. 1883

- 1 A Boy's Best Friend Is His Mother.
Title of song (1883)
See Film Lines 140

Henry Miller

U.S. writer, 1891–1980

- 1 This then? This is not a book. This is libel, slander, defamation of character. This is not a book, in the ordinary sense of the word. No, this is a prolonged insult, a gob of spit in the face of Art, a kick in the pants to God, Man, Destiny, Time, Love, Beauty . . . what you will.

I am going to sing for you, a little off key, perhaps, but I will sing. I will sing while you croak, I will dance over your dirty corpse.

Tropic of Cancer ch. 1 (1934)

- 2 Sex is one of the nine reasons for reincarnation. The other eight are unimportant.

Sexus ch. 21 (1949)

Joaquin Miller (Cincinnatus Heine Miller)

U.S. poet and frontiersman, 1837–1913

- 1 The mail must go through.
"Greeley's Ride with Hank Monk" l. 30 (1885)

Jonathan Miller

English writer and director, 1934–2019

- 1 I'm not really a Jew. Just Jew-ish. Not the whole hog, you know.

Beyond the Fringe (1960). Coauthored with Alan Bennett, Peter Cook, and Dudley Moore.

- 2 [Of reading from a computer screen:] A sort of cognitive equivalent of a condom—it's a layer of contraceptive rubber between the direct experience and the cognitive system.

Quoted in Independent on Sunday (London), 14 Jan. 1996

Max Miller

U.S. journalist, 1899–1967

- 1 I Cover the Waterfront.
Title of book (1932)

Roger Miller

U.S. country singer and songwriter, 1936–1992

- 1 Trailer for sale or rent;
Rooms to let, fifty cents;
No phone, no pool, no pets;
I ain't got no cigarettes.
"King of the Road" (song) (1964)
- 2 Ah, but two hours of pushing broom
Buys a eight by twelve four-bit room.
I'm a man of means by no means,
King of the road.
"King of the Road" (song) (1964)

Kate Millett

U.S. feminist and writer, 1934–2017

- 1 Sexual Politics.
Title of book (1970)
- 2 Perhaps patriarchy's greatest psychological weapon is simply its universality and longevity. . . . Patriarchy has a still more tenacious or powerful hold through its successful habit of passing itself off as nature.
Sexual Politics ch. 2 (1970)

Terence Alan "Spike" Milligan

Irish comedian, 1918–2002

- 1 Money couldn't buy friends, but you got a better class of enemy.
Puckoon ch. 6 (1963). This quotation is associated with Milligan, but it appeared before him. The earliest citation found is "Money can't get you friends, but it can get you a better class of enemies" (Charleroi [Pa.] Mail, 19 Aug. 1953).

C. Wright Mills

U.S. sociologist, 1916–1962

- 1 By the power elite, we refer to those political, economic, and military circles which as an intricate set of overlapping cliques share decisions having at least national consequences. In so far as national events are decided, the power elite are those who decide them.
The Power Elite ch. 1 (1956)
- 2 The sociological imagination enables us to grasp history and biography and the relations between the two within society.
The Sociological Imagination ch. 1 (1959)

Irving Mills

U.S. songwriter, 1894–1985

- 1 It don't mean a thing
If it ain't got that swing.
"It Don't Mean a Thing" (song) (1932). Duke Ellington noted in Jazz Journal, Dec. 1965, that trumpeter Bubber Miley was the first man he had heard use this expression.

A. A. Milne

English children's book writer, 1882–1956

- 1 They're changing guard at Buckingham Palace—

Christopher Robin went down with Alice.
Alice is marrying one of the guard.
"A soldier's life is terrible hard,"
Says Alice.
When We Were Very Young "Buckingham Palace" l. 1 (1924)

- 2 James James
Morrison Morrison
Weatherby George Dupree
Took great Care of his Mother,
Though he was only three.
James James
Said to his Mother,
"Mother," he said, said he;
"You must never go down to the end of the town, if you don't go down with me."
When We Were Very Young "Disobedience" l. 1 (1924)
- 3 If you were a cloud, and sailed up there,
You'd sail on water as blue as air,
And you'd see me here in the fields and say:
"Doesn't the sky look green today?"
When We Were Very Young "Spring Morning" l. 9 (1924)
- 4 If you were a bird, and lived on high,
You'd lean on the wind when the wind came by,
You'd say to the wind when it took you away:
"That's where I wanted to go today!"
When We Were Very Young "Spring Morning" l. 17 (1924)
- 5 I am a Bear of Very Little Brain, and long words Bother me.
Winnie-the-Pooh ch. 4 (1926)

Czesław Miłosz

Lithuanian-born Polish writer, 1911–2004

- 1 Grow your tree of falsehood from a small grain of truth.
Do not follow those who lie in contempt of reality.
Let your lie be even more logical than the truth itself,
So the weary travelers may find repose in the lie.
"Child of Europe" sec. 4 (1946) (translation by Jan Darowski)

John Milton

English poet, 1608–1674

- 1 Come, knit hands, and beat the ground,
In a light fantastic round.
Comus l. 143 (1637)
- 2 Fame is the spur that the clear spirit doth raise (That last infirmity of noble mind).
“Lycidas” l. 70 (1638). A 1619 play thought to be written by John Fletcher, Sir John van Olden Barnavel act 1, sc. 1, refers to “the desire of glory (That last infirmity of noble minds).” That play was lost and not rediscovered until 1883, so Milton’s parallel words were coincidental.
- 3 Look homeward angel now, and melt with ruth.
“Lycidas” l. 163 (1638)
- 4 At last he rose, and twitched his mantle blue:
Tomorrow to fresh woods, and pastures new.
“Lycidas” l. 192 (1638)
- 5 Truth . . . never comes into the world but like a bastard, to the ignominy of him that brought her forth.
The Doctrine and Discipline of Divorce introduction (1643)
- 6 As good almost kill a man as kill a good book:
who kills a man kills a reasonable creature,
God’s image; but he who destroys a good book, kills reason itself, kills the image of God, as it were in the eye.
Areopagitica (1644)
- 7 I cannot praise a fugitive and cloistered virtue, unexercised and unbreathed, that never sallies out and sees her adversary, but slinks out of the race, where that immortal garland is to be run for, not without dust and heat . . . that which purifies us is trial, and trial is by what is contrary.
Areopagitica (1644)
- 8 And though all the winds of doctrine were to be let loose to play upon the earth, so Truth be in the field, we do injuriously by licensing and prohibiting to misdoubt her strength. Let her and Falsehood grapple; who ever knew Truth put to the worse, in a free and open encounter?
Areopagitica (1644)
See Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr. 28
- 9 Time the subtle thief of youth.
“How soon hath time” l. 1 (1645)
- 10 Where glowing embers through the room
Teach light to counterfeit a gloom,
Far from all resort of mirth,
Save the cricket on the hearth.
“Il Penseroso” l. 79 (1645)
- 11 Nods, and becks, and wreathed smiles.
“L’Allegro” l. 28 (1645)
- 12 Come, and trip it as ye go
On the light fantastic toe.
“L’Allegro” l. 33 (1645)
- 13 New Presbyter is but old Priest writ large.
“On the New Forcers of Conscience Under the Long Parliament” (1646)
- 14 None can love freedom heartily, but good men;
the rest love not freedom, but licence.
The Tenure of Kings and Magistrates (1649)
- 15 Peace hath her victories
No less renowned than war.
“To the Lord General Cromwell” l. 10 (written 1652)
- 16 What I have spoken, is the language of that which is not called amiss The good old Cause.
*The Ready and Easy Way to Establish a Free
Commonwealth*, 2nd ed. (1660)
- 17 Of man’s first disobedience, and the fruit
Of that forbidden tree, whose mortal taste
Brought death into the world, and all our woe,
With loss of Eden.
Paradise Lost bk. 1, l. 1 (1667)

- 18 What in me is dark
 Illumine, what is low raise and support;
 That to the height of this great argument
 I may assert eternal providence,
 And justify the ways of God to men.
Paradise Lost bk. 1, l. 22 (1667)
 See Housman 5; Milton 49
- 19 No light, but rather darkness visible
 Served only to discover sights of woe.
Paradise Lost bk. 1, l. 63 (1667)
- 20 What though the field be lost?
 All is not lost; the unconquerable will,
 And study of revenge, immortal hate,
 And courage never to submit or yield.
Paradise Lost bk. 1, l. 105 (1667)
- 21 The mind is its own place, and in itself
 Can make a heaven of hell, a hell of heaven.
Paradise Lost bk. 1, l. 254 (1667)
- 22 Better to reign in hell, than serve in heaven.
Paradise Lost bk. 1, l. 263 (1667)
- 23 The imperial ensign, which full high advanced
 Shone like a meteor streaming to the wind.
Paradise Lost bk. 1, l. 536 (1667)
- 24 Let none admire
 That riches grow in hell; that soil may best
 Deserve the precious bane.
Paradise Lost bk. 1, l. 690 (1667)
- 25 From morn
 To noon he fell, from noon to dewy eve,
 A summer's day; and with the setting sun

- 27 Belial, in act more graceful and humane;
 A fairer person lost not heaven; he seemed
 For dignity composed and high exploit:
 But all was false and hollow; though his tongue
 Dropped manna, and could make the worse appear
 The better reason.

Charles Miner

U.S. businessman and politician, 1780–1865

- 1 When I see a man, holding a fat office, sounding "the horn on the borders," to call the people to support the man, on whom he depends for his office, well thinks I, no wonder the man is zealous in the cause, he evidently has an axe to grind.

Luzerne County Federalist, 7 Sept. 1810. This is the conclusion of an anecdote recalling a childhood incident in which a stranger tricked Miner into grinding an axe for him.

Raleigh C. Minor

U.S. legal scholar, 1869–1923

- 1 For the sake of convenience of discussion, arbitrary terms have been used in designating the union [a federal league of nations proposed by Minor], the compact, and the officials supposed to act under it. Thus the union is spoken of as "The United Nations"; the compact of government, as the "Constitution" of the United Nations.

A Republic of Nations: A Study of the Organization of a Federal League of Nations ch. 3 (1918). Here Minor used the term United Nations for a federal league of nations proposed by him, twenty-four years earlier than the generally accepted coinage of the term.

Newton N. Minow

U.S. government official, 1926–

- 1 I invite you to sit down in front of your television set when your station goes on the air
. . . and keep your eyes glued to that set until the station signs off. I can assure you that you will observe a vast wasteland.
Speech before National Association of Broadcasters,
Washington, D.C., 9 May 1961

Lin-Manuel Miranda

U.S. playwright, songwriter, and actor 1980–

- 1 How does a bastard, orphan, son of a whore
And a Scotsman, dropped in the middle of a forgotten spot
In the Caribbean by Providence, impoverished, in squalor
Grow up to be a hero and a scholar?

Helen Mirren (Helen Lydia Mironoff)

English actress, 1945–

- 1 [Of nudity:] The part never calls for it. And I've never ever used that excuse. The box office calls for it.
Quoted in Independent (London), 22 Mar. 1994

Ludwig von Mises

Austrian-born U.S. economist, 1881–1973

- 1 The market economy as such does not respect political frontiers. Its field is the world.
Human Action: A Treatise on Economics ch. 15 (1949)
- 2 Laissez faire does not mean: Let soulless mechanical forces operate. It means: Let each individual choose how he wants to cooperate in the social division of labor; let the consumers determine what the entrepreneurs should produce. Planning means: Let the government alone choose and enforce its rulings by the apparatus of coercion and compulsion.

Human Action: A Treatise on Economics ch. 27 (1949)

- 3 Everybody thinks of economics whether he is aware of it or not. In joining a political party and in casting his ballot, the citizen implicitly takes a stand upon essential economic theories.
Human Action: A Treatise on Economics ch. 38 (1949)

Yukio Mishima (Hiraoka Kimitake)

Japanese writer, 1925–1970

- 1 As he saw it, there was only one choice—to be strong and upright, or to commit suicide.
“Ken” (1963) (translation by John Bester)
- 2 Human beings . . . they go on being born and dying, dying and being born. It's kind of boring, isn't it?
“Ken” (1963) (translation by John Bester)

The Missal

- 1 Requiescant in pace.
May they rest in peace.
Order of Mass for the Dead
- 2 In Nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti.
In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.
The Ordinary of the Mass
- 3 *Peccavi nimis cogitatione, verbo, et opere, mea
culpa, mea culpa, mea maxima culpa.*
I have sinned exceedingly in thought, word, and deed, through my fault, through my fault, through my most grievous fault.
The Ordinary of the Mass
- 4 Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus, Dominus Deus Sabaoth.
Pleni sunt coeli et terra gloria tua. Hosanna in excelsis. Benedictus qui venit in nomine Domini.
Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of Hosts. Heaven and earth are full of thy glory. Hosanna in the highest. Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.
The Ordinary of the Mass

5 Pater noster, qui es in coelis, sanctificetur nomen tuum; adveniat regnum tuum; fiat voluntas tua sicut in coelo, et in terra . . . sed libera nos a malo.

Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name; thy kingdom come; thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven . . . but deliver us from evil.

The Ordinary of the Mass
See Bible 215

6 Agnus Dei, qui tollis peccata mundi, miserere nobis.

Lamb of God, who takest away the sins of the world, have mercy on us.

The Ordinary of the Mass
See Bible 312

7 Credo in unum Deum.

I believe in one God.

The Ordinary of the Mass “The Nicene Creed”

George Mitchell

U.S. politician, 1933–

1 Although he is regularly asked to do so, God does not take sides in American politics, and in America disagreement with the policies of the government is not evidence of lack of patriotism.

Statement at Senate Hearings on Iran-Contra scandal, 13 July 1987

John N. Mitchell

U.S. attorney general, 1913–1988

1 [Addressing black civil rights workers protesting Nixon administration actions regarding the Voting Rights Act:] You’d be better informed if instead of listening to what we say, you watch what we do.

Quoted in Wash. Post, 7 July 1969. Usually misquoted as “Watch what we do, not what we say.”

2 [Remark during telephone interview, 29 Sept. 1972:] Katie Graham’s [Washington Post publisher Katharine Graham] gonna get her tit caught in a big fat wringer if that’s ever published.

Quoted in Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward, All the President’s Men (1974). Mitchell was referring to an article about his involvement in a secret fund financing illegal campaign activities.

Joni Mitchell (Roberta Joan Anderson)

Canadian-born U.S. singer and songwriter, 1943–

1 I’ve looked at life from both sides now,
From win and lose and still somehow
It’s life’s illusions I recall;
I really don’t know life at all.
“Both Sides Now” (song) (1967)

2 They paved paradise
And put up a parking lot.
“Big Yellow Taxi” (song) (1969)

3 We are stardust,
We are golden,
And we’ve got to get ourselves
Back to the garden.
“Woodstock” (song) (1969)

4 By the time we got to Woodstock we were half a million strong
And everywhere was song and celebration
And I dreamed I saw the bombers riding shotgun in the sky
Turning into butterflies above our nation.
“Woodstock” (song) (1969)

5 All the people at this party, they’ve got a lot of style,
They’ve got stamps of many countries, they’ve got passport smiles.
Some are friendly, some are cutting, some are watchin’ it from the wings,
Some are standin’ in the center givin’ to get something.
“People’s Parties” (song) (1974)

Margaret Mitchell

U.S. novelist, 1900–1949

1 Land is the only thing in the world that amounts to anything, for ’tis the only thing in this world that lasts. . . . ’Tis the only thing worth working for, worth fighting for—worth dying for.

Gone with the Wind pt. 1, ch. 2 (1936)

2 What most people don’t seem to realize is that there is just as much money to be made out of the wreckage of a civilization as from the upbuilding of one.

Gone with the Wind pt. 2, ch. 9 (1936)

- 3 Ah doan know nuthin' 'bout bringin' babies.
Gone with the Wind pt. 3, ch. 21 (1936). In the 1939 motion picture, this line by the character Prissy is changed to "birthin' babies."
- 4 Was Tara still standing? Or was Tara also gone with the wind that had swept through Georgia?
Gone with the Wind pt. 3, ch. 24 (1936)
 See Dowson 2; Mangan 1
- 5 As God is my witness, as God is my witness, the Yankees aren't going to lick me. I'm going to live through this, and when it's over, I'm never going to be hungry again. No, nor any of my folks. If I have to steal or kill—as God is my witness, I'm never going to be hungry again.
Gone with the Wind pt. 3, ch. 25 (1936)
- 6 Death and taxes and childbirth! There's never any convenient time for any of them!
Gone with the Wind pt. 4, ch. 38 (1936)
 See Benjamin Franklin 41; Proverbs 63
- 7 I wish I could care what you do or where you go but I can't. . . . My dear, I don't give a damn.
Gone with the Wind pt. 5, ch. 63 (1936). In the 1939 motion picture these words of Rhett Butler are changed to "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn." Inclusion of the last word in the film was accomplished only over great opposition from the Hollywood censors.
- 8 I'll think of some way to get him back. After all, tomorrow is another day.
Gone with the Wind pt. 5, ch. 63 (1936)
 See Proverbs 302

Maria Mitchell

U.S. astronomer, 1818–1889

- 1 Endow the already established institution with money. Endow the woman who shows genius with time.
 Journal, 10 Feb. 1887

Nancy Mitford

English author, 1904–1973

- 1 The great advantage of living in a large family is that early lesson of life's essential unfairness.
The Pursuit of Love ch. 1 (1945)
- 2 Love in a Cold Climate.
 Title of book (1949)

Wilson Mizner

U.S. playwright, 1876–1933

- 1 Be kind to everyone on the way up; you'll meet the same people on the way down.
 Quoted in S.F. Chronicle, 5 July 1932. Colonel Tom Parker, Elvis Presley's manager, is said to have remarked, "You don't have to be nice to people you meet on the way up if you're not coming back down again."
- 2 Hello, sucker!
 Quoted in Edward Dean Sullivan, The Fabulous Wilson Mizner (1935). According to Ralph Keyes, "Nice Guys Finish Seventh" (1992), Mizner's "trademark greeting was a hearty 'Hello, Sucker!' This was adopted by flamboyant speakeasy hostess Texas Guinan . . . as her own signature line."
 See Guinan 1
- 3 I respect faith, but doubt is what gets you an education.
 Quoted in Edward Dean Sullivan, The Fabulous Wilson Mizner (1935)
- 4 A fellow who is always declaring he's no fool, usually has his suspicions.
 Quoted in Edward Dean Sullivan, The Fabulous Wilson Mizner (1935)
- 5 [On his deathbed, telling a priest he had no need to speak with him:] I've been talking to your boss, Father.
 Quoted in Edward Dean Sullivan, The Fabulous Wilson Mizner (1935)
- 6 When you take stuff from one writer it's plagiarism, but when you take from many writers it's called research.
 Quoted in Frank Case, Tales of a Wayward Inn (1938). Wallace Notestein was earlier quoted very similarly: "If you copy from one book, that's plagiarism; if you copy from many books, that's research" (California District News Letter [U.S. Forest Service], 1 Nov. 1929).
- 7 The only sure thing about luck is that it will change.
 Quoted in Evan Esar, The Dictionary of Humorous Quotations (1949)
- 8 A good listener is not only popular everywhere, but after a while he knows something.
 Quoted in Evan Esar, The Dictionary of Humorous Quotations (1949)

- 9 You're a mouse studying to be a rat.
Quoted in Alva Johnston, The Legendary Mizners (1953)
- 10 You sparkle with larceny.
Quoted in Alva Johnston, The Legendary Mizners (1953)
- 11 Treat a whore like a lady and a lady like a whore.
Quoted in Alva Johnston, The Legendary Mizners (1953)
- 12 [Of Hollywood:] It's a trip through a sewer in a glass-bottomed boat.
Quoted in Alva Johnston, The Legendary Mizners (1953)
- 13 I never saw a mob rush across town to do a good deed.
Quoted in John Burke, Rogue's Progress: The Fabulous Adventures of Wilson Mizner (1975)
- 14 Wilson Mizner . . . recalls his embarrassment when he first came into the world, and found a woman in bed with him.
Reported in Groucho Marx, Beds (1930)

Modern Proverbs

Refers to proverbs whose earliest known documented usage is 1900 or later. Proverbs are listed alphabetically by first significant word of the proverb text. Citations are those of the earliest known English-language usage, based on extensive research in online texts. The wording given is exactly that of the earliest known usage, with older variant wordings explained in annotations. See also Proverbs, Sayings, and Anonymous. Quotations with a known originator that have become proverbial are listed elsewhere in this book under the originator's name.

- 1 An apple a day keeps the doctor away.
Anaconda (Mont.) Standard, 23 Dec. 1900. This newspaper states that the item was reprinted from the Pall Mall Gazette. In 1866 Notes and Queries recorded "A Pembrokeshire Proverb—'Eat an apple on going to bed. And you'll keep the doctor from earning his bread.'"
- 2 You can't argue against success.
Florida Magazine, June 1902
- 3 There are no atheists in fox-holes.
Springfield (Mass.) Republican, 11 Apr. 1942. This is often said to have been originated by chaplain William Thomas Cummings or other participants in the American defense of the Philippines in World War II. However, Bonnie Taylor-Blake and Garson O'Toole have traced very similar sayings to World War I, with the earliest they have uncovered being: "We have no atheists in the trenches" (Western Times [Devon, England], 6 Nov. 1914, attributed there to an anonymous chaplain).
- 4 You have to take the bad with the good.
Proceedings of the 29th Convention of . . . the Middle States (1916)
- 5 That's the way the ball bounces.
George Mandel, Flee the Angry Strangers (1952)
- 6 If you can't beat 'em, join 'em.
Puck, 10 July 1901
- 7 It is better to be a big fish in a small pond than a small fish in a mighty ocean.
N.Y. Times, 25 Dec. 1927
- 8 You can't have it both ways.
McClure's Magazine, Mar. 1914
- 9 Never send a boy to do a man's work.
L.A. Times, 10 Aug. 1911. The wording in this 1911 occurrence was "duty" instead of "work." "It is not well to get a boy to do a man's work" appeared in Josephine Pollard, The History of the United States (1884).
- 10 Do not burn your bridges behind you.
Dental Digest, Sept. 1907
- 11 When you want a thing done, you must ask a busy person to do it.
Margaret Sangster, Eastover Parish (1912)
See Elbert Hubbard 5
- 12 [Arab proverb:] If the camel once gets his nose in the tent his body will soon follow.
Robert Christy, Proverbs, Maxims, and Phrases of All Ages (1907)
- 13 The camera does not lie.
Chicago Tribune, 27 May 1900. "The camera cannot lie" appeared in Field and Fireside, 17 Feb. 1866.
- 14 Be careful what you wish for, you'll probably get it.
Wash. Post, 19 Nov. 1954. "Be careful what you wish for in this world, for if you wish hard enough you are sure to get it" appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, May 1891.
See Goethe 15; T. H. Huxley 4; George Bernard Shaw 16; Teresa of Ávila 2; Wilde 56; Wilde 74
- 15 Too many chiefs, not enough Indians.
Nevada State Journal, 16 Feb. 1947
- 16 That's the way the cookie crumbles.
Helena (Mont.) Independent Record, 27 Nov. 1955
- 17 Don't do the crime if you can't do the time.
Lowell (Mass.) Sun, 23 May 1957

- 18 A criminal always returns to the scene of the crime.
Wash. Post, 24 Apr. 1905
- 19 Never criticize anybody until you have walked a mile in his moccasins.
Lincoln (Neb.) Star, 10 Oct. 1930. This 1930 usage is actually worded “never criticize the other boy or girl unless,” etc., described as an “Indian maxim.” Later versions sometimes refer to “shoes” rather than “moccasins.”
- 20 Curiosity killed the cat.
L.A. Times, 22 Aug. 1901. “Curiosity killed a cat” appeared in Papers of the Manchester Literary Club (1880).
- 21 The customer is always right.
Boston Herald, 3 Sept. 1905
See Ritz 1
- 22 Any day above ground is a good day.
Transcript (North Adams, Mass.), 29 Sept. 1973. The exact wording in the 1973 source given starts with “Each day . . .”
- 23 The best defense is a good offense.
Chicago Daily Tribune, 27 Nov. 1903. The Oxford Dictionary of Proverbs gives earlier versions beginning with “offensive operations, often times, is the surest, if not the only . . . means of defence” (George Washington, 1799).
- 24 The devil is in the details.

- 29 You can’t fight City Hall.
Brooklyn Daily Eagle, 12 June 1940. The Dictionary of Modern Proverbs documents similar sayings as far back as 1933.
- 30 The first hundred years are the hardest.
Bridgeport Telegram, 29 July 1918
- 31 Give a man a fish, and he will eat for a day.
Teach him how to fish, and he will eat the rest of his life.
Boston Globe, 27 June 1963. In this 1963 occurrence, the saying is said to be “a Chinese proverb”; however, in 1911 M. Loane, The Common Growth, included the sentence “It is an oft-quoted saying . . . ‘Give a man a fish, and he will be hungry again to-morrow; teach him to catch a fish, and he will be richer all his life.’”
- 32 Flattery will get you nowhere.

- 41 History is written by the survivors.
Social Forces, Oct. 1931. Often worded with “winners” or “victors” instead of “survivors.” George Graham Vest, senator from Missouri, used “History is written by the victors” in a speech in Kansas City, Mo., 20 Aug. 1891, printed the next day in the Kansas City Gazette.
- 42 When you are in a hole, stop digging.
Wall Street Journal, 16 Sept. 1977. The wording of the 1977 occurrence was “you don’t keep digging.”
- 43 When you’re hot, you’re hot.
Jerry Reed, Title of song (1969). Often used in an expanded form of “When you’re hot, you’re hot, and when you’re not, you’re not”; the unexpanded and expanded forms are both in the lyrics of the Reed song.

- 51 Life is one damn thing after another.
Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Times, 5 Mar. 1909. The exact wording in the Wilkes-Barre newspaper was "Life: (A new definition) One damn thing after another." Elbert Hubbard wrote "Life is just one damned thing after another" in the Philistine, Dec. 1909, but the citation above indicates that the expression predated Hubbard. Frank Ward O'Malley also sometimes is assigned the origination.

- 67 A picture is worth a thousand words.
Arthur Brisbane, quoted in New Orleans Item, 26 July 1915. Brisbane, a well-known newspaper editor, earlier was quoted in the Syracuse Post Standard, 28 Mar. 1911: "Use a picture. It's worth a thousand words." Kathleen Caffyn, in her book He for God Only (1903), wrote "One look is worth a thousand words." The proverb has long been credited to Frederick Barnard, who used a "One look is worth" version in Printers' Ink, 8 Dec. 1921, and a "one picture is worth" version in the same periodical, 10 Mar. 1927. The citations above, however, disprove the Barnard coinage.

I don't think two parents can raise a child. You really need the whole village." According to The Dictionary of Modern Proverbs, "The saying is often referred to as an 'African' or a 'West African' proverb; however, no prototype from Africa has been discovered—though several sayings from that continent do urge cooperation in child rearing and other enterprises ('One hand cannot nurse a child,' 'One finger cannot crush a louse,' etc.)." S. S. Farsi, Swahili Sayings from Zanzibar (1962) includes "Mkono mmoja haulei mwana (One hand cannot nurse a child)."

96 Truth is the first casualty in war.

Ethel Snowden, "Women and War," Journal of Proceedings and Addresses of the National Education Association (1915). "The first casualty when war comes is truth" is often attributed to remarks in the U.S. Senate by Hiram Johnson in 1918, but according to the Oxford Dictionary of Proverbs, "it does not occur in the record of the relevant speech."

100 If anything can go wrong it will.

Genetic Psychology Monographs, May 1951. Earliest documented occurrence of the celebrated "Murphy's Law" (also often phrased as "Anything that can go wrong, will go wrong"). In popular legend, Murphy's Law originated in 1949 at Edwards Air Force Base in California, coined by project manager George E. Nichols after hearing Edward A. Murphy, Jr., complain about a wrongly wired rocket sled experiment. When the editor of this book spoke to Nichols in Sept. 2003, Nichols stated that the original formulation was "If it can happen, it will happen." According to Nichols, this law was used by Air Force colonel John Paul Stapp at a 5 Jan. 1950 news conference. However, there is no trace of documentation of the aviation Murphy's Law until 1955. Barry Popik has read through most issues of the Edwards AFB base periodical Desert Wings from the 1950s, as well as other relevant publications, and found no mentions of the law.

In Genetic Psychology Monographs, May 1951, Anne Roe published an interview with an unidentified physicist in which she stated, "As for himself he realized that this was the inexorable working of the second law of the thermodynamics which stated Murphy's law 'If anything can go wrong it will.'" Stephen Goranson has tracked down, in Roe's papers, identification of the physicist as Howard Percy Robertson and, in Robertson's papers, evidence that the interview occurred in the first three months of 1949. Since the Edwards AFB incident is supposed to have happened in June or later of 1949, it appears that such an incident cannot be the explanation of the christening of Murphy's Law.

Murphy's Law is actually an old proverb in many fields. Bill Mullins has discovered Murphysque statements in magicians' magazines going back to 1908, when British conjuror Nevil Maskelyne wrote in The Magic Circular (June): "It is an experience common to all men to find that, on any special occasion, such as the production of a magical effect for the first time in public, everything that can go wrong will go wrong." An earlier specialized version of the law has been unearthed by Stephen Goranson. The 1877 Minutes of Proceedings of the Institution of Civil Engineers contained this statement by Alfred Holt: "It is found that anything that can go wrong at sea generally does go wrong sooner or later." Still earlier, an article in the Economist, 22 Mar. 1862, included the following: "The lawyer does not see the whole of mercantile life. He sees only the failures. . . . His instinct, therefore, is that business as a rule fails,— that what can go wrong will go wrong." - Piet Mondrian (Pieter Cornelis Mondriaan)
Dutch painter, 1872–1944
- 1 I construct lines and color combinations on a flat surface, in order to express general beauty with the utmost awareness. Nature (or, that which I see) inspires me, puts me, as with any painter, in an emotional state so that an urge comes about to make something, but I want to come as close as possible to the truth and abstract everything from that, until I reach the foundation (still just an external foundation!) of things.
Letter to H. P. Bremmer, 29 Jan. 1914

- 2 I believe it is possible that, through horizontal and vertical lines constructed with awareness, but not with calculation, led by high intuition, and brought to harmony and rhythm, these basic forms of beauty, supplemented if necessary by other direct lines or curves, can become a work of art, as strong as it is true.
Letter to H. P. Bremmer, 29 Jan. 1914
- 3 Why should art continue to follow nature when every other field has left nature behind?

Cosmo Monkhouse

English poet and critic, 1840–1901

- 1 There once was an old man of Lyme
Who married three wives at a time;
When asked “Why a third?”
He replied, “One’s absurd!”
“And bigamy, sir, is a crime.”
“There Once Was an Old Man of Lyme” l. 1 (date unknown)
- 2 There was a young lady of Niger
Who smiled as she rode on a Tiger;
They came back from the ride
With the lady inside,
And the smile on the face of the Tiger.
“There Was a Young Lady of Niger” l. 1 (date unknown). Usually attributed to Monkhouse, but it appears without credit in the Los Angeles Times, 5 Nov. 1891, with the following wording: “There was a young lady from Niger, / Who rode with a smile on a tiger; / When they returned from the ride, / The young lady was inside, / And the smile on the face of the tiger.”

James Monroe

U.S. president, 1758–1831

- 1 In the wars of the European powers in matters relating to themselves we have never taken any part, nor does it comport with our policy so to do.
Seventh Annual Message to Congress (The Monroe Doctrine), 2 Dec. 1823
- 2 The American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintain, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European powers.
Seventh Annual Message to Congress (The Monroe Doctrine), 2 Dec. 1823

- 3 We owe it, therefore, to candor, and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety.
Seventh Annual Message to Congress (The Monroe Doctrine), 2 Dec. 1823
- 4 With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere. But with the Governments who have declared their independence and maintained it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and on just principles, acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them, or controlling in any other manner their destiny, by any European power in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States.
Seventh Annual Message to Congress (The Monroe Doctrine), 2 Dec. 1823

Marilyn Monroe

U.S. actress, 1926–1962

- 1 [Declining an invitation to a party:]
Unfortunately, I am involved in a freedom ride protesting the loss of the minority rights belonging to the few remaining earthbound stars. All we demanded was our right to twinkle.

Charles Edward Montague

English novelist and essayist, 1867–1928

- 1 There is no limit, someone has said, to what a man can do who does not care who gets the credit for it.
“Memoir: Middle Life,” in William T. Arnold, Studies of Roman Imperialism (1906). Garson O'Toole has found that, in Notes from a Diary 1851–1872 (1897) (diary entry dated 21 Sept. 1863), Mountstuart E. Grant Duff wrote: “Father Strickland, an English Jesuit . . . said to me—‘I have observed, throughout life, that a man may do an immense deal of good, if he does not care who gets the credit for it.’”

Michel Eyquem de Montaigne

French essayist, 1533–1592

- 1 I want to be seen here in my simple, natural, and ordinary fashion, without straining or artifice; for it is myself that I portray.

Essais bk. 3, ch. 12 (1580)
- 18 Nature is a gentle guide, yet not more gentle than prudent and just.
Essais bk. 3, ch. 13 (1580)
- 19 No matter that we may mount on stilts, we still must walk on our own legs. And on the highest throne in the world, we still sit only on our own bottom.
Essais bk. 3, ch. 13 (1580)

Charles-Louis de Secondat, Baron de La Brède et de Montesquieu

French political philosopher, 1689–1755

- 1 How can anyone be Persian?
Lettres Persanes no. 30 (1721)

- 2 Men should be bewailed at their birth, and not at their death.
Lettres Persanes no. 40 (1721)
- 3 Si les triangles faisoient un Dieu, ils lui donneroient trois côtés.
If the triangles were to make a God they would give him three sides.
Lettres Persanes no. 59 (1721)
- 4 Liberty is the right of doing whatever the laws permit.
De l'Esprit des Loix (The Spirit of the Laws) bk. 11 (1748)
- 5 When the legislative and executive powers are united in the same person, or in the same body of magistrates, there can be no liberty. . . . Again, there is no liberty, if the judiciary power be not separated from the legislative and executive.
De l'Esprit des Loix (The Spirit of the Laws) bk. 11 (1748)
- 6 Happy the people whose annals are blank in history-books!
Attributed in Thomas Carlyle, History of Frederick the Great (1858–1865)
See George Eliot 4; Proverbs 54

Maria Montessori

Italian educator, 1870–1952

- 1 If education is always to be conceived along the same antiquated lines of a mere transmission of knowledge, there is little to be hoped from it in the bettering of man's future. For what is the use of transmitting knowledge if the individual's total development lags behind?
The Absorbent Mind ch. 1 (1949)
- 2 The greatest sign of success for a teacher . . . is to be able to say, "The children are now working as if I did not exist."
The Absorbent Mind ch. 27 (1949)

Bernard Law Montgomery

British military leader, 1887–1976

- 1 Rule 1, on page 1 of the book of war, is: "Do not march on Moscow" . . . [Rule 2] is: "Do not go fighting with your land armies in China."
Speech in House of Lords, 30 May 1962
- 2 [In debate on Sexual Offences Bill:] I have heard some say . . . that such [homosexual] practices are allowed in France and in other NATO countries. We are not French, and we are not other nationals. We are British, thank God!

Speech in House of Lords, 24 May 1965

Lucy Maud Montgomery

Canadian writer, 1874–1942

- 1 When twilight drops her curtain down
And pins it with a star
Remember that you have a friend
Though she may wander far.
Anne of Green Gables ch. 17 (1908)
- 2 “Marilla, isn’t it nice to think that tomorrow is a new day with no mistakes in it yet?”
Anne of Green Gables ch. 21 (1908)

Percy Montrose

U.S. songwriter, fl. 1884

- 1 In a cavern, in a canyon,
Excavating for a mine,
Dwelt a miner, ’Forty-Niner,
And his daughter Clementine.
“Oh, My Darling Clementine” (song) (1884)
- 2 Oh my darling Clementine!
Thou art lost and gone for ever, dreadful sorry, Clementine.
“Oh, My Darling Clementine” (song) (1884). An earlier song, “Down by the River Lived a Maiden,” by H. S. Thompson (1863), contained this chorus: “Oh! my darling Clementine, / Now you are gone and lost forever, / I’m dreadful sorry Clementine.”
- 3 Light she was and like a fairy,
And her shoes were number nine.
“Oh, My Darling Clementine” (song) (1884)

Monty Python’s Flying Circus

British comedy group

“Monty Python’s Flying Circus” was a comedy group consisting of Graham Chapman, John Cleese, Terry Gilliam, Eric Idle, Terry Jones, and Michael Palin.

- 1 And now for something completely different.
Monty Python’s Flying Circus (television series) episode 2 (1969). This catchphrase also appeared in the earlier Python series At Last the 1948 Show (1967).
- 2 Your wife interested in er . . . photographs, eh?
Know what I mean? . . . Nudge nudge. Snap snap. Grin, grin, wink, wink, say no more.
Monty Python’s Flying Circus (television series) episode 3 (1969)
- 3 It’s not pining, it’s passed on. This parrot is no more. It has ceased to be. It’s expired and gone to meet its maker. This is a late parrot. It’s a stiff. Bereft of life, it rests in peace. If you hadn’t nailed it to the perch, it would be pushing up the daisies. It’s rung down the curtain and joined the choir invisible. This is an ex-parrot.
Monty Python’s Flying Circus (television series) episode 8 (1969)
- 4 I’m a lumberjack and I’m OK,
I sleep all night and I work all day.
Monty Python’s Flying Circus (television series) episode 9 (1969)
- 5 I cut down trees, I skip and jump,
I like to press wild flowers.
I put on women’s clothing
And hang around in bars.
Monty Python’s Flying Circus (television series) episode 9 (1969)
- 6 Nobody expects the Spanish Inquisition.
Monty Python’s Flying Circus (television series) episode 15 (1970)
- 7 Spam, spam, spam, spam, spam . . . spam, spam, spam, spam . . . lovely spam, wonderful spam.
Monty Python’s Flying Circus (television series) episode 25 (1970). Spam is a trademark of Hormel Foods for a brand of canned spiced ham. In this skit, the words are chanted by Vikings sitting in a restaurant. The skit is often said to be the source for the term spam referring to unsolicited bulk e-mail. This theory is probably erroneous, however, because the earliest documented uses of spam in this sense seem to derive from the tendency of spam to splatter messily when hurled, but Python probably influenced the development of this meaning.
- 8 [Dead Body That Claims It Isn’t, played by John Young, speaking:] I’m not dead.
Monty Python and the Holy Grail (motion picture) (1975)
- 9 [Large Man:] Who’s that then?
[Dead Collector:] I dunno, must be a king.
[Large Man:] Why?
[Dead Collector:] He hasn’t got shit all over him.
Monty Python and the Holy Grail (motion picture) (1975)
- 10 [Dennis, played by Michael Palin, speaking:] Listen, strange women lyin’ in ponds distributin’ swords is no basis for a system of government! Supreme executive power derives from a mandate from the masses, not from some farcical aquatic ceremony!

Monty Python and the Holy Grail (motion picture) (1975)

- 11 [Dennis, played by Michael Palin, speaking:] You can't expect to wield supreme executive power just because some watery tart threw a sword at you.

Monty Python and the Holy Grail (motion picture) (1975)

- 12 [Knight 1 speaking:] We are the Knights who say . . . NI!

Monty Python and the Holy Grail (motion picture) (1975)

- 13 [Reg, played by John Cleese, speaking:] All right, but apart from the sanitation, medicine, education, wine, public order, irrigation, roads, the fresh water system, and public health, what have the Romans ever done for us?

Life of Brian (motion picture) (1979)

Clement C. Moore

U.S. writer, 1779–1863

- 1 'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse.
"A Visit from St. Nicholas" l. 1 (1823)
- 2 The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads.
"A Visit from St. Nicholas" l. 5 (1823)
- 3 Now, Dasher! now, Dancer! now, Prancer and Vixen!
On, Comet! on, Cupid! on, Donder and Blitzen!
"A Visit from St. Nicholas" l. 21 (1823)
- 4 He had a broad face and a little round belly,
That shook when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly.
"A Visit from St. Nicholas" l. 43 (1823)
- 5 "Happy Christmas to all, and to all a goodnight!"
"A Visit from St. Nicholas" l. 56 (1823)

Edward Moore

English playwright, 1712–1757

- 1 This is adding insult to injuries.
The Foundling act 5, sc. 5 (1748)
- 2 I am rich beyond the dreams of avarice.
The Gamester act 2, sc. 2 (1753)
See Samuel Johnson 99

Gordon E. Moore

U.S. businessman and computer scientist, 1929–

- 1 The complexity for minimum component costs has increased at a rate of roughly a factor of two per year. . . . Certainly over the short term this rate can be expected to continue, if not to increase.
Electronics, 19 Apr. 1965. This statement became known as "Moore's Law" of integrated circuits and computers, predicting that the number of transistors the computer industry would be able to place on a chip would double every couple of years.

Hoyt A. Moore

U.S. lawyer, 1870–1958

- 1 The story, doubtless apocryphal, has long been told that when some of his partners [at the firm of Cravath, Swaine and Moore] urged that the office was under such pressure as to make additions to the staff imperative, Moore replied: "That's silly. No one is under pressure. There wasn't a light on when I left at two o'clock this morning."
Reported in Robert T. Swaine, The Cravath Firm and Its Predecessors, 1819–1948 (1948)

Jo Moore

British government official, 1963–

- 1 [E-mail thirty minutes after terrorist attack, 11 Sept. 2001:] It's now a very good day to get out anything we want to bury.
Quoted in Times (London), 9 Oct. 2001

Marianne Moore

U.S. poet, 1887–1972

- 1 I, too, dislike it: there are things that are important beyond all this fiddle.
"Poetry" l. 1 (1920)

- 2 Imaginary gardens with real toads in them.
"Poetry" l. 32 (1935)
- 3 My father used to say,
"Superior people never make long visits,
have to be shown Longfellow's grave or the glass flowers at Harvard."
"Silence" l. 1 (1935)
- 4 Beauty is everlasting
And dust is for a time.
"In Distrust of Merit" st. 8 (1944)

Michael Moore

U.S. film director and author, 1954–

- 1 The bad guys are just a bunch of silly, stupid white men. And there's a helluva lot more of us than there are of them. Use your power.
Stupid White Men ch. 12 (2002)
- 2 We live in fictitious times. We live in the time where we have fictitious election results that elect a fictitious president. We live in a time where we have a man sending us to war for fictitious reasons.
Remarks after receiving Academy Award, Los Angeles, Calif., 23 Mar. 2003

Thomas Moore

Irish musician and songwriter, 1779–1852

- 1 Believe me, if all those endearing young charms,
Which I gaze on so fondly today,
Were to change by tomorrow, and fleet in my arms,
Like fairy gifts fading away!
Irish Melodies "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms" (1807)
- 2 The harp that once through Tara's halls
The soul of music shed,
Now hangs as mute on Tara's walls
As if that soul were fled.
Irish Melodies "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls" (1807)
- 3 No, there's nothing half so sweet in life
As love's young dream.
Irish Melodies "Love's Young Dream" (1807)
- 4 Oh! ever thus, from childhood's hour,
I've seen my fondest hope decay;

I never loved a tree or flower,
But 'twas the first to fade away.
I never nurs'd a dear gazelle
To glad me with its soft black eye,
But when it came to know me well,
And love me, it was sure to die.
Lalla Rookh pt. 5 (1817)

Harry "Breaker" Morant

English-born Australian poet and soldier,
ca. 1864–1902

- 1 [To the firing squad at his execution, 27 Feb. 1902]:
Shoot straight you bastards. Don't make a mess of it.
Quoted in Bill Hornadge, The Australian Slangue
(1980)

Alberto Moravia

Italian novelist, 1907–1990

- 1 The ratio of literacy to illiteracy is constant, but nowadays the illiterates can read and write.
Quoted in Observer (London), 14 Oct. 1979

Thomas Osbert Mordaunt

English soldier, 1730–1809

- 1 One crowded hour of glorious life
Is worth an age without a name.
"A Poem, Said to Be Written by Major Mordaunt
During the Last German War" l. 3 (1791)

Hannah More

English writer and philanthropist, 1745–1835

- 1 Going to the opera, like getting drunk, is a sin that carries its own punishment with it, and that a very severe one.
Letter to her sister, 1775
- 2 Since trifles make the sum of human things,
And half our mis'ry from our foibles springs.
"Sensibility: An Epistle to the Honorable Mrs.
Boscawen" l. 293 (1782)
- 3 He liked those literary cooks
Who skim the cream of others' books;
And ruin half an author's graces
By plucking bon-mots from their places.
Florio pt. 1, l. 123 (1786)

Thomas More

English scholar, saint, and Lord Chancellor, 1478–1535

- 1 Utopia.
Title of book (1516)
- 2 They have no lawyers among them, for they consider them as a sort of people whose profession it is to disguise matters.
Utopia bk. 1 (1516)
- 3 [Before ascending the steps of the scaffold.] I pray you, master Lieutenant, see me safe up, and my coming down let me shift for my self.
Quoted in William Roper, Life of Sir Thomas More (1626)
- 4 [Drawing his beard aside before placing his head on the block.] This hath not offended the king.
Attributed in Francis Bacon, Apothegms (1624)

Mantan Moreland

U.S. actor, 1902–1973

- 1 Feets, don't fail me now!
Attributed in Wash. Post, 30 Sept. 1973. Often said to be a catchphrase uttered by Moreland in the Charlie Chan detective films, but no one has actually found the expression in any of those motion pictures. Moreland may have used it in his nightclub act.

Thomas Morell

English librettist, 1703–1784

- 1 See, the conquering hero comes!
Sound the trumpets, beat the drums!
Judas Maccabeus (1747) (music by G. F. Handel)

Larry Morey

U.S. songwriter, 1905–1971

- 1 Oh! The World Owes Me a Living.
Title of song (1934)
- 2 Heigh-ho, heigh-ho,
It's off to work we go.
“Heigh-Ho” (song) (1937)
- 3 Someday My Prince Will Come.
Title of song (1937)
- 4 Whistle While You Work.
Title of song (1937)

J. P. Morgan

U.S. financier, 1837–1913

- 1 I don't know as I want a lawyer to tell me what I cannot do. I hire him to tell me how to do what I want to do.
Quoted in Ida M. Tarbell, The Life of Elbert H. Gary (1925)
- 2 Don't sell America short.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 27 Aug. 1925. Burton E. Stevenson, Home Book of Quotations, states the following: “J. PIERPONT MORGAN. Quoted by his son in talk at the Chicago Club, 10 Dec. 1908. J. P. Morgan was paraphrasing his father, Junius Spencer Morgan, who is credited with the injunction, ‘Never sell a bear on the United States.’” James J. Hill was quoted, “Don't Sell America Short,” in a headline in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, 13 Sept. 1914, and anonymous advice “never to sell the United States short” was mentioned in Montgomery Rollins, Money and Investments (1907).
- 3 [Of owning a yacht.] If it makes the slightest difference to you what it costs, don't try it.
Quoted in W. P. Bonbright, Letter to Herbert L. Satterlee, 20 May 1927. Jean Strouse, Morgan: American Financier (1999), cites this letter found among papers in the Pierpont Morgan Library. Slightly earlier evidence has been found in the Wall Street Journal, 14 Sept. 1926, where Morgan answers the query, “Do you think I could afford a yacht?” by saying, “If there is any doubt in your mind, you can't.” The quotation is famous in the form “If you have to ask, you can't afford it.”
- 4 A man always has two reasons for what he does—a good one, and the real one.
Quoted in Owen Wister, Roosevelt: The Story of a Friendship (1930). Garson O'Toole has found various precursors for this quotation, with the earliest very similar one being “Some wise person says, ‘There is always two reasons for doing a thing: one is a good reason and the other is the real reason’” (Rockford [Ill.] Daily Register-Gazette, 11 Feb. 1905).
- 5 [To President Theodore Roosevelt on the antitrust prosecution of the Northern Securities Corporation.] If we have done anything wrong, send your man [the Attorney-General] to my man [naming one of his lawyers] and they can fix it up.
Quoted in Matthew Josephson, The Robber Barons (1934)

Robin Morgan

U.S. feminist and author, 1941–

- 1 Don't accept rides from strange men, and remember that all men are strange as hell.
Sisterhood Is Powerful "Letter to a Sister Underground" (1970)
- 2 Pornography is the theory, and rape the practice.
Going Too Far "Theory and Practice: Pornography and Rape" (1977)

Sidney Morgenbesser

U.S. philosopher, 1921–2004

- 1 A philosopher of language once presented a formal lecture in which he announced that a double negative is known to mean a negative in some languages and a positive in others but that no natural language had yet been discovered in which a double positive means a negative. Whereupon professor Sidney Morgenbesser is said to have piped up from the back of the room with an instant, sarcastic, "Yeah, yeah."
Reported in N.Y. Times Magazine, 14 Aug. 1977

Samuel Eliot Morison

U.S. historian, 1887–1976

- 1 America was discovered accidentally by a great seaman who was looking for something else; when discovered it was not wanted; and most of the exploration for the next fifty years was done in the hope of getting through or around it. America was named after a man who discovered no part of the New World. History is like that, very chancy.
The Oxford History of the American People ch. 2 (1965)

Akio Morita

Japanese industrialist, 1921–1999

- 1 [On the approach of Japanese business toward jobs:] We believe if you have a family you can't just eliminate certain members of that family because profits are down.
Quoted in International Management, Sept. 1988

Christopher Morley

U.S. writer, 1890–1957

- 1 When Abraham Lincoln was murdered
The thing that interested Matthew Arnold
Was that the assassin
Shouted in Latin
As he leapt on the stage.
This convinced Matthew
There was still hope for America.
"Point of View" l. 1 (1923)
- 2 Thunder on the Left.
Title of book (1925)
- 3 Life is a foreign language: all men mispronounce it.
Thunder on the Left ch. 14 (1925)
- 4 Dancing is wonderful training for girls, it's the first way you learn to guess what a man is going to do before he does it.
Kitty Foyle ch. 11 (1939)

John Morley, Viscount Morley of Blackburn

English writer and politician, 1838–1923

- 1 Where it is a duty to worship the sun, it is pretty sure to be a crime to examine the laws of heat.
A Biographical Critique of Voltaire ch. 1 (1872)
- 2 You have not converted a man, because you have silenced him.
On Compromise ch. 5 (1874)
- 3 It is too often the case to be a mere accident that men who become eminent for wide compass of understanding and penetrating comprehension, are in their adolescence unsettled and desultory.
Encyclopaedia Britannica "Edmund Burke" (1876)

Desmond Morris

English anthropologist, 1928–

- 1 There are one hundred and ninety-three living species of monkeys and apes. One hundred and ninety-two of them are covered with hair.
The exception is a naked ape self-named Homo sapiens.
The Naked Ape introduction (1967)

George Pope Morris

U.S. poet, 1802–1864

- 1 Woodman, spare that tree!
Touch not a single bough!
In youth it sheltered me,
And I'll protect it now.
"Woodman, Spare That Tree" l. 1 (1830)
See Thomas Campbell 2

William Morris

English writer and artist, 1834–1896

- 1 If you want a golden rule that will fit everything, this is it: Have nothing in your houses that you do not know to be useful or believe to be beautiful.
Hopes and Fears for Art "The Beauty of Life" (1882)
- 2 Art is man's expression of his joy in labor.
"Art Under Plutocracy" (1883)
- 3 Men fight and lose the battle, and the thing that they fought for comes about in spite of their defeat, and when it comes turns out not to be what they meant, and other men have to fight, for what they meant under another name.
A Dream of John Ball ch. 4 (1888)
- 4 The question of who are the best people to take charge of children is a very difficult one; but it is quite certain that the parents are the very worst.
Quoted in George Bernard Shaw, Everybody's Political What's What? (1944)

Arthur Morrison

English novelist and short story writer, 1863–1945

- 1 Tales of Mean Streets.
Title of book (1894). The Oxford English Dictionary records an earlier use of the term mean streets: "Deal is not very seductive to the sojourner, with its labyrinths of mean streets" (Chambers' Journal, 5 Oct. 1861).
See Chandler 8

Herbert Morrison

U.S. broadcaster, 1905–1989

- 1 [Describing the crash of the German airship Hindenburg and the death of passengers, Lakehurst, N.J., 6 May 1937:] Oh, the humanity!
Radio broadcast, 6 May 1937

Jim Morrison

U.S. rock singer and songwriter, 1943–1971

- 1 This is the end, beautiful friend
This is the end, my only friend, the end.
"The End" (song) (1967)
- 2 You know that it would be untrue
You know that I would be a liar
If I was to say to you
Girl we couldn't get much higher.
"Light My Fire" (song) (1967). Cowritten with Robbie Krieger and Ray Manzarek.
- 3 Come on, baby, light my fire
Try to set the night on fire.
"Light My Fire" (song) (1967). Cowritten with Robbie Krieger and Ray Manzarek.
- 4 Five to one, baby, one in five,
No one here gets out alive.
"Five to One" (song) (1968)
- 5 Riders on the storm
Into this house we're born
Into this world we're thrown
Like a dog without a bone
An actor out on loan
Riders on the storm.
"Riders on the Storm" (song) (1971). Cowritten with John Densmore, Robbie Krieger, and Ray Manzarek.

Toni Morrison (Chloe Anthony Wofford)

U.S. novelist, 1931–2019

- 1 Like any artist with no art form, she became dangerous.
Sula pt. 2 (1973)
- 2 I know what every colored woman in this country is doing. . . . Dying. Just like me. But the difference is they dying like a stump. Me, I'm going down like one of those redwoods. I sure did live in this world.
Sula pt. 2 (1973)
- 3 It was a fine cry—loud and long—but it had no bottom and it had no top, just circles and circles of sorrow.
Sula pt. 2 (1973)
- 4 124 was spiteful. Full of a baby's venom.
Beloved pt. 1 (1987)

- 5 This is not a story to pass on.
Beloved pt. 3 (1987)
- 6 [Of Bill Clinton:] This is our first black President.
New Yorker, 5 Oct. 1998
- 7 They shoot the white girl first.
Paradise (1998)

Alanis Morissette

Canadian singer and songwriter, 1974–

- 1 What it all comes down to
Is that I haven't got it all figured out just yet
I've got one hand in my pocket
And the other one is giving the peace sign.
"Hand in My Pocket" (song) (1995)
- 2 An old man turned ninety-eight
He won the lottery and died the next day
It's a black fly in your Chardonnay
It's a death row pardon two minutes too late Isn't it ironic . . . don't you think.
"Ironic" (song) (1995)
- 3 I recommend getting your heart trampled on to anyone
I recommend walking around naked in your living room
Swallow it down (what a jagged little pill).
"You Learn" (song) (1995)
- 4 Is she perverted like me
Would she go down on you in a theater?
"You Oughta Know" (song) (1995)

Dwight Morrow

U.S. lawyer, banker, and diplomat, 1873–1931

- 1 Any party which takes credit for the rain must not be surprised if its opponents blame it for the drought.
Campaign speech, Newark, N.J., 13 Oct. 1930

Walter Morrow

U.S. journalist, ca. 1895–1949

- 1 There ain't no such thing as free lunch.
El Paso Herald-Post, 27 June 1938. The 1938 anonymous editorial containing the quotation was titled "Economics in Eight Words." In this fable, a king asks his advisers to summarize economics in a "short and simple text." After they initially respond with eighty-seven volumes of six hundred pages each, the king's wrath and resulting executions force the economists to restate their science in ever-briefer summations. Finally, the last economist produces an eight-word distillation: "There ain't no such thing as free lunch." A later reprint of the editorial identified the author as Morrow. Although the Morrow editorial seems to have popularized the "free lunch" proverb, a very close precursor appeared in an item in the Washington Herald, 2 Nov. 1909: "Mr. Tillman's idea that free lunch is good enough for anybody—or even Presidents—may appear sound to some people, but, as a matter of fact, there is no such thing as free lunch. Somebody has to pay for it."

See Commoner 1, Heinlein 3

Theodora Morse (Alfreda Strandberg)

U.S. songwriter, 1883–1953

- 1 Hail! Hail! the gang's all here,—
What the hell do we care?
"Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here" (song) (1917)

John Mortimer

English novelist and lawyer, 1923–2009

- 1 No brilliance is needed in the law. Nothing but common sense, and relatively clean fingernails.
A Voyage Round My Father act 1 (1971)

Rogers Morton

U.S. politician, 1914–1979

- 1 [After having lost five primaries as Gerald Ford's campaign manager:] I'm not going to rearrange the furniture on the deck of the Titanic.
Quoted in Wash. Post, 16 May 1976. A similar expression appeared earlier in the Charleston (W.V.) Gazette, 29 Dec. 1969: "One clergyman has been quoted as saying the numerous reforms taking place today are only 'shuffling deck chairs on the Titanic.'"

Thomas Morton

English playwright, ca. 1764–1838

- 1 What will Mrs. Grundy zay? What will Mrs. Grundy think?
Speed the Plough act 1, sc. 1 (1798)

Edwin Moses

U.S. track and field athlete, 1955–

- 1 I don't really see the hurdles. I sense them, like a memory.
Quoted in Bruce Jenner, Finding the Champion Within (1996)

Stanley Mosk

U.S. judge, 1912–2001

- 1 [Of John Birch Society members.] Little old ladies in tennis shoes.

Quoted in Wash. Post, 4 Aug. 1961

Charles Moskos

U.S. sociologist, 1934–2008

- 1 [Suggested policy toward homosexuals in the military:] Don't ask, don't tell.

Quoted in Chicago Tribune, 31 Jan. 1993. When the editor of this book queried Moskos, the latter replied that he coined this phrase in a letter to Senator Sam Nunn, ca. Jan. 1993.

John Lothrop Motley

U.S. historian, 1814–1877

- 1 [Of William of Orange.] As long as he lived, he was the guiding-star of a whole brave nation, and when he died the little children cried in the streets.

The Rise of the Dutch Republic pt. 6, ch. 7 (1856). According to Burton E. Stevenson, Home Book of Quotations, this was: "A literal translation of the official report made by Greffier Corneille Aertsens to the magistracy of Brussels, 11 July, 1584: 'Dont par toute la ville l'on est en si grand dull tellement que les petits enfants en pleurent par les rues.'" See Auden 17

- 2 Give us the luxuries of life, and we will dispense with its necessities.

Quoted in Oliver Wendell Holmes, Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table (1857–1858)

Willard Motley

U.S. novelist, 1912–1965

- 1 Live fast, die young, and have a good-looking corpse!

Knock on Any Door ch. 35 (1947). Earlier, "I intend to live a fast life, die young and be a beautiful corpse" appeared in the Riverside (Calif.) Daily Press, 25 Aug. 1920. Courtenay Terrett, Only Saps Work (1930), referred to a very similar formulation as "an old cowboy proverb."

Lucretia Mott

U.S. reformer, 1798–1880

- 1 The legal theory is, that marriage makes the husband and wife one person, and that person is the husband.

"Discourse on Woman" (1849)

- 2 In the true marriage relation, the independence of the husband and wife is equal, the dependence mutual and their obligations reciprocal.

Letter to Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Nov. 1880. A similar statement, about the relations between men and women in general, was made by Mott in a speech in Boston, Mass., 23 Sept. 1841.

Stephen Moylan

U.S. Army officer, 1737–1811

- 1 I should like vastly to go with full and ample powers from the United States of America to Spain.

Letter to Joseph Reed, 2 Jan. 1776. Earliest known use of the term United States of America.

Daniel Patrick Moynihan

U.S. politician and social scientist, 1927–2003

- 1 The time may have come when the issue of race could benefit from a period of "benign neglect." Memorandum to Richard Nixon on the status of blacks, 16 Jan. 1970. This memo was quoted in an article in the New York Times, 1 Mar. 1970, which reported: "The phrase 'benign neglect,' Mr. Moynihan said in a telephone interview, came from an 1839 report on Canada by the British Earl of Durham. The Durham report, he said, described Canada as having grown more competent and capable of governing herself 'through many years of benign neglect' by Britain, and recommended full self-government."

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart

Austrian composer, 1756–1791

- 1 I cannot write in verse, for I am no poet. I cannot arrange the parts of speech with such art as to produce effects of light and shade, for I am no painter. Even by signs and gestures I cannot express my thoughts and feelings, for I am no dancer. But I can do so by means of sounds, for I am a musician.

Letter to Leopold Mozart, 8 Nov. 1777

- 2 I like to enjoy myself, but rest assured that I can be as serious as anyone else can.

Letter to Leopold Mozart, 20 Dec. 1777

- 3 The two valets sit at the top of the table, but at least I have the honor of being placed above the cooks.

Letter to Leopold Mozart, 17 Mar. 1781

- 4 Passion, whether violent or not, must never be expressed to the point of exciting disgust, and . . . music, even in the most terrible situations, must never offend the ear.

Letter to Leopold Mozart, 26 Sept. 1781

Hosni Said Mubarak

Egyptian president, ca. 1928–

- 1 [Of the invasion of Iraq by the United States and other Western nations:] Instead of having one bin Laden, we will have 100 bin Ladens.
Speech to soldiers, Suez, Egypt, 31 Mar. 2003

Robert Mueller

U.S. musician, fl. 1957

- 1 I asked a Burmese why women, after centuries of following their men, now walk ahead. He said there were many unexploded land mines since the war.
Quoted in Look, 5 Mar. 1957

Malcolm Muggeridge

English journalist and writer, 1903–1990

- 1 The greatest artists, saints, philosophers, and, until quite recent times, scientists . . . have all assumed that the New Testament promise of eternal life is valid. . . . I'd rather be wrong with Dante and Shakespeare and Milton, with Augustine of Hippo and Francis of Assisi, with Dr. Johnson, Blake, and Dostoevsky than right with Voltaire, Rousseau, the Huxleys, Herbert Spencer, H. G. Wells, and Bernard Shaw.
Quoted in Vintage Muggeridge, ed. Geoffrey Barlow (1985)

John Muir

Scottish-born U.S. naturalist, 1838–1914

- 1 When we try to pick out anything by itself we find that it is bound fast by a thousand invisible cords that cannot be broken, to everything in the universe.
Journal, 27 July 1869
- 2 In God's wildness lies the hope of the world—the great fresh unblighted, unredeemed wilderness.
“Alaska Fragment” (1890)

- 3 Climb the mountains and get their good tidings, Nature's peace will flow into you as sunshine flows into trees. The winds will blow their own freshness into you and the storms their energy, while cares will drop off like autumn leaves.

Atlantic Monthly, Apr. 1898

Martin Mull

U.S. actor and comedian, 1943–

- 1 Writing about music is like dancing about architecture.
Quoted in Detroit Free Press, 18 Feb. 1979. Garson O'Toole has discovered a similar formulation, “Writing about music is as illogical as singing about economics,” in the New Republic, 9 Feb. 1918.

Friedrich Max Müller

German-born English philologist, 1823–1900

- 1 Mythology . . . is in truth a disease of language.
Lectures on the Science of Language Lecture 1 (1862)
- 2 To me an ethnologist who speaks of Aryan race, Aryan blood, Aryan eyes and hair, is as great a sinner as a linguist who speaks of a dolichocephalic dictionary or a brachycephalic grammar.
Biographies of Words and the House of the Aryas ch. 6 (1888)

Herbert J. Muller

U.S. historian, 1905–1980

- 1 Few have heard of Fra Luca Pacioli, the inventor of double-entry bookkeeping; but he has probably had much more influence on human life than has Dante or Michelangelo.
Uses of the Past ch. 8 (1957)

Lewis Mumford

U.S. architectural and cultural critic, 1895–1990

- 1 Every generation revolts against its fathers and makes friends with its grandfathers.
The Brown Decades ch. 1 (1931)

Edvard Munch

Norwegian painter, 1863–1944

- 1 I was walking along the road with two friends. The sun was setting.

I felt a breath of melancholy—
 Suddenly the sky turned blood-red.
 I stopped, and leaned against the railing,
 deathly tired—
 looking out across the flaming clouds that hung like blood and a sword over the blue-black fjord and town.
 My friends walked on—I stood there, trembling with fear.
 And I sensed a great, infinite scream pass through nature.

Diary, 22 Jan. 1892. This experience inspired Munch to create his painting The Scream.

Theodore T. Munger

U.S. clergyman, 1830–1910

- 1 A purpose is the eternal condition of success. Nothing will take its place. Talent will not; nothing is more common than unsuccessful men of talent. Genius will not; unrewarded genius is a proverb. . . . Education will not; the country is full of unsuccessful educated men. . . . There is no road to success but through a clear, strong purpose.

On the Threshold ch. 1 (1881). Garson O'Toole has demonstrated that this passage was later transmuted by other authors into a paean to “persistence” rather than “purpose.” Calvin Coolidge is now usually credited for the “persistence” version, but it seems to have originated with Edward H. Hart in a 1902 speech.

Alice Munro

Canadian short story writer, 1931–

- 1 When a man goes out of the room, he leaves everything in it behind. . . . When a woman goes out she carries everything that happened in the room along with her.
 “Too Much Happiness” (2009)

Haruki Murakami

Japanese writer, 1949–

- 1 In a place far away from anyone or anywhere, I drifted off for a moment.
The Wind-Up Bird Chronicle ch. 39 (1995)

Murasaki Shikibu

Japanese writer, ca. 978–ca. 1031

- 1 Thus anything whatsoever may become the subject of a novel, provided only that it happens in this mundane life and not in some fairyland beyond our human ken.

The Tale of Genji pt. 3, ch. 7 (translation by Arthur Waley)

Iris Murdoch

English novelist and philosopher, 1919–1999

- 1 All our failures are ultimately failures in love.
The Bell ch. 19 (1958)
- 2 Love is the extremely difficult realization that something other than oneself is real.
 “The Sublime and the Good” (1959)
- 3 One doesn't have to get anywhere in a marriage. It's not a public conveyance.
A Severed Head ch. 3 (1961)
- 4 I think being a woman is like being Irish. . . . Everyone says you're important and nice, but you take second place all the same.
The Red and the Green ch. 2 (1965)
- 5 He led a double life. Did that make him a liar? He did not feel a liar. He was a man of two truths.
The Sacred and Profane Love Machine (1974)

Rupert Murdoch

Australian-born U.S. media executive, 1931–

- 1 This is the most humble day of my life.
 Testimony before U.K. Parliamentary committee hearing on phone hacking scandal, 19 July 2011

Anna Pauline “Pauli” Murray

U.S. activist, 1910–1985

- 1 I spent many hours digging up weeds, cutting grass and tending the family plot. It was only a few feet from the main highway between Durham and Chapel Hill. I wanted the white people who drove by to be sure to see this banner and me standing by it. Whatever else they denied me, they could not take from me this right and the undiminished stature it gave me. For there at least at Grandfather's grave with the American flag in my hands, I could stand very tall and in proud shoes.
Proud Shoes ch. 20 (1956)
- 2 Hope is a song in a weary throat.
 “Dark Testament” pt. 8, l. 11 (1970)

Clara Murray (Etta Austin McDonald)

U.S. author, 1872–1963

- 1 Run, Spot, run! . . . See Spot run.
The Wide Awake Primer (1904). These lines became famous through their later use in the “Dick and Jane” readers.

James A. H. Murray

Scottish lexicographer, 1837–1915

- 1 The circle of the English language has a well-defined center but no discernible circumference.
A New English Dictionary on Historical Principles “General Explanations” (1888)

K. M. Elisabeth Murray

English educator and author, 1909–1998

- 1 Caught in the Web of Words.
 Title of book (1977)

Edward R. Murrow

U.S. journalist, 1908–1965

- 1 [Signoff line:] Good night, and good luck.
 Radio and television broadcasts (1940–1958)
- 2 I pray to you to believe what I have said about Buchenwald. I have reported what I saw and heard, but only part of it. For most of it I have no words.
 Radio broadcast from Buchenwald concentration camp, 15 Apr. 1945
- 3 We must not confuse dissent with disloyalty.
 “Report on Senator Joseph R. McCarthy” (television documentary), 7 Mar. 1954
- 4 No one can terrorize a whole nation, unless we are all his accomplices.
 “Report on Senator Joseph R. McCarthy” (television documentary), 7 Mar. 1954
- 5 [Of Winston Churchill:] He mobilized the English language and sent it into battle.
 Broadcast, 30 Nov. 1954
- 6 Anyone who isn’t confused doesn’t really understand the situation.
 Quoted in Walter Bryan, The Improbable Irish (1969)

Robert Musil

Austrian writer, 1880–1942

- 1 There is nothing in this world as invisible as a monument.
 “Monuments” (1927)
- 2 Der Mann ohne Eigenschaften.
 The Man Without Qualities.
 Title of book (1930)
- 3 The number of portraits one saw of [Emperor Franz Joseph] was almost as great as the number of inhabitants of his realms. . . . Believing in his existence was rather like seeing certain stars although they ceased to exist thousands of years ago.
The Man Without Qualities bk. 1, ch. 20 (1930)
 (translation by Eithne Wilkins and Ernst Kaiser)

Alfred de Musset

French poet and playwright, 1810–1857

- 1 Never mind the bottle, as long as it gets you drunk.
La Coupe et les Lèvres (1832)
- 2 On ne Badine pas avec l’Amour.
 Do Not Trifle with Love.
 Title of play (1834)

Benito Mussolini

Italian dictator, 1883–1945

- 1 War alone brings up to their highest tension all human energies and imposes the stamp of nobility upon the peoples who have the courage to make it.
Encyclopedia Italiana “The Political and Social Doctrine of Fascism” (1932)
- 2 Rome-Berlin axis.
 Speech, Milan, Italy, 2 Nov. 1936
- 3 [To a railway stationmaster:] We must leave exactly on time. . . . From now on everything must function to perfection.
 Quoted in Giorgio Pini, Mussolini (1939). Infanta Eulalia of Spain wrote in Courts and Countries After the War (1925): “The first benefit of Benito Mussolini’s direction in Italy begins to be felt when one crosses the Italian Frontier and hears ‘Il treno arriva all’orario [The train is arriving on time].” “Italian trains now run on time” appears in the Decatur (Ill.) Daily Review, 13 July 1923.

A. J. Muste

U.S. author and pacifist, 1885–1967

- I There is no way to peace. Peace is the way.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 16 Nov. 1967

Meiji Mutsuhito

Japanese emperor, 1852–1912

- I Knowledge shall be sought for all over the world and thus shall be strengthened the foundation of the imperial polity.
“The Charter Oath” (statement ending Japan’s isolation from the West) (1868)

Gunnar Myrdal

Swedish economist and sociologist, 1898–1987

- I The treatment of the Negro is America’s greatest and most conspicuous scandal.
An American Dilemma vol. 2 (1944)

- 2 The facts about unemployment and its immediate causes are well known in America. . . . Less often observed and commented upon is the tendency of the changes under way to trap an “underclass” of unemployed and, gradually, unemployable persons and families at the bottom of a society.
Challenge to Affluence ch. 3 (1962)

Vladimir Nabokov

Russian-born U.S. novelist, 1899–1977

- 1 Our existence is but a brief crack of light between two eternities of darkness.
Speak, Memory ch. 1 (1951)
- 2 Lolita, light of my life, fire of my loins. My sin, my soul. Lo-lee-ta: the tip of the tongue taking a trip of three steps down the palate to tap, at three, on the teeth. Lo. Lee. Ta.
Lolita pt. 1, ch. 1 (1955)
- 3 You can always count on a murderer for a fancy prose style.
Lolita pt. 1, ch. 1 (1955)
- 4 Between the age limits of nine and fourteen there occur maidens who, to certain bewitched travellers, twice or many times older than they, reveal their true nature which is not human, but nymphic (that is, demoniac); and these chosen creatures I propose to designate as “nymphets.”
Lolita pt. 1, ch. 5 (1955)
- 5 I am thinking of aurochs and angels, the secret of durable pigments, prophetic sonnets, the refuge of art. And this is the only immortality you and I may share, my Lolita.
Lolita pt. 2, ch. 36 (1955)
- 6 Like so many aging college people, Pnin had long since ceased to notice the existence of students on the campus.
Pnin ch. 3 (1957)
- 7 Human life is but a series of footnotes to a vast obscure unfinished masterpiece.
Pale Fire “Commentary” (1962)

8 Treading the soil of the moon, palpating its pebbles, tasting the panic and splendor of the event, feeling in the pit of one’s stomach the separation from terra . . . these form the most romantic sensation an explorer has ever known . . . this is the only thing I can say about the matter. The utilitarian results do not interest me.

N.Y. Times, 21 July 1969

9 One of those “Two Cultures” is really nothing but utilitarian technology; the other is B-grade novels, ideological fiction, popular art. Who cares if there exists a gap between such “physics” and such “humanities”?

Strong Opinions ch. 6 (1973)

See Snow 2

10 Literature was born not the day when a boy crying wolf, wolf came running out of the Neanderthal valley with a big gray wolf at his heels: literature was born on the day when a boy came crying wolf, wolf and there was no wolf behind him.

Lectures on Literature “Good Readers and Good Writers” (1980)

11 Her exotic daydreams do not prevent her from being small-town bourgeois at heart, clinging to conventional ideas or committing this or that conventional violation of the conventional, adultery being a most conventional way to rise above the conventional.

Lectures on Literature “Madame Bovary” (1980)

Ralph Nader

U.S. reformer, 1934–

1 Unsafe at Any Speed.

Title of book (1965). U.S. journalist John Keats (1920–) had earlier written in The Insolent Chariots ch. 4 (1958), “Our automobiles are so poorly designed as to be unsafe at any speed, and more speed simply increases the danger.”

V. S. Naipaul

Trinidadian novelist, 1932–2018

1 Worse, to have lived without even attempting to lay claim to one’s portion of the earth; to have lived and died as one has been born, unnecessary and unaccommodated.

A House for Mr. Biswas prologue (1961)

- 2 It isn't that there's no right and wrong here.
There's no right.
A Bend in the River ch. 2 (1979)

Carolina Oliphant, Baroness Nairne

Scottish poet, 1766–1845

- 1 Charlie he's my darling, the young Chevalier.
"Charlie Is My Darling" (song) (date unknown). Also attributed to James Hogg.

Joe Namath

U.S. football player, 1943–

- 1 [Predicting the upset victory by the New York Jets in the Super Bowl.] We'll win. I guarantee it.
Quoted in N.Y. Times, 13 Jan. 1969. According to the Times article, Namath made his guarantee on 9 Jan. 1969.

Lewis B. Namier

Polish-born English historian, 1888–1960

- 1 One would expect people to remember the past and to imagine the future. But in fact, when discoursing or writing about history, they imagine it in terms of their own experience, and when trying to gauge the future they cite supposed analogies from the past: till, by a double process of repetition, they imagine the past and remember the future.
"Symmetry and Repetition" (1941)

Fridtjof Nansen
